But I was reassured last Saturday night that spirit does win. That afternoon about 2:00 I left for Danville, Kentucky, with some town friends. Some five hours later we arrived safe but sore at Centre College. After a healthy supper we hunted for the Maryville squad.

Coach Honaker and team were preparing for the game at the athletic house. For those of you who have not had the privilege of being in the locker room previous to a game I would like to relate the scene.

I entered the locker room in hopes of obtaining some passes for the game. Some players were dressed for action and were reclining on the floor. Others were methodically putting on their uniforms. Even others were getting some sort of protective treatment by the methods of taping and other protective pads.

There was a certain amount of uneasiness in the air and conversation was noticably lacking. The odors of sweat and linament that permeated the room made my eyes smart.

Coaches Honaker and Davis stood against the wall in apparent contemplation of their pre-game remarks. Coach Davis was the first to speak and the players eyes watched from the floor to coach to the blackboard which he used to illustrate his points. He relentlessly drove home the necessary things the squad must do to gain a victory, always assuring the team a win was possible.

Then Coach Honaker added to the fire which Davis had started and slowly but surely built a flame that left me well convinced that it was more than possible to win.

The squad took the field amidst the cheers of twenty-five of the noisiest fans I have ever heard. This small but vociferous support seemed to be all the team needed and from the opening whistle it was apparent that if spirit helped, we would win.

Maryville drew first blood and at the beginning of the second half led by a score of 6-0. This lead was eliminated as the Colonels scored and made the bonus point. The injured were literally piling up in front of the Highlander bench, and it looked for awhile as if loss number two was about to be recorded. But the injured recovered and a drive in the last few minutes of play accounted for the needed six points of victory.

The game was over and the players, tired and sore, received the congratulations of the fans who were equally tired and voiceless. As I rode back to campus that evening I began to think about spirit.

The papers said Maryville was to lose by seven points. I had heard our squad and coaches talk about the great strength of Centre. I had looked over the roster and seen how much larger their line was than ours. I saw the officials perform in a way that was detrimental to our squad. I saw four of our better players carried from the field.

But more important than these liabilities, I saw determination to win. And that determination or spirit, call it what you may, paid off in full by the end of the game.

And then I thought about Centre. I remembered that they approached the game with unqualified certainty of victory. I noted that they lost the football after the game so it could not be presented to our captain. I realized that their coach had not come into our locker room after the game to pay a courtesy call.

After weighing these things I felt kind of proud that I went to Maryville College. And apparently I am not alone. For when we got back to Maryville about 5:30 in the morning, people who either go to bed awful late or who get up awful early told about how the campus "went wild" when the final score was announced. And that the spirit shown was the greatest in anyone's memory.

So when it was suggested that I write the sports editorial this week I knew pretty much what should be said. I wanted to reassure the team that the student body was behind them one hundred per cent, and I wanted to tell the students that the team was working one hundred per cent for victory. And that when the Highlanders take the field tonight against our foes from Johnson City, they will be giving their best. And no matter what the result, the same determination will be used next week.

So keep in mind next week that your part in the game may be greater than you think. Make all our opponents and friends know that "Spirit Wins."

'Bobby Burns' Provides Echo Recap Of Giants' Clean Sweep Of '54 Series

By Robert Burns

Their pitching's good
Their hitting's swell,
Their running's fine,
But they're losing like .. ..

A young Cardinal fan composed these lines about midway of the 1954 baseball season. He was entering a contest to determine a Cardinal bat boy for the summer. He won the position, but everybody turned their attention to the truthfulness of his lines. The Cardinals were floundering around in the second division, and no one could offer an adequate explana could offer an adequate explanation.

There seems to be an interesting comparison between the 1954 Cardinals, who were never a threat to win the National League flag, and the pennant-winning Indians who somehow couldn't hustle for the World Championship, for which they were 17-10 favorites. The above lines were uttered by many Cleveland supporters, but probably not with the same vigor used by Al Lopez, the congenial Indian manager. He probably dreamed them after the opening game to the final one.

Let us look back over the season, even back to the pre-season polls which named the Dodgers and Yankees as repeaters. These predictions included some sound reasoning, but the races never progressed in that direction. By mid-season, the Giants and Indians were playing well enough to be considered possible Series opponents. The Indians were scalping all comers with good pitching and hitting. The mound staff included the big three (Lemon, Wynn, and Garcia), supported by Feller, Newhouser, and Houtteman. The big stickmen were Avila, Doby, and Rosen.

The Giants meanwhile pounded the contenders with piower from the bats of Mays, Mueller, and

Highlanders To Battle ETSC Tonight

Bucs Favored To Avenge Last Year's Defeat

Tonight the Highlanders meet East Tennessee State College at Johnson City.

This is the homecoming game for the Bucs, who beat Western Carolina last week 21-14. Maryville upset State 26-20 last year and is out to repeat this year.

The Bucs, who have won 2 out of 3 games this year, are a three to four touchdown favorite. They should be out to show their homecoming crowd that they can avenge the surprise loss they suffered at Maryville last year.

Scots 12, Centre 7; First Road Victory Since 1948

By Jim Demer

Last Saturday night the Scotties won their first road game since 1948 with a hair-raising 12-7 win over the Centre College Praying Colonels in the final 35 seconds of the game.

Maryville dominated the first half, picking up 12 first downs and a 6-0 lead. The Highlanders turned a Colonel fumble into a first period touchdown on a 17 yard pass from Clarence Shepard to Jim Saunders. White's attempt for the conversion was off to the right. Another first half Maryville drive was halted on the 2 yard line. The Scots lost the ball on downs with inches to go.

Early in the third quarter, Centre scored when quarterback Ray Evans on the option play faked a pitchout and ran 42 yards for the touchdown. Harmon kicked the extra point, which loomed larger as the minutes rolled by.

With just three minutes to play in the last quarter, it seemed to all that Maryville was about to suffer another road defeat—that is except for the Scots down on the field and a few loyal fans who had made the long pilgrimage to Danville.

Finally the long awaited break came when Bill Breen recovered a Centre fumble on the Colonel's 35 yard line. Victory was a long way off as the Scots were forced into a kicking position after losing ground on the first three downs. Shepard then, on a fake punt, made a beautiful run, barely picking up the necessary yardage for a first down.

Maryville picked up another first down on running plays led by Shepard. Shepard was injured and Jim McCall was called upon to replace him. McCall then passed to Lynn Sexton, who has just come into the game, for a seven-yard touchdown play and the winning margin in the closing seconds.

Scots Are Hosts In Triangle Meet

U-T Takes Triangle Meet; Maryville Third

Unofficial results Friday afternoon showed U-T in first place in the meet with 38 points. Davidson was second with 40, and the Scots last with 46. Low score wins in Cross-Country.

Don Vandenberg and A. C. McWilliams of Maryville took second and fourth places, respectively.

The Scottie harriers met the Vols of UT and Davidson College in a triangle meet yesterday afternoon on the Maryville course. The event got under way at 1 p.m.

While the Vols were favored to take the meet, it was hoped that the one-two punch of Don Vandenberg and Capt. A. C. McWilliams, backed up by lettermen Sonny Shackelford and Paul Payne, plus a good crop of new men would pull an upset.

Vandenberg is the best runner Coach K. P. Johnson has ever coached, and should cop many a first place, according to K. P.

Results of the match were unavailable as the Echo went to press.

Jacksonville Game

On September 25 the Maryville Highlanders played host to the Jacksonville Stat Teachers College squad from Alabama. With both teams decked out in bright uniforms, it was a colorful game for the many partisan spectators, but the game's color was dulled because the Highlanders became the prey of the Gamecocks, as they lost 14-0.

Nearly everyone agrees that the hustling Highlanders went down to defeat at the hands of a smooth ball club. The Gamecocks had a slick-running backfield, especially the halfbacks Casey and Woodham. It was Woodham who scored once and set up the other touchdowns.

As far as the line is concerned, the Gamecocks depended heavily upon Clark and Coley, two very fine defensive ends. Just last week Coley blocked a punt and recovered it in the end zone for the only score, as they defeated our friends from Carson-Newman. That close game compared with ours may be an indication of a tight game when we journey to C-N on November 6.

Just as the Gamecocks showed a fine squad in victory, our Highlanders brought the fans to their feet on several occasions when a score seemed evident. Late in the first half, the running and passing of Clarence Shepard moved the ball goalward. A key play on this drive was a screen pass to Shelton. But substitution difficulties hindered the Highlanders, and the half ended with the Highlanders inside the five-yard line.

After the Gamecocks scored their two touchdowns in the first half, the second half developed into a see-saw punting battle with the Highlanders playing often in Jacksonville territory. Shepard, on a fake-punt play, scampered 55 yards for the longest run of the game. Yet after this run Maryville could not penetrate the 15-yard line. It was during these last threats that the fans witnessed some fine pass receiving by Chuck Dunn.

As the disappointed fans departed, those who know football knew they had seen a spirited, well-played contest. Aside from the fine running, sharp blocking and tackling, there was a neat display of punting throughout the game. Time and time again the Gamecocks booted some beauties while Jim McCall, on two successive punt situations, near mid-field, kicked one dead within the one yard line, and another dead on the four.

The Highlanders made some mistakes and the Gamecocks played alert ball. Since the squad couldn't give L. S. Honaker, dean of Southern coaches, a present for his 66th birthday, they decided to give him one a week late—their tremendous victory at Danville.

Sloggers Highlight In Intramural Play; Hammers Lead

By Bob Evans

The YMCA Sloggers took the spotlight the beginning of this week by beating the Mountaineers 10-0 on Monday, and the Pre-Mins 12-0 in the first game Tuesday.

Y's touchdowns on Monday were scored by Mert Hall (2) and Ed Drum. Ted McDaniels and Mert Hall each scored a touchdown in Tuesday's encounter.

In Tuesday's second game the Rebels won over the Playboys 6-0. The only score of the game was made by Ken Hutson, who caught a pass standing in the end zone.

Bob Hyne received four stitches to close an injury to his tongue received in the game. At the time of this writing, Mervyn Dixon is in the Blount Memorial Hospital with a possible concussion of the brain. The Rebels got revenge by beating the team which had downed them 6-0 in a previous encounter.

Wednesday's only game saw the Alpha Sig Hammers roll up their fifth straight win by downing the Rebels 14-0. The first score of the game came in the first period when Bob Ramger caught a TD pass and Bill Dent caught the point-after-touchdown pass to make it 7-0.

In the third period Bob Neir caught a pass in the end zone and Harry MacCall kicked the extra point to make it 14-0. The game was very hard fought on both sides.

In the first game Thursday the Playboys snapped their losing streak by smashing the hapless Pre-Mins 27-0. Jim Marsh scored two of the touchdowns on passes. Fred Roseborough chalked up a touchdown on an intercepted pass and added one of the extra points. Dave Amurins caught one TD pass and two point-after-touchdown passes.

The Alpha Sig Hammers romped on to their sixth straight victory by stomping over the Alpha Sig Doobers 20-0 in the second game on Thursday. The touchdowns were rolled up by Bob Nier, Bill Dent, and Harry MacCall, with the two extra points being added by Harry MacCall.

On Friday the Mountaineers encountered the Doobers.

Standings as of Wednesday afternoon:

Team	W	L	T
Hammers	6	0	1
Sloggers	4	2	0
Rebels	4	2	2
Mountaineers	3	3	0
Playboys	2	4	1
Doobers	1	3	2

Chillies, Howies Tie In First

After last minute instructions by captains Nancy Priest (Chillies) and Liz Murphy (Howies) the two WAA teams challenged each other in the first tournament game of the season last Thursday. Cries of "Let's go Chillies!" and "Come on Howies!" resounded from the sidelines as the whistle blew and the soccer game began.

Draft Boards To Re-survey Farm Youths

State Selective Service Headquarters plans to start within a few weeks on what might be called an annual Selective Service harvest of young farm men, Colonel Hilton Butler, State Director, said this week.

It will be an annual survey, to be made by local boards, of the cases of nearly 2,300 young men deferred from military duty because of farm work. The local boards, Colonel Butler said, will determine on an individual basis whether a man should be given a new agricultural deferment or marked "I-A", available for military service.

Deferments because of farm work usually are granted to last through the growing and harvest seasons, the colonel said. They must be reviewed, like all other deferments, at least once a year, he said.

Colonel Butler said also agricultural deferments are permitted only when the man concerned cannot be easily replaced on the particular farm immediately and his "removal" would result in less State College, Johnson City, is listnational health, safety or interest." In each instance a local board usually allows the deferment only after receiving advice from agricultural experts in the county concerned.

An agricultural deferment, the colonel said, adds nine years to the span in which a man can be called into military service. After receiving such a delay he won't become "over age" for Selective Service until his 35th rather than his 26th birthday.

Rhodes, a pinch-hitter. Their fine, though irregular, pitching staff included Maglie, Grissom, Antonelli, Gomez, Wilhelm, and Little.

So, when it was all over—154 games tucked under their belts—the Indians had become the winningest team in American League history (111-43), and the Giants had turned back the thrusts of the Braves and Dodgers to capture the flag. The Giants became the underdogs for some unknown reason; reasons other than the Indians' 11-43 record, I hope.

Only a few picked the Giants to win. Just think, if you had bet on a clean sweep by the Giants, you might be a millionaire today.

The Series began and people said it might be quick—the Indians were on the warpath. Leo Durocher, the Giant mastermind, didn't intend to lie down and play dead for the Indians. He meant to employ the same factors against the Indians that enabled him to win the pennant; the same factors, incidentally, of which the Indians seemed to highly possessed. That is, he would use good pitching, solid hitting, and fine running.

The Giant team was up; Leo decided to make every play from his Series: Leo did make every move count, with disastrous results for the Indians.

All eyes turned to the Polo Grounds for the first game of the World Series, for these the greatest spectacle of America's national pastime. Sal Maglie and Bob Lemon opposed each other, and as the innings passed, the score remained 2-2. Each team had muffed several scoring opportunities. In the last of the 10th, Leo saw his opening.

After Mays had walked to open the 10th, Durocher ordered him to steal second. Mays was safe, and the next batter was intentionally walked. Leo called on his left-handed pinch hitter, Dusty Rhodes. who cavorted for Rock Hill (S.C.) and Nashville in Southern minor league play, responded with a "pop" homer down the line on the first pitch. That was the bill game, 5-2, for the Giants.

The next three games were similar in fashion. The Giant pitchers were rough when the bags were occupied, and their timely hitting produced vital runs. Their defensive play was spectacular, as they swept the next games 3-1, 6-2, and 7-4.

The Series was over almost before the people had adjusted their TV sets.

It is difficult to analyze the Cleveland defeat. But as long as we have sportswriters, there will be opinions. Most people can tell you, though, why the Giants won. They had fine pitching, Rhodes' hitting (three pinch hits), and excellent fielding, especially by Mays and Thompson.

Vic Wertz is probably the only happy Indian player. He's proud of his terrific hitting. The entire Cleveland squad will meditate all winter about their defeat, while the Giants will relax in happiness. Even Leo can't sit down with his beautiful wife Laraine Day without worrying about his baseball future.

At least the Indians and Giants can meditate and relax in luxury—it was the richest Series ever for the players. Each of the Giants got an average of over $10,000.

run, and cost to the students will be $1.85—$1 for the game tickets and 85 cents for bus fare. Student Council members are to be in charge of the sale of tickets.

Also it was announced that the election for Barnwarming queen and court would be held on Thursday, October 21.

The Council voted to print small schedule cards having the special B and C schedules on them.

At the October 1 meeting, council president Carol Moore told the group that a collection of constitutions, rules, reports and other documents would be made throughout this school year to make a Book of Law, a Book of Organizations, and a Book of Committee Reports. This is in line with the practice last year of gathering under one cover all decisions by the council and procedure for annual events.

Also at the same meeting Council discussed briefly the possibility of appointing a committee which would censor the Echo's news story on council meetings, but the group decided such would be "denying freedom of the press."

Scotty . . .

it to him on September 15, which was his twentieth birthday. "I couldn't describe my feeling of that moment when they were all souting Happy Birthday at me," said Scotty. "I was all happy and all sad!" But serving a table of seven boys isn't all sweetness and light. Scotty asked me not to quote the number of eggs eaten at Sunday supper.

But how did Scotty happen to hear about Maryville? That is comparitively simple when one considers that Miss Edith McMillan and Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Eaddy, who are all MC grads, were all church workers in his church in West Virginia.His pastor, Dr. George Vick, was also instrumental in helping Scotty to choose Maryville. Scotty's reaction to Maryville College was no different from that of the other freshmen. "It's such a very friendly place," he said.

Sports and Women

What does our Scottish friend think about American sports? First, he loves American football, which is very similar to the Scottish game, Rugby. And he likes American football just because everyone can yell, and Scotty loves to yell! (Hear that, Wilkinson?) Football in Scotland resembles what we call soccer, and Scotty is waiting with baited breath to see the WAA soccer tournament, Thursday. It could well be both the girls and the game he is waiting to see.

Along with Scotty's interests and ideas, he gave a grand picture of his home town, his people, and his language. His home of Stirling is patterned after Edinburgh, although not nearly so large. It has a very important castle and also The Church of the Holy Rood, where Mary, Queen of Scots, once worshipped.

The Scotch people began to stop wearing kilts about the time of the last war and kilts were considered "sissy." Not so, anymore; kilts are a mark of manliness in Scotland, and although they are still not worn as extensively as they once were, more and more are wearing them.

While English is the mother tongue of Scotland, the Scotch tend to use their own almost as much as do Americans, Scotty confessed. He gave me some remarkable sounding sentences, and one of them just fits what we all think of Scotty Marshall:

"Good things come in small packages," or—"Guid gear gangs in sma' buke."

Chillies-Howies . .

both teams who had practiced only two weeks. Both teams boasted strong defensive lines keeping the forwards busy trying to get through the halfbacks to the goal.

The Howies succeeded in scoring late in the first quarter after Junior Davis, June Renner, and Mary Kirkland worked the ball to the goal line and past the goalie for the point.

The Chillies, not broken by the Howies' lead, came back in the second quarter led by forwards Shirley Axley, Mary Ann Thompson and Roberta Myers to score two goals, one by a free kick at the mouth of the goal-lan.

At halftime the Chillies led 2-1 over the Howies. Halftime instructions to both teams proved valuable for the defense tightened up and the third quarter showed some good passing and ball handling by both teams.

The goalies on a soccer game seem always to get the worst end of the game and the goalies Thursday were no exception. For the Chillies, Jane Kirkpatrick and Sandy Chilcoat played exceptional games while the Howies Freshman team member Jimmy Ward playing in her first soccer game showed that experience isn't everything.

A fourth quarter rally by the Howies netted them their second score in a goal made by the wing throwing into the goal lane and a quick pass over the halfbacks.

In the backfield Emma Curtis held the Chillies together, assisted by Paula Kronenburg and Willie Duval. For the Howies, Betty Watson, Emma Lou Arnold, Sue Kirkland held the opposing forwards away from the goal.

Everyone is looking forward to Tuesday when the two teams will meet again to break the tie.

The M-Club girls are laving Saturday at 1:30 for a week-end in the mountains. Everyone is looking forward to a grand time. They will return on Sunday afternoon.

Fall Play Includes Huge Cast

Volume 40 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, OCTOBER 23, 1954 | Number 5

10 Per Cent of Students Are In 'Street Scene'

First Perfomance On November 4

By Don Adams

Under the pitiless glare of a streetlight and the constant grumble of the city, squats a dingy, brownstone apartment house set in the slow decay of New York's East Side. It is here that people from all walks of life let us glimpse their way of life—the business of humanity all over—the business of living. This is a slice of life we only hear about . . . .

The curtain rises November 4 on "Street Scene," a three act drama of mood and character study, presented by the Maryville College Playhouse under the direction of Miss Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of Drama and Speech. This play, written by Elmer Rice, was originally produced in New York.

Ten Percent of Students Participating

In discussing the play, Miss Craven pointed out many interesting facts. "Over ten percent of the Maryville student body is participating in the play or is connected with it", she said. (There are 59 in the cast playing 73 roles). "There are many difficulties involving the problems of handling large numbers of people on stage—and," she added, smiling tiredly, "getting them to act as a group, because success depends on grouping. But, I think they are coming along wonderfully, and they have instilled rhythm and feeling—so necessary for a smooth performance!"

Not Basically A Plot Play

She emphasized that "Street Scene" is not primarily a plot play, but depends on mood and characterization. Success in a play of this type depends on the small parts, extras, and crowd scenes to sustain the rhythm and the feel of the action.

"These people are doing a marvelous job in an awfully short time," she said. Much of this has been made possible by the faithful attendance of everyone at rehearsal and the fine concentration of detail and timing that all members of the cast and stage crew are putting into their work. All this prom-

Dr. Lloyd Now On Speaking Tour

A very busy man this week will be Maryville College's president, Dr. Lloyd, as he continues his speaking tour of the eastern states

Dr. Lloyd is now in Easton, Pa., where he will attend a conference at Lafayette College this evening and deliver the sermon there tomorrow morning. Then, immediately after speaking at a Convocation in the Presbyterian Church of Oxford, Pa., on Monday evening, he will travel to New York.

On Tuesday, October 26, Dr. Lloyd will speak to the Council of Buck Hill Falls, N. Y., his topic being "Theological Education." That night he will journey to New York City by train and from there will fly to Atlanta.

A few hours after alighting from his plane in Atlanta on Wednesday afternoon, he will attend a Convocation of Presbyterians at the Druid Hills Presbyterian Church. Also attending this Convocation will be the moderators of the Presbyterian Church, US, and the United Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Lloyd's final address of this particular tour will be delivered Thursday morning at the chapel service of Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Ga. He will arrive at the Knoxville airport in the early afternoon of this same day. Then after a few days rest, he will travel to Illinois where he will spend another busy week attending a series of important meetings.

Harter Names 12 Students As 'Messiah' Soloists

22nd Performance Of Oratorio

By Abigail Crosby

Twelve students have been named as soloists for Handel's Oratorio, "Messiah," according to announcement made by Harry H. Harter, assistant professor of music. The soloists are Erma Pinkston, Myrna Ginaven, Sheila Sutton, Mary Ellen Phipps, Elizabeth Murphey, Carol Lee Lacy, Bobbye Carson, Walter Schroeder, James Akin, Sidney Tedford, Richard Morse, William Cunningham, and William Howell.

Miss Pinkston, freshman music major from Maryville, will sing the soprano recitatives, "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Field," "And, Lo, th Angel of the Lord Came upon Them," "And the Angel Said unto Them," "And Suddenly There Was with the Angels a Multitude." The soprano air, "Come unto Him" will be sung by Miss Phipps, sophomore elementary education major from Clintonville, Pa. Miss Ginaven, junior music major from Xenia, Ohio, will sing the soprano air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth"; and Miss Sutton, senior music major from Chadbourne, N. C., will sing the soprano air, "If God Be for Us."

"Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive" and "O, Thou that Tellest Good Tidings to Zion," alto recitative and air, will be sung by Miss Murphey, junior physical education major from Springfield. Miss Lacy, sophomore Bible major from St. Petersburg, Fla., will sing the recitative and air, "Then Shall the

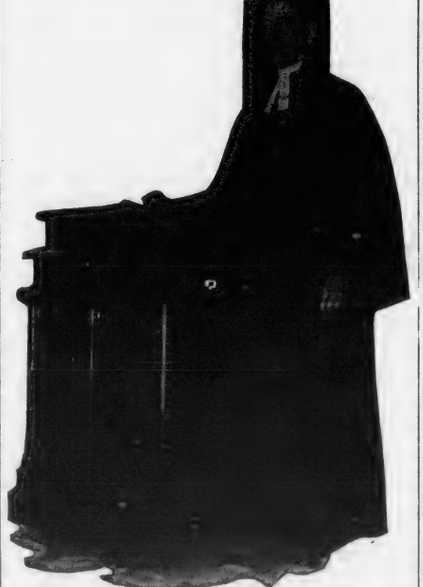
Mrs. J. R. Salsbury Says MC Means 'Something Great'

"Maryville College has come to stand for something great," Mrs. J. R. Salsbury, president of the National Council of Women's Organizations in the Presbyterian Church, USA, told MC faculty and students last Saturday morning in the annual Founders' Day service.

She was speaking in regard to the church women's declaring a proposed new women's dormitory at Maryville the recipient of their opportunity giving for the coming year.



Other reasons Mrs. Salsbury gave for supporting the independent church college and Maryville in particular were that the church wanted to "reproduce its own kind," teach its principles to youth on the college level; and that the crest of new higher enrollments is expected by about 1970, and extra facilities will be needed to take care of the greater number.

Mrs. Salsbury also pointed out that approximately a half-million Presbyterian women make up the organizations which she represents as president of the National Council. The title of her address was "What's In A Name?", pointing out that the name of Maryville College had come to mean something to people throughout this country and the world, and that Maryville graduates, as Christian young people, should mean something because they bear the name of Christ.

Others participating in the service were Dr. Joseph J. Copeland,

Dr. Stevenson for 20 Years Served College without Salary

DR. STEVENSON as he looked to thousands of Maryville College students during his 20 years' service.

By Jim Hopkins

Since the death of the Rev. Dr. William Stevenson in November, 1944, ten years ago, the College has been without a College Pastor.

Many of us kknow of the sincere affection held for Dr. Stevenson by thousands of college students who have been influenced by his messages, by his life. For over 20 years, he served faithfully. And he served without salary from the College. He and his

Miss Davies Heads Tennessee AAUW

Katherine C. Davies, Professor of Music and Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, was elected state president of the American Association of University Women this month at the yearly workshop held in Memphis. She will officially hold this office from June, 1955, through July, 1957.

Miss Davies succeeds the Dean of Women of Memphis State College, Miss Flora Rawls, as president. Involved in her office is a trip to California in June to the Bi-annual National Convention to be held in Los Angeles.

Kesler Leads Prayer; Crosby Next Week

Prayer Meeting was held at 9:30 in the Y-rooms on Thursday night, October 21. Jim Kesler was the speaker.

Next Thursday night on October 28, Abigail Crosby will speak.

Council Advises All-Elected Representation

Student Council Wednesday night recommended to its committee on the revising of the constitution that Council representation in the future be entirely elected from the student body with no ex-officio organization members.

Lengthy discusion on the system of representation made up the larger part of the council meetings both this week and last. But the discussion Wednesday night was a great deal more restained than the one at last week's meeting when the matter was first brought up.

At that time a council committee on the matter proposed that members of council in the future (after the new system would take effect) be made up of 24 persons who were "connected with student government."

Those presently authorized to be council members who would not be under a proposed new system are Chilhowean editor, Echo editor, and the president of YM, YW, and the Athletic Board. The proposed council thus would consist of: the president and vice-president of the student body, three freshmen, three sophomores, four juniors, five seniors, the four class presidents, the WSGA president, the Social Board chairman, and the chairman of the Inter-Club Council or its equivalent.

Earlier in the meeting a committee investigating the Inter-Club Council and the worth of its existence had recommended that the organization be kept so it would "be there if it were needed." But the Council voted not to accept the recommendations, and passed the matter on to a current committee on constitutional revision with the understanding that continued existence of the ICC was not the recommendation of the Council.

Herb White last week brought up the matter of having all representatives on council elected by the students, and eliminating all ex-officio members, presidents of organizations who automatiecally become council members.

White said the council "was going to have to go whole hog

Music Majors Present Recital

The first student recital was held Tuesday afternoon in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Presenting the recital were Laura Rainwater, pianist, who played "Lament" by Bach, and Myrna Ginaven, pianist, who played "Three Part Invention in D Minor" by Bach.

Richard Morse, bass, sang "Adelaide" by Beethoven, and Maryel Vogel, pianist, presented two numbers, "Longora," and "Ballade" from Bartok's Fifteen Peasant Songs. Wally Schroeder, tenor, sang Powell Weaver's "Moon Marketing," and Mary Brasfield, organist, presented Buxtehude's "Prelude, Fugue, and Chaconne."

Paul W. Henry Resigns; To Take Auburn Post

College Treasurer Since 1948

Paul W. Henry, treasurer of Maryville College since February, 1948, revealed this week that he has resigned, effective December 15, to take a position as assistant business manager of Alabama Polytechnic Institute in Auburn, Ala.

His resignation was announced to the directors at the October 15 meeting, Mr. Henry said.

A native of Townsend, Mr. Henry received business training at the University of Tennessee and the University of Georgia. He said his work at Auburn would be "a little more detailed and some more responsibility" than the duties he has at Maryville. Auburn has an average enrollment of about 8,000 students, he said.

He will begin work there on December 16, a few weeks before the college's term begins right after New Year's Day. Mr. Henry and his wife, the former Miss Mildred Rowe of Alabama, have two little girls, Nancy and Linda. His sister, the former Ruth Henry, now Mrs. Perce Ross of Buchanan, W. Va., graduated from Maryville in 1933.

Mr. Henry said he had "certainly enjoyed working here and will continue to have an interest in Maryville College after I leave." "That's the hardest part about leaving; going away from all the friends you've made and everyone you've gotten to know," he said. "I have enjoyed my work here very much," he added.

He did not know of anyone who might be his successor.

Boston Firm To Publish Dr. Hunter's New Book

Book Out This Month

By Abigail Crosby

The Christopher Publishing House of Boston, Mass., this month will publish "Shakspere and Common Sense," a book by Dr. Edwin R. Hunter, professor of English, chairman of the Division of Language and Literature, and Dean of Curriculum at Maryville College.

The work is a compilation of chapters on otherwise unrelated Shaksperian topics, tied together by the idea that there is a pretitude. Shakspere's emphasis is pere's plays which manifests itself mainly in two manners of treatment:

1. That where there is any conflict between a sentimental attitude and a common sense attitude, Shakespere's emphasis is always on the side of common sense; and

2. That Shakspere deals with matters of mental and moral aberration as they would be dealt with by any intelligent and observant layman.

Dr. Hunter, a graduate of Maryville College with the class of 1917, hold an MA and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago, and also holds an honorary Litt.D. degree from Maryville. He has been with the college since 1918.

"Shakspere and Common Sense" is his first book, with the exception of one or two texts, but he is well known in the literary fields for his articles which have appeared in leading scholarly journals and periodicals, such as English Journal, American Speech, and the Shakspere Quarterly.

The publishing company's advertising folder commented, "Here is a unique, valuable, and essential book for your Shakesperian collection by an authority on Shakespere. Readably written, it reveals a new light on Shakspere."

Rev. J. H. Laster To Preach At Vespers

The speaker at the Vespers service Sunday night in the chapel will be the Rev. J. Hayden Laster, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Harriman. Mr. Laster is a member of the class of '29, and is currently on the Board of Directors.

The Vesper Choir will sing "Evening Hymn" by Lockwood, and "Sicut Cervus," a number by Palestrina, based on the text, "Like as a hart panteth after the water brook."

IRC To See Movie On United Nations

The International Relations Club will meet on Monday, November 1, upstairs in Thaw Hall. There will be a movie shown on the United Nations.

This week, October 17-24, is United Nations week, and IRC will present the chapel program, Saturday, October 23, concluding this national observance.

Bainonian To Begin Special Pep Project

A special project to be undertaken at Bainonian meeting today will be the construction of shakers for the pep rally.

Athenian provided the entertainment for the Bainonian girls at their last regular meeting.

The program was introduced by Don Thiel, master of ceremonies, and featured Walt Hiller, who played a medley of popular songs on clarinet, and "Cap" Johnson, who performed a number of magic tricks.

All Of Maryville's Traditions Have Not Yet Been Revealed

By Barbara Wilkie

Maryville is an old, old campus with numerous legends and romantic tales connected with it. Some of these aren't generally known, however. Who would ever think, for instance that the college was named after a certain Mary Well, it was, and this Mary was quite a gal in her time. She was really a siren, with more than her share of suitors.

One of them came up with the brilliant idea of founding an institution in her honor. It was originally an insane asylum for disappointed lovers, but somewhere along the line it evolved into its present status as a college.

After the Civil War (i.e. War between the States) various customs and traditions were established. One of these was "Ralph," a word that has since come to be synonymous with "nightwatchman."

The first Ralph was a formidable creature, towering six feet three inches above his shoe soles. He wore a voluminous black cloak and carried a lantern. His abode was near the college cemetery. Ralph was a staunch Southerner, and for some obscure reason it was during his administration that the yankee enrollment declined. He succeeded so well in keeping the campus safe and secure that it has been a tradition ever since to have a "Ralph" stuck around in convenient places.

Another gem of tradition that has been found on campus even longer than Ralph is the wolfpack. Maybe you don't realize it,

Elections Held For Barnwarming; Results Secret

The Barnwarming Queen and her court were elected yesterday by vote of the student body, but, in keeping with the tradition of Barnwarming, the results will not be announced until Thanksgiving night.

Nominated for Queen by the student body were Jean Morgan, sociology major from Mathiston, Miss., and Mary Ann Thompson, physical education major from Maryville. Candidates for King are Bill Breen, political science major from Anniston, Ala., and Jim Kesler, Greek major from North Hills, Pa. All four candidates are seniors.

Chosen from the classes as candidates for sponsor are: seniors, Janice Clemens, music major from Maryville, and Barbara Chubb, sociology major from Athens, Pa.; juniors, Elizabeth Enloe, sociology major from Atlanta, and Martha Jackson, English major from Nashville; sophomores, Elinor Bass, English major from Rice, Pa., and Lavinia Lee, home economics major from Fayetteville, Ark., and freshmen, Mary Ellen Lee, English major from Fayetteville, Ark., and Betty Lou Zimmerman, education major from Clearwater, Fla.

Barnwarming is the annual sponsored social event of the fall semester, this year's show and carnival being under the direction of Nancy Rideout, Peg Fisher, and Barbara Chubb.

Debaters To Hold Panel Discussions

The college debate group has been holding regular meetings and has scheduled a series of panel discussions for the next three weeks.

This week, Jo Brooks headed a discussion on "The Origin, History, and the Definition of terms." Next week Sarah Pledger will lead the discussion on "The Affirmative Issues," with Bob Clark the following week leading "The Negative Issues."

On November 1 the debaters plan to begin practice debates.

More Senior Privileges?

What has become of senior privileges? A few short years ago, a senior woman was allowed to date on Sunday, to have an extra town night in addition to the regular Tuesday night privilege, and to go to Knoxville under specified circumstances. n the past two years the town night privilege was extended to include juniors, and early last semester many of the strictures were removed from the previous town night agreement and the "new proposal" became a valued and respected reality.

At the present time there is a growing movement, meeting with almost unanimous approval, to extend the Sunday dating to juniors. All this is good. There are many of our programs which still need revision and extension, and which, if past progress is any indication, will continue to develop to the further satisfaction of everyone concerned with Maryville College.

It would, of course, be foolhardy to suggest that there is any resentment toward the inclusion of juniors in these privileges, or any feeling against the propriety of such extensions. It does seem strange, however, that the only recognition given to seniors here is that of leaving chapel first (plus the dubious honor of writing special studies and taking comps). Seniors may still spend an evening in Knoxville, it is true, but a few well-chosen words will gain any student the 'special' privilege.

Progress has to be measured by consistency in movement as well as by the strides it takes. Maryville must continue to rework and revise its social program. So far, the majority of changes inaugurated have been based on the successes of their trial in the senior class.

There are, it appears, several reasons, then, why a continued and expanded program of senior privileges would be advisable: it gives special recognition to seniors; it is, obviously, a sign of seniority; and it provides a point of departure for further changes.

Intramural Injuries

This week there appeared on Carnegie bulletin board a message from Coach K. P. Johnson regarding injuries to touch football players, requiring treatment either at the college infirmary or Blount Hospital. And in today's isue we have a contribution from a student who has had the duty of carrying some of these injured off the field after they were hurt either through carelessness, maliciousness, or both.

We would like to add our word by way of requesting those who play ball especially to observe the ideals and rules of sportsmanship during the intramural season. As all players know, it is the attitude and way you play which determines the future of the intramural system of the college. These games are not designed as devices through which individuals may express vengeance because of grudges or as occasions where such grudges may begin. Certainly some caution on the part of all the players could eliminate at least part of the continuing hospitalization cases which come from these football games.

Remember Coach's definition of a "temperamental athlete": 95 percent temper, 4 percent brains, one percent athlete.

United Nations Week

During this week you have perhaps noticed some students wearing small pins about the United Nations; the reason is that this is United Nations week and that tomorrow is United Nations Day.

Most of us as intelligent students should recognize the fact that the United Nations exists for the purpose of helping us—not to undermine our government or its effectiveness. Some who have not taken this viewpoint some time ago advocated that October 23 be called "United States Day," obviously trying to put their well-known 105 percent nationalism in one day or one jump ahead of the special observance for the UN. We are not sure if they were successful.

Living today on a campus as the majority of us do, we can all understand how cooperation is necessary not only for everyone to live successfully in a group of over 600 people, but also to live with and understand persons from many parts of our country and, more significantly, from varied countries of our world. And cooperation is one of the best paths toward understanding, which is frequently one of the most formidable barriers to getting along with others.

Let us now remind ourselves who are or will be active citizens that our decision to support an organization such as the United Nations whose aim is a peaceful world is a most effective, progressive one. We must be positive in such matters.

Scots & Soda

By Bill Deerfield

With all the talk going around concerning concerning school spirit perhaps it would be wise if we all took notice of Hamburger who is one of the most school spirited members of the student body. (Didn't you know? He's taking courses in car chasing, trees, and bone burying.)

Although he can't tell anyone about school spirit, he certainly demonstrates t in a very noticeable way. He comes to just about every outdoor meeting or activity that is held and makes it a point to greet everyone personally, who is present. He usually stays too, unless, of course, the program is excessively dull and then he can't be blamed for leaving early.

Hamburger has become particularly attached to the band, and every time his friends begin to march and play, he is sure to be right in the middle of things, inspecting the twirlers and majorettes and seeing that everyone is doing his job right. It may also be mentioned that Hamburger was the unofficial leader of last year's homecoming parade.

With all his spirit and interest in campus activities, he might make a fine mascot, but unfortunately, "man looketh on the outward appearance," and somehow he just couldn't pass for a cuddly scottie that must of necesity fill that job. The only way he could posibly be worked into the position is if we changed our name from "the Scotties" to "The Mongrels," and would never do!

Well, the ethics test we've all been hearing so much about for the past two weeks is over and no fatalites have been reported. Barbara Buttrill made the highest grade, and Clarence Shepard, was one of the D.A.R.'s not far behind her, which proves that football players do not necessarily have all brawn and no brains.

Adlai Boyd tried (unsuccessfully) to get Dr. Cooper off the subject in French 201 with the following desperate device:

Question: What did the termite ask when he entered the saloon?
Answer: Is the Bartender here?
(Oh, monsieur!)

Another witticism" was offered when one of Miss Blair's English classes was discussing Paradise Lost this week. The fallen angels who were engaged in general horseplay during Satan's absence were described by someone as just "raising hell."

Pity the poor Frosh! Now that the humiliation of initiations is over a "new" procedure for leaving chapel has been put into effect. Perhaps they can find some consolation, in the face of this fresh indignity, from the following, "The first shall be last and the servant of all shall be master." (No irreverance is intended.)

An ethical jingle for our consideration:

On my honor
I will do my best
To take all they give me
And steal the rest.

The sad story going the rounds of all the campus lovers now is that the "dark convenient space" under the theatre stage has been partitioned off for unauthorized persons in the Chapel. The purpose of this action, of course, is to avoid disturbing the caretaker who resides in the basement.

Ask about the blood sucking class, better known as Biology 207!

Herb White got his professors and languages mixed and created a mild commotion when he said "Guten Morgen" to Herr Doktor Hunter one sleepy morning last week.

As a manner of protest against having has harem chased out of the dining hall at 1:15, Pate Boyd wailed, "How do you ever expect me to find a wife if I can't try them out on the dishes first?"

Just exactly what did Mr. Bushing mean when he misquoted "Paradise Lost" as

"Farewell, happy fields,
Where joy forever dwells! Hail, horrors! hail,
Infernal World! and thou, profoundest Hell,
Receive thy new professor . . . ."

Guess where she's from: One of Miss Ware's freshman waitresses was dicovered dishing out her supply of hominy grits into the dessert dishes. "But it looked like tapioca pudding!"

On Voting

Maybe this reminder is unnecessary to the comparatively few students to whom it applies; we remind you that congressional elections will be here within the next very few weeks. And the time between now and election day will be the one of final drive and effort by the candidates and their national parties.

Many college students have a bad reputation for not knowing what goes on outside our own campus world because they "can't seem to have time to read the newspapers." If we are going to vote intelligently we cannot procede knowing so little about the issues or the candidates whom we hope to support.

For some of us it is the first time we have voted. If one is 21 years old and thus eligible to cast a ballot, he should be able to know and to decide what his position will be himself. We do not mean that one ought to be different just because he has "become a man"; he should, however, go about this business seriously.

Above all, know what is going on, what the issues are, and have some ideas about them. It is a natural complement to your formal education.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Charles Partee

This column, as you may have observed, is called "Voices, Masks, and Shadows." Now I confess I don't know why. I'm not apologizing—I'm just saying I'm sorry my knowledge on such a vital issue is so limited. The only voice I know is the one that I hear singing gustatorily in the wee hours before breakfast around here. The mask is what happens when I try to get one pillow in two ears. The shadow is what passes over the old physiognomy with the reluctant revelation that a new day has arrived and another cup of dining hall coffee is to be braved. Enough of that literary stuff—now to the article.

Most of us, I think, come to college with some sort of purpose—nebulous perhaps, but nevertheless a purpose. Some come to get a degree and nothing more. For example, Dr. Hunter tells of a man who could scarcely wait until graduation so he would never have to read another book. The answer to that is Dr. Orr's famous, "Well-l-l-l, OK, if that's what he wants." In this column we are concerned with those who view college not as the culmination of education but a sweeping view of the vast mountain range that is learning and an opportunity to choose a path through a portion of it.

H. A. Overstreet in "The Mature Mind" says that we need to contrive or plan for the growth of the mind that has breadth and depth and continuity. His concern is with maturity, and surely learning is of paramount importance toward that goal. I think one of the significant contributions in the field of colloquia for maturity and learning is "The Great Books" set that we are fortunate to have in our library. Robert Hutchins and his collegues have made a bold attempt at summarizing what he terms "the great conversation" in the western world. These books are a fine place to begin for one who is interested in building what is called "an apperceptive mass" from which real thinking can come. The policy of our library is that the books in the set cannot be checked out overnight, but there are generally other copies of these books elsewhere in the library.

Tacitus is in the collection and he is heavy reading. He is an historian and quite important in the field. Tolstoy's "War and Peace" is considered by many to be the greatest novel ever written. His genius is beyond my description. I finished the book and laid it almost reverently aside. I cannot begin to criticize it because I don't know how he wrought such a work. From Tolstoy I turned to Dostoevski and "The Brothers Karamazov." This is a remarkable book, too. Ivan, the character who wrote the chapter "The Grand Inquisition," is an atheist driven to the position the most Christian of motives. It is teriffic. The thesis, brought out by the Silent Christ, is that "truth nailed to the cross compels noone." The chapter entitled "Rebellion" is the other high point of intellectual reach. Here Ivan reveals why he can accept God more readily than he can accept man. Last week I wanted to read his "Crime and Punishment" but it was checked out, so I read "The Idiot," a story of a man of great simplicity entering the strange tensions of the world, somewhat like Savage in "Brave New World." The Russian authors present striking pictures of men of intellect and passion. Bazarov in Turgenev's "Fathers and Sons" is a "superman," the one whom Nietzche loved but never quite portrayed.

Rebelais and Chaucer are in The Great Books, Rabelais, a satarist and a humorist, and Chaucer, "the nonpareiled observer of human nature."

In biography, Ludwig's "Goethe" and Maurois' "Byron" are worthy of a perusal.

For light reading try Myers' "From Beowulf to Virginia Woolf," and Erskine's "Venus, The Lonely Goddess" and "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

They parted at the corner, she whispered a sign, "I'll be home tomorrow night."
He answered, "So will I."

And there was the gal they called "Switchboard" because when she walked all her lines were busy.

Sports Spotlights

By John Borter

This week two of our fellows were taken to the hospital for treatment because they weren't prepared to face a battering ram when they went out to enjoy an hour or so of 'touch' football. I've taken these guys over to the hospital, so I've been in a good position to see just what is going on in our Intramural program, to see first hand the attitude of many of the players. I think it's time to say something about it.

Let's look at some of the aims of the entire Intramural program: (1) To provide a way for good exercise. Anybody gets tired after a full day of classes, and the body should have exercise, not abuse. (2) Next, there is an important matter of having a good time, but not a good time at another person's expense. Now I bring in a word that everyone thinks gets overworked but it is also the word we seem to be setting aside while we play. Yes, it is—(3) Sportsmanship. Needless to say, we do not expect players to cheer when the opposing team makes a t.d. (that would not be a bad idea but just a bit too much to expect. But from where I stand I cannot help hearing such things as, "Use your elbows, push his nose through the mud," or after a good play has been made by the opposing team—"I'm not impressed!" Other things I hear are not quotable at this time.

A thing has happened recently which seems to me the height of unsportsmanlike conduct. One of our fellows expecting maybe to be downed by just a simple tackle (in our 'touch' football games) was met by a good "old fashioned" block tackle which turned him over in mid air and did severe damage to an important nerve. The fellow was pretty sick; he's still limping, 5 days later. The person responsible for the injury walked away with an unconcerned look on his freshman face, and still I'm not sure that any words have been exchanged. I do not expect overdone apologies, but I do think that a handshake, or a helping hand is in order.

The other fella is still in the hospital with a knowledge that he might have to go to surgery for a little cutting and mending spree. I must admit that he himself should have more sense than to play against doctors' orders BUT this injury had nothing to do with any previous injury. Again no real concern was shown.

I can already hear comments to the effect that football is no sissy sport and that those that do not want to play a hard game should not play at all. True, and I am all for a good hard game IF (1) all the players are in shape; (2) If all players have the proper equipment for the game they're playing; (3) If we make up our mind whether we're playing touch or tackle. (By this I mean to imply that I have seen tackle tactics in games called 'touch'.)

We have all read articles in the Echo concerning the fact that "Spirit Wins." Let us take this a step farther and admit that it certainly is not a sin to lose. It is only natural for one to go into the game to win, but if one is not winning there is no excuse for one to blow up and throw all rules and sportsmanship out. If you are winning, do not parade your winning, and if you are loosing, play all the harder, but play fairly. I think it is well to remember:

"It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts;
It's how did you fight and why?" —Edmund Vance Cooke

(This addition is being made after the original article has been set up and after some people have already read the article.)

A third injury has occurred to make the record 3 for 4. Our third player was taken to the hospital for X-rays. The most significant part of the incident was a comment made by a bystander, which was, "Where is John Borter?"

I picked three implications from the comment: (1) that this person thought very little of football injuries, and (2) that he might well have know that I wrote this article which it has been agreed was nobody's business but mine and of the editorial staff of the Echo. Thirdly and lastly, I believe some intramural players would appreciate a laissez faire attitude at the cost of more injuries.

WAA Tourney Ends In Tie

By Joan Herschelman

Rivalry was keen as the Chillies and the Howies faced each other in the last game of a three game tournament in soccer. The record for the previous games showed two, 2-2 ties, leaving the third contest as the deciding one.

The first half was full of excitement as several near goals were kept from becoming scores by quick thinking halfbacks and fullbacks. The goalies, Junior Davis and Jane Kirkpatrick played well in their dangerous positions.

Both teams entered the second half more determined than ever to break the tie. When the final whistle blew to end the game the score was 0-0, ending the tournament in a tie. A pre-game vote had cancelled playing "sudden death."

A word of praise and thanks should be given here to Mary K. Allison who really took a beating as the official referee. It's not the easiest thing in the world to call a game when you have been used to playing with and against the players on both teams. She did a very conscientious and fair job of officiating and deserves a vote of thanks from all the girls.

Liz Murphey took over Tuesday with fancy warm-up exercises and aerial darts. To quote her "welcoming speech," it has been said that aerial darts combines the smashing speed of tennis, skilled control of ping pong, stamina of handball and the dexterity of badminton.

This past week was primarily for practice with the tournament play-offs starting Tuesday. Mary Ann Thompson who earned the winning place in the line her sophomore year will be the greatest threat, but Roberta Myers and Junior Davis two more of the seeded players will give her competition.

Line-ups for the soccer tournament:

Rebels Stomp Pre-Mins 24-0

In Thursday's first game the Rebels romped over the Pre-Mins 240. Bill Wallace holed up three of the Rebels' touchdowns and Al Sams scored the other.

The Alpha Sig Doobers held the Playboys to a scoreless tie in the second game on Thursday. The equally matched defenses of these two teams caused the absence of scoring. Blackie Blackwell hurt his hand in this game.

Scots Hope To Scalp Newberry

Scots Out To Revenge Last Year's Homecoming Game Loss To Newberry

By Jim Demer

The Highlanders journey to Newberry, S.C., tonight where they will be take on the powerful Newberry Redmen. The Honakermen will be out to avenge a 13-7 homecoming loss suffered at the hands of the Indians last year.

The Scots should enter the game at least a one touchdown underdog. Keeping in the poor tradition of sportswriters, I pick the Indians by two touchdowns. Whenever I pick the other team, the Scots seem to win, so here's hoping

Scot Harriers Lose Two

The Scottie Hill and Dalers have yet to enter the charmed winning circle as they dropped the second and third consecutive losses of the year.

Wednesday, October 13, saw the Highlanders lose to powerful U-T 22-3. Don Vanderberg took second and Ace McWilliams fourth for the Highlanders. U-T placed the first, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth men as Shackelford took ninth. Ingles and Payne finished out the Maryville scoring with tenth and eleventh.

Last Wednesday the Scots dropped a close one to a surprising Berea team, 25-31. Vandenberg, McWilliams and Shackelford ran in their usual order as they finished second, third, and sixth. Wyche and Ingles were ninth and eleventh to place the Highlander top five.

Wrestlers Begin Getting In Shape

One sure sign that winter is on its way is the start of wrestling practice. Coach J. D. Davis announced the beginning of the groaners' season with practice every Monday Wedensday and Friday afternoons.

The Scots boast two fine wrestlers in Capt. Buford Miller and Tom Bugenhagen. Miller is the 130 pound Southeastern Conference champ, while Bugenhagen boasts the 157 pound SEC crown. Both men were undefeated last year. Miller is in charge of the team until J. D. is finished with his duties as line coach.

Jimmy Cummings, Jerry Waters, Don Moore, John Anderson, and Clarence Norton are veterans who should aid Maryville in being a strong threat to the SEC team crown. New men out include Kent Toomy, Al Whitlock, Bob Bassford, Bob Clemens, and Don Nabors. There is still plenty of opportunity for anyone interested in wrestling to come out.

Wasps, Scots Tie 14-14 At Homecoming

The Wasps of Emory & Henry tied the Scots in a closely-fought game during homecoming festivities.

The Wasps scored first in the first period on a drive from their own 25 yard line. A pass from Ray Chapman to Irvin Cubine set up the score. Chapman crashed through the Scottie line to score. Cubine kicked the extra point.

Maryville scored early in the second period led by Clarence Shepard. Shep led in a drive from the Emory & Henry 36 with several nice runs. He hit Ted Wilson on a 10 yard pass play for the first Scottie score. White made the conversion. The first half ended with the score 7-7.

Maryville went ahead in the third period with Shepard scoring from the 3. White's kick was good.

Halfway in the fourth period the Wasps hit pay dirt. Fullback Tom Rasnick tore the Scots' line apart on off-tackle plays as the Wasps moved the ball from their own 31. Rasnick scored the TD with Cubine converting.

Emory & Henry threatened in the final seconds but the Highlanders held on their own 2 yard line. As the final whistle blew the Scots were in possession of the ball deep in their own territory.

MC Basketball Practice Begins

The 1954-55 Scotty basketball season has opened up with the start of practice last Monday. Coach K. P. Johnson s taking charge until the end of football season, when Coach Honaker will take over.

Practice is on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons. As of yet a roster of men out has not been obtained.

Scots Lose To ETSC

The past two weeks saw the Scotties play two rough and tough ball games either of which could have gone the other way.

On October 9 the Buccaneers of ETSC came from behind to edge Maryville, 20-14. It was State's homecoming game and the Bucks were out for the Highlanders. The Bucs' passing attack proved to be the difference in the game, as the Scotties outplayed the winners on the ground.

Early in the second quarter Pete Wilson intercepted a Maryville pass on his own 38 and ran it to the Scot 20. Eight plays later Buddy Saulsbery scored from the one to pick up six points. There seemed to be some doubt on the part of the Scots on the validity of the touchdown. It seems that we always get "good" refereeing up at Johnson City.

Later on in the closing minutes of the first half Bill Strickland recovered a State fumble deep in Buccaneer territory. Clarence Shepard hit Nat Campbell in the end zone just before the period ended. Buddy White kicked the extra point to give Maryville a 7- halftime lead.

Maryville had eight first downs to State's five in the first half.

The Buccaneers broke into the scoring column twice in the third period. Eddie Foster went 14 yards on a flat pass play to hit pay dirt. Brewster converted. Later on in the third period the Bucs went for another score on a pass play from Wilson to Buzzy Breeden who buzzed 55 yards. Melvin Chapman converted.

Strickland Scores

Early in the fourth period Bill Strickland grabbed a deflected Buc pass and returned the 45 yards for a score. White converted.

The loss of Clarence Shepard who played less than a half hurt the Scots. White and Buddy Gilbert were the best ground gainers for Maryville. Strickland Bob Berrong, Don Moore, Bill Wheatley, and Chuck Dunn all played standout games on the line.

Pennington Named Frosh President

Gary Pennington, a philosophy major from Louisville, Ky., is holding the office of president of the freshman class.

Sharon Rise, a sociology major from Souix City, Iowa, is vice-president; Jeanie Pavlovsky, a psycology major from Smyrna, Ga., is secretary; and Pete Baily, an English major from Port Angeles, Wash., is treasurer.

The two representatives for student council are Ann Wiley, an English major from Heiskell and Don Nabors, a chemistry major from Morgantown, W. Va.

At the meeting last Thursday, October 21 of the French Club, the members learned the proper procedure of conducting a business meeting in French.

Stevenson . . .

wife built, through the gift of a personal friend of Mrs. Stevenson, the House-in-the-Woods as a College Pastor's residence, the home in which they resided.

The House-in-the-Woods became a virtual tradition. For years their home was a center of culture and friendliness for students faculty, and others. Frequently whole classes and other large groups were entertained there.

Presidents' Tribute

Probably no higher tribute could be paid Dr. Stevenson than those of the two Presidents with whom he served during a part of two college administrations. In President Samuel T. Wilson's Annual Report in 1921, he wrote of Dr. Stevenson's preaching in the Chapel: "The entire student body, . . has listened to a most religious life. These addresses if collected and printed just as delivered, would form a volume of college sermons unexcelled by any ever published."

President Lloyd's address at Dr. Stevenson's funeral , built around a text from the eighteenth chapter of Acts, very accurately compared Dr. Stevenson with Apollos, "An eloquent man. . . (who) spake and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus."

Dr. Wilson once said about Dr. Stevenson's story, "(it) reads like romance. But it is vastly better than romance—it is Providence."

Came From New York Pastorate

Dr. Wilson called on Dr. Stevenson in New York and presented him a copy of a newly published story of the College. That was on January 4, 1917. Dr. Stevenson said in a letter about his reaction, "It has gripped and stirred me as nothing of the kind has done for a long time." Four months later Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson arrived in Maryville to live, having left the prominent pastorate at Yonkers to enter service here.

It was he who inaugurated the Sunday Vesper service and who brought into being the Choir. He loved to work in the Woods and kept the section around his house in attractive order. A feature newspaper story when he was 77 called him the only man in Tennesse who could play the golf course in his age. While he was in his middle sixties, he flew to San Francisco, remained overnight, and flew back, saying he had never seen America from the air and wished to do so.

'Sermon To Old People'

His last sermon he entitled "A Sermon to Old People." In it he described the difficulty of ending life well, the beauty of old age when it is lived well, and the radiant hope of heaven which increases with the years. "There are ten thousand things I want to see about the future life," he said. "There are a million things I want explained things about myself, about you, about God, about the course of human history, about the government of the world. . . I wonder how it looks over there. . I think the time will come when I shall be quite willing to die in order to find out about these things. . . Ah, my friends, what joy, what beauty, what glory awaits us."

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson established a substantial portion of a permanent endowment for a College Pastor's salary. The endowment still exists.

And there there was the Cannibal's son who liked his girls best when they were stewed.

YW Plans Overnight Hike To Montvale Springs

Montvale Springs is the the destination for the more than 100 girls who will participate in the YWCA hike today. The hike, the first overnight hike ever held by the group, will start this afternoon and last until noon tomorrow.

A special campfire service is planned for this evening, with Sunday services planned also.

Traditions . . .

but the asorted examples of canines you find sprawling in the doorways everywhere are the descendents of a wild pack of wolves which roamed this area when the Indians comprised the student body. Maryville wolves often fought with those of other colleges so that great rivalries developed. Our present-day rivalry with Carson-Newman is merely an outgrowth of this, since as colleges became more civilized, football games took the place of those primitive skirmishes.

It would perhaps be appropriate to mention here that Maryville's own little yell (Howie, Howie, Chilhowee) had its origin during the Indian period, having derived its phraseology from common Indian terms. Closed study hours were set up, also along about this time to keep young squaws inside and away from the dangerous wolves.

The wolf-pack reached its zenith under the leadership of Hamburger I, but began to decline, until now all that is left of that ancient band is Hamburger VI and his trusty followers.. So now you know to beware when "Hamburger" shows his fangs, for you are really facing the proud perpetuator of a lost ideal.

There are countless other tales connected with the history of our college like those about the secret underground passageway connecting some of the buildings, the hidden room in Anderson Tower, the ghost that haunts the chapel, the time when the infirmary was a hideout for a murderer. . . but those should all be told around a blazing fire some frosty fall evening when everyone is in the mood and when someone with a vivid imagination can describe the details.

one way or the other" either make the council "entirely bureaucratic or entirely democratic." One thing as a specific example he mentioned was the WSGA's being represented in the proposed system when some other organizations were not. This he mentioned as an example of "overlapping" and "overorganization" in campus government.

Some spirited discusison on the WSGA matter followed, causing the council meeting to run over its usual time. The discussion was tabled until this week. When the matter was reopened Wednesday night, members seemed hesitant to speak about the matter, and discussed for a long time such aspects as proportions by classes.

Tom Bugenhagen and Herb White said some of the members had informally discussed the possibility of having a council which would be concerned only with all campus governmental matters, and of referring social matters to a Social Board which would be composed of most or all of campus organizations. The Social Board chairman would remain as a member of the council.

Again the question was raised, after discusion had gone around the matter, of whether the council's proposal for future membership would be one of complete representation.

In other business, the council last week appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of council's publishing the yearly M-Book (at the request of the Y's.) A report is to be made next week.

Wednesday night council passed a recommendation by a committee headed by Elizabeth Murphey that the two women's societies sponsor girls' intramural basketball teams which would play games before home varsity basketball games. The matter was sent to Student-Faculty Senate.

No Town Night violations were reported at either meeting.

The recitative and air, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart" and "Behold and See If There be Any Sorrow," will be sung by Akin, senior English major from Maryville. Tedford, sophomore music major from Pittsburgh, Pa., will sing the tenor recitative and air, "He That Dwelleth in Heaven" and "Thou Shalt Break Them."

Morse, junior music major from Canton, N. C., will sing the bass recitative "For Behold, Darkness Shall Cover the Earth" and the air, "The People That Walked in Darkness." Howell, junior chemistry major from Maryville will sing the recitative and air, "Thus Saith the Lord" and "But Who May Abide." The bass air, "Why Do the Nations So Furiously Rage?" will be sung by Cunningham, senior music major from Holmes, Pa.

The "Messiah" will be presented Sunday, December 5, at 3:00 p.m. in the Chapel. The chorus, composed of the Vesper Choir, Men's Glee Club, All-Girl Choir, and other interested students and townspeople, will be under the direction of Mr. Harter, and the symphony orchestra will be directed by Ralph G. Moore, instructor in music.

This performance will be the 22nd annual presentation of this oratorio at Maryville College.

The Homecoming week-end just passed brought a lot of old grads, students, and friends back to the campus. Most of the returnees found many old friends still here.

Quite a few of last year's graduating class came back, finding the Homecoming habit too strong to break. They were Tom Fairhurst, Bob Young, Adolph Kunen, Bob Sangster, (ex '54) Jo Bash, Mary Grace Pritchard, Mary Virginia Ferguson, Jinny Smith, and Pat Halstead.

'54 Grads Return

Others from the class of '54 were Mary Jim Bevan, Stan Ray, Jackie Kendall, Sue Binnion, Dot Wells, Glenn Gentry, Dave Gates, Jack Maxwell, Bill Baldwin, Wilma Trumbull, Wes Kinser, Bob Mabry, and Jimmy Wiley (ex '54).

Former Teacher

A. F. Pieper returned to the campus for Homecoming. Former students who returned to visit on campus were Rod Patton (ex '56), Tom Allen (ex '55), Margie Haynie (ex '57), Ruby Jean Harris ('51), Mr. and Mrs. Brannin Boyd, '52, (Jessie Dye, '52); Carol Ann Doll, ex '55; Jimmy Ann Scruggs, ex '55; and Mary Alice Kemp, ex '55;

Diana Evans, ex '55; Bob Proffitt, '51; Janice Marion, '52; Joan Deurig, '53; Al Springfield, '52; Elaine Tucker, ex '56; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Garren, '52, (Bev Brooks, ex '56); Craig Fisher, '49; Shirley Armstrong, ex '56; Bob Davis, ex '54; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lynn, 52 (Naomi Burgos, '54); and Dave Helwig, '53.

Barnwarming To Be A Wild West Show

Annual Show To Be Nov. 25

By Marian Hina

The annual Barnwarming program given on Thanksgiving night will be a wild western.

The story was written by Peg Fisher and Herb Catlin, who were assisted by Barbara Chubb and Nancy Rideout. The scene of the production is placed in a western frontier town and the plot centers around one Frankie, a tomboyish cowgirl, played by Liz Murphey. A cowpoke and a city-slicker contrive to make trouble and worry for Frankie throughout the play.

Liz is a junior physical education major from Springfield. The cowpoke is played by Ronnie Pearson, a sophomore English major from Maryville. The city-slicker, Bill Howell, is a junior chemistry major, also from Maryville.

Others in the cast are Liz Enloe, mother of Frankie, Natalie and Katrina Wells, twin sisters of Frankie, Sandra Booth, Libby Parrish, Ruth Orr, Beazy Zimmerman, Mary Elizabeth Walker.

Completing the cast are Jim Conklin, Jim Cummings, Blackie Blackwell, Harry MacCall, Ray Sammons, Bill Bolger, Jim Lasley, Jack Crouch, and Phil Muir.

Nancy Rideout is director of the production. Business manager is Barbara Chubb The booths before the play will be modeled after the stores one might find in a western town, and are in charge of Peg Fisher. Dances are in charge of Ruth Orr, and Sally Butts is directing the chorus. Bob Brand is in charge of the designing and making of the set.

Playhouse Gives 'Street Scene' To Full House

To a packed house, the MC Players presented two productions of "Street Scene," a three-act play by Elmer Rice. The two performances were given last night and Thursday in the Chapel Theatre.

Leading a huge cast, consisting of ten percent of the student body, were Marcia Williams, Bill Deerfield, Ethelyn Cathey, Jim Gardner, Ann Wiley, Tony Clark, Joan McNaughton, Preston Bogia, and Marion Drotar. Miss Kathleen Craven was director.

Heading the production staff was Preston Bogia, as stage manager, assisted by committee chairmen Hershal Netherton, Abigail Crosby, Lois Tinklinberg, Anne Buckley, Ronnie Pearson, Sadie Davis, and Isabel Easley.

"Street Scene was the first Playhouse production of the year. There will be two plays given next semester — "She Stoops to Conquer" in the spring, and "Pygmalion" at Commencement. The casting of these two plays will begin soon.

ExperimentalsPlan Three Short Plays; Casts Named

The casts of the three short plays to be presented by the Experimental Theater on Friday evening, Nov. 19, at the chapel theater, have been announced by the student directors in charge of the productions.

Anne Buckley, senior drama major from Clifton, Va., will direct Indian Summer by Betty Brydon Beecher. The play will feature Ronnie Pearson as Larry Grant, Duckie Coker as Anna Grant, Janie Wall as Sheila Bannister, and Tony Clark as Ken Manners.

In the second play, The Valiant by Hall and Middleman, Marcia Williams, Junior drama major from Peekskill, N.Y., will direct Ethelyn Cathey as Josephine Paris, Jim Gardner as James Dyke, Bob Hassell as Father Daly, and Bill Heird as the warden.

Nancy Rideout, senior drama major from Buchanan, Va., will direct the third play, The Happy Journey by Thornton Wilder. Joan McNaughton will play the mother, Cap Johnson, Arthur; Bob Lorenz, the stage manager; Wendy Wood, Beulah; Ruth Wilson, Caroline; and Don Thiel, Elmer.

As a result of the recent elections, the Democrats have gained control of the House of Representatives, while the Republicans have continued to hold their edge in the Senate. Some Senate races are so close, however, that it may be days before the results will be announced.

Twelve years of Republican control of New York ended when Averall Harriman defeated Thomas E. Dewey's hand-picked candidate, Senator Irving M. Ives, for the governorship. The G.O.P. scored upsets of its own when it captured seats in Florida and Texa.

Senator Estes Kefauver, Democrat from Tennessee, was re-elected, while Alben Barkley, Democrat, was elected to the Senate by the people of Kentucky.

The President expressed disappointment at his party's "setbacks" but added, "They have nothing to do with the value of our cause."

Council Takes 4 Important Steps At Meetings

Following action and discussion at meetings the past two weeks, Student Council took four important steps, sending two recommendations to Student-Faculty Senate's constitutional revision committee and investigating the other two by council committees.

The matters include:

1. The investigation of a possible town students' association;

2. The investigation by special committee of a students' "curriculum committee," which would serve as a discussion group for conveying student feeling about curriculum to the faculty;

3. The recommendation to the Senate that the annual M-Book be published under direction of Student Council;

4. Another recommendation that the Senate committee consider holding student body elections earlier than organization elections.

Council members had been asked to think about a town students' group some weeks past, and first discussion was held last week. At that time council president Carol Moore asked council members from Maryville and surrounding area to talk with other town students and get their reaction.

This week the committee report-

He was named a committee of one to investigate the matter. This week Jensen reported that he had fixed the cover himself and had tested it several times.

Grace Lewis, whose column, "At The Post," appears in the Syracuse, N. Y., Post Standard, noted Maryville College in her column recently.

Miss Lewis became known throughout this part of the country for her spirited reply and continued defense to some remarks of Westbrook Pegler in his column two years ago.

Cornelia Otis Skinner To Appear Here Nov. 18

Cornelia O. Skinner Will Be Second In Artist Series

The college campus will witness the second of the 1954-55 college-community Artist Series on November 18 when Cornelia Otis Skinner will appear in a program of character sketches.

Miss Skinner has been well known for the past several years as an actress and author. Her parents were two of the greatest members of the acting profession—Otis Skinner and Maud Durbin. Probably her best-known book is "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," in which she describes the experiences she and Emily Kimbrough had while traveling through Europe after they were out of school.

Her character sketch program is called "Paris '90," in which she transports the audience to Paris near the end of the 19th century by playing several different women portrayed in the work of Henri Toulouse-Lautrec. These characters range from "a dowager duchess of the aristocratic Fauborg St. Germain to a slatternly queen of the Moulin Rouge," according to advance information about her program.

Miss Skinner did research in preparation for her solo drama by going into every obtainable artifact of Paris society between 1870 and 1900. In 1951 she made a trip to France for many personal interviews and further research, and she wrote the play there.

After another year for the working out of production details, the world premier of "Paris '90" was held at the Academy of Music in Northampton, Mass., on January 12, 1952.

Her appearance at Maryville will be at 8:15 p.m. in the chapel, where the Nelson-Neal concert was held. Announcement about individual ticket sales will be made within the next few days.

Dr. William M. Elliott To Lead Feb. Meetings

Barraclough, Magill To Return

The leader of the February Meetings scheduled for February 2-10, 1955, will be the Rev. Dr. William M. Elliott, Jr., pastor of Highland Park Presbyterian Church (Presbyterian US) of Dallas, Texas. Dr. Elliott was leader of the February Meetings in 1943 and again in 1950.

The Rev. Dr. John Magill, pastor of Abington Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia (Pa.) Presbytery, will lead the singing as he did last year. Dr. Henry Barraclough, Assistant Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian USA General Assembly, will be the accompanist, as he was last year.

Dr. Elliott is pastor of one of the greatest churches in the South. It has a membership of more than 4,000, and one of the largest and finest church buildings anywhere in the United States. It is a church with a growth that reads like a fairy story, the congregation having been organized only a little more than 25 years ago.

Dr. Elliott is a graduate of Park College in Missouri and of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Kentucky. He holds also a Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and honary Doctor's degree from Davidson College, North Carolina, and Park College, Missouri.

He is counted one of the strongest and most attractive preachers in the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. (Southern). He is author of three books of sermons: "Coming to Terms with Life," "For the Living of These Days," and "Lift High That Banner."

Dr. John Magill is a graduate of Maryville College and of McCormick Theological Seminary. He holds an honorary Doctor's degree from Monmouth College in Illinois. He has served as pastor in Chicago, and Monmouth, Ill., and Abington, Pa. His church also is a large one and a rapidly growing one.

Dr. Barraclough was born in England and came to America as accompanist in the famous evangelistic party of Chapman and Alexander. He holds a very responsible position in the offices of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, but continues his music as an avocation.

His playing with the Chapman and Alexander evangelistic campaigns required that with one piano he lead congregations of four and five thousand.

The 1955 February Meetings will be the 79th series since the inauguration of the Meetings in 1877.

Dr. Ralph Case To Speak At Vesper Service

Dr. Ralph T. Case, professor of sociology, will be the speaker at the Sunday night Vespers.

The Men's Glee Club will provide the music for the service.

Tau Kappa Chi Chooses Four

Maryel Vogel, president of Tau Kappa Chi, music honor society, has announced the admission of four new members to the organization. They include Jackie Speigner, secretary; Louise Ogden, treasurer; Floyd Hickman and Fred Wyman.

To qualify for membership one must be a music major or a student of applied music who has distinguished himself in the field of music and who has maintained the proper scholastic average.

The organization aims to raise the general academic standard of the music department, to provide a goal for all students interested in music, and to promote thoroughly trained musicianship and further the understanding of all styles of music.

Y-Radio To Begin New Radio Series

Sunday night, Y-Radio began a series of six radio dramas by well known playwrights on the subject of basic American freedoms.

The plays were originally presented by "The Free Country," a group of outstanding writers, actors, and radio workers who joined together to contribute their services over the air in the presentation of their beliefs.

The plays are of wide variety; some deal with specific freedom as found in The Bill of Rights, others with the subject in general. Some may be classified as comedies, and others as tragedies. All have the strong background of respect for Christianity and the freedom it proclaims.

The program for October 24 was by William Saroyan, "The People With Light Coming Out of Them." Ronnie Pearson is directing the show and Jim Conklin has the leading role. On October 31, the week before the national election, Y-Radio presented a drama by Orson Wells about an elected official, "His Honor, the Mayor," a delightful, laughable character who believes in the Bill of Rights. Anne Buckley is the director.

Other plays to be given are by Robert E. Sherwood, Paul Green, Maxwell Anderson, and Marc Connelly.

Council, Faculty Make Selection

By Abigail Crosby

Nine MC seniors have been recognized by Who's Who among Students in American Colleges and Universities, according to an announcement made recently by Dean F. D. McClelland.

The students so honored are Barbara Chubb, William F. Davis, James C. Fisher, Margaret L. Fisher, Marilyn V. Kiefer, Harry F. MacCall, Carol F. Moore, Ruth F. Orr, and Herbert D. White. The selection of these students is based on campus leadership, extra-curricular distinctions, and high scholarship.

Chubb

Miss Chubb, a sociology major from Athens, Pa., is a member of Student Council and the Student-Faculty Senate. She is serving on the Elections Committee, and last year acted as Council's secretary.

Miss Chubb has been in Writers' Workshop for two years and is now a member of the Governing Board. Last year she served as editor of Chips, the annual Workshop publication. She was a YWCA officer last year, and this year is one of the directors of Barnwarming.

In her first two years at Maryville, Miss Chubb was a member of the All-Girl Choir, and was in French Club during her sophomore and junior years. This year she was Homecoming attendant and in her sophomore year, she was chosen to be an ABC girl. She was a member of the Daisy Chain last year, and is a Bainonian.

Davis

Davis, a business administration major from Morris Plains, N.J., is president of the senior class. He is a member of Student Council, serving on the Student-Help Committee. Last year he was chairman of the Red Cross Blood Drive at the college. He has been an active member of Alpha Sigma for four years, and was president last year. Davis played with the Highlander Band for two years, and has been active in intramural sports, being a member of the champion Hammers team this year. He has served on several class committees.

Fisher

Jim Fisher, an English major from Milesburg, Pa., is president of YMCA. He is on Student Council, serving on the Student Programs committee. Fisher has been active in YM for four years, holding other offices and serving on the cabinet.

He is a member of the Social Board, and has been in Writers' Workshop for two years. Fisher has played in the Highlander Band

YW To Present Dramatic Reading

A dramatic reading written by Hermann Hagedorn and entitled "The Bomb That Fell On America," will be presented by Jo Brooks and Ruth Nelson this Sunday afternoon at YWCA. Another feature of the program will be special music rendered by Mary Brasfield at the organ.

Those attending YWCA last Sunday afternoon enjoyed a panel discussion on "You in the Nation and World." This subject came from one of a series of booklets put out by National YWCA under the theme "Where Are You?" Those taking part on the panel were A. S. Bushing, Miss Carolyn Blair, and Miss Matilda Cartledge. Mrs. A. F. Pieper served as moderator

Debaters To Begin Practice Rounds

Maryville's debaters plan to begin practice debates within the next few days.

Teams will be composed of Tom Paton and Graeme Sieber, affirmative; and Bob Finertie and Bernard Rhodes, negative.

They will have their regular meeting at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, when they will make further plans for a trip to Boone, N.C., December 2-4.

Rehearsing For A Play Is Lots Of Fun - - And Work

By Ann Wiley

It is beyond the power of the 26 letters in the English alphabet to create in the mind of a reader a true picture of what an inspiration it is to see the pages of a play script come to life on the stage. Yet, under the direction of Kathleen Craven that is exactly what has happened in the last month in the chapel theater.

Weary people have struggled through no less than three hours of practice a night for four nights a week since October 1, and an even wearier director has cast and recast roles until she is blue in the face.

The players are cut off from many campus activities because of practice, their town nights are limited to one, they didn't even get to go to the first Artist Series. Is it worth it? Of course it is—many times over. Friendships have been formed, understandings have been reached, and respect has been attained that the years will never blot out.

The cast is a large one, and many of the players are inexperienced, some never having been in a play before—all these things worked together to make the production a difficult task. Even so, we surely have had fun! Shouts of laughter frequently interrupted and belied the tragedy of the situation on the stage—taunts were exchanged as to who could butcher his lines the worst. Everyone tense while a scene was being done over and over again to portray exactly the right effect, and everyone howling when Joanie McNaughton came staggering on as a substitute for Mae Jones.

Yes, the laughter and tears are over now—the paint that so sweetly perfumed its surroundings backstage is dry—the theater is cold and deserted, a few faded, orange scripts are strewn around the set.

Music Ed Learns Of Folk Songs

The October 14 meeting of Music Education Club was spent in singing community and folk songs and learning first-hand how to play the autoharp.

Members also discussed the possibility of having representatives of the organization attend the National Conference to be held in New Orleans.

On November 11, Mrs. F. Woods Beckman a piano instructor from Knoxville, will be present. Mrs. Beckmen spent the past summer in Europe studying music and will show slides taken during her stay.

Practice Continuing For Wrestlers, Hoopmen

Wrestling and basketball practice continues every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoon until the football season is over.

All men interested should contact Buford Miller for wrestling or Coach Johnson for basketball.

AN HONOR DESERVED

This year the Echo staff wishes to extend its sincerest congratulations to the newly-elected representaitves to "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." We feel that the selection this year was particularly fine and that all the students so honored truly deserved it.

Who's Who is an organization on a nation-wide scale, designed to give recognition to a certain percentage of students in the senior class. These students are selected on the basis of "excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities; citizenship and contribution to the school; and promise of future usefulness to business and society."

The procedure for choosing these students is one originating in Student Council, where the names of all the seniors are read. From this list, nominations are made by the members of Council; and from these nominations, they are voted on in descending order of preference by secret ballot. This list is tabulated and rated before being sent to the Executive Committee of the faculty, where a similar procedure takes place. The lists are co-ordinated and approved by the administration before being sent to the National Headquarters of Who's Who for final acceptance.

In surveying the list of Who's Who-ers from the class of '55 in light of the standard on which they are chosen, we are proud of the selection. The list is a representative cross section of the senior class; scarcely an activity on campus could be named which does not boast of at least one member of Who's Who.

Being so choen by one's college-mates and professors is a distinction of high honor, an honor one may well be proud of. Again we offer our congratulations, and we hope that each of these students will prove, upon his graduation, that he can and will live up to the last and most important standard of "promise of future usefulness to business and society."

'OUR PLAYHOUSE'

In 1952 another Echo editorial writer expressed an appreciation for the work Maryville College Playhouse does in bringing top-level drama to the student body. The writer was Emily Smith, who was at that time an associate editor.

Since it was back in that not-too-long past when all plays were given on a temporary stage set up in the Alumni Gymnasium, her editorial told of the makeshift type of preparations the organization made in putting together a production: making scenery in a workshop on the third floor of Bartlett, rehearsing on the stage only a few days before the performance, and using equipment which had to be assembled and then taken down again following the performance.

One paragraph of her essay is quite pertinent for any time when Playhouse gives a play:

"All this and more, and still Playhouse usually comes through with an excellent play. Perhaps they are not the smooth-running performances of a professional group, but they do not claim to be. We have the sincere effort of a group of people to present to us a small part of our heritage in drama for its value to the observer."

We are particularly appreciative of the excellent quality of plays which our Playhouse is undertaking now that the advanced facilities are available. Still with some of these advantages, the hard work remains, for the production must be worthy of its vehicle. If any did not have the chance to see "Street Scene" last night, we urge you not to miss any other plays this year.

NOBLE PUNNING

English teachers have terrible reputations as practitioners of the pun. We have two examples that might explain why.

Mercutio in "Romeo and Juliet" made an excellent one as he was dying, something which listeners to this form of wit frequently wish would happen. After he had been fatally wounded in a swordfight, Mercutio told his friend Romeo, "ask for me to-morrow, and you shall find me a grave man." (III, i, 101-102).

John Donne's little work "A lame begger" is another gem.

> I am unable, yonder begger cries,
> To stand, or move; if he say true, hee lies

If this be pedantry, make the most of it.

J. T. G

ONE VIOLATION

At Student Council meeting Wednesday night it was pointed out that there has been only one Town Night violation since school began in September. This is a record, we are sure, and an indication of student co-operation ond of how well the Town Night plan is working.

We would like to congratulate whoever is to be congratulated, which undoubtedly means the entire student body. We hope we can continue the year with such a smooth-running program. It helps us progress.

HOLLY HAYSEED

Do you have a problem? Send it to Holly Hayseed in care of "The Highland Echo" for analysis. She will rewrite it for you, compose a solution, and print it so that even you won't recognize it. No confidence betrayed. (Sorry—no personal interviews, please.)

My problem is unique, I think. Countless others have experienced this, but not the way I have. You see, I'm in love. I float away on clouds sublime every time HE comes near me. But he's such a creep, Holly. He says he wants a woman with brains and muscles. And since I have neither, I'm miserable. I am strikingly beautiful and possess all feminine graces, but does HE care? No! He wants brains and brawn. What shall I do?

A Disturbed Dido

Dear Dido,

Give him what he wants. Slug him once or twice when you walk around circle drive after supper. Then before he can hit you back, start relating current theories concerning atomic radiation to confuse him. He won't know what you are talking about (by the way, you won't either, but use your feminine intuition and it will all come out intelligently enough). Two or three days and several eyes later he will begin to appreciate your womanly approach to things, which by that time you'll be using again. Then you can lead him around by the nose. Really, it's that simple!

* * * * *

Dear Holly Hayseed,

I am in the depths of discouragement, the solugh of despondency. I feel as though I'm batting my head against a brick wall. I can't eat, sleep, or even study. I am just about ready to give up and jump off Anderson tower and end it all. Woe is me. Life is so tasteless for some reason. Tell me, Holly, what is it? What can I do about it? Please advise before tomorrow at midnight. I'm desperate.

Joe

Dear Joe,

Why don't you come right out and say it is your roommate's snoring that bothers you? The trouble with you is that you won't admit things. You are afraid of hurting people's feelings, and therefore you make yourself miserable. Your roommate won't hate you in the long run for hurting his feelings once in a while. Plop a marble in his mouth when he gets annoying. Or if you are too lazy to get up and do that, tie a rope around his neck and give it a yank every so often. Joe, he'll love you for it, and you will be so much happier, pesides. (However, if he should give signs to the contrary, you'd better change roommates quick!) Remember above all things, don't give up the ship, as John Henry always said.

For the Intellectual Minded:

COMMON SENSE, by Dr. Dudley N. Sane

1. Which of the following words suggests "study": chapel, parlor date, the steps, student center?

2. What constitutes proper dress on campus for class: bermuda shorts, blue jeans, corduroy suit, plaid slacks?

3. At what time must girls be in from town night: 7:30, 12:45, 10:30, 11:30?

4. What current sport is popular on Saturday evenings: ping-pong, football, track, scrabble?

5. Fill in the blanks:

a. _____ is the only legitimate excuse Baldwin Hall girls have for being out of doors after 10:30.

b._____ is the melodious object waking people from a sound sleep after each class.

c._____ is what band members must wear to keep their legs warm at football games.

6. Which word suggests transportation to Maryville students: Model A, Cadillac, White Star Lines, wheelbarrow?

(Answers would have appeared on the comic page, but there isn't one, so you figure them out for yourself. If you get them all correct, we'll let you write this column next time.)

For Teachers and Future Teachers Only:
(Students might get dangerous ideas herefrom)
Plan for a Perfect Classroom Lecture
Object: To instill knowledge into the already all-wise college student.

1. Allow 10 minutes after the tardy bell for students to arrive, rearrange the chairs, fill up the back seats and read The Echo.

2. Allow 10 minutes for preparation of the assignment while you check attendance. (However, it is very important that you forget to turn the absence report in—somebody might have an overcut, which would point to the supposition that your lectures aren't interesting.)

3. Allow 15 minutes for students to compare notes, preferably in your subject, although that is not of prime importance. Maybe they have a big test the next period. Meanwhile, you are preparing the lecture.

4. Since the period is half over and you won't have time to lecture, let the students ask questions. Be sure to give fairly intelligent answers. This will last 5 minutes.

5. Begin the lecture anyway.

6. At 5 minutes before the bell rings, start waking the students up, so they can get to the next class. Assign the lesson for the next class meeting.

The main thing to keep in mind is student participation. They learn much more by themselves with a helpful word of guidance only now and then. They are confused enough in this modern atomic age to be confused more by you.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Charles Partee

Methinks, at this stage of our intellectual growth, we ought to feel a compulsion to drive the steeds of our mind's chariot down the broad highway of the classics, restraining the reins to keep from going down the fascinating by-paths, most of the time. Notwithstanding, there is some justification for following an occasional "headstrong humor." I have a theory that a steady diet of good and proper books becomes cloying to the mind, probably because I like to dine, occasionally, on mental pabulum. At home we have a bookcase which I call the Library of Congress, containing offerings that will never make their way into the Maryville English curriculum. Dad has his blood-and-thunder westerns, I have my cloak and-dagger mysteries, and my brother has his space helmet-and-raygun science fiction.

Now I know the best mystery writers are A. Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, E. A. Poe, and G. K. Chesterton, creator of Father Brown. I head them faithfully, but I also like Ellery Queen who uses literary references to salve my sneaky conscience and Erle Stanley Gardner, creator of Perry Mason, the smartest lawyer since Ray Jenkins. By the bye, Chesterton also wrote a biography of Chaucer and one of Saint Francis of Assisi, both are in our library, easy reading, and worth the while. His essay in defense of nonsense is interesting and I think there is much of truth there.

In our wing of the dormitory, there are some very precious manuscripts that are carefully passed from hand to eager hand. They are the comic books—MAD and PANIC. They are really quite excellent parodies and whatnot of somesuch in our world today. I have sold my Captain Marvel collection and am starting one of these. Also my friend Pogo should be mentioned—the only reason me and my roomie take the News-Sentinel. In magazines I like the cartoons in POST, the word quiz in READERS DIGEST, and the landscapes in ESQUIRE. Which second magazine puts me in remembrance of a book called Word Origins and Their Romantic Stories by Wilfred Funk, zer gut.

If you, dear reader, regard Amos as I do as one of real stalwarts of the scriptures then you'll be interested in Dorothy Clarke Wilson's book The Herdsman. The character drawing is rather obvious, unlike for example Hans Castorp in Thomas Mann's The Magic Mountain, but the book is delightful and clear.

At this point let us pause to suggest to one who might have wandered into this column looking for the week's showing at the flickers—that reading assignments made in class might be considered. Which brings me to some of the material discussed by the Carnegie third floor bluestockings. That is the talkies like the Caine Mutiny with Jose Ferrer, whom I regard as one of the finer actors of our day; witness Cyrano de Bergerac. Though there was some dissension the literary and intellectual arbiter and dictator decided that The Robe is better between covers than curtains, ditto for Magnificent Obsession. In my rococo period I read most everything Lloyd C. Douglas wrote. He always has a heroine with blue-black hair and blue eyes and generally puts a red fillet around her brow. Anyway Calvin's theology is sounder. Try his Institutes. Most of us don't think of Calvin as a devotional man but he has written a little book called The Golden Booklet of the True Christian Life, it ranks with a Kempis's The Imitation of Christ and Fenelon's Christian Perfection. Another book of religious fiction is The Bishop's Mantle by Turnbull, in it a handsome young cleric has a beautiful wife whose occasional expletives embarriss his parishoners. However, he tells one old biddy after he had just slammed his thumb rather than a nail, that in common with most of the race of men he swears mildly upon strong occasions.

Isn't it one of life's most humbling experiences as well as most puissant gifts that one can never say all that can be said? Edersheim says well that life is too busy to be always going back one one's traces. A Professor Urban furthers what I was trying to say last time about the Russian writers. He says Tolstoy is too intense for The western taste.

Highlanders To Face C-N Eagles Tonight

Scots Beat Howard College 21-12; Shepard Paces Highlanders To Victory

Led by tailback Clarence Shepard, Maryville defeated Howard College of Birmingham, Ala., 21-12 Saturday night. This was the first time these schools have met since 1931. Shepard ran for one touchdown, passed for another, and picked up 231 yards rushing.

The Scots scored first when Shepard ran 54 yards for a touchdown the second time Maryville got the ball in the initial quarter. White's try for the extra point was wide.

Howard scored their first of two second quarter touchdowns after they recovered a Highland fumble on the Maryville five. Crowe scored two plays later from the three. The attempt for the conversion was wide.

Three plays after the kickoff Crowe intercepted a Shepard pass and ran 45 yards to put the Bulldogs ahead for the first and last time. The try for extra point failed.

The Scots came back in the closing minutes of the half with White scoring to climax a 35-yard drive. He made the conversion and Maryville took a 13-12 halftime lead.

Shelton Scored

In the third period, Shepard gambled with a fourth down, eight yards to go, pass. He hit Shelton, who scored on a beautiful run. The conversion was wide.

The Scotties' final two points came when Chuck Dunn tackled Joe Levett in the end zone for a safety.

Howard	0	12	0	0	—12
Maryville	6	7	6	2	—21

Howard scoring: Touchdowns—Crowe 2.

Maryville scoring: Touchdowns Shepard, White, Shelton. Safety—Dunn. Conversion—White.

Dear Editor,

Since your last issue was distributed numerous comments have been made to me concerning my article. I thought that you might be interested in them. There were some who enjoyed (if that is the correct word) the article and felt that something should have been said. Others who did not keep track of the intramural program were amazed that such things could happen in a game of "touch" football. I also heard that one person believed that I was "beating around the bush" but I frankly and honestly cannot see how I could have been more frank. These comments did not come to me as a surprise as I know that there are those who are not at all interested in the intramural program.

May I review for your benefit what has happened in the intramural program since October 23, 1954. There has been one bone separation at the shoulder, an arm injury (a bone injury—which type it is I do not know), and two bruised ribs with one cracked rib. If I may recall to you the last sentence of Sports Spotlights of October 23, 1954, ". . . some intramural players would appreciate a laissez faire attitude at the cost of more injuries."

The ECHO did not take a laissez faire attitude but there were those who did. The persons who did were in the position to change matters and able to correct the situation. Last Tuesday's game turned out a very poor showing of sportsmanship and included in it an injury. During the game I was informed that my article was not the truth, that I came to watch the games only to cause some trouble, and that I had no right to write an article for the ECHO. I was also informed that this intramural football season was one of the best ever. I am wondering just how that decision was reached. With each team showing some degree of poor sportsmanship and each team getting its share of the injuries and with a lack of real competition in several instances, I can not call it a good season. This is to say nothing about the refereeing. No doubt the diffence stems from a different basis for judging a football season.

I sincerely hope that Coach Johnson and the intramural mangers do work harder for better intramural sports the rest of the college year.

Yours very truly,
John P. Borter

Mrs. Pieper To Speak For Athenian-Bainonian

Mrs. A. F. Pieper will be the speaker at the joint meeting of Athenian and Bainonian next Saturday evening.

The meeting will be held in the Y-rooms at 6:15. Athenian and Bainonian will hold no meeting tonight because of the out-of-town game.

The five top college football teams as rated by both the Associated Press and United Press include U.C.L.A., Ohio State, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Notre Dame.

Hammers Defeat All-Stars; Take First Place

By Bob Evans

Last Saturday night the powerful Alpha Sig Hammers defeated the Intramural All-Stars 19-7. The Hammers drew first blood when Bill Dent scored on a pass play in the opening minutes of the game.

Near the end of the first half, Ronnie Pearson caught a TD pass over the middle. Bob Ramger chalked up the last touchdown of the evening for the Hammers on a long pass play.

He made a terrific driving catch in the end zone, catching the ball in his outstretched arms. Harry MacCall kicked the extra point.

In the opening minutes of the second half Jim Cummings intercepted a pass and raced 45 yards to score the lone touchdown for the All-Stars. He also scored the point after touchdown.

If the All-Stars could only have had a little more practice, I think they could have given the Hammers more of a battle. I also think that the refereeing could have been a little better; I did not agree with many of the decisions, one of which led to a touchdown.

Preceding the All-Star-Hammers game, there was a soccer game in which the Alpha Sig team won over Athenian 2-1. For Alpha Sig the goals were scored by Stan Mont and Ted Engle. Jack Graves scored the single point for Athenian.

It was mostly the Sig offense against the Athenian defense. Alpha Sig's score would have been much higher except for the many saves by the Athenian goalie.

October 25-29 was the last week of touch football. On Monday the YMCA Sloggers barely eked out a victory over the Playboys 7-6. The Playboys' TD was chalked up by Jim Marsh. Mert Hall scored for the Sloggers, with Harold O'Bannon kicking the all-important extra point.

Tuesday the then third-ranked Mountaineers pulled the upset of the season by beating the league-leading Hammers 12-6. This was the only loss suffeerd by the Alpha Sig team all season. Bill Wallace scored the two touchdowns for the Mountaineers. He scored one on a pass play and the other on an intercepted pass. Dock Jennings tallied the single TD for the Hammers on a pass.

The Mountaineers made it two in a row on Wedensday by downing the Sloggers 25-0. Bill Wallace was again the big gun for the Mountaineers, scoring three touch downs himself, two on passes, and one on a run. He also threw a TD pass to Dale Bradshaw.

On Thursday the Hammers bounced back from the previous loss of the week to crush the unfortunate Pre-Min team by the highest score of the season, 65-0. Bob Nier rolled up four touchdowns and two extra points, all on pass plays. Bill Dent tallied twice and kicked one point after touchdown. Charlie Partee ran one extra point and Bill Davis scored another on a pas.

In this game John Barrows received a broken arm bone, and Jim Gardner suffered two broken fingers.

On Friday the Pre-Mins lost to the Sloggers 6-0 by forfeit in the last game of league competition.

Final Standings

Hammers	10	1	1

The week of November 1 saw very little action in the field of intramural sports.

The annual touch football game between Alpha Sig and Athenian, which was to be played on Tuesday, was rained out.

On Wednesday the YMCA soccer team won over the Athenians 1-0 by forfeit.

Thursday the Y team was to play the Alpha Sig soccer team, but that game was also postponed because of rain.

Friday the Athenians were to have encountered Alpha Sig.

Carson-Newman Hopes To Repeat; Scots Have One More Game

By Jim Demer

Today the Scots journey to Jefferson City where they will engage the Eagles from Carson-Newman on the gridiron tonight.

Carson-Newman will be out to repeat last year's 7-0 victory at the expense of the Honakermen. On the basis of this season's play, the Eagles rate a one-touchdown favorite.

This writer follows this line and picks Carson-Newman by six points.

Next Saturday the Highlanders will close their grid season when they play Concord State College here on Honaker Field. This is the first time in several years Maryville has not played two games with Carson-Newman.

Highlanders Lose To Newberry; Worst Defeat

The Indians of Newberry College, S.C., rolled to a 27-0 victory over the fighting Scots on October 23. Scoring once in the first and second quarters and twice in the fourth, the Indians had too much of an offense for the Highlanders.

Newberry scored early in the first quarter with a pass play setting up the touchdown. Quarterback Ken Morgan went over from the four with Grover Davis kicking the extra point.

In the second quarter Morgan recovered a MacCall fumble on the Scotties' 32. Ed Blanks scored on a pass from Halfback Hall Dufford. Bob Berrong blocked the try for the extra point.

Scoreless Third Period

After a scoreless third period, the Indians broke loose with two touchdowns. Dufford hit pay dirt from the 2 with Davis making the conversion. The last touchdown was set up by a 63-yard run by Dufford to the Maryville 5. Dufford scored on the next play with Deckers making the etxra point.

Intramurals . . .

By Bob Evans

On Tuesday, the week of October 11, the Alpha Sig Doobers forfeited to the Rebels 6-0 because they could not field a full team.

Wednesday the Rebels won over YMCA Sloggers 12-0. The Rebels' two touchdowns were scored by Jim Cummings and Al Sams.

In the first game Thursday the Pre-Mins lost to the Alpha Sig Doobers 13-7. The losers' lone tally was scored by Doug Brian on a pass play. Jim Gardner kicked the extra point. Blackie Blackwell scored one touchdown on an intercepted pass and ran another one for the Doobers. Jim Pace caught the point-after-touchdown pass.

The second game saw the Alpha Sig Hammers smash the Playboys by the biggest score of the season, 32-0. Dock Jennings and Bob Ramger each scored two touchdowns for the Hammers on pass plays. Bill Dent caught a TD pass, with Harry Mac Call kicking one extra point and Charles Partee rushing another.

In Friday's lone game the Playboys tied the Mountaineers 6-6. Jim Gregory scored the single tally for the Mountaineers. The Playboys scored from their own 3-inch line in the last two minutes of play with a 99-yard pass play from Dan Wiley to Fred Roseborough.

The week of October 18 opened with the YMCA Sloggers beating the Alpha Sig Doobers 19-0. Mert Hall scored two of Y's touchdowns on passes. Bruce Ingles scored a TD in the same manner. Harold O'Bannon scored the single point after touchdown.

On Tuesday the YMCA Sloggers lost to the power Alpha Sig Hammers 20-0. Bob Nier tallied twice and added one extra point, all on pass plays. Another TD was scored by Bill Dent on a pass. The Y's John Thompson received a possible fractured chest bone in the game. At the time of this story, he was still in Blount Memorial Hospital.

Wednesday, the Mountaineers upset the Rebels 14-6. Jim Cummings on a pass play scored the Rebels' only TD. Bill Wallace scored twice and added one extra point, all on pass plays. Jim Gregory added the other point after touchdown, also on a pass.

Scot Harriers Lose To Sewanee

The Highlander hill-and-dalers met the Tigers from the University of the South (Sewanee) last Wednesday afternoon at 3. Running on a chilly day, Don Vanderberg led the pack as he finished a full minute ahead of A. C. McWilliams, also of Maryville. Vanderberg's winning time was 19:24. But the Tigers captured third, fourth, fifth, and sixth places to take the meet 27-31.

Freeman Wysch and Sonny Shackelford took the seventh and eighth places respectively. Shackelford is from Oak Ridge. Rounding out the scoring for the Scottie harriers was Bill Potter, who took 13th.

This was Sewanee's first meet of the year and the fourth successive loss for the Highlanders, who have yet to win.

Disc Club Has Request Program

Thursday night the Disc Club held an informal meeting, playing pieces on request.

At the next meeting, November 18, Mary Ellen Phipps will present selections of ballet music. The program begins at 6:45 p.m.

Hutson-Crowder

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Hutson of Ozone, Tennessee, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lou Hutson, '55, to John Crowder of Sparta, Tennessee.

Lou is a senior elementary education major. John is now awaiting assignment in the service, and will finish his education upon his discharge.

They will be married in the Ozone Presbyterian Church in June after Lou's graduation. The couple will make their home in Sparta.

—ss—

Several visitors were on campus recently. Vera Driscoll, ex'56, visited with her former roommate, Jean Kemper, and other close friends. Dick Patton, '53, was on campus several days over the week-end.

Rita Rosenbaum, ex'57, spent the day with friends in Baldwin. Sue Binnion, '54, came over to the campus for the afternoon and evening to attend the ballgame.

YM To Have 'Singspiration'

This Sunday the YMCA will have a "singspiration" for its program. The program for the next Sunday will be a joint meeting with YWCA at which a quartet from Knoxville College will sing. The following Sunday, November 21, John Graulich will direct a choral reading group.

Plans of YM are being made to send two delegates to the National YMCA-YWCA Quadrennial Assembly at Kansas University, Lawrence, Kansas. The assemble will last from December 27 to January 7. This year the theme of the assembly is "Where Are You"

Five books which are a part of the assembly program are Where Are You, You in the University, Your Freedom's in Trouble, Faith, Sex, and Love,. and You in the Nation and the World. All these books are available for reading and may be obtained at the Y office in Bartlett Hall, the library, or the Personnel Office.

Thetas Enjoy Hallowe'en

Thetas enjoyed a mask drawing contest and the reading of a spooky story in honor of Hallowe'en last Saturday night.

Tonight, "Miss Havva Harta," the latest addition to the Maryville College staff, will be introduced as guest of honor following the regular business meeting at 6:15. Miss Harta is a member of the public relations department and is specifically in charge of boy-girl relations.

Vice President Nixon received an anonymous telephone call Sunday night warning him that the dinner he was going to eat was poisoned. A series of tests that lasted for ten hours was run at a private laboratory, but no trace of poison was found. Nixon labeled the call the work of a "crank."

ed that there was "sufficient interest" for such an organization, but that some persons wondered what specific purpose of the group would be. Miss Moore asked Bill Howell as chairman to meet with three non-council town students and bring back next week a plan of organization and purpose.

The special council committee on the proposed curriculum student group is to present a report next week. As president Moore outlined the idea, the group's purpose would be that of a "sounding board" to present student feeling about aspects of the college curriculum. She pointed out that similar systems were in operation at Purdue and the University of Minnesota.

Serving on the committee to investigate the matter are Don Williams, Barbara Chubb, Jim Cummings, Don Nabors, and Joe Gilliland.

Last week a council committee recommended that Student Council take over supervision of the M-Book by way of a permanent committee to take care of the publication. The committee suggested that freshman and sophomore members be generally in charge. The matter was passed as council's recommendation with little discussion.

The fourth matter developed from a discussion about a possible "point" system for Maryville, by which ratings would be given for student offices held and a limit established as to the total points one could hold.

The system's purpose would be both of preventing offices from being held by certain individuals and of encouraging others to try for leadership. President Moore said the constitutional revision committee had discussed the matter and wanted council's opinion.

Many council members said they felt the system unnecessary on this campus and a motion to make a system defining "major" and "minor" offices was defeated.

Other members felt the order of elections should be changed, however, because some persons often had trouble deciding which offices they would prefer—campus-wide or organizational, so that matter was passed as recommendation.

No Town Night violations were reported. There has been only one since the fall semester began, it was pointed out.

Harry MacCall, social board chairman, announced there would be a dance following the Concord State game, the last of the season.

President Moore said that the divisional meeting of the State Association of Collegiate Student Governments has been postponed because a regional meeting of the National Student Association was being held in this area about the same time.

The state meeting had been planned for the MC campus on November 20.

Sunday Dating Approved For Junior Women

WSGA Hopes To Begin Sunday

WSGA president Henrietta Laing expressed the hope at Student Council meeting Wednesday night that junior girls would be able to begin Sunday dating by this Sunday.

She said a house meeting in Pearson's was scheduled to be held Friday night. If such arrangements were made, the new privilege will begin tomorrow, and both junior and senior women will have the privilege of dating on Sunday afternoon.

Announcement of the new policy was made at last week's council meeting. The Executive Council of the Faculty approved the matter about a month ago.

The matter of Sunday dating for all students was brought up in Student Council in September at Council's second meeting of the year. President Carol Moore and Miss Laing announced at that time that a definite proposal would be made in the future.

Meanwhile discussion about the privilege had been going on in Student-Faculty Senate.

The Sunday dating system is during the afternoons from 2:30 until the supper hour, as specified in the college M-Book under senior privileges. The same stipulations apply now both for junior and senior women.

With necessary additions in parenthesis, here are the rules concerning Sunday dating in the latest M-Book.

"Senior (and junior) women shall have the privilege of dating on Sunday afternoon from 2:30 until supper hour. They shall be allowed to date on campus, walk in the residential section of the city, and sign up for parlor dates. Groups of couples may walk in the College Woods or around the seven-mile loop.

"It shall be the duty of the Coordinating Committee of WSGA to impose or recommend the following penalties:

a. Infringement by senior women of any of the above provisions will result in suspension of all senior (and junior) privileges for four months.

b. Any freshman, or sophomore (formerly junior also) taking privileges (without permission), (sic) set aside for senior (and junior) women shall be reported by senior (and junior) women to whom privileges are allowed.

(1) The infraction by freshman or sophomore women of the senior (and junior) privileges of . . . Sunday afternoon dating shall result in a suspension of the town night for four months of the school year.

(2) It shall be the duty of the Coordinating Committee of WSGA to withdraw any or all of the privileges from a student who does not live up to general standards or principles or whose conduct is unseemly."

Hope Biography Now Available

"Big Hope," a biography of Fred Hope, is now available at the College Bookstore.

Written by Josephine Hope Westervelt, the book tells of the early life and missionary experiences of Fred Hope, the MC graduate in honor of whom the Fred Hope Fund was instituted.

All proceeds from the sale of the book go to this fund. Price of the book is $1 per copy.

14 Seniors To Graduate In Exercises Dec. 15

May Graduation Date Changed

By Abigail Crosby

Recognition Exercises for 14 seniors completing their work at the end of this semester will be held at the chapel service on Wednesday, December 15.

Commencement Exercises are only in May, but those who complete the requirements for the degree in December are publicly recognized and then invited to return for the formal Commencement exercises if they desire to do so.

Spring Commencement Changed

The date of Commencement in 1955 has been changed by action of the Directors and the Executive Council of the Faculty from Wednesday, May 18, as published in the catalog, to Monday, May 16.

The reason for the change this year is that President Lloyd must be in California to preside at meetings of the Presbyterian General Council and General Assembly beginning Tuesday, May 17.

Baccalaureate Sunday will be May 15 and Alumni Day, Saturday, May 14, as printed in the catalog. Other events will be rescheduled and announced as necessary.

Eight Approved For Echo Staff

The student-faculty publications committee this week approved eight students as members of the Highland Echo staff.

They are Don Adams, junior; Bob Evans, sophomore; and Carolyn Cones, Kay Hummel, Jay Kanick, Grace Stinecipher, Ann Wiley, and Ruth Wilson, freshmen.

All of these students have been working on the Echo heretofore as tryouts. There are still openings for three juniors, three sophomores, and six freshmen.

'All Art Abstract,' Says Jack Kershaw

"All art is abstract. The only difference is the degree to which it is used. Therefore, a good artist should be able to paint any and all forms of art." This is Jack Kershaw's own theory of art.

Mr. Kershaw, whose painting are now on exhibit in the Fine Arts Center, has shown his work at the University of Georgia, The University of Connecticut, the University of Kentucky, the University of Tennessee, and in short, all over the country.

Contained in this exhibit are some conventional portraits, cavern "dream images," and stark examples of surrealism.

Mr. Kershaw's range of materials is wide. He makes use of lacquers, hair brushes, oils, and tinted putty to achieve the effect he desires. He resides in Knoxville, and also has his studio there.

Rev. Wilson H. Yost To Preach Nov. 21

The Rev. Wilson H. Yost will be the Vespers speaker Sunday, November 21, at 7 p.m. in the chapel.

Mr. Yost is the pastor of Fourthe Presbyterian Church in Knoxville.

Sigs To Hear FBI Investigator

Next Saturday evening Alpha Sig will hold a regular meeting in the A. S. House.

For their program John A. Parker, special investigator for the F.B.I. will speak. Nominations will be made for next semester's officers.

Council Accepts New Plan For Committees

Student Council adopted many specific recommendations at its meeting Wednesday night for proposed future organization of Council committees.

Also Council voted to apply a six-weeks campusing penalty to two Town Night violators, thus ending a near-record for scarcity of violations. Previously there had been only one.

The two girls were reported as having signed out to go to a play, but had gone downtown instead. Maximum penalty for failure to sign out on the Town Night forms is eight weeks.

The proposed changes for committees came from the special student-faculty committee on constitutional revision. Council approved all the items as its recommendation. Here are the results of the findings by the revision group:

Athletic Board — There is no good reason for its existence, except for the purpose of awarding letters; proposal is that it be made a sub-committee of council to be known as the Athletic Awards Committee.

Pep Committee—proposed to be made a sub-committee of council.

Inter-Club Council — not suffi-

Personnel Office Announces Times For Registrations

Registration for the second semester will begin in the Personnel Office for seniors on Tuesday, November 23 and will continue through Saturday, November 27. Late registration fee will be charged after Saturday, November 27. Juniors will register from November 29 to December 1 (Monday through Wednesday), and sophomores will register from December 2 through December 4 (Thursday through Saturday noon.)

Freshmen are reminded that their schedules will necessarily be a continuation of the first semester courses. Any changes will be made at the time of registration, December 7 through December 11 (Tuesday through Thursday).

Payment of bills for the second semester may be made any time before Friday, January 14.

Class attendance will be required from the first day of the second semester, January 22. Absences will be reported according to class rolls made up from the registration cards. The usual penalties will apply for absences on the first two days after a recess.

Hopkins, Gilliland To Read At Workshop

Monday at 4:30 Jim Hopkins and Joe Gilliland are scheduled to present their original manuscripts before the members of Writers Workshop.

Marcia Williams and Sarah Pledger will serve as critics.

First Band Concert To Be Held Next Saturday

The Maryville College Band will present its first concert of the year in the F.A.C. auditorium at 8 p.m. next Saturday.

Ralph Moore, the band's conductor, has prepared an interesting program of music that ranges from compositions by Schumann to Elgar. A bagpipe selection has been promised alonge with some stirring march music. Everyone is cordially invited.

Program is as follows:

March, Washington Grays (1905), Grafulla; Adagio from Symphony No. 2 (1841), Schumann; A Dorian Overture (1952), Whitney;

Bagpipe Seli, Robert Weaver and David Ramsey; Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1 (1902), Elgar.

Bainonian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall.

Program chairman Marcia Williams has announced that the evenings entertainment will be a surprise.

Hampton's Trip To Florida 'Successful'

By Kay Hummel

Wade Hampton of the Public Relations Department returned November 10 from a week-long tour of Florida and Georgia. The main purpose of the trip was to recruit new students for Maryville College, but many other contacts were made with alumni and parents of present Maryville College students.

Hampton left Wednesday, November 3, and stopped over at Atlanta to make arrangements for an alumni dinner to be held later in the week. Friday he spoke on Maryville College to two groups of seniors at St. Petersburg High School, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Saturday he attended an alumni luncheon to which parents of MC students were also invited. In addition, he visited prospective students, parents of students, and alumni at Clearwater. Sunday and Monday he traveled to Jacksonville, stopping at Bartow, Lake Wales, Winterhaven, Winter Park, Orlando, and Deland.

Tuesday was spent making more contacts in Jacksonville. As a

'Sleigh Bell' Is Theme Of Fall Dance Dec. 4

Sigs, Thetas Plan Program

By Grace Stinecipher

The annual Fall Dance to be held on December 4 will be sponsored this year by Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma Societies. The dance will last from 8 until 12 p.m., and the tickets are $1.20 per couple.

Dress for the occasion is to be semi-formal; and flowers are in order, according to the Societies.

All plans for this big event are being centered around the delightful theme, "Sleigh Bells".

A Snow King and Queen will be chosen in a unique way at the dance who will then reign over the remainder of the festivities. In celebration of their coronation, a floor show will be presented in their honor and for the enjoyment of all.

Co-chairmen of this entire affair are Judy Ross and John Borter. Others also hard at work in planning the event are the co-chairmen of the other various committees. These are: Sandra Booth and Bob Finertie, Publicity; Kay Leath and Morgan Biggs, Refreshments; Judy Ross and John Borter, Entertainment; Betts McKinney and Rick McNeil, Invitations, Programs, Tickets; Sue Floyd and Bob Brasford, Decorations.

Y-Radio Series To Continue

Y-Radio's current series of programs of our basic American freedoms will continue this week and next. Sunday, November 21, "Miracle of the Danube," a drama of freedom of worship, by Maxwell Anderson will be presented. Betty Messer will direct an all-star cast including Jim Gardner, Herb Catlin, Don Adams, Sidney Tedford, and Jim Conklin.

"A Starting Life," the story of the economic plight of the Negro, by Paul Green will be presented Sunday, November 28. Sheila Sutton and Pate Boyd head the cast which will be directed by Joan McNaughton.

Last week's program was "An American Crusader," the story of Elijah Lovejoy, who gave his life for the freedom of the press.

Pre-Meds Plan Trip To Mental Hospital

The Pre-Med Club is tentatively planning a trip to Eastern State Hospital for December 2.

All those interested in making the trip are cordially invited to join the the Pre-Meds for the trip.

Choir To Sing Buxtehude Work For Advent Sunday

The Maryville College Choir will perform a sacred cantata, "Jesu, Joy and Treasure," by Dietrich Buxtehude, for vespers Sunday evening, November 28, in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

Soloists will be Sheila Sutton, soprano; Sidney Tedford, tenor; and Richard Morse, bass. The cantata will be accompanied by a string ensemble composed of John Graulich, first violin; Margarct Jones, second violin; Suzanne Burton, cello; and James Bloy, piano.

Although the Buxtehude Cantata is a very old work from the 17th century, it is rarely performed. It is written as variations on a well-known German chorale tune.

Dr. Frank D. McClelland will give a brief meditation appropriate for the opening of the Advent season. The public is cordially invited to attend the service.

Barnwarming Funds To Go To Indian Girl

By Marian Hina

YWCA has indicated that proceeds of Barnwarming this year will go to a Hopi Indian girl, Lena Fred, enabling her to join Maryville College students next year. Lena is from Ganado, Arizona, where she graduated last May from the Ganado Mission High School.

Lena wants to become a public health nurse—a most unusual ambition, for a Hopi Indian girl, according to the Rev. William Vogel, a graduate of Maryville College and a minister in the Ganado Mission, Mr. Vogel became interested in Lena and told her about Maryville. As a result, she has decided to work toward coming here to college.

She is now working as a nurse's aide in the Mission Hospital, saving for next year. If she succeeds in her desire to become a public health nurse to her own people, she will be the first among the Hopi Indians to complete the college and technical work necessary to become a nurse.

Mr. Vogel has also interested YWCA in Lena's hopes and problems. They have announced that all proceeds from the Wild West Bearnwarming Show will go to Lena, helping and assuring her that Maryville wants her to come here.

* * * * * * *

Barnwarming will be presented next Thursday night, Thanksgiving. In addition to the Western Show, starring Liz Murphey, the Barnwarming Court will be presented, there will be many booths much like a carnival, with opportunities to test skills.

Hunter To Play 'Whiteside' Role

By Bill Deerfield

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," a comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, has been selected as the faculty play which is to be presented on Dec. 9 and 10 at 8 p.m.

The play, produced by Dr. Ralph Case and directed by Kathleen Craven, boasts a large cast headed by Dr. E. R. Hunter, who will portray Sheridan Whiteside, the "man" of the play's title. Miss Anna McMillan and James Bloy, both of the music department, will play Maggie Cutler and Bert Jefferson, who provide the play with a romantic element.

Other members of the cast are Mrs. Kramer who will play Mrs. Stanley; Miss Lightfoot, Miss Preen; Mr. Witherspoon, Richard Stanley; Miss Sandburg, June Stanley; Mr. Howell, John; Mrs. Leonard, Sarah; Miss Massey, Mrs. Dexter; Miss Hunter, Mrs. McCutchen;

Dr. Briggs, Mr. Stanley; Mr. Fisher, Dr. Bradley; Miss Turrentine, Harriet Stanley; Herr Reber, Professor Metz; Mr. Ainsworth, Mr. Baker; Miss Daniels, Lorraine Sheldon; Dr. Cooper, Sandy; Dr. Griffitts, the expressman; Mr. Moore, Beverly Carlton; Mr. Cragan, Westcott; Mr. Bushing, Banjo.

The luncheon guests will be played by coaches Johnson, Davis, and Honaker; the radio men by Mr. Schwam and Dr. McClelland; and the deputies by E. C. Brown ("Brownie"), and Dr. Williams.

Backstage Workers

In addition to those who will appear on the stage there will be a great many of the faculty working behind the scenes on various committees which will be as follows:

Assistants to the stage manager: (Mrs. Pieper); Miss Vawter, prompter; and Miss Blair, sound.

Tickets: Miss Miles, S. Brown, Miss Hennemuth, Dean Styles, and Fred Blevins.

Publicity: Hampton, Miss Turrentine, and Mrs. Griffitts.

House Manager: Dr. Buchanan.

Ushers: Mrs. Buchanan, Miss J. Johnson, Miss Davis, Miss Cartledge, Dr. Sisk, Miss Martin, Mrs. Jaynes, and Mrs. Harter.

Lights: Dr. McClelland and Dr. Barker.

Scenery Design: Mr. Beard.

Scenery Painting: Miss Guss, Miss Rhodeman, Miss Dunlap, Mr. Blevins, Miss Wier, Miss Strick, and others.

Costumes: Mrs. Sperry, Mrs. Stepp, and Miss Meiselwitz.

Make-up: Miss Massey, Mrs. Queener, Mrs. Pieper, and Miss Daniels.

Props: Mrs. Cummings, Miss Heron, Huddleston, Miss Johnson, Miss Wilkinson, and Mrs. Largen.

The cast of the play and the committees are tentative and may be changed at a future time.

Students Direct Experimentals

Last night the Experimental Theater presented three short one-act plays under the direction of Nancy Rideout. Anne Buckley, and Marcia Williams, drama majors who are fulfilling a class requirement.

Miss Rideout directed "The Happy Journey" by Thornton Wilder. Included in the cast were Joan McNaughton, Cap Johnston, Bob Lorenz, Wendy Wood, Ruth Wilson, and Don Thiel.

Betty Brydon Beecher's "Indian Summer" was directed by Miss Buckley and featured Ronnie Pearson, Duckie Coker, Janie Wall, and Tony Clark.

"The Valient" by Hall and Middleman, was directed by Miss Williams. Composing the cast were Ethelyn Cathey, Jim Gardner, Bob Hassell, and Bill Hierd.

Hampton Is First PR Man For College Since 1948

By Barbara Wilkie

For the first time since 1948 Maryville College has a public relations director. James W. Hampton was appointed this year to undertake the job of publicizing and promoting inteerst in the college.

Mr. Hampton has quite a record in the field of education. Majoring in Latin and English, he graduated from Columbia University and served for twelve years as a master in the Newark Academy in New Jersey.

In 1942 he accepted the position of Director of Guidance in the Bloomfield, New Jersey Senior High School, where he introduced a number of innovations in the vocational guidance program. Secondary schools over the country have adopted many of these features.

Active In Organizations

Serving on several state and county committees, Hampton was for two years chairman of the Essex County Guidance Council, which completed studies on reasons for students dropping out of high school—one of the most extensive studies of its kind ever attempted in this country.

He served as guest lecturer at Rutgers University, Teachers' College (Columbia), and other institutions. He has also written articles appearing in numerous educational publications and has edited the Annual Report on Small Colleges for Good Housekeeping Magazine. When the report was discontinued, he published it independently as an annual magazine in the interests of these colleges.

Comes to The South

After his marriage in 1947 to the former Mary Nelle Feathers of Watauga, Tenn., he became interested in education in the South and moved to Johnson City in January of 1953. Last year he served as principal of Cherokee School in Washington County.

At the present time the Hampton family is living in the "House in the Woods" on campus.

Has Goal of 800 Enrollment

Mr. Hampton is now busily engaged in a two-months promotion

Cars Chase Students

Talk about a man biting a dog, that's still unusual; but lately it's becoming commonplace to see madly charging cars chasing people up trees around Maryville Campus.

Since the smooth drives were completed on campus, it is just against human nature to keep four wheels on the ground down the straightways and around the turns; especially in front of Carnegie Hall and by the tennis court corner.

This stretch of road is a favorite drag for clutch and throttle business to bucket the corner at 45 and up.

Morning and afternoon, cars going to a fire barrel through campus. Apparently the driving philosophy is: Step on it! If there are people crossing to class—Tough! I can't take time to slow down. Wonder if I can make the north gate doing 60? (Most of them can and do.)

Sad but true, some of the jet pilots on campus are lady drivers. Many are people just crossing from one side of town to the other—or going home.

A long time ago we shoe leather-pushers accepted the fact we had no right in the road. If we have to sneak across to class when no car is looking, well, so be it. It's not too pleasant to dive for the ditches throwing books to the winds but we have done that—just giving drivers room to get by.

Sportsmanship and courtesy are as much a part of driving as on the playing field or anywhere people meet. Why is it, driving on private roads and private property becomes no longer a privilege but a contempt of everything outside the car? Maybe that's human nature, but it's a poor excuse for bad judgment.

There aren't any speed signs posted on campus, true; but it is customary to slow to 15 mph in a school zone. That will even give the driver here time to say hello to his friends in passing. If you drivers have to release the speed urge, it's more fun racing a train to a crossing.

Some schools have patrollers to pick up campus speeders. We believe that a person is a gentleman and a goor sport until proven otherwise. It's no fun bloodying up somebody's shiny chrome and paint job proving otherwise.

Our Gossip

An idea which occurs frequently in sermons and discussions is the matter of "talking about people." Most of us protest that we did not begin to indulge in such conversation until we came to college. Perhaps many of us honestly desire to avoid it but find it next to impossible.

Surely in our moments of clear thinking we can all agree that we as Christians have no business cattily hashing over the peculiarities of our friends and associates. The most important objections to this activity have already been summed up in the theory that this unkindness can be murderous to the other's reputations.

Even when we manage to lay aside adverse criticism and unkind remarks about people, we need to take care how often we talk about them. Have you noticed how prone we are to form our opinions of other students and faculty members on the basis of the two or three statements we hear concerning them in bull sessions? On a campus this size this is quite natural, but likewise it should not be too difficult to come to know these people for ourselves. Indeed we must be careful what we say, good or bad; and we must weigh carefully the opinions of others before we make them a part of our concepts.

What then should we talk about? It has been said many times that small people talk about people, average people converse about events; and great people discuss ideas. This, of course, is not a hard and fast rule! At a time, however, when we as college students are attempting to examine, reorganize and vitalize our concepts and beliefs, it is especially important for us to discuss such matters. We need not always avoid talking about people; events must necessarily be discussed; these conversations often aid us in forming our ideas.

Perhaps these statements can be summed up by saying that what is most essential is alertness about our conversations. An energetic attempt on the part of each of us to be careful what we say, to make the major part of our conversation worthwhile, should give us less to regret and do much toward creating an atmosphere in which we can trust our friends.

A Tale for Tiny Totters

Once upon a time in the far away hills of East Tennessee there stood upon a hill a still within whose walls dwelt a mother and her small daughter who never wore anything but a little red riding hood and for that reason was called Katie June. Katie June was a precocious, wilderness child who loved living in the raw. To her mother one day she said, "Ma," she said, "Ma" (that was what she called her mother—Ma.) "Ma," she said, "Aw, I forgot what I was a'goin' say." "That's fine, Katie June," said her understanding mother who was always very understanding. "I wasn' payin' you no mind no how. What I want you to do is take this here jug of brew I jus' brewed across th' ridge to Granma's house who's ailin' for me." "Aw, Ma," she said pleasantly, "I'm tired a'trudgin' these hills a'tote'in brew. Can' I rest awhile and take a Nip?" "A man works from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done—now git! !"

So Katie June got. Out of the still went Katie June—through the dense underbrush, thru two thickets. She swam two creeks, clambered over three barbed wire fences and several rock piles. By this time she had lost sight of the place of her happy childhood and she was powerfully thirsty so that she sat down on the side of a log to take one. upon arising Katie June pulled her little red riding hood over her face and tottered off down the path toward Granny's place. On and on down the winding path she went carrying the joyful juice. Being as how it was a long ways to where Granma was lying sick of her death bed, little red reeking Katie June stopped again and sat this time on the side of a revenuer and began again to quench her thirst. Upon getting up Katie June fell flat. But she pulled together herself and stood there swaying.

Then she perceived it was a "wolf" upon whom she had sat. Katie June was mortified and pulled her little red riding hood over her face some more before she dared speak, then she up and said, "Mr. Wolfe," said she "Mr. Wolfe, it is that I wish to—wish to say somethin'." "Yes-s-s," said the kindly revenuer kindly. (He had encountered this belle of the backwoods before and was sick certainly of playing her little games. He wasn't about to go racing thru the woods and get in Granma's bed. Her granma was nothing but a booze-head, and the very tho't of taking a bit of her made him ill positively! !") "Mr. Wolfe," she said, "Aw, I forgot what I was a goin' say." And so saying little red face Katie June went staggering away down the creek which was very rocky.

Hard was the rock upon which Katie June injured her delicate feet. Down upon it she sat, making sure a rock was what it was she sat upon. Taking out her first-aid jug, she proceeded to doctor in generous amounts her feet, knowing full well alcohol should never be taken externally. (Maybe she wun' as smart as some a' them city gals, but she wud'n "that" dumb.) Anyhow, as it happened, Katie June's feet felt much better after a swig or so—all four of them. Never before had they felt so light, and never before had she. Down then the rock she slid, a generous amount of her striking rock bottom. Quite peturbed was Katie June about the direction in which Granma's house was. Doused with spirit, non-the-less, little red light—little red lit—little freezing red Katie June crawled away down the creek singing an old song of the hills which her mother had taught her—"Rye whiskey, rye whiskey. . . . . ."

By Barbara Wilkie

The YMCA and YWCA have placed five study booklets in the library that have been prepared in connection with their National Student Assembly to meet at the University of Kansas, December 27, 1954 to January 2, 1955. These booklets were written by persons planning the assembly and reflect decisions confronting college students and faculty throughout the county. They show that God is active in this changing world by pointing out clearly the relationship of Christian truths to day-by-day living and presenting vital questions in a challenging way. They lend themselves very well for group study.

The theme of the National Student Assembly is taken from Genesis 3: 9 and is presented in the booklet "The Inescapable Question — Where Are You?" One should study this booklet before the others, since it endeavors to establish the place the individual occupies in the universe.

"Your Freedom is in Trouble" is the striking title of the next one. By citing instances on college campuses over the country, this booklet points out the dangers facing our basic freedoms of thought and speech. It discusses such things as "McCarthyism" and shows how faith is necessary for freedom.

"You, the Nation, and the World" emphasizes that modern individuals have a very definite part in making the world "go around." One cannot escape the fact that he is a world citizen, with definite obligations toward its order.

"Faith, Sex, and Love" are discussed with the idea in mind that all three are closely related. The author is not merely idealistic but presents in a practical way answers to problems related to these topics.

The purpose of "You in the University" is, as the author states, "to help undergraduate students to see themselves in their presnt situation." It prsents various aspects of college life—what the student expects from and finds in college and how he meets his social, mental, and religious problems.

These booklets, when studied in their entirety, should help the student answer some of his most perplexing problems. The material seems to be well organized, authoritatively written, and of vital interest to students. The booklets are now being studied by Y groups over the country and can be purchased from the National Student Council of the YMCA and YWCA. They are twenty-five cents a copy or one dollar for the set of five.

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Evans

As this is my first attempt at writing this column, I should like to present my views upon school spirit and interest in sports at this school.

There was much more interest and enthusiasm shown for football in the season just recently completed than there was last year, that is, in both varsity and intramural football.

The increased interest in intramural football was evident in that there were definitely more participants in this year's football program than there were in last year's program. I, for one, was surprised and delighted to see the interest that was shown in the Hammers-All Star game, in that about 100 people attended the game. Some of the injuries in intramural football were undoubtedly due to over-enthusiasm and the will to win.

It is a fact that this year's intramural basketball program is definitely being participated in by more students than was last year's program. With several changes in the rules and more interest in the sport, there undoubtedly will be considerably better ball played out there on the floor.

Although the Highlanders' record was about the same as last year, there was a higher percentage of the student body represented at the games as opposed to last year. The new Scottie band uniforms were undoubtedly a big help in raising school spirit and attendance at the games. Of course, whether attendance at the games causes school spirit or school spirit is caused by attendance at the games is a debatable proposition.

In witnessing the Highlander-Concord State game last Saturday night, I saw the greatest surge of good old-fashioned school spirit that I have ever witnessed. Just about ever Scottie fan in the stands was behind the team 100 percent. This was especially true in the last four minutes of play when the student body cheered heartily before and after every play. The team on the field actually scored the touchdown, and no attempt is being made to take away any of their glory. However, I feel that it was the team on the field backed by the "team" off the field that scored the touchdown.

Let's carry this same school spirit over into the basketball season. In past years, varsity basketball games have been very poorly attended. Many say that since the basketball gams are on weekday nights, they cannot see their way clear to attend the games because of their studies. If your studies make it impossible for you to come out and see the entire game, come out and see part of the game. In all events, let's get out there and support our hoopsters as we did our gridders!

Scots Defeat Concord In Final Minute

Shelton, Playing Last Game Of Career, Leads Winning Drive From Tailback

The Scotties came from behind in the last minute of play Saturday to score the tying touchdown and then kicked the winning point against Concord State. Bob Shelton, regularly the quarterback, was switched to tailback to replace the injured Clarence Shepard with four minutes to play.

The Scots moved the ball from their own 35 with Shelton scoring from the 4. Buddy White, who kicked the tying point against Carson-Newman the week before, made his second conversion of the evening and Maryville came out the winner in a close ball game.

The Highlanders drew first blood at the start of the game. Jack Keny recovered a Concord fumble at the mid-field stripe which opened the way for Shelton to score from the one. White, whose 39 yard run was the highlight of this drive, kicked the extra point.

The Mountain Lions came back with two TD's in the second period. Speedy half-back Don Crane ran 65 yards to the Scottie 2 yard line. He went over on the next play with Ray Halsey kicking the extra point.

Moments later Crane scored again, this time from the three. Mike Jupen intercepted a Maryville pass and lateralled to Crane who made to the Scottie 46. Isbello Karlo paced the Concord attack to the 3 with Crane scoring. The try for the extra point was missed after a bad pass from center.

Concord put up another threat after the final Scottie TD, but the visitors were stopped on the Highlander 28 at the game's end.

This was the last game of the 1954 Highlander team who finished with a winning 4-3-2 record.

Maryville	7	0	0	7	—14
Concord	0	13	0	0	—13

Concord scoring: touchdowns, Crane, 2; extra point, Halsey. Maryville scoring: touchdowns, Shelton, 2; extra point, White, 2.

Phil Young Wins Tourney In Ping Pong

Senior Phil Young beat his tennis teammate Sonny Shackelford to win the Intramural Ping Pong Tournament held in the Student Center lounge last month.

Young beat Freeman Wyche, and Shackelford trimmed Jim Demer in the semi-final round to meet in the finals.

The doubles team of Demer and Shackelford won the doubles crown by defeating Bill Hodge and Kyle Petree two games to one. Demer and Shackelford won over Kent Toomey and Reed White, and Hodge and Petree defeated Bob Baker and Bill Riddle in the semi-finals.

Scots Battle C-N To Tie 7-7

By Jim Demer

Coach Honaker's Highlanders battled the Carson-Newman Eagles to a 7-7 tie at Jefferson City. The Scots' Jack Keny blocked and punt in the second period on the Eagles 9 yard line to set up the score. Fullback Buddy White hit pay dirt from the 5 and also made the all important conversion.

Early in the first quarter the Eagles missed a score as they fumbled on the Maryville end zone. However, the next time they got the ball, thy got their lone touchdown when Kendall Morgan climaxed a long drive with a 9 yard jaunt for six points. Lynn Murdock kicked the extra point.

Maryville	0	7	0	0	—7
Carson-Newman	7	0	0	0	—7

Carson-Newman scoring: touchdown, Morgan; extra point, Murdock. Maryville scoring: touchdown, White; extra point, White.

C-N Treasurer Lauds Honesty Of MC Student

A Maryville coed's honesty in mailing a forgotten football ticket to Carson-Newman College this week was commended by Roy Myers, treasurer of the college in Jefferson City.

Mr. Myers' letter to Maryville dean Frank D. McClelland brought out the fact that a woman student from Maryville mistakenly took an Artist Series ticket to the Carson-Newman game, confusing the two tickets with similar colors.

An assistant at the ticket office admitted the Maryville student and she promised to mail the game ticket immediately upon returning. Myers' letter indicated that the student kept her promise.

Mr. Myers wrote in part:

"I am writing this letter to express our appreciation for the fine spirit that exists between the administration of Carson-Newman College and that of Maryville College and the unusual dependability and honesty of your students.

We remark frequently that we would rather handle a game when Maryville Students are involved than that of any other school. I am sure that you sometimes find students of some schools do not have the high sense of moral values that your students do."

The letter made no mention of the student's name.

Y's To Hear Choral Reading

Tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center, a choral reading of "The Least of These," will be presented by the YMCA at a joint assembly of YM and YW.

"The Least of These," written by Virginia Wilk Elicker and directed by John Graulich, is based on the social and moral problems of the have and have-nots of society. It is a moral conflict dealing with the pride and prejudice of mankind and is based structurally on the Lord's Prayer.

The theme of the presentation is taken from Matthew 25: 40: "Truly I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my bretheren, you did it to me."

Jim Gardiner, Phil Muir, Perry Fuller, Bill Potter and Dick Preston have combined their talents to present "The Least of These."

Bob Clark was the leader of the all-campus prayer meeting held last Wednesday night.

On Wednesday night, November 24, a special Thanksgiving prayer meeting will be presented by the Devotions Committee.

Harriers Lose To Sewanee

The Scottie cross-country team continued their losing ways as they dropped their fifth successive meet of the year. The defeat came at the hands of the University of the South in a race held at Sewanee. The number one man, Don Vandenberg, did not make the trip and hurt the Highlanders' chance to avenge an earlier season loss to the Tigers.

A. C. McWilliams took first place for the Scots and copped the meet. The trouble which has plagued the Scots all year showed up as the Tigers took the second, third, and fourth places. Freeman Wyche, running his best race so far, took fifth with Porky Shackelford coming in tenth. Bruce Ingles and Bill Potter rounded out the scoring for the Scots. Final score: Maryville, 39; Sewanee 22.

The battle for first was really close as McWilliams' winning time of 22:14 was only 32 seconds faster than Wyche's 22:46, which took fifth place.

The Scots ran against Tusculum yesterday. Results could not be obtained in time for this printing but this writer picks Maryville to win for the first time this season in their last meet.

Adult Beginners To Present Recital

The Adult Beginners in music will present a recital on Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. the 30th of this month.

This recital will prove interesting, as the adults will exhibit their musical ability on the same program with performances by members of the instrument classes.

Jackie Speigner and Margaret Potts, members of Ralph Moore's Choral Conducting Class, will be student conductors of Katherine Crews' Music Ed. Club band.

During the tour, Hampton noticed that interest in Maryville College was especially keen in Jacksonville and Atlanta. cient reason for present set-up; proposal is that its counterpart be made a sub-committee of council to have representatives from the honorary societies, special-interest groups (language, etc.), social organizations, and religious organizations; chairman to be from council.

Publicity committee — proposed change to a Publications Board, a permanent council committee; composed of the editors of the Echo and Chilhowean, and two representatives from council.

The matter of the proposed Town Students Association was dropped last week because it was reported there was not sufficient reason for one.

The Curriculum committee recommended that a permanent student-faculty group be established which would talk over matters of curriculum and instruction. Its function would be purely advisory and would be made up of six students and six faculty members.

The members would represent the college main divisions, but faculty and students from a division would not represent the same major field. Faculty members would be appointed by the president of the college, and would serve on a rotating basis. The committee would be a part of the Student-Faculty Senate.

Council approved the committee's report.

Traditionally, Council will not meet next week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

policy. Recently he took a 10-day trip through Florida to visit high schools, call on prospective students, and organize alumni clubs. He has established as a personal goal for himself an enrollment next year of 800.

But recruiting new students is only one phase of his job. He will try to encourage closer cooperation between the town of Maryville and the college through a series of small weekly luncheon groups in the faculty tea room to which leading businessmen are invited. He is also working with the Affiliated Independent Colleges of Upper Tennessee Valley representing Maryville College in the solicitation of funds from business and industry of the area.

Maryville Publicized

He is coperating with the alumni secretary in sending letters to alumni soliciting aid in the chapel building campaign. Hampton was in charge of the preparations for the Maryville College day observance October 10 in the Synod of Mid-South.

His work in general publicity has considerably increased the amount of column space given to the college not only in the local papers but also in leading publications all over the South. In general, through Mr. Hampton's efforts Maryville College is becoming much better known to more people. Who knows—pretty soon Maryville College may be shown with a star on the maps of the world!

The Russians have stated, via radio Moscow, that if the Western powers insist on German re-armament they will take "necessary" measures to secure the defense of their own nation.

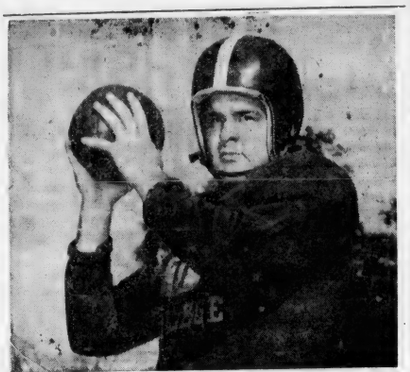
And Christmas Signs Are Appearing

22nd Annual 'Messiah' To Be Held In Chapel

250 Voices Comprise Chorus

By Barbara Wilkie

Maryville College's 22nd annual presentation of Handel's oratorio "Messiah" will be given Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.



Two hundred and fifty voices made up of the College Vesper Choir, Men's Glee Club, All-Girl Choir, and selected students and community folk will sing 12 choruses.

It will be accompanied by the College Symphony Orchestra. Miss Garnet Manges will be at the piano for her 20th year as "Messiah" accompanist. Assistant Professor Harry H. Harter, who has been the conductor for the past eight years, will direct the entire production.

Thirteen soloists will take part in the performance. Mary Ellen Phipps, a sophomore elementary education major from Clintonville, Pa., will sing the soprano air "Come Unto Him." The soprano air "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" will be sung by Myrna Ginaven, a junior music major from Xenia, Ohio. The four recitatives, "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Fields," "And Lo the Angel of the Lord Came Upon Them," "The Angel Said Unto Them," and "And Suddenly There was With the Angel," will be sung by senior music major Sheila Sutton from Chadburn, N.C. Elizabeth Murphey, who is a junior physical education major from Springfield will sing the alto recitative "Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive and Bear a Son," and the air "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion."

Carol Lee Lacy, sophomore Bible major from St. Petersburg, Fla., will sing the alto recitative "Then Shall the Eyes of the Musical Program Set For Christmas Vespers

Miss Cartledge To Read Dickens' 'Christmas Carol'

Miss Matilda Cartledge, instructor in Bible, will present her reading of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" at the annual College Christmas party tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The event is sponsored annually by the YM and YWCA. Tentatively the Y's are planning to have the party in the dining hall, with students sitting in the area around the fireplace.

Harry MacCall will lead singing of carols, and Jim Laster will be piano accompanist.

This annual gathering takes the place of the vesper service on the Sunday when the "Messiah" is presented. Last year Dr. E. R. Hunter read Christmas poetry.

Pre-Meds Visit Hospital

Members of Pre-Med Club and interested non-members visited Eastern State Mental Hospital at Lyons View on Thursday, December 2.

5 Music Groups To Perform

Next Sunday evening at 7 p.m. a vesper service of Christmas music will be presented in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel by three of the college choral groups and two instrumental ensembles, each under its particular director.

The instrumentalists are the College String Ensemble directed by Miss Katherine Crews, violin instructor and concert mistress of the College Orchestra, and the Brass Choir under the direction of Ralph Moore, instructor of wind instruments and director of the College Orchestra and Band.

The String Ensemble will play the Christmas Concerto Op. 6 No. 8 by Corelli, and the Brass Choir will play two Christmas chorales by Bach: "How Brightly Shines the Morning Star" and "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light."

The chorale groups participating are the Men's Glee Club and the All-Girl Choir directed by Dan Kinsinger, voice instructor, and the College Vesper Choir under

Mary A. Thompson Heads Royalty At Barnwarming

The identities of this year's Barnwarming king and queen with those of the members of their court, were revealed just before the presentation of the annual Barnwarming show held on Thanksgiving evening at 8 in the Alumni Gym.

Mary Ann Thompson, senior from Maryville, was crowned queen and Bill Breen, senior from Anniston, Alabama was crowned king.

The Barnwarming show itself, written by Peg iFsher, Herb Catlin, Nancy Rideout, and Barbara Chubb was entitled "Cactus Gap" and starred Liz Murphey as the "sho 'nuff gal" Frankie, and Ronnie Pearson as the shy Cowboy

Disc Club Enjoys 'Amahl & Night Visitors'

Disc club enjoyed Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" at their regular meeting Thursday night.

The opera tells the story of the Three Wise Men on their way to Bethlehem to adore the Christ child and their meeting with a ten-year old crippled boy and his mother. The opera unfolds the story of the boy's miraculous cure.

Maryel Vogel was in charge of the program.

Encouragement To Juniors --- Echo's Public Service

By Abigail Crosby

Helpful Hints to Juniors

Have you ever, in all your life, seen a more bedraggled gang of seniors, advisers, and typists? But finally the day came and went. The fateful "rendezvous with destiny" (to quote the Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Special Studies), December 1, 1954, is past, and we, the seniors, pass on a few suggestions to you, the juniors.

Now it can be told. It's so easy to make up footnotes—provided the author (of the referred to book) is, at least, acquainted with the field. If you're really hard up for a reference, Highet might do—he's written in almost every field there is to write in.

When your adviser hands back your first draft for corrections, it's simplest just to erase what you have and write in back again. A multitude of advisers have been fooled that way.

Be sure you know which style he likes best—some teachers stick to the straight subject-verb-modifier-object method, and some go Miltonic on us and demand that the sentences be verb-subject-modifier-object. If you're not sure, ask him. He'll probably write the whole chapter for you.

Stick to one typist. By doing this, things will be misspelled consistently. And please be sure that your typewriter has a new ribbon in it. Remember the sad tale of your forerunner who had to type it all over.

Be discreet about how much you let your adviser know about your method. If he says, "I got up extra early to get this checked for you," it's perfectly acceptable to let him know that you got up early a couple mornings yourself (just don't mention going back to sleep as soon as you picked up your pencil). But if he says, "I read this while I was at rehearsal for the faculty play," never, oh never answer, "Well, I wrote it at rehearsal for the fall play!"

And I know you're all wondering what to write about—but the answer is simple "Hit don' differ none," because what you end up with won't even remotely resemble what you aimed at.

You might think this is silly—but read it again a year from now.

Good luck, kids!

Student Council Imposes Second Stiff TN Penalty

For the second consecutive meeting time, Student Council Tuesday night levied stiff penalties for Town Night violations which were reported.

At the last Council meeting, the group voted to campus two offenders for six weeks, the first violation in about two months. This time Council applied a penalty of two weeks in one case and another six-week penalty against the second reported.

The first was that of a junior girl who sent a letter to be read in Council meeting, explaining that she had come in four minutes late because she stayed to speak with the minister following Westminster Fellowship meeting and forgot about the deadline.

Maximum penalty for being four minutes late is four weeks. After short discussion, the council voted to impose a two-weeks' penalty.

Two freshman girls were campused for six weeks for failure to sign out on the Town Night forms. The Town Night committee reported the girls had signed out for the Student Center, but had gone to town instead. Maximum penalty in this case is eight weeks.

Feeling that the case was substantially like the previous one involving two sophomores, Council voted the six-week penalty. This will, of course, run over into the second semester.

Because violations have occurred with such frequency and of such severe nature, Council discussed for a short while the matter of enforcing Town Night conduct.

As stated in the printed Agreement and Operating Plan, the college administration is to inform Council if it believes the present system to be operating unsuccessfully.

Council, however, made no definite recommendations for im-

Tired Seniors Pour 'Blessings' On Juniors

The members of the class of '56 were guests of the class of '55 at a party held Wednesday night from 8 to 10 in the Y-rooms. The party was in celebration of the completion of the seniors' special studies and the commencement of the juniors'.

A short skit was presented by Bob Ramger, Liz Enloe, Bob Neir, Ruth Orr, Harry MacCall, Bob Clark, Bill Davis, Abby Crosby, and Jim Kesler, after which Libby Parrish and Carol Moore sang the special studies theme song, "Forty Cups of Coffee."

A short speech was made by Ken Wilkinson introducing the advisors and dedicating the juniors to the coming year. The seniors then showered their blessings upon the juniors.

Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Carolyn Lime, vice-president, and social dancing was held.

Climaxing the evening was a spontaneous raid on the library staged by the seniors.

Theta Alpha Phi Initiates Three

The Tennessee Delta Chapter of Theta Alpha Phi will formally initiate three new members tomorrow after the presentation of the Messiah, according to announcement made by President Anne Buckley.

The three neophytes are Tony Clark, sophomore physics major; Hershal Netherton, sophomore drama major; and Bob Brand, senior art major.

Informal initiation was held Thursday and Friday. After a dinner at the home of Kathleen Craven, faculty advisor, Miss Buckley will conduct the initiation ceremonies.

'Sleigh Bells' To Ring Tonight In Alumni Gym

Formal To Last From 8 To 11

Sleigh bells ring tonight at the Alumni Gym as Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma present the 1954 fall formal. Preparations started two weeks ago when the society presidents appointed Judy Ros and John Borter general chairmen of the dance.

The decorating committee, under the leadership of Sue Floyd, Helen Jensen and Bob Basford, will transform the wide open spaces of the gym into a winter wonderland. The main colors of the dance will be blue and white with green running a close third.

Refreshments are being supervised by Kay Leeth and Morgan Biggs. According to the committee there will be something else besides the usual punch and cookies.

The matter of the band has been a yes-and-no proposition until last week when the final YES was made. An instrument never used before at a formal dance has been obtained and will take a very prominent part in the evening's music. The band will be under the direction of Ben Stabely.

The general chairmen of the dance are in charge of the royalty. Suspense will be held until the intermission, at which time the snow king and queen will be presented. Lavinia and Mary Ellen Lee will be the court dancers, and Libby "Eartha" Parrish will sing. The exact method of selecting the king and queen is not being disclosed.

On the Ticket and Invitation committee were Betts McKenney and Rick McNeal. Bill Davis did all the printing of the tickets and programs.

The chaperones for this evening will be Miss Frances Massey, Mrs. Strick, Mrs. Robinson, Miss Sally Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kinsinger and Newell Witherspoon.

Four College Societies Pick Leaders For '55

Elections Held This Week

Ruth Orr, Dock Jennings, Carolyn Lime, and Charlie Rogers will head the four societies next semester. Balloting was done earlier this week, and the new officers will take over in January.

Miss Orr, senior French major from Maryville, will succeed Sally Butts as president of Theta Epsilon. Other Theta officers are Betts McKinney, vice-president; Sandra Booth, secretary; Ethelyn Cathey, treasurer; Judy Ross and Margaret Gilmore, program chairmen; Junior Davis and Carol Moore, skit night chairmen; and Ann Murray, chaplain.

Jennings, senior business administration major from Salt Lake City, Utah, has been chosen president of Alpha Sigma. The current president is Tom Bugenhagen. Other officers are Bob Ramger, vice-president; Charles Partee, secretary; and Morgan Biggs, program chairman. Dick Henderson is the treasurer, an office which is held all year.

Miss Lime will follow Peg Fisher as president of Bainonian. She is a senior home ec major from Canton, N.C. The Bainonian cabinet includes Joan Hershalman, vice-president; Lyn McMillan, secretary; Betty Messer, treasurer; Barbara Wilkie and Shirley Mayfield, program chairmen; and Dottie Enfield and Sue Burton, skit night chairmen.

Rogers is a junior biology major from Ft. Smith, Ark. He succeeds Jim Crawford. Other Athenian officers chosen include Jim Gardner, vice-president; Jim Conklin, treasurer; Bill Bolger, secretary; Ray Sammons, program chairman, and Harold O'Bannon, athletic chairman.

Now We Have At Long Last--- A Guide For Chapel 'Portry'

By Barbara Wilkie

This campus always seems to be graced with quite a few poets who are continually practicing their arts in the form of chapel announcements, posters, and other means of advertisement. Most of this poetry seems inspired, the product of long hours of arduous labor. (Some, of course, is definitely the swift work of a genius.)

If you are considering writing a chapel announcement, or some such composition, it is well for you to keep in mind certain rules, which are generally very simple.

First of all, the verse must rhyme. Free or blank verse is not suitable for chapel announcements. For example:

"Do you like to prance?"
Then come to the dance."

Or:

"The time is fleeting
For French Club meeting."

(Notice how "prance" rhymes with "dance" and likewise, "fleeting" with "meeting.")

A second principle to follow concerns rhythm. In order that Dr. McClelland and Dr. Hunter might read it aloud easily, a very marked rhythm is necessary. Note:

"Examination time
Is not so far away;
So you will have to rush
If dues you have to pay."

That was an example of triplaic hexupiter—three accents to six syllables—a very readable form.

A third important rule is—don't use unnecessary words. Say things clearly and concisely. Instead of saying:

"Maryville, a town in Tennessee,
Has in it a college where happens to be
An art exhibit at which to stare
And find great paintings, oh so rare."

say:

"The art exhibit at Maryville is,
So over to see it you should whizz."

Notice how much shorter and clearer the same idea can be expressed.

The last thing to keep in mind is poetry suitable to the audience—in other words, something startling to stir them from sleepiness. This can be accomplished by a novel approach or a surprise ending of some sort. Example:

"This is the day—the last, in fact—
That boys for a dance-date have a chance to act;

Many Work Types By Student Artists Now On Display

Ceramics, watercolors, oils, and art education projects are some of the work now on display at the Studen Art Exhibit in the Fine Arts Center gallery. The exhibit opened Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

A number of students, faculty, and townspeople attended the opening.

Copper enameled jewelry on display was made by Liz Frei and Bob Brand. The anatomic studies in charcoal and pen were done by the students in the anatomy classes.

Other work by underclassmen included a large number of watercolors. Seniors artists Dixie Connor, Bob Brand, and Janet Kyllingstad exhibited paintings done in oil.

"That Man Might Live," by Dixie Connor, is a symbolic abstract in color which reveals her brush technique which is easily seen in the rounded muscular form, as well as in the flowing Gothic drapery.

Of the many forms of expressionism the works of Brand and Mrs. Kyllingstad represent two. Brand's "Chlorophyll Flagstones" represents abtract expressionism using toned-color, outline, and shape, while "The Agony of Man," Mrs. Kyllingstad's painting, speaks represents abstract expressionism and realism.

The oil paintings also illustrate a number of techniques. For some brushes were used, while others used a palette knife.

This student exhibit is scheduled to be on display for about two weeks.

What Goes On?

At YMCA's Watermelon Pow-Wow last September one of the speakers made reference to the sad lack of student interest in current events. And several other professors and students have made and are still observing that this lack of interest is still just as sad as it ever was.

Observe, for example, what happens in a class when the teacher alludes to current politics without mentioning name of party or the president. Most people don't know whether to laugh or not because they just are not familiar with the situation and consequently are unsure. If they are at all awake, they usually do manage to come forth with a polite smile or titter.

In college we are busy—some of the time anyhow. And this is the reason most people give for their failure to read a daily newspaper or weekly newsmagazines. The thing is, however, is not what you have time to do, but what you take time to do. We take time to read Mademoiselle, we take time to go to the grill, we take time to look at our neighbor's funny paper, but we don't have time to find out that Alger Hiss was recently released from prison or that Secretary of State Dulles has disregarded a demand for a blockade of Red China.

One thing behind this lack of interest is the fact that there are a substantial number of people who "don't find a chance to get over to the library" until they have to hand in Special Studies, fill their pens with ink, or look up some outside reading.

It would be quite interesting for some of them to investigate sometime the current news periodicals which are there for anyone to read. There are at least three of the best newspapers in the United States received daily, and several others which are at least interesting while they do not give as complete a picture of the entire news field.

And then there are magazines: Time, with its pleasantly-biased style, but with a fairly complete picture of the important news developments; Newsweek, a sequel, with more signed opinion columns and preferred by those who have an antipathy to Time; U.S. News & World Report, whose main characteristic is probably its interviews and business prediction columns, conservative; and Harper's and the Atlantic, which are definitely higher on the scale than the other magazines we have mentioned. These two publications are probably the most convenient source for informative and provoking essays in this time.

As intelligent citizens we must know what happens in our world, which we still live in even though we often feel that our campus exists by itself and that we are not part of another social group. Failure to know who's who in the news as well as what happens reflects on one's intellectual development as a whole. Knowledge of current events is a part that cannot feasibly be neglected.

Little Red Katie June

——continued

(From the first installment of this moving drama, you will recall how little red Katie June came out from her still on the hill. Narrowly averting the clutches of a "wolf" and constantly bracing her spirit with spirits, she sought to soothe her poor ole granma with some good ole mountain brew—only she got lost.)

* * * *

Well, it happened that Kate June went on floating and crawling and cluttering up the creek in general. Dantily she stumbled out soon. (It happened that water got in her mouth and if there was anything she couldn't stand—it was water.) Anyhow, she had almost lost her red riding hood ——and without her red riding hood—she blushed to think about it.

Katie June wasn't hurting nobody—just beating her own head against the ground all by herself, when all of a sudden, out of the woods a woodcutter stepped. (He was pink and white and plump all over.) Well—not knowin what to say, Katie June said "Uh-hh-h," and gently yanked her red riding hood down in order that her embarrassment might be concealed. The woodsman spoke to her kindly, "Whatta' y' tryin' to do, y' lunkhead, beat your brains out?" Then answered sweetly the backwods beauty, "Yeah-hh-h! !," while she continued trying to make the ground stay still.

Well, do y' know," the woodsman said, "your grandma has been ravin' nigh on two days cause y' ain't showed up with that thar jug a' brew? And her so sick, an all. . . . com' on, let's get movin'!!" Never before had anyone been so kind to her. Moved with gratitude, Katie June felt that she would like to say something, so she summoned all the courage she could and spoke. "Mr. Woodsman," she said, "Mr. Woodsman. . . Aw, I forgot what it wuz I wuz a' goin' say." Having thus spoken, she staggered after the woodsman.

Stillness hovered around this pleasant scene. A calm sweetness filled the air, and only the occasional light ripple of water, or the sweet music of small, woodland creatures broke the tranquility. Overhead a small bird sang beautifully as he watched the child following the man along the woodland path. Gracefully, he glided down to rest on the shoulder of the little girl, thinking to cheer her with his song. "Git! ! !"

"Why, Katie June! ! What you mean a'shoin' that nice bird that a'way? An' whar's my brew?" But without awaiting answer, Grandma took her grandchild up to her cabin. A sobbering thought.

* * * *

Katie June's head was back to its normal size when she finally woke up. She was shook to find her granny brewing broth for a change, and to find herself wearing a little red riding cape that just matched her little red riding hood. But she was happy. She was so happy, in fact, that she said, "Aw-ww-w." And so ends the story on a happy note . . . And everyone lives happily ever after.

P.S.—Don't try telling it to your kids. They'll never understand it.

It's Over!

For most of us this past Wednesday it was all over but the sighing, correcting, and writing of additional papers. Yes, December 1 had arrived, and many seniors bid a temporary goodbye to the little monsters in black covers which had passionately possessed their lives for so long a time.

Now that it is finished, what did you think of the experience? (Try to answer without thinking of the grade you think you'll get.) It seems to us that Special Studies are quite worthwhile because of the training in method and discipline to the usages of the formal paper. And the experience (other than vexing) is one you would undoubtedly be poorer without.

Like many other things you do at college, it may have been hard, but after all you were able to do it. Still it is relieving to feel that counting of days until the first of December is over; but other responsibilities are still present, and Special Studies should help you meet them a little better.

By Don Adams

When, oh, when do we go home? (Sound effect accompanied by eye rolling and low wails.) Men, tighten your lips and plod determinedly on. It's almost a matter of hours until the shining highway of freedom lies ahead. Excepting, of course, a low stone wall of mental torture. Strength of mind will overcome everything in the path. Remember that!

Previews and lights:

Tomorrow at 3 p.m. Handel's beautiful and deeply moving "Mesiah" will be presented in the chapel. It is particularly appropriate to the coming Christmas season. Over 250 hard-working people have given hours to make it possible for us to enjoy, appreciate, and lose ourselves in fine music. The spiritual satisfaction can only be felt, but it is a sustainment to carry with us for a long time.

In the Christmas spirit, tomorrow night we'll be receiving another experience. The annual Christmas reading is an unique and stirring part of Maryville College life, one of the customs that we especially remember. Miss Cartledge is reading Dickens' "Christmas Carol" in front of the fire. Nostalgia and human drama will be unfolded before flickering firelight. This immortal classic brings home as nothing else can the real meaning of Christmas.

Remember how for so many years Lionel Barrymore immortalized old Scrooge in "A Christmas Carol"? Every night before Christmas, with excited children tucked in bed and parents sitting around the fire, lived Scrooge and Bob Cratchet and Tiny Tim's "God bless you, everyone." Lionel Barrymore passed away last week. So ended an era of acting, humanity, showmanship, and Scrooge to millions of our generation. He will be remembered for a long time.

Shakspere and Common Sense

Dr. Hunter's book "Shakspere and Common Sense" is now available in the library and bookstore. It is highly readable and will prove invaluable to an understanding of the genius and humanism of the man. This book will be an especial delight in years to come for all who know Dr. Hunter.

He deals with Shakspere and his plays as a man who wrote plays for a living would write—logically and common sensically. A man puts down what he experiences and knows and associates. This is practical; so was Shakspere. Dr. Hunter has, in a sense, unveiled Shakspere's philosophy. Shakspere comes to life as an ordinary man, but as a busy, gifted man. Get your copy signed.

Hunter, The Actor

On the boards next week—"The Man Who Came To Dinner." Don't miss it! Starring "Cuddles" Whiteside Hunter, the play deals with a radio personality making a tour in a small midwestern town. He slips on the ice, and there the story begins. What a hunk of ice, beautiful women, and London, England, have in common is up to you to find out. Guaranteed: More belly shaking, sidewinding laughs than you've seen in a long time.

Man's Right to Knowledge and the Free Use Thereof is the theme of the Columbia University's exhibit in the library. It is a fine, 20-panel study of the basic concepts of freedom of mind and the inherent values and necessity of knowledge. St. John said: "And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Each person born into the world has it all to go through—all the knowledge and toil of the centuries to draw on, learn from and improve by. Goethe said back in the 18th century that there is nothing more frightful than ignorance in action. Strangely enough the truth of that is present with us today.

Men like Aristotle, Shakspere, Jefferson, Lincoln, Dewey and Einstein emphasize the need for and the freedom and responsibility of knowledge.

Theta Will Not Meet

There will be no Theta meeting this Saturday.

Workshop To Hold Christmas Meeting

Monday at 4:30 the members of Writers' Workshop are to meet in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center for their annual Christmas party.

Sheila Sutton will read her original manuscript with Jim Hopkins acting as critic, and Liz Frei will present her original manuscript with Dave Williams serving as critic.

LOST: A pair of black-rimmed glasses in a brown case.
Please return to Baldwin office.

Play Tryouts To Be Held For 2nd Semester

Tryouts for the second semester plays will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, December 7 and 8, in Miss Craven's classroom from 3:30 to 5:30. Any student interested in trying out but unable to attend at the specified times are asked to contact Miss Craven to arrange for a special reading time.

The spring play, Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," and the commencement play, Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion", are available at the circulation desk in the library.

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

This column tips its hat to little Clarence Shepard who was recently elected to the honorable mention Little All-American team. This is the second yar in a row that Shep has received this honor. He played a major part in the Scotties' winning season highlighted by a personal 231 yards gain against Howard College.

* * * * *

King Football, which has been with us for the past months, is on its way out as the cries of the hardwood are heard again. As usual, this has been a season of upset after upset. The 1954 season began with one of the biggest surprises when South Carolina humbled the mighty "Kadets" of Army 34-0. Army went on to win six in a row only to be again upset, this time by Navy, in its last game of the year, 27-20. Perhaps the greatest upset came last week when our neighbors, the Vols of Tennessee, were beaten by Vanderbilt, 26-0. Vandy really pulled one out of the air as they outplayed and outscored the Vols for one of the surprises of many a year. In spite of the poor 4-6 record posted by Tennessee this year, they still rank second among major colleges in games won and lost during the past 25 years. Only the "Fighting Irish" from Notre Dame have a better record.

Our own Highlanders came through with a good 4 won, 3 lost, 2 tied record. It's hard to find two more exciting games than the Centre and Concord ones, both of which were pulled out of the fire by spirited play on the part of the Highlanders.

Congrats are in order for Ted Godfrey and Jack Renfro who were elected Captain and Alternate-Captain for the 1955 season. Ted will lead the team from the tackle spot aided by Jack at blocking back. The loss of five seniors may hurt the Scots next year. Bob Berrong, Bill Breen, Clarence Shepard, Jack Keny, and Bob Shelton all graduate this year. These men played a lot of ball during their years here and deserve thanks from everyone.

The Cross-Country team had their worst season as they completed the year with a won one, lost six record. Everybody the Harriers came up against seemed to be loaded, with only a weak Tusculum crew falling prey to the Scots. Don Vandenberg and A. C. McWilliams made every race a good one as they consistently finished one-two. Captain McWilliams graduates this year with Vandenberg back for three more seasons.

Basketball and wrestling are in the spotlight now as things are opening up in the Alumni Gym. The Hoopmen played their first game of the 1954-55 season here last night against King College with a road game coming up tonight. Basketball has had the poorest record of any of the major sports here at Maryville during the past two seasons. It's a far cry from the 1946-47 season when the Scots played Western Kentucky, then rated fifth in the nation. (Maryville lost 72-32). It's too bad "Meano" Shields isn't still around. "Meano" led the Highlanders to a winning season (1951-52) highlighted by a 48-point scoring spell against the University of Chattanooga. The trouble with the Scots this year seems to be a lack of height. Sharpshooting Dick Abbott and Bob Patterson could be used along with a number of Intramural Playrs. It seems to this writer than an All-Star Intramural team could come within ten points o fthe varsity if not beat them. And it goes without saying that anyone of three and maybe five intramural teams could maul a B team. Nevertheless here's hoping that the Honakermen have a winning season.

Things look bright as far as Coach J. D. Davis' wrestlers are concerned. Maryville can boast two Southeastern Conference champions in Captain Buford Miller and Tom Bugenhagen. Backed by Jerry Waters, Jim Cummings, Don Nabors, and Don Moore, the matmen will be leading contenders for the SEC team championships to be held here next February. The powerful Tigers of Auburn, defending champions for the past six years, will be the team to beat. The wrestlers open up against the Knoxville Y this Tuesday which should be no contest. The Y comes to Maryville Saturday night, December 11, to give many co-eds their first taste of collegiate wrestling.

Scot Cagers Have Busy Week Ahead; 21 On Squad

As of Wednesday there were 21 members on the varsity basketball team.

They include: Jack Keny, Lynn Sexton, Bob DeLozier, Jim McCall, Bill Wallace, Pat Flynn, Jack French, Bill Dent, Dan Wiley, John West, Jack Crouch.

Jim Gregory, Bob Berrong, Phil Clapp, Ted Engle, J. R. Young, Ken Hutson, Bob Shelton, Bill Blair, Jim Saunders, and Bob Goodlin.

Probable starting five will be: guards, Bob Shelton and Lynn Sexton; forwards, Bill Wallace, other uncertain (possibly Bill Dent); and center, Jack Keny.

Maryville's first game was held last night in the Alumni Gym with Maryville going against King College. The first road game is tonight at Lincoln Memorial University at Harroate.

Next week's schedule includes Milligan on Monday, Tennessee Wesleyan on Thursday, and Jacksonville n Saturday.

Scot Harriers Outrun Tusculum For First Win

Maryville's cross country team had its first win when the harriers beat Tusculum 15-39. The Highlanders almost had a perfect score as they took the first four places.

Don Vandenburg led the way, finishing the four-mile-plus course in 19:03. A. C. McWilliams, Freeman Wyche, and Porky Shackelford took the second, third, and fourth positions.

Tom Gleason broke up the Maryville monopoly when he came in fifth. Paul Payne finished the Highlander scoring in sixth place.

Four men lettered this year in cross country. (Ten points are needed to letter.) A. C. McWilliams had the most points, 59, followed by Don Vandenberg with 37. Don missed the return meet with Sewanee after having taken first place in the initial meet. Porky Shackleford and Freeman Wyche each had 26 points. The team finished with one win and five losses.

Howies Take WAA Tourney

By Joan Herschelman

The 1954 WAA season ended this week as the Howies took the volleyball tournament by winning the last two games after losing the first one by one point.

The Howies elected Lial Crane to lead them as captain and Dee Woods as manager, while the Chillies chose Roberta Myers for captain and Barbara Buttrill for manager.

In their first game the Howies were leading the Chillies by twenty points at half-time and the Chillies came into the second half determined to win, and they did, 30-29. The second game was practically the opposite of the first with the Chillies dominating the first half and the Howies coming through in the second to win in the last minutes.

Good team work was shown by the teams most of the time. However, sometimes in the excitement thy seemd to forget their positions and think only of getting the ball which sometimes ended in disaster, the ball went to the other team.

Bettye Harrill was the referee and stood on the chair with her mighty whistle to see that none of the rules were violated. Everyone will agree that she did a good job.

The 1955 WAA season will open with basketball which is the number one game for the girls. The "old pros" will be back to star and several freshmen show promise of outstanding play.

Wrestlers To Open Against Knox Y

Coach J. D. Davis' wrestling team opens its 1954-55 season against the Knoxville YMCA this Tuesday night. The Scots should run over the Y-men in this meet as well as in a return meet on December 11.

Captain Buford Miller, 130 pounder, and Tom Bugenhagen, 177 pounder, will lead the Scots. Men in the other weights include Jerry Waters, 123 pounder; Jim Cummings, 137 pounder; Don Nabors, 157 pounder; and Don Moore, heavyweight. The 147 and 167 pound weights are in doubt at the time of this writing.

Ted Godfrey Chosen '55 Captain Of Highlanders

Announcement was made at the Scotties' annual football banquet that Ted Godfrey will captain the 1955 Highlander football team.

Elected as alternate-captain was Jack Renfro, blocking back.

Twenty-four varsity letters were awarded. They were Jim MacCall, Bob Shelton, Ted Wilson, Captain Clarence Shepard, Alternate-Captain Bob Berrong, Buddy Gilbert, Jack Renfro, Bob DeLozier, Bill Breen, Bob Bevins, Bud White, Jim Saunders, Chuck Dunn, Bob Hutsell, John Anderson, Jack Keny, Ted Godfrey, Bill Wheatley, Don Moore, Bill Strickland, Roy Hayes, Bob Wheeler, Bob Clemons, and manager Roger Clowes.

Intramurals....

By Bob Evans

In the first game on Friday, November 19, the Alpha Sig NHAA eked out a victory over the Pre-Mins 23-21 in an overtime. Bob Finertie with eight points was high for the No-Hammers. Clem Birkelbach was the big gun for Pre-Mins, scoring ten tallies.

The ever-powerful Muleheads rambled over the Local Yokels 35-17. Dick Tipton racked up 11 points for the Muleheads with Neubert Harless adding ten for the Yokels.

In the third game of the day, Alpha Sig's Tackhammers bounced back from a previous defeat to down the Athenian Bees 35-11. Bob Leech with 11 points was top tallier for the Tackhammers. Luis Cardoso added seven for the Athenians.

Monday the Snowbirds encountered the Destroyers in the first game of the day with the high-flying Snowbirds winning out 41-15. Dale Hyatt and Chuck Dunn shared the honors for the Snowbirds with 12 points each. Ted scored nine points for the losers. The Snowbirds had only four players for the entire game.

Athenian's A team, not to be outdone by the Snowbirds, succeeded in downing the YMCA Tom Thumbs 29-19, using only four players. Harold O'Bannon was top scorer for Athenian with ten. Sam Buffatt tallied for six.

In the last game of the day, the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashed their hapless society brothers of the Hammer team 59-15. Charlie Partee was the high scorer of the day with 20 big points for the Hammers.

The Muleheads trounced the Athenian Bees 39-9 in the first game Wednesday. Dick and Terry Tipton each racked up 12 points for the Muleheads. Floyd Hickman added four to Athenian's score.

In the second game, the Alpha Sig Tackhammers forfeited to the Local Yokels 2-0.

YMCA's Saints won over the NHAA's 39-18. With 21 points big John Thompson was the undisputed top tallier of the day. Joe Quinn and Ron Morley each scored five points for the No Hammers.

The first game Friday saw the Snowbirds cut down the Sledgehammers 38-26. Clarence Shepard and Bob Bivens shared the honors with ten apiece. Bob Ramger was high man for the Sledgehammers with 12.

The Tom Thumbs had no chance to show their might, winning 2-0 by forfeit over the Destroyers.

The Hammers, who are not at all living up to the record of their football namesakes, lost to the Athenian A's 40-32. Chuck Wagner was top hoopster for the A's, scoring 14 points. Jim Heddon with nine was high man for Alpha Sig.

In the first game on Saturday, the Local Yokels squeezed by the Pre-Mins 32-30. The Yokels' Coulter tallied for 16 points. Ed Drum racked up 14 for the Saints.

The record game of the day was even closer than the first with the Athenian's Bees barely eking out a victory over Pre-Mins 23-32. Walt Hiller with 13 tallies was number one scorer for the Athenians. With eight, Doug Bryan was high scorer for Pre-Mins.

The Tackhammers beat their brothers on the NHAA, 32-18 in the last game of the week. Bob Leech was the big man for the Tackhammers with 11 buckets, and Bob Finertie with eight tallies was top scorer for the No-Hammers.

On Monday of this week, the Local Yokels crushed the Bees 44-15. Don Moore was high with 18 points, and Floyd Hickman added seven for Athenian.

In the second game, the Muleheads won over the Tackhammers 26-21. The Mulehead's Dick Tipton dropped in 14 with Sig's Bob Leech getting 12.

The Saints lost to the Pre-Mins 36-31. With 13 points Clem Birklebach was the high scorer of the game. Y's John Thompson scored ten tallies.

Wednesday the Destroyers forfeited Wednesday's first game 2-0. to the Athenian's A's.

The Snowbirds trounced the Alpha Sig Hammers 39-16. Ken Yunkers with 12 tallies was high man for the Snowbirds. The Hammers' Jim Heddon had seven for the losers.

In the last game on Wednesday the Tom Thumbs eked out a big victory in a two-minute overtime against the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers. Jim Gardner racked up 14 points for the winners with Bob Ramger adding 15 to the Sledgehammers' score.

Echo Forum

Dear Fellow-Students,

School spirit has been the subject of many articles in this paper; most of those write-ups enlisted stronger student support for our athletic teams. However, stronger student support is needed sorely for other activities as well as athletics. The particular need to which I direct your attention is The Highland Echo.

The only time the Echo attracts attention seems to be when someone has a complaint about it. None of us gives a second thought to the hardworking skeleton staff that puts out our paper every two weeks. We just inspect the paper Saturday morning and forget about it.

The editor and his staff deserve a great deal of credit for the job they are doing. In a very real sense, the entire responsibility for the Echo is being shouldered by this staff instead of by a large proportion of the student body. Although the present staff represents only 55 percent of the staff prescribed in the Echo constitution, they have willingly accepted the additional work necessary to publish the paper. They have done a good job. However, there is no reason why these few students should carry the journalistic ball for the whole campus.

I prefer to blame the student atitude toward this problem on ignorance of the facts rather than indifference to the situation. What will happen if the present trend of student interest continues? Either the paper will have to receive more student support or else it will go out of circulation in the next two years due to lack of staff editors and reporters. The business management is in a similar situation. The Echo constitution provides for twenty-seven staff members: twelve freshman, seven sophomores, five juniors, and three seniors. At the present time there are openings for six freshman, three sophomores, and three juniors on the staff. Everyone in the student body has the opportunity to contribute through letters to the editor, feature suggestions, and reports of happenings on campus. Everyone has the opportunity, but no one wants to accept the responsibility.

Some faculty members have accurately observed that students prefer to seek out extracurricular activity which offers special recognition. It is true that the Echo doesn't provide much honor and glory, but it does provide good experience in journalism and creative writing. For those who have writing ability, the Echo, offers a unique opportunity to contribute to campus life and gain valuable experience at the same time.

We fail to realize that teamwork is required to produce a newspaper. It is impossible to produce the best results when a large percentage of the team is missing and no one cheers from the stands. It is certainly not the job of the editor-in-chief to double as staff typist; yet if he does not do just that, you will never get an Echo. Where are all the freshman and sophomores who had journalism experience in high school? Why aren't you helping to share this load? Without a full quota of freshman and sophomore staff members the paper is crippled because staff promotions are made each year on the basis of writing, interest, and dependability during the previous year's service.

From time to time there have been a number of criticisms of the Echo; some of these have been justified, others have not. Seldom have these criticisms been followed up by constructive action. It takes more than talk to keep a good newspaper in circulation. What we need are more underclass staff members and a student body that will do more than just talk about the Echo.

It is fitting for us to remember that the Echo's circulation represents Maryville College to friends and alumni as well as our immediate campus community. Our obligation is to produce the best newspaper of which we are capable. Let's put the ring into the Echo again!

Sincerely,
Jim Kesler

Lorenz Has Poem Accepted For College Anthology

"Obsession," by H. Roberts Lorenz has been accepted for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

Lorenz, a senior English major, wrote the poem last year to fulfill a Writers' Workshop requirement. He entered his work in the poetry competition this semester.

According to the National Poetry Association, the anthology is "a compilation of the finest poetry written by the College men and women of America, representing every section of the country. Selections were made from thousands of poems submitted. We heartily congratulate the student on this honor."

The All-Girl Choir is to sing a Bohemian carol "The Angels and the Shepherds" arranged by Clarence Dickinson and "Christ Child's Lullaby" by Willy Richter. The Men's Glee Club and the All-Girl Choir will combine to sing "The Holy Boy" by John Ireland.

The Vesper Choir will sing four selections, the first group of two will be carol-settings "Sing We Noel Once More" a Bas-Quercy carol-setting by David Stanley Smith and "A Red Bird in a Green Tree," more popularly known as "The Twelve Days of Christmas," a setting by the American composer Roy Harris.

The second group will be "The Shepherds Had an Angel" by Maurice Besly with Sheila Sutton singing the soprano solo and Miss Katherine Crews playing the incidental viola accompaniment, and music "Nunc Dimittis" by Gretchaninoff.

A candlelight procession and recession will enhance the Christmas spirit of the service which will be presided over by Dr. Edwin R. Hunter, dean of curriculum of the college.

provement and enforcement, but asked the Town Night committee to discuss the matter.

In other business at the brief meeting, Council heard President Carol Moore report that the constitutional revision committee had discussed representation and had planned tentatively for a 24-member Student Council in the future.

All representatives except preisdent and vice-president will be elected from classes, and there are plans for from nine to 11 committees to be headed by council members, but whose membership may consist of other students.

Henny Laing, WSGA president, said Sunday dating for juniors was working "well and quite satisfactorily." The new policy began two weeks ago.

Council's meeting was held Tuesday night because of a Special Studies party which was scheduled for the regular Wednesday night time.

Composed In 23 Days

The "Messiah" was composed in 23 days by the German composer Georg Frederick Handel in 1741. The text is taken from the Bible, largely from Isaiah and the New Testament. The work is divided into three sections. Part I concerns the prophecy and the narrative of the nativity; Part II tells the story of the passion and the resurrection reaching its climax in the mighty "Hallelujah Chorus;" Part III deals with man's hope of his own resurrection.

The "Messiah" was first given at Maryville College in 1933, under the direction of Miss Frances Henry.

The public is invited to attend this presentation of the 22nd annual production of Handel's "Messiah."

Sunday's Yule Service To Be First In Chapel

Five Groups To Participate

By Don Adams

Highlighting the dignity and Christmas spirit of the Christmas Vesper service tomorrow evening in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, will be the procession down the aisle of the softly-lit chapel.

Theme of this service is joy, hope and strength expressed in music.

Three choral groups and two instrumental ensembles have combined to make the program possible.

Led by Miss Katherine Crews, concert mistress of the College Orchestra, the College String Ensemble will open the Prelude with Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 8 (Christmas Concerto), by Corelli. The Brass Choir under the leadership of Ralph Moore, director of the College Orchestra and Band, will play two Christmas chorales by Bach: "How Brightly Shines the Morning Star" and "Break Forth O Beauteous Heavenly Light." The participating choral groups are the Men's Glee Club and the All-Girl Choir directed by Dan Kinsinger, voice instructor; and the College Vesper Choir under the leadership of Harry Harter.

After the Invocation and the Responsive Reading the Men's Glee Club will sing two carol arrangements: "Noel Noel',' a French Carol arranged by Dean W. Hanscomb and a German Chorale, "Christmas Hymn," arranged by Hugo Junst.

The All Girl Choir will sing a Bohemian carol, "The Angels and the Shepherds," arranged by Clarence Dickenson, followed by "Christ Child's Lullaby," by Willy Richter. The Men's Glee Club and the All-Girl Choir will join to sing "The Holy Boy," by John Ireland.

The Vesper Choir will present four selections: the first group of two will be carol-settings "Sing We Noel Once More," a Bas-Quercy carol-setting by David Stanley Smith and "A Red Bird in a Green Tree," more popularly known as "The Twelve Days of Christmas," a setting by the American composer Roy Harris.

Following the meditation by Dr. Edwin R. Hunter, Dean of Curriculum at Maryville College, the Vesper Choir will sing "The Shepherds Had an Angel," by Maurice Besley.

Miss Sheila Sutton sings the soprano solo and Miss Katherine Crews plays the incidental viola accompaniment. The last of the group is "Nunc Dimittis," by Gretchcaninoff. The final presentation of combined singers and instrumentalists is "Christmas Song," (Personent Hodie) arranged by Gustav Holst. As a postlude to this service the singers will carol from both levels of the lobby around the court.

S-F Senate Votes 'No' On Sunday Y-Store

Council Reviews Term's Work

Student-Faculty Senate voted at its meeting last week not to approve the Y-Store's opening on Sunday evenings for a short period of time. Announcement of the vote was made at this week's Student Council meeting.

The result of the negative vote means that the status quo schedule remains in effect, but Council may bring up the matter again this school year.

Discussion on the possibility of having the store open had been going on since September, when Council first made the proposal and sent it to Senate. Since that time, Senate members have reported, discussions have taken place at several meetings and recently a vote on the matters had been postponed because of indecision.

The Senate had difficulty obtaining a quorum at the Friday meeting, Council president Carol Moore told the Council. President Lloyd, who has been gone several days on church business, was not present.

Also at this week's council meeting Miss Moore announced tha A. D. Ainsworth, political science instructor, was going to draw up a rough draft of a revised council constitution during the Christmas holidays.

Following the vacation the new constitution will be shown to council, and then will begin the process of going through senate, executive council, and back for ratification by the council and student body after final approval has been granted.

The new document has the organization of the main body, amendments, and then council legislation so that it will not be necessary to amend the constitu-

Pre-Mins Close Semester

The Pre-Mins had their last meeting of the semester Thursday night. Their entertainment was a Christmas program.

Graulich To Lead Y-Radio Show

John Graulich is directing this week's Y Radio production, Stephen Vincent Benet's "A Child is Born." Jim Gardner stars as the innkeeper in this Christmas story, with Ann Wiley as his wife.

Others in the cast include Bill Deerfield, narrator; Sam Buffet, soldier and Joseph; Don Adams, Prefect; Dick Preston, Dismas; Rachel McCastlain, Sarah; Sandra Dorsett, Leah; and Mervyn Dixon and Bob Belz.

The program will be broadcast over station WGAP at 9:30 Sunday evening.

Miss Jackson Doing Work On Linguistic Atlas

Elizabeth Hope Jackson, Associate Professor of English, who is on a leave of absence this year for graduate study at the University of Colorado, is working on the Linguistic Atlas of the United States.

In former years Miss Jackson was a staff member of the Webster's New International Dictionary.

After a year of graduate work, Miss Jackson will return to the English department of Maryville College.

Faculty Rehearsal Antics Are More Sedate But Entertaining

Ever wonder how student rehearsals differ from faculty ones? Ever wonder just how much difference a few years of added maturity make in cast associations. This reporter slunk around the theatre during both student and faculty rehearsals—unobserved he hopes.

One of the most striking things about the faculty rehearsal was the complete lack of buzzing around to see how each the others makeup looked. No laughter, odd costumes, stupid poses, no ghastly grimaces. There was almost complete absence of fervent corner conferences. No open, but neglected, text books. Instead some of the faculty could be seen sitting around reading, grading papers, mumbling into their coffee. Coffee? Was anybody in "Street Scene" served coffee? Well, just remember—some of the faculty had to be around till ten o'clock. You know what lack of sleep can do to a person.

There was a conspicuous absence of hammering, blasting, swearing, falling boards and shrill shrieks. All the painting was finished days ahead of time (complete with complex curly cues,) and the cheap red plastic foot stools were right there with the expensive pink velvet antiques, and so was a scrawny Christmas tree. All very faculty-ish, all very organized, in

Janet Cragan, Third Faculty Baby, Born December 7

The third new arrival of the year to MC faculty-member parents occurred Tusday night when Janet Cragan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cragan, was born at 10:23 at Blount Memorial Hospital. Mr. Cragan teaches history.

Edward and Andrew Beard, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beard, were born November 5.

Mr. Cragan said his wife got to the hospital at 10:05 and the baby was born 18 minutes later. He was at faculty play practice drinking coffee just before going home when he was called, he said.

Mrs. Cragan is a Maryville pediatrician and is known professionally as Dr. Mary D. Cragan. The Cragans also have a son, Paul, who is six years old.

"There is nothing to the rumor that we're going to name her Pearl," the father said. His daughter was born on Pearl Harbor Day.

Sig Sweetheart Election A Secret Until February

Alpha Sig will have its last meeting of the semester Saturday. The program consists of the installation of new officers followed by some business.

Elections for Alpha Sig Sweetheart have been held, but the results will not be made public until the show in February.

Bainonian To Hold Christmas Party Tonight

Tonight Bainonian has planned a Christmas party for its members.

The program will consist of Christmas readings by Peg Fisher, Ester Lerch, and Marciaa Williams, one of which will read the fairly new, but very popular "Littlest Angel."

These Three Church Leaders Will Head 79th February Meetings

DR. JOHN MAGILL

DR. WILLIAM ELLIOTT

DR. HENRY BARRACLOUGH

Dr. William M. Elliott, Dr. John Magill, and Dr. Henry Barraclough will be the leaders of next semester's February Meetings, to be held February 2-10. One of the highlights of the year, this annual week of religious emphasis marks the 79th in the series started in 1877.

A leader of the February Meetings two times before, Dr. Elliott is pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas, Texas. He has also held pastorates in Knoxville and Atlanta. He is a member of the Board of World Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.

Dr. Magill, who is pastor of Abington Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia (Pa.) Presbytery, will lead the singing again this year. He is a graduate of Maryville College and McCormick Theological Seminary.

Dr. Barraclough will be the accompanist for the meetings, as he was last year. Born in England and coming to America with the evangelistic team Chapman and Alexander, Barraclough now holds the position of Assistant Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Fine Arts Division To Offer $1300 In Scholarships

The Division of Fine Arts this week announced that a total of $1300 in scholarship awards is available for the 1955 competition. The awards include $300 each in piano, voice, and violin; $200 in brass instruments, and $200 in art.

Competitions are scheduled for March 26, 1955. The Fine Arts Division has requested that present college students tell high school students who might be interested of the competitions.

A brochure is available, giving the requirements for the auditions in the music field and work to be submitted for the art contest. It will be mailed to persons writing to the Fine Arts Division at the college.

Qualified judges in each of the fields will render decisions as to the winners following the auditions. Their decision will be final. Each award in March will be in the form of a certificate for the amount indicated, to be applied

Debaters Win 2 Firsts At Appalachian Meet

Team Debating China Question

By Abigail Crosby

Maryville College's Debate team came home from the 14th Annual Appalachian Mountain Forensic Tournament with two first places and two seconds. The tournament was held in Boone, N. C., from December 2 to 4, with about ten schools from eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina represented, and about 65 students participating Upholding the affirmative side of "Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic relations to the communist government of China' were Margalen Hanna, JoAnn Brooks, Graeme Sieber, and Tom Paton; while Jean Boyd, Sarah Pledger, Bob Clark, and Benarr Rhoades debated the negative side of the argument.

Miss Brooks and Miss Hanna won first place in women's affirmative debating and Miss Pledger placed first in women's extemporaneous speaking and second in women's problem solving. Miss Brooks also placed second in radio newscasting; and Paton reached the finals in men's after-dinner speaking.

Clark, Miss Brooks, and Miss Pledger are returning debaters. The other are all new on the squad. Plans are now being made to attend the state tournament in Nashville during February, and several other tournaments later in the spring.

Mrs. A. F. Pieper and Newell Witherspoon, debate coaches, chaperoned the trip.

There has been considerably controversy over the inter-collegiate debate topic of the year, and many state schools have banned the topic. The two national military academies, West Point and Annapolis, have refused to debate the question on the grounds that the United States already has a policy of non-recognition, and that, should these schools, as service academies of the government, debate the question, our allies would be thrown into confusion.

A less official reason, but one voiced quite often, is that anyone debating the affirmative side of the question is quite apt to be under suspicion 20 years from now by the counterpart of the McCarthy Investigation Committee.

Maryville Debating Affirmative

The view that Maryville, along with most other schools, is taking is that such recognition is a policy matter and is a debatable question. We recognize Russia, but we do not approve of its government; we recognize Spain, but we do not approve of Franco; and we recognize Argentina, but we do not approve of the policies of the country."

The December 6 New York Times Magazine carries a highly readable and interesting discussion of the college debate question.

Music Ed Has Party

An entertaining Christmas program was enjoyed by the Music Education Club at their last meeting on December 9.

Featured on this program was Penny Neff who played several Christmas selections on the xylophone. Also a very interesting discussion of the origins of foreign Christmas Carols was presented by several members. Group singing of some of these foreign carols and other more familiar ones concluded the program. Delicious refreshments were then served.

Service To Be On Wednesday

By Don Adams

The Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel will be the scene of a special Recognition Service Wednesday, December 15 at 8 a.m. for seniors who expect to graduate the 17th of December, 1954. They will be eligible for Commencement in May and will be included among the graduating class of 1955.

Prospective graduating seniors and their future plans are: Luis Cardoso, from Placetas, Cuba, a transfer from Warren Wilson College, plans to become a U. S. citizen and begin work in New Jersey.

Bob Clark, from Jersey City, N. J., is looking forward to law school in Chicago next June. Fenton Ferguson, from Maryville, Tenn., is planning to enter Seminary. Margaret (Pegy) Fisher, from Maryville is planning to be married and teach school or work in an office.

Neubert Harless, Friendsville, is planning to enter the Army. Jim Kesler, North Hills, Pa., will enter Princeton Seminary in January. Mary Ann Moody, Jeffersontown, Ky., is planning to begin teaching in Kentucky.

Brothers Kyle and Ralph Petree, from Friendsville, are planning to enter military service. Katherine Powell, Falls Church, Va., a transfer from Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, expects to begin teaching school.

Harry Robinson, Philadelphia, Pa., a transfer from State Teachers College, West Chester, Pa., will begin studies at Princeton Theological Seminary in January. Robert Max Sockwell, McLeansville, N. C., expects to enter the Army. Reed White, Maryville, Tenn., is planning to enter a business field.

Dr. Lloyd To Help With Communion To Open Congress

On January 4 Dr. Lloyd will commence another busy year when he, along with Dr. Wade H. Boggs, moderator of the U. S. Presbyterian Church, and a representative of the United Presbyterian Church, will conduct a communion service at the opening of the United States Congress.

Dr. Lloyd left yesterday for Cincinnati, Ohio, where he spoke at the Moderators' dinner held by the Presbyterian Men of Greater Cincinnati. His speech was entitled "The Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. Tomororw."

Today he will speak on "Christian Education—Command Performance" at the Westminister Presbyterian Church's Officers Dinner in Akron, Ohio. On Sunday he will preach at the church on "The True Greatness of the Presbyterian Church."

Monday, Dr. Lloyd will speak at the college chapel service at Wooster and the Wooster Rotary Club. He will also attend a Moderatorial Dinner sponsored by the Presbytery of Cleveland.

Dr. Lloyd will return home on Tuesday, December 14. On the 19th he will go to Falls Church, Va., where he will dedicate the new sanctuary of the Presbyterian Church there.

Laster, Miss Lee Are New Members Of Workshop

Last Monday Writers' Workshop held its last meeting of the year, a Christmas party, in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Toppy Lee, junior English major, attended and was welcomed as a new member; Jimmy Laster, junior Biology major, has also accepted an invitation to join the organization. Both will be inducted next semester.

Four ballots were taken by members of Workshop to determine whose manuscripts will appear in "Chips" next semester. The works of the following were elected to appear in publication: Dr. E. R. Hunter, Peg Fisher, Jim Hopkins, Faith Nollner, John Graulich, Ethelyn Cathey.

Last Meeting Of Semester

The French Club held its last meeting of the semester last week. The program has not yet been planned for the first meeting of the next semester.

Athenian To Hold Business Meet

The Athenian meeting will be held as usual this week and is scheduled to be primarily a business meeting. No program has been planned.

IRC Hears Debate

At the last meeting of IRC a debate was held. The subject was —Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic relations to the communist government of China. Those on the affirmative side were Jo Brooks and Margallen Hanna; Bob Clark and Bernard Rhodes upheld the negative side.

Ray Van Stone is the newly lected treasurer of IRC, and Charles Williams is the new vice-president. Clara Gowans has been appointed as program chairman.

New Members Welcome

German Club will not hold any further meetings this semester.

President Ron Morley said that the club would be welcoming any new members at their first meeting in the new semester.

Observing Christmas

Among our best-remembered traditions on this campus is the way in which we celebrate the Christmas season. The near six-weeks rehearsal for the "Messiah," the choirs' preparation of Christmas music throughout the first semester, the singing of carols in chapel, the Christmas reading, and our annual impressive Christmas vesper service all are outward signs of Maryville College's Christian emphasis as it expresses this season as it should be expressed—being centralized in the Birth of Our Lord.

Many people have written innumerable words about a current secular tendency in the way people observe Christmas. We appreciate very much Maryville College's Christ-centered observance. Christmas in this sense is more meaningful to us; perhaps that is why we remember all the things we do here at Christmas time and look forward to them each year we are in school. Let us remember this when some say that spiritual values and religious observances at Christmastime mean little or nothing.

Since this is the Echo's final issue for this semester and 1954, we extend to our readers our sincere wishes for a merry Christmas and much peace and happiness throughout the New Year.

J. T. G.

In Retrospect

It seems impossible that another semester is almost over, doesn't it? But here we are with the before-exam jitters and lots of Christmas spirit, ready (perhaps) to meet whatever may be. Remember way last fall when we first arrived and met all those strangers, who soon molded themselves into our way of life and are now our roommates, best friends, or classmates. We thought we'd never be able even to remember their names, much less become, with them, a part of a whole.

And so the semester has passed, with its fair share of work and play. The societies were ousted from their regular production place in the big gym, but both rush weeks came through with flying colors, first in the chapel court, and then in the little gym. Then along came King Football, and we have heard that tower bell ring more than once! (And who will ever forget the first away game the Highlanders had won for ages—some cheering!) The bell even rang after the powder puff game!

Then along came the two Artist Series, the production of "Street Scene," and finally the faculty play. Barnwarming was its usual terrific self—and all of a sudden special studies and notebooks and papers slipped up on us and caught us off guard. But in the midst of everything, we still found time to hear the annual presentation of "Messiah," back in the chapel after eight years. To omit the new dating privileges for junior women would be out of the question; and verbal orchids are certainly in order for the Theta-Sig dance chairmen.

And here we are ready for Christmas Vespers and the beginning of exams—and the beginning of a new year.

To many of us, it was just another semester. An exciting one, to be sure—many of us have been chalking up our "lasts" in the fields of football, rush weeks, Christmases, and, we hope, finals. Others have been imprinting clearly in their memories their "firsts"—meals in the dining hall, Homecoming, fall dance, Christmas preparations away from home, and the experiences which are gained from working as an important individual in a Christian community.

It is with fondness and sadness, but most of all with hope, that we say goodbye to this semester. We have had a good time and done a lot of work since September; and we regret, though we often won't admit it, to see an end to even a small portion of it. But we know that the results of this semester are laying the foundations for a future of successful living, both here at Maryville, and in the world that revolves around it.

We're sorry you're going away, seniors, and we really will miss you. This sentence was for the benefit of the thirteen seniors who are daring to leave these hallowed halls. Best wishes, kids.

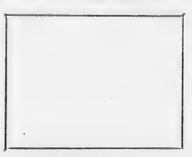
The floor chairman on Pearson's third is really on the ball with all sorts of signs hung here and there, probably for the benefit of the noisy fourth floor-ers. On the bathroom mirror, one finds this little gem, "We know it looks bad, but please don't scream about it!" And as one ascends from second to third, these words greet one's eyes: "HALL OF WISDOM. Silence Please. The Sages are Contemplating." And an enterprising girl has written underneath, "Sages, leave your contemplations. Brighter visions beam afar." (Someone who's leaving at Christmas, I presume.)



And, as if all the warning signs weren't bad enough, here and there are scattered varied and sundry jokes, all sorts of Droodles, and papers with "Orr-isms" written on them, all of which are guaranteed to make you laugh and incur the wrath of the floor chairman. There ain't no justice.

Has everyone heard about Libby's goose by now? For a long time he was the pet of everyone in Pearsons, but lately he's begun eating all our mail, and if we don't get back to the dorm just as soon as second period's over, that goose has gotten out of its cage and eaten all the mail, except circulars and bills. He goes to class with Libby, or with Carol, and even with Dixie once in a while since it's such a cultured goose and likes to spend time at the FAC.

In spite of the added expense, but due to popular demand, the Echo is running a picture of the campus mascot.

LIBBY'S GOOSE, "SHOTPUT"

x x x x x x x

According to all reports, there was a rather surprised English teacher in Anderson as both Liz and Junior stuck their hands into the air at the same time, a roll of drum sounded, and, after the proper fanfare, Junior introduced "Joan of Arch" McNaughton to the sophomore F-hour lit class. The proper refreshments were served, and a good time was had by all. But I bet Miss Blair knew something was up when everyone was still awake at five after three!

And so the Faculty Play comes to an end. Orchids to our teachers! It surely did bring back memories of such affairs as the presentation of "Arsenic and Old Lace," with it's world-famous "Chonnie—I shlipped!" The cast and crews did a grand job, and we're proud of 'em.

In spite of the fun poked at such "portry," a typical Chapel announcement reared its ugly head Thursday morning, as McClelland (with a pained expression, of course) intoned

"Want to have some Christmas cheer?
Then come along and bring your dear.
Don't forget mammy, and don't forget pappy,
'Cause we want everybody to be real happy."

Or words to that effect. I can't remember—it was too early in the morning.

The entire campus and probably the whole town of Maryville will still remember that late winter evening, so cool and crisp and peaceful, when the night air was broken by the amplifier in Anderson tower calling out loudly and clearly, "Go, go, go, everybody!"

The waitresses have been doing their dishes with Joy this semester, and, as the supply was getting low, the announcement was made that "If you'll bring your empty bottles out to the kitchen now, you can get your new bottles of—oh, you know what I mean—Love!" Six people were crushed in the stampede to the kitchen.

x x x x x x x

The senior members of one of the tables in the dining hall were honored with a "Thank-heaven-you're-through-with-special studies" party Wednesday night, in combination with a birthday party (never have three parties, when one will do!) Attached to a "gift" fo rthe worn-out seniors was this little verse,

"Congrats,
Dear brats!
We're gladder than you
That you're finally through."

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bill Deerfield

Were any of you foolish enough to go to the show here in town this week while "White Christmas" was playing in Knoxville? Or were you just too poor to afford it? At any rate the Park started the week off with rather enjoyable pictures, the first being, "Make Haste To Live" with Dorthey McGuire and Stephen McNally which showed on Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday and Thursday the showing was "Elephant Walk," in technicolor, with Liz Taylor (who looks good in any color) and Dana Andrews.

Today, however, being double feature day, two relics that shouldn't even be shown on television are being offered. They are, "Raw Deal" and "Pinto Bandit." (Sorry but no previews of next week's shows. Y'aint got no business there!)

In the line of books, an excellent autobiography that will appeal to the gals is, When God Says "No:" Faith's Starting Point, by Margaret Blair Johnston, wife, mother, and Congregational minister.

Then, as if we haven't had enough of Christopher Fry around here, there is his new play, The Dark Is Light Enough. It concerns a Hungarian countess who is caught up in the turmoil of the Austro-Hungarian Revolution of 1847-48 and contains both serious and comical aspects of the situation.

In the non-fiction field there are two timely and absorbing books which are musts for every college student (who has time to kill.) The first of these, Trygve Lie's In the Cause of Peace is a review of the many problems that faced the U.N. in the first seven years of its existence. The second book, The Umbrella Garden, presents a graphic picture of the grim reasons behind the disillusionment of a Chinese student after the "liberation" of her country by the Communists, written by Maria Yen the girl who experienced it.

One item that should interest well fed American girls, regardless of shape or size, is Eat, Think and Be Slender. It's not a pill, an exercise, or a starvation diet—it's a book by Leonard Kotkin, M.D., and is scientific method supposedly eliminates the aforementioned tortures.

If the works "reviewed" above fail to strike your fancy, perhaps the "arresting" titles of the following blood and thunder books may interest you. They are: Financing the College Education of Faculty Children, German Pronunciation and Phonology, The Sodium Cook Book, Allegory In the French Heroic Poem of the Seventeenth Century, and Farm Policies of the U.S. 1790-1950. If you weren't good all year you may find one of these games in your stocking on Christmas morning. Oh joy!)

WSGA Elects New Officers

Elections were held recently by the Women's Student Government Association to determine next semester's house officers.

Margaret McClure was elected house chairman in Memorial to succeed Louise Ogden. Other Memorial officers are San Roberts, vice house chairman; Ann Henderson, secretary-treasurer; Corita Erwin, fire captain; and Janet Collins and Anita Cole, town night checkers.

The new officers in Baldwin are Charlotte Slappey, vice house chairman; Katrina Wells, secretary; Jeanne Pavlovsky, treasurer; Ann Wiley, assistant fire captain; and Jane Kirkpatrick and Amelia Maples, town night checkers.

Next semester's house officers in Pearsons are Alice Buchanan, vice house chairman; Nita Baylor, secretary-treasurer; Pat Hoover, fire captain; Joan Herschelman, assistant fire captain; and Betty Messer and Carolyn Fuller, town night checkers.

Van Pelt Elected Prexy Of Business Club

At its last meeting of this semester the Business Club elected its officers for the coming semester. Gordon Van Pelt was elected President; Dock Jennings, vice-president; secretary, Harold Jones, and treasurer, Marion Gamble.

The Business Club is open to all those who are majoring in Economics and Business Administration.

Last Wednesday the Business Club enjoyed an extensive tour through the North Plant at Alcoa.

Spanish Club To Elect

Saturday night, December 11, Spanish club will elect officers for the new semester. The meeting will take place in Anderson at 6:45.

Sports Spotlights

By Sonny Shackelford

Yes, the rousing music of the bands and the accompanying high-stepping majorettes have escorted King Football off the grid-iron and out of the limelight. Yet, for certain teams, three weeks of practice remain with a short Christmas vacation, as they prepare for the final exuberance of the bowl games. Certainly many surprises have been witnessed this season, and there may be more on January 1. Others will soon be making their Bowl Game predictions, so I will post mine now:

Rose Bowl-Ohio State over USC
Sugar Bowl-Georgia Tech over Arkansas
Cotton Bowl-Duke over Nebraska
Orange Bowl- Navy over Mississippi
Gator Bowl-Auburn over Baylor

Before the holidays interrupt the basketball season, the Highlanders are trying to shape themselves into a winning combination. In evaluating a basketball squad, there are many factors involved—the coaching, the player, as to attitude and ability, the spectators' support and enthusiasm, etc. Behind this make-up a team attempts to outplay their opponents with good ball handling, hustling, rebounding, and shooting. Yet the physical make-up is no more important than the mental attitude and the morale, which have their reward also.

In regard to a few comments in last week's Sport Column, I believe Jim Demer received some undue criticism as to his remarks. It is a sport's writer's privilege to criticize as well as commend. If his comments can be called criticism, I'm sure that Jim didn't intend to deflate team morale or dstroy school spirit—he regrets that reaction. He was only bringing to light—in two short statements—some of the underlying factors that involve the make-up of a team, factors that were mentioned earlier in this column. There are some enthusiastic boys out for the squad and certain combinations have shown they click, so I see no reason why the team can't have a winning season.

The students would like to have announcements in chapel concerning the games and results.

I understand that the school has outlawed boys from playing independent league basketball, and that the Athletic Committee has refused to allow a basketball letterman of several seasons ago to participate in intramural basketball. I believe that college authority is going a little too far in these situations. Some thorough explanation or definite legislative step should be disclosed to defend their position and quell some hard feelings.

WINTER BASEBALL BUSINESS

Those of you who root vigorously for your favorite major league team should keep your eyes open during the winter. Some teams are making transactions that might make a differnce in the 1955 pennant races. Courtney, Dropo, Kiner, aand other big names have already been involved in trades. There are rumors of a big Dodger-Redleg deal, but they may be quieted now that the Reds traded Frank Smith, a reliefer, to the Cards for Jablonski and Staley. The Dodgers had wanted Smith, and they had been willing to give up Junior Gilliam, the flashy, switch-hitting second baseman. Woe unto the Bums if they trade Gilliam and dispose of Billy Cox, probably their best glove man. The Chicago White Sox claim to be well pleased after acquiring pitchers and hitters.

As far as the future pennant races are concerned, some say the Yankees bought the pennant when they obtained Turley, Larsen and Hunter from the Orioles. In the other league, Leo Durocher has hinted that the Dodgers and Braves will have to improve to beat his Giants.

THE DAVIS CUP SERIES IN AUSTRALIA

For you TV fans who like to observe body movements, set your eyes to the Davis Cup play over the holidays. The United States, with Trabert, Sexias, and Richardson carrying the load, will attempt to regain the revered cup. Those guys can really get in position quickly, and their placement shots are amazing. Cross your fingers and pull for the Yanks to return with the cup. If the weather will be accommodating this year, I think they can do it—but the Aussies will offer some stiff competition.

This week's sermon:

Enjoy your vacation, may your Christmas be white;
Bring in the New Year with a delightful night.

Jax Beats Scots 77-65; Cagers To Meet Airmen

Jacksonville State Teachers College from Alabama handed the Highlanders their second basketball loss Thursday night by a tally of 77-65.

Maryville only made approximately one-third of their foul shots, while Jacksonville dropped in about two-thirds of theirs.

For the Scotties, Bob Shelton was high man with 19 points, Jack Keny following him with 18.

Due to a misunderstanding in schedule, Jacksonville, was originally listed as the Saturday night game, but this was cleared up the beginning of this week.

Tonight the Scotties meet the team from McGhee-Tyson Air Base. Following the basketball game, the wrestlers will take on the Knoxville Y for the second time. Maryville and the Y tied in their last meet. Game time tonight is 8 o'clock in the Alumni Gym.

Intramurals....

By Bob Evans

On Friday, December 3, there were games in both leagues with the A League playing in the Alumni Gym and the B league fighting it out in the Intramural Gym.

The first game scheduled to be played in the big gym was won by forfeit by the Athenian A's over the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers.

The YMCA Tom Thumbs cut down the high flying Snowbirds 35-26 to drop them from the ranks of the unbeaten. Phil Young dropped in 16 tallies for the Tom Thumbs with Bob Bivens adding nine for the ill-fated Snowbirds.

The hapless Hammers finally broke their losing streak by way of a forfeit over the Destroyers.

In the first game played in the Intramural Gym the YMCA Saints racked up the highest score of the season to down the luckless Athenian Bees 67-11. John Thompson scored 22 points and Bruce Ingles 19 for the Saints.

The Local Yokels rolled over the Pre-Mins 39-24. The Yokels' Don Moore was high with 18 points. Clem Birkelbach and Doug Bryan each got eight for the Pre-Mins.

In the last game of the day the Muleheads mauled the Alpha Sig No-Hammers 59-21. The two Tipton boys were in there battling for the Muleheads with Dick getting 26 and Terry 23. John Miller added eight for the No Hammers.

The Tom Thumbs were too much for the Hammers, winning over them 41-26 in the first game Monday. Freeman Wyche with 11 was high hoopster for the Tom Thumbs. The Hammers' Mert Dixon came through with nine tallies.

The Destroyers forfeited to the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers.

The Snowbirds returned to their winning ways, downing a four-player Athenian A team 70-56. Chuck Dunn is amassing 29 points was the high scorer of the week. Mike Connolly tallied to the tune of 19 points.

In the first game of the day on Wednesday the ever-powerful Muleheads scored an overwhelming victory over the Pre-Mins 62-22. Jim Gregory outscored the Tiptons for the day, getting 16 tallies. Doug Priam was the big gun for the Pre-Mins with ten.

The second and third games of the day were forfeits with the No Hammers winning over the Local Yokels, and the Saints doing likewise to the Alpha Sig Tackhammers.

W&M Coach Is M.C. Graduate

Boydson Baird, William and Mary basketball coach, is a graduate of Maryville College, class of 1943.

Boyd played basketball, football, and ran on the track team. (Maryville once had a track team). He has been at W and M for three years, and prior to that he was head coach at Davidson.

The Indians bowed to the University of Tennessee last Monday night 91-79. They stayed at Bartlett Hall during their stay in East Tennessee.

M.C. Matmen Tie Knoxville YMCA

The Knoxville YMCA and Maryville College wrestled to a 16-16 tie Tuesday night at the Y. It was a surprise to most interested parties as the Highlanders were expected to roll over the Y. The Y had to forfeit one match, giving five points to Maryville, and still gained a moral victory in a tie.

The two outstanding matches of the evening were the 130 pound and 177 pound events, involving Maryville's two SEC champs. Buford Miller was upset by Bill Arnold who pinned him in the first period. Tom Bugenhagen had a close match with Wayne York, edging him out with a 3-2 decision.

The Results:

123 pound class—Jerry Waters (M) pinned Charles Hill (K) in 2:00

130 pound class—Bill Arnold (K)

Scotties Defeat King, Lose To LMU; Keny And Wallace Lead M.C. Scoring

By Jim Demer

Center Jack Keny and Forward Bil Wallace led the Highlanders to a 71-66 win over King College of Bristol Friday night. This was the opening game of the season for the Honakermen.

Maryville had a 38-25 advantage at half time and at times in the first half led by more than twenty points. The King team couldn't seem to find the range from the opening minutes of the first half and had trouble handling the ball. Frank Edgar, King center, seemed to catch on to the game a little better than the rest of his team as he hit for 30 points to take scoring honors for the night. Edgar displayed accurate but unusual foul shots and a fine one-hander and jump shot.

Bill Wallace looked to be in mid-season shape for the Scots playing a great defensive and rebounding game. And Bill still found time to hit the net for 19 points. Jack Keny was high scorer for Maryville with 21. Coach Honaker substituted freely, using 14 men, while the King coach kept his first string in most of the game.

Keny High Again

Saturday night the Highlanders traveled to Morristown to play Lincoln Memorial University in the second game of a double header. The occasion was the dedication of the new Isenberg-Siler Gymnasium. LMU took an 83-61 win over the Scots. The game was close up to the last ten minutes when the Railsplitters pulled away. Considering the fact that LMU does not have a football team and has been practicing basketball since the beginning of the semester, the Highlanders gave them a good fight. LMU is not usually scheduled this early in the season.

Jack Keny was again the offensive gun for Maryville with 19. Lynn Sexton followed with 12. Jud Jenkins was tops for LMU with 20.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy assailed President Eisenhower's policy on subversives earlier this week. However, former McCarthy backers are defending Ike and his point of view and are critical of McCarthy's denouncement of Mr. Eisenhower.

Some top Republicans stated that the Wisconsin Senator is headed for an isolated, lone-wolf role in American politics.

On the occasion of the 80th birthday of Sir Winston Churchill recently, England's poet-laureate John Masefield wrote this quatrain in honor of the Prime Minister:

This Man in darkness, saw; in doubtings led;
In danger, did; in uttermost despair
Shone with Hope that made the midnight fair
The world he saved calls blessings on his head.

Just as an overwhelming feeling of faculty superiority was beginning to come over this reporter, a new angle came into view and he was left completely disillusioned. Some of the faculty began riding around in Dr. Hunter's wheel chair playing Roman race track, or something. Then Miss Daniels started clawing deep inside her mummy case screaming for Mr. Bushing to stop the foolishness and let her out. And Mr. Cooper clumb over two theatre rows in making sure he was on time for his dramatic entrance.

This reporter went out into the rainy night wondering—just wondering.

Competition rules specify that "if at the end of 30 days after the opening of the semester for which the recipient of the award certificate enrolls for study, a full course including approved work in Music or Art is being pursued satisfactorily, the amount of the award will be credited to him, one half for that semester and one half for a subsequent semester."

Also special adjustment will be made in the case of military service; otherwise at least one-half of the award must be claimed within 18 months.

These awards are open only to those who meet all the requirements for admission to Maryville College.

tion to change a regulation which was passed by council.

Liz Murphey reported that the women's coaches and the faculty committee on athletics had asked the girls interested in forming intramural basketball teams to get coaches from Theta and Bainonian. This would allow the teams to practice more conveniently than would be possible if boys were coaches and a faculty member had to be present, she said. Three games are scheduled for next semester for the girls' teams.

Dick Jensen said a new student had asked him why the Anderson Tower bell was not rung following a basketball victory, and he asked the council its opinion. Generally the group did not accept the idea, but the matter brought up the question of insufficient publicity often given basketball games.

Council voted to ask the chairman of the pep committee to be responsible for chapel announcements and other publicity about athletics through the remainder of the year.

In summary of the semester's accomplishments of council, president Moore listed 21 items. They were:

1. ratification of the Town Night and Sportsmanship agreements;
2. elections to fill vacancies in the council;
3. a special chapel service honoring Dr. Lloyd as new moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA;
4. investigation of the money left from the Chilhowean for last year;
5. amendment of the student center agreement;
6. the second annual student-faculty party;
7. handling of the Carson-Newman game attnedance;
8. originated the proposal for the opening of the Y-Store on Sunday nights;
9. originated the proposal for Sunday dating;
10. conducting of freshman elections in a different way, allowing more time to decide about officers;
11. voting to make occasional checks to see if girls in town have signed out;
12. directed student chapel leaders for the coming year;
13. proposed a new system of council representation to Student-Faculty Senate;
14. originated the idea of marching out of chapel;
15. started the proposal for a girls' intramural basketball team;
16. discussed the problem of the band's lack of activities;
17. nominated candidates for Who's Who;
18. investigated the M-Book;
19. considered organization of a Town Students Association;
20. originated the idea of a curriculum committee;
21. took care of six Town Night violations.

The meeting was council's last for this semester. Following the regular business, the group adjourned and had refreshments.

Miss Davies, Miss Massey Both Taking Sabbatical Leaves This Semester

FAC Head In London, Miss Massey At U-T

During the second semester Miss Katharine C. Davies, Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, is on sabbatical leave studying in London, England. Miss Frances Massey, Dean of Women, is on sabbatical leave, studying at the University of Tennessee.

President Lloyd has announced that during their absence Mr. Harry H. Harter will be acting chairman of the departments of music and art, and Miss Kathleen Craven will handle matters relating to drama and speech; the house mothers in the women's residence halls will take repsonsibility for the permissions and special problems in their own halls, and Mrs. James LeMaster will carry certain other responsibilities including the scheduling of social activities.

Michael Testa To Address Vols

Presbyterian missionary to Portugal Michael P. Testa will speak to Student Vols Monday night at a special meeting arranged on the occasion of Mr. Testa's visit to the Maryville campus.

He graduated from the College with the class of 1934. Mr. Testa will arrive on campus Monday and plans to leave early Tuesday morning, according to information received by the President's office.

Mr. Testa is a native of Scranton, Pa., and is one of the missionaries from Westminster Presbyterian Church in that city.

Miss Mary Miles will speak to the Faculty Club on "The People of Japan" at their meeting on January 31 at 7 p.m.

YWCA Planning For Centennial Series of Events

Y.W.C.A. president Lyn Kiefer announced this week that several events are in preparation for the celebration on this campus of the 100th year of the Young Women's Christian Association.

A series of special events, now in the planning stage, will be presented the week of February 20, Miss Kiefer said.

Evelyn Blackburn Spanish Club Prexy

Spanish Club held its first meeting of the new year Thursday night with the new officers taking charge. The second semester officers are: Evelyn Blackburn, president; Harold Crane, vice-president; Joe Lowry, treasurer; and Kitty Thompson, secretary.

Better and more interesting programs have been planned for this semester in order to create more interest in the club, club officials say.

College Acquires Shakespeare Folio In New Facsimile

The Maryville College Library has acquired one of the first copies of a new edition of the 1623 Folio of William Shakespeare's plays.

This particular facsimile reproduction was recently published by the Yale University Press, and is 4/5 actual folio size for convenience in handling and reading.

The 1623 Folio when published was the first compilation of Shakespeare's plays in a form for the reader. Editors for the original work were John Heminges and Henry Condell, who had been members of the acting company in which Shakespeare played.

Many scholars believe that texts for the plays were either taken from stage copies, and in some cases were put together from the memory of several actors who had been in productions. This method led to badly garbled versions in some cases.

At present the Yale edition is on the new book table in the library.

Glee Clubs Make Preparations For Annual Jeans Drag

Sock Hop Is Planned

Maryville coeds this coming week will begin getting up nerve to ask their admired male friends to the annual Jeans Drag, which will be presented by the Girls' Choir and Men's Glee Club next Saturday evening.

The Drag is a square dance, and a distant cousin of the Sadie Hawkins Dance, held at many schools and which was part of the Maryville tradition until a few years ago.

Furnishing the music for the affair (planned as a sock hop) will be a three-piece band and caller, according to joint chairman Virginia Marshall and Don Thiel. Ticket price is 25 cents per couple, and they will go on sale this coming week.

At intermission time, a corsage contest will be held, with judges making decisions on the decorations which the girls have made for their dates. A prize will be given for the prettiest, most original, and most humorous. Tentatively the Drag is slated to be in the Alumni Gym.

Here are the committees which are planning the Jeans Drag:

Refreshment: Sylvia Lyles, Kay Hummel, and Lyle Talbot.

Publicity: Nancy Jones, Roberta Hampton, Louis McFarland, and Burt Jarmon.

Entertainment: Marcia Williams, and Sonny Shackleford.

Tickets: Jane Robison, and Bob Torrence.

Playhouse Announces Casts For Shaw, Goldsmith Plays

To Be Given In March, May

By Bob Evans

The Maryville College Playhouse is to present two plays this semester, She Stoops to Conquer by Oliver Goldsmith and Pygmalion by George Bernard Shaw.

She Stoops to Conquer is to be performed on March 4 and 5. It is a comedy that was written in the 1770's. Goldsmith set this comedy in a wealthy landowner's mansion, which was remote from any town and where only a small tavern could be found to entertain travelers. The time is 1773, when the play was first produced in London.

The landowner's stepson is the practical joker of the play. This boisterous young man prefers the companionship of quite unrefined sporting characters in the vicinity, and he regards a practical joke as the highest type of humor. One afternoon about dinner-time he directs some strangers to his stepfather's house as an inn; he fills the evening with other pranks of a similar nature. Throughout the play he is one of the two prime movers.

The other prime mover is his half-sister. Unlike most young ladies of the time, she has an independent mind, and though her father has picked out a husband for her, she follows the announcement with a sprightly declaration that she is not sure she will have him. This is surprising, as she has seldom been out of the remote country district of her birth. Nevertheless, once she feels certain of what she really wants, she displays presence of mind, ingenuity, and a quick wit in getting her way against apparently unsurmountable odds.

Countless audiences have roared at the practical joker, and all of them have both applauded and fallen in love with the young lady who stooped to conquer.

The leading roles of Mrs. Hardcastle and Mr. Marlowe will be held by Carol Pitts and Morris Netherton respectively.

Carol Pitts is a freshman drama major from Knoxville.

Morris Netherton is a sophomore drama major from Madisonville. He will probably be remembered mostly by play-going upperclassmen as Nathan in Family Portrait and was in charge of set construction in Street Scene.

Other roles: Squire Hardcastle, Don Thiel; Kate, Marcia Williams; Miss Neville, Carol Sleight; Diggory, Bill Deerfield; Mr. Hastings, Dick Morse; Tony Lumpkin, Glenn Sneed; the maid, Sandy Dorsett; and a servant, Bill Heird.

Extraordinary Artistry Is Reflected In Fine Arts Center Ceramics Exhibit

By Ruth Wilson

A very unusual pottery exhibit went on display January 17th in the Fine Arts Center. The display was not only unusual from the aspect of the pottery itself, but of the potter who created it. She is a woman.

Miss Lois Culver was born in Indiana, but spent most of her life in Wisconsin. It was at the University of Wisconsin, in her senior year, that she decided to become a potter. She then went on to do graduate work at the University of Illinois.

Her exhibit consists of tiles, pitchers, coffee pots, dinner plates, ash trays, vases, and bottles in earthenware, stoneware, terra cotta, just to name a few.

Miss Culver's main interest lies in the work of the Sung Dynasty of China. She makes her own glazes, and all of her work is thrown on the potter's wheel, excepting the tiles. One of her most ususual colors is a soft green, called celadon.

Miss Culver is now employed as a ceramic consultant for the American Art Clay Company of Indianapolis, and divides her time between instructing in a summer workshop, and writing booklets and directions for the Advertising Department of the company during the winter.

Ten Present For First Session Of Special Class

Last Monday at 5:30 p.m., ten "students" attended the first class of a non-credit evening course which is being offered by Maryville College to business and profesional men of the Blount County area.

The course, sponsored through the Public Relations Office, and supervised by coach John A. Davis, is designed "to eleminate excessive poundage picked up during the period of winter hibernation." Coach Davis is expecting 25 to attend the next session.

Coach Davis began the first session by putting the men through a series of calisthenics to work the stiffness out of their not too youthful joints. After this workout the gym facilities were turned over to the class, and this was followed by an hour and a half swimming period in the college pool.

Monday night's procedure is essentially the one that will be followed for the remainder of the sixteen week course.

Wrestlers Take Close Match From Chattanooga

Coach Davis' wrestlers won a close match against the University of Chattanooga Tuesday night. Jerry Waters, Buford Miller, Jim Cummings, and Tom Bugenhagen all won for an 18-16 Maryville win. Waters, Cummings, and Bugenhagen pinned their men, while Miller won a 3-0 decision.

The Mocs equalled the Scotties' two SEC champs with two of their own; 147-pound Dick Getz decisioned Don Nabors, and 191 pounder Abe Cohen pinned Don Moore.

In the last match before the Christmas holidays, the Knoxville Y made it two in a row over the Highlanders by virtue of a 16-13 win.

Summary:

Council Names Paul Payne To S-F Senate

In one of its shortest meetings of the year, Student Council Wednesday night named Paul Payne to replace Bill Howell as council representative on Student-Faculty Senate.

Howell transferred to the University of Tennessee at the end of the fall semester.

Also council President Carol Moore told the group the new revised constitution should be ready for consideration and study in about three weeks.

Political science instructor A. D. Ainsworth made a rough draft of a new constitution during Christmas vacation, and presented his work to the revision committee at its first meeting of the semester.

After some discussion about frequency of meetings, council agreed to meet next Wednesday and then not to meet the following week, which will coincide with the beginning of February Meetings. A number of matters are still pending before Student-Faculty Senate which council submitted last semester.

Jim Cummings asked if the Y's had ever considered meeting on a weekday, and having many clubs meet only once a month. Officers of YW said it had been discussed before, and that Sunday was still considered the best meeting day. No action was taken.

Kiefer Leads Prayer Meeting Thursday

"A Deeper Knowledge of God" was the topic for the all-campus prayer meeting Thursday night.

Dr. Lloyd Expresses Hope That Union Results Are Only 'Postponement'

Moderator On Trip When Results Known

According to press reports received by a Maryville daily newspaper, MC president Ralph W. Lloyd, who is moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA, has expressed hope that the defeat of proposed Presbyterian union by the Southern church this week is only a "postponement" and "not defeat."

Dr. Lloyd was in the Los Angeles, Calif. area on church business this week when enough US church presbyteries voted against the plan of union to defeat it.

According to the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times and the Associated Press, Dr. Lloyd commented that the results "will be received throughout the USA Church with disappointment and sorrow. I sincerely hope and believe it represents not defeat but only postponement of union."

On Tuesday 22 Southern presbyteries voted on the plan to merge the denominations, which have been split since the beginning of the Civil War in 1861. Results showed 14 against union, seven for, and two more still to report. In previous voting, 12 presbyteries had voted against the plan, making a total of 26 presbyteries against.

Three-fourths of the US presbyteries were required to approve the plan in order for it to pass, so 22 opposing votes were the minimum to defeat it.

Most presbyteries in the Presbyterian USA and the United Presbyterian Church had already voted for the plan of union. Voting in the US Church will continue into April.

Dr. Lloyd for a number of years has been a member of the Permanent Committee for Church Union, and more recently has headed the committee in its work. Before he was elected Moderator of the Church last summer he spent a great deal more of time other than his College duties working with this group. And as Moderator this has been one of his chief interests.

Reasons generally given for Southern disapproval of union included hesitancy to become part of a larger church group, some belief that the doctrine of the USA Church was "too liberal," and the segregation issue.

Most church leaders nevertheless feel that union is still inevitable.

Athenian Lakers, Alpha Sig Globetrotters to Play For Stinkin' Shoes

By Guy Selander

Tonight at 8 in the Alumni Gym the Alpha Sig Globetrotters will take on the Athenian Lakers in the annual Stinkin' Shoe Basketball Classic. Each year a trophy is awarded to the society winning two of the three major sports.

Athenian won the softball game last spring, and the Sigs (with their cry of "Up Hammers") won the football clash in the fall. Therefore the trophy will be awarded to the winner of tonight's game.

The starting line-ups for the game are: For the Globetrotters, Bob Ramger, Charles Partee, Bill Strickland, Tom Paton, and Lee Hammond. Coaching for the Trotters and giving Abe Saperstien the evening off is Bill Wheatley. For the Lakers, Jim Gardner, Sam Buffet, "Chuck" Wagner, Mike Connolly and Harold O'Bannon or Mert Hall will start. O'Bannon is coach of the Athenian team.

Reserve strength for the Trotters are Guy Selander, Bob Basford, Bill Davis, Jim Heddon, Dock Jennings, Merv Dixon, Stan Mont, Will Roberts, Fred Roseborough and little All-American Dave Noble. High scoring Jim Demer of the Tackhammers will be unable to play for the Sigs, as the game would conflict with his weekly visit to Atlanta. Backing up the Lakers' starting five are Jim Conklin, Herb Thompson, Bruce Ingles, and J. B. Adams.

The game promises to be a thriller, and both teams have planned some pre-game entertainment. Bill Dent and Jack Crouch, former N.B.A. officials have consented to referee, and Ken Wilkinson will act as announcer.

Everyone is invited to come out and watch the girls from Theta and Bainonian tussle at 7.

Magazine Features Lee Sisters' Aunt

Miss Ruth Stovall, aunt of Mary and Lavinia Lee and Alabama state supervisor of home economics education, was featured in a recent edition of Progressive Farmer.

The color-page feature told of Miss Stovall's hobby of making unusually decorative hats. She was chosen as the magazine's "Woman of the Year."

The picture shows a few of her hats, some of them modeled by Miss Stovall herself, and the text describes her methods of making them.

Rev. Carl Murray To Speak At Vespers

The Rev. Carl Murray, pastor of the Norwood Presbyterian Church of Knoxville, will be the guest speaker at Vespers this Sunday night.

Mr. Murray is a graduate of Maryville College and is the grandson of Dr. Wilson for whom the chapel is named.

The Vesper Choir will sing one number by Palestrina entitled "Sicut Cervus" and part of The Peaceable Kingdom, "Say Ye to the Righteous" by Randall Thompson.

Dr. Hyung Park Is Observing U. S. Seminaries

By Jay Kanick

The Rev. Hyung Nong Park, Ph. D., president of the Presbyterian Seminary in Seoul, led chapel this morning. Mr. Park is in the United States for three months to observe and consult with United States theological seminaries. Financing the trip is the Board of Foreign Missions, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

After his stay in the U.S.A., Mr. Park will visit British and European seminaries for two months. Because of his key position in the theological education of Korea, his visit will be of great benefit to the Church of Christ in Korea.

He was born in 1897 and received his B.A. degree from the Nanking University in China. In 1926 he graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary where he received his Th.B. and Th.M. degrees. From the Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Ky., he received his Ph.D. degree in 1932.

Mr. Park has taught his special field, Systematic Theology, in Manchuria and Korea. He is the chief editor of the three volume Standard Bible Commetary for the Church of Christ in Korea. He has also written four books on devotional and religious subjects.

Juniors Elect New Spokesman

An election will be held Friday to fill the junior class student council vacancy caused by the transfer of Bill Howell.

A junior class meeting will be held Thursday after chapel in order to make nominations, and balloting will be done Friday.

Three New Members In Vesper Choir

Three students are new members of the Vesper Choir this semester, replacing others who have transferred or graduated.

They are Dick Hughes and Alan Whitelock, tenors; and Ronald Jennings, baritone.

An Outstanding Need

It has recently come to the attention of the Echo that the Maryville College debate squad has a rather uncertain future due to the apparent lack of interest of the student body. Within the past two or three college generations, Maryville has boasted an excellent debate team, and before that, one of the best in the South. It would be too bad for this reputation to dwindle to nothing because of the lack of underclass support.

The debate team has the wide and wholehearted support of the members of the faculty, even those outside the department are expressly interested. The interest of the student body, however, is shown only by a few students who keep up with the team, or by a half-hearted congratulatory comment after a win has been announced.

All of this probably stems from two reasons: the general trend among Maryville students to pay no attention to world affairs, and the falling interest in any campus activity. It is doubtful whether many students know the national debate question ("Resolved: that the United States shauld extend diplomatic recognition to the communist government of China"), and the full implications and significance which this discussion carries.

The lack of student participation is probably from the same cause as lack of participation in other activities—work. Debate has a reputation for work—hours of research, conference, discussion, and meetings before the actual meets and tournaments. But along with this work come several worthwhile advantages: debate encourages interest aand develops consciousness of world affairs; it develops speaking ability and self-confidence, along with the talent of being able to think on one's feet; and it helps organize research and thinking. And, for those who are school-spirited, it gives one a chance to be of real service to the school by acting as a representative.

The MC debate squad now consists of five members—one senior, three juniors, and one sophomore. In intercollegiate debate, the winning team is almost invariably characterized by experience, and a team maade up entirely of upperclassmen does not promise a winning future to the school. It is too late in the year for any more members to be added to the 1955 team because of a long standing rule that all members must have been working on the subject all year. The team is starting its actual meets and tournaments this semester, using the results of work from last semester as the basis for their cases.

Sometime in the near future, however, an intramural freshman debate tournament will be held, under the sponsorship of Pi Kappa Delta, assisted by the freshman English teachers. This is a challenge and an opportunity to all freshmen. It is essential that the interest in debate be re-established.

Pay Attention!

A growing lack of consideration with chapel announcements which had been apparent last semester came to a head earlier this week when it was announced that certain pictures would be made for the Chilhowean. This announcement, made in good faith, resulted in the photographing of one group—the persons scheduled for the other three pictures failed to be at the appointed place on time, thus wasting the time of those who were there and creating a tension of resentment.

Aside from the lack of interest in the Chilhowean and lack of consideration for the editor and photographer, this incident serves only to illustrate the growing tendency to disregard to ignore completely such announcements as may be made in chapel. This method of outlining the day's activities at a general assembly has been found to be the most satisfactory of those tried all over the country in colleges which have a large number of campus-centered activities.

True, one gets tired of hearing a series of trite and uninteresting announcements which have absolutely no personal relevance, but this time of the day is used also to call the immediate attention of the student body to previously publicized events which carry the interest of a large percentage of the audience. The matter of Chilhowean pictures is just one example; art exhibits, informal lectures, club movies with wider-than-usual appeal, and interesting programs or speakers are all announced within a week of chapel services.

It's Your Team

Something which many of us have noticed throughout our tenure as students here is the low attendance at basketball games during the week. On Saturday nights, a home basketball game becomes the main campus activity, so naturally everyone turns out for it. But on week nights the attendance is so poor that the ball players must surely wonder if any other students on campus know they play at times other than Saturday nights.

Student Council put a finger on a fundamental reason for part of the poor attendance last semester and again this week. The games during the week are not announced in chapel, although items of interest to far fewer persons receive this type of publicity. We hope that this has been corrected or will soon be. Certainly notification of the assembled students that a game is to be played will assure that many will be there.

Still the students themselves should remember on their own that the basketball team is from their school and needs support and encouragement too. Try to plan to see at least part of the games at home. It is to be hoped that there will never be another chapel announcement: "Since the student body was not present, the score of last nights game . . ."

Scots & Soda

By Barbara Wilkie

How many times have you heard this statement? "I'm going to start the new semester off with a bang." A very common resolution—but does anyone ever carry it out? No. They may fizzle the first day or two, but nothing ever comes of it. This is a lamentable fact. Some way should be found to arouse enough interest in college at first to last students through the semester.

Perhaps teachers should advertise their classes in some manner around registration time. The "Highland Echo" is a widely read publication and offers opportunity for advertisement. Also—posters, signs, chapel announcements, and rural-route boxholder letters have their possibilities. (The college catlogue might even be considered.)

* * * *

It Pays to Advertise

A typical ad for the "Echo" might read: "Why take less when you can have Moore? Come out for band this semester." Or, since that method is rather common, what about this:

"Are you bothered by D.A.R.'s? Do they make you feel inferior when you're really not? Here is a class specially designed for you. No student is admitted who has ever been on the dean's list. You too can be a D.A.R."

Required courses present more of a problem. Special gimmicks need to be used:

"Opportunity for advancement. Research into fascinating fields.
No freshman should miss it."

(Of course this applies to Freshman English, second semester.)

* * * *

Which Brand Do You Prefer?

When you are in a quandary over which teacher to choose for a course, little mottoes like these could be referred to:

"Music theory is so cheery if you take it under Vawter."
"English History with Queener just couldn't be keener."
"Plato and other boys of yore here are taught by professor Orr."

These are just examples—of course, the teachers would make up the jingles in their own enticing way. What interest and enthusiasm could be stirred up for classes if teachers would only advertise.

* * * *

Those All Important Club Meetings

But studying includes only one phase of college life. Social life should begin with a bang, too. All clubs on campus should be reactivated. Even plain old housemeetings could be made entertaining. Baldwin Hall seems to have succeeded very well in doing this as evidenced by the secretary's reports, which inspired the following bit of information. (The following is merely a suggested model, casting no reflection on anyone in Baldwin Hall. The names used are for convenience's sake—others could be substituted.)

Secretary's Report

"Izzy called the meeting to order. She announced that girls aren't to use the halls for bowling alleys, since coke bottles break too easily and that a few people on each floor are studying too much and other people have been complaining about it, since it throws a wet blanket on their parties. Nancy then announced that someone had borrowed her blanket last November for football games and hadn't returned it. She added that it sometimes gets cold at night around here and she needs a blanket.

"Mrs. Robinson then announced that she is investigating the claim that the 10:10 and 10:15 bells sound remarkably like the telephone. She said various persons had reported this similarity to her. A motion was made by Jane and seconded that the bells be discontinued in order to save confusion. This bill was unanimously defeated. The meeting was adjourned after everyone had looked in the rummage-sale box to claim their clothes that had been collected from the lines on Saturday night."

Respectfully submitted,
Katrina.

One More Suggestion:

So much for social life. Nobody ever dates around here, so we won't go into that phase of campus activity. However, the field of athletics shouldn't be overlooked. Reliable eyewitnesses (eyeball-witnesses—to "Dragnet" fans) have reported that Nancy Jones and Dee Woods are investigating possibilities in the sport of wrestling. It seems they put on an exhibition at the Hen Party last week. A good way to begin the semester.

Well, any way, to get back to our theme, "Bangier Beginnings" there must be some more workable schemes that will start every semester off right. These humbly submitted suggestions may do no good, but perhaps activity may be inspired in some loyal student's heart. . . . .

Last spring he received a vaccine designed to protect him from infantile paralysis. Some time this year, after studying records on Skip and nearly two million other youngsters, scientists will know if the vaccine works. Skip's a football-playing laboratory, helping them out.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

Good line-up of movies for this week. The Capitol is showing "Deep In My Heart" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The guest star, all-star cast includes for example, Merle Oberon, Walter Pidgeon, Jose Ferrer. "Charge of the Lancers" completes the week. Its stars Paulette Goddard.

The Park will be showing "Battleground" on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Van Johnson and John Hodiac have the leads. "Moon Lighter" with Barbara Stanwyck and Fred McMurray will play Thursday and Friday. The following week's schedule hasn't been announced yet.

If the Robert E. Lee Address given in chapel Wednesday morning inspired you, perhaps you'll enjoy reading a novel about the good man. The book is "The Lady of Arlington." It is a story of the man and of his wife who rose to greatness with him. It is the story of Robert E. Lee seen through the eyes of a woman. Though others rose higher, she maintained her confidence and her hope. In the memorable year 1861 she stood with him to receive the breathtaking order to take the generalship of the Virginia forces.

It is a book of high American drama moving from peace to war to peace again. It vividly presents Washington in the fabulous 1840's; St. Louis in the days when Lee saved it from destruction. Texas of the dangerous '30's is presented, Brooklyn and New York, Baltimore, Richmond of the tumultous war times along with the serenity of Washington and Lee University in the Lees' happiest days.

Other new fiction includes John Steinbeck's "Sweet Thursday," James Hilton's "Morning Journey," Thomas B. Costain's "Son of a Hundred Kings."

Faculty To Present 20th-Century Music

The first faculty recital of the new year will be held Friday evening, January 28, in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. The entire program will consist of 20th century music.

The first number on the program, "Trumpet Sonata" written by Hindemith, will be rendered by Ralph Moore, who will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Moore. Dan Kinsinger will then sing several selections that were written by Harry Harter and Mr. Moore.

A piano solo, "Excursions" written by Samuel Barber, will be presented by Miss Dorothy Vawter. James Bloy will conclude the program with several organ selections of 20th century writers.

Y-Radio To Give First '55 Show

This Sunday Y-Radio will present a fifteen- minute drama entitled "The Flying Horseman of the Rockies." The story is based upon the life of Sheldon Jackson, a missionary who worked in the Northwest. Anne Buckley will direct.

Students who signed up for radio workshop, a course which was recently added to the curriculum, will soon be working in conjunction with Y-Radio. They will assist with the script-writing, production, and technical aspects.

Hiller Reelected Band President

The Maryville College band this week re-elected Walt Hiller band president for this semester. Also named to serve with the president are Fred Wyman, vice-president, and Emma Lou Arnold, secretary-treasurer.

Hiller is a senior business major from Pittsburgh, Pa.; Wyman is a sophomore music major from Ohio, and Miss Arnold is a sophomore Bible major from Illinois.

Miss Johnson To Read

Writers' Workshop will meet Monday afternoon in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Miss Jessie Johnson is the reader and Margaret Blackburn is her critic.

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

Georgia Tech knocked Kentucky off two weeks ago in Lexington for one of the major sport upsets of any year. It was the Jackets' second victory over the Wildcats in 30 games. Baron Adolph Rupp, who coached his teams to 129 straight wins against all comers in Lexington, was quoted by the United Press as saying, "We'll never live it down."

A jump shot in the last 11 seconds by little Joe Helms gave Tech the 59-58 win over Kentucky, and stopped the nation's number one collegiate basketball power after 32 straight victories. The Kentuckians hadn't lost to any opponent at Lexington since Janauary 2, 1943, when Ohio State won by 45-40.

This upset is even more remarkable when one looks at Tech's record going into the game. The Jackets had victories over Sewanee and Idaho State, but had suffered defeats at the hands of Sewanee, Clemson, South Carolina, Canisius, and Georgetown. Mighty Kentucky boasted wins over such powers as LaSalle, Utah, and Temple.

Since that time Kentucky has won all three games, while Tech has lost all theirs, including a 115-79 loss at the hands of Furman. Well, miracles do happen.

Code of Ethics

Bowden Wyatt, coach of the University of Arkansas football team, has left Fayetteville to take the position as head football coach at the University of Tennessee. Wyatt is a former Vol player, having performed under Gen. Robert R. Neyland, who is now athletic director.

After his Arkansas team, picked to finish last in the Southwest Conference, won the championship and the Cotton Bowl invitation, grateful alumni gave him a Cadillac and more than $20,000 in cash. Wyatt had given them their first winning team since 1947. He was first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Now Wyatt returns to his native Tennessee, begging off from his Arkansas contract. This is the second time Wyatt has jumped a contract since 1952-53. He left a long-term agreement at Wyoming to go to Arkansas. Even if he does get more money at U-T, was it right for him to leave the big-hearted people of Arkansas who had shown so much devotion for him?

One Student Records The Experiences Of His Cuisine In Carnegie Hall

By Bill Hansen

Last night, or rather early this morning, we had a party. Tom provided the bee . . . beverages, Jimmy brought the main course, and I supplied delicious apple pie. (Conceited? Not at all!) I feel that it is my duty to set forth such directions for this undertaking as are necessary and to pass on some of the tricks that I have learned.

The first rule is: Get out of it if you can! Unfortunately, this is not always possible. I would suggest that a young man spend the three days prior to the festivities in smiling, making eyes at, and generally befriending all the girls in sight. You might talk one of them into making it for you. If not, oh horrible thought, you'll just have to follow the directions outlined below, as well as you can.

First, buy two (2) pounds of slightly green baking apples; wash and peel them. Now, instead of slicing them and trying to remove the cores as most people uneducated in culinary art would do, grasp the apple at its narrowest point with thumb and forefinger, and, rotating the apple, slice off nice, even pieces. You'll be left holding the core which you can politely dispose of as inconspicuously as possible. Place the apples in cold water. Now for the crust.

Take three (3) cups of flour and a cup (1) of water with a pinch of salt . . . . Oh, never mind! Any boob can follow a recipe for pie crust! I'll just concern myself with the delicate artistry of the thing.

After you have molded the bottom crust into a greased pie plate, pour a cup of ICE water into the shell and slosh it around. Don't ask me why! It just makes the pie come out better or something. Next, place the apples in the shell, spread sugar over the top until you think it will be sweet enough, and flake a little butter on top of that. Now you are ready for . . . oops! I almost forgot—Drip one teaspoon (1) of lemon juice onto the sugar and sprinkle a little of the grated rind around. Now you are ready to seal it.

Gently fold the top crust in half and gingerly lay it over the pie with the edgest in place. Unfold the crust so that the whole pie is covered . . . . Admit it! You bungled! You didn't judge right and the edges overlap. Trim them off with a dull knife, press the edges down firmly with the tines of a fork, puncture the top four (4) times. Slide the pie into the oven, and pray!

Now you've made your first apple pie!

Scots Take 2 of 3 In Recent Cage Games

By Mike Connally

Last Saturday night in the Alumni gym the Maryville Scotties encountered the University of Chattanooga Moccasins in their first home game of the new year.

There was a good crowd on hand to witness the hard fighting Scots, led by Jack Keny, Lynn Sexton, and Bill Walace with 22, 19, and 19 points respectively, triumph over the Mocs by a score of 93 to 75.

Behind at Half

The Scots, behind at half-time 41 to 38, did not waste any time in closing the gap and moving out in front of the Mocs for good. The second half rally was sparked by some sensational shooting on the part of Keny and Wallace.

Lynn Sexton, Bob Shelton, and Bill "Slug" Blair displayed their usual array of shots in adding to the victory.

Fast Break

In the third and fourth quarters the Scots opened with a fast break that left the visitors dumbfounded, and it wasn't long before the scoreboard clock showed the Scots in the lead, where they remained the rest of the game.

Bob Case, captain of Chattanooga, was the game's high scorer with 25 points, but that wasn't enough to stop the hard-fighting Scotties. This was one of the best, if not the best game the Scotties have played this season.

In the preliminary game, a hard fighting Maryville B team defeated Blount County's National Guard unit, 48 to 41 in a game that saw the score change hands many times.

Dan Wiley and Bill Dent with 10 and 8 points respectively led the winning attack for Maryville.

Scots Bow

The Scotties played a strong Milligan quintet last Wednesday night and lost 105 to 94 despite a 31 point splurge by center Jack Keny.

Bill "Slug" Blair, Bill Wallace, and Bob Shelton hit for 20, 13 and 11 points respectively. Milligan was lead by Dennis Greenville, the game's high scorer, with 34 points. Al Covell and Bill Gouge also aided in Milligans victory netting 17 points each.

52% Shooting Average

The Scots fought hard but Milligan just couldn't seem to miss, scoring on 52 per cent of the shots they took. At the end of the half Milligan led 48 to 45, but the Scots fought back various times, only to lose out in a heart braeker.

Maryville pushed in 22 fouls out of 39, but only had 36 field goals to Milligan's 43. It was the second time this season that Milligan has turned in a 100-plus effort, the other time being when they defeated Austin Peay 101 to 69.

Win Again

The Scots didn't receive any rest after their game with Milligan, for the very next night they journeyed to Hiwassee and played their third game in the past five days; winning by a score of 81 to 65.

Shelton and Keny Big Guns

Leading the Scots to their second win in five days was guard Bob Shelton with 24 points. Big Jack Keny pumped in 23 for second high. Lynn Sexton and Bill Wallace also netted 17 and 9 points respectively in adding to the victory.

The Scots pulled away in the second half after only leading 36 to 35 at the half. Hiwassee's big men were Spurling, Goodson, and Poe with 19, 19, and 17 points respectively.

Intramurals....

By Bob Evans

Included in this week's column are the last six games of last semester, as they were not included in the final semester edition of the Echo.

In the first game on Thursday, December 10, the high-roosting Snowbirds walloped the dismayed Destroyers 66-21. High-scoring Chuck Dunn bounced in 21 points for the white-feathered clan with Ken Yunker adding 20. Ted Wilson contributed 5 points to the losing side.

The second game was an intra-society battle between the Alpha Sig Hammers and Sledgehammers with the latter coming out on the long end of the 45-23 score. Bob Ramger tallied for 14 points for the winners with Merv Dixon getting 12 for the losers.

The Y.M.C.A. Tom Thumbs downed the Athenian A's 43-30 in the last game of the day. Phil Young with 11 points was high man for the Toms. Top score for the Athenians was big Mike Connolly who got 14 points.

On Friday the league-leading Muleheads sailed over their country cousins, the Local Yokels, 36-29. Jim Gregory was top hoopster for the Muleheads with 14 points. The Yokel's Bob Coulter added 12 points to his team's score.

The Pre-Mins edged out the Alpha Sig No Hammers 21-20. With 7 points Max Sockwell was top man for the Pre-Mins. John Miller was on top of the heap for the No Hammers with 6 points.

In the last game of the semester the Alpha Sig Tack-hammers trounced the Athenian Bees 37-23. Jim Demer racked up 20 points for the Tacks with Athenian's Bob Krogh getting 11.

This semester's games started the same day as did classes with many of the fellas tripping over to the Intramural Gym without having seen a basketball in three and a half weeks.

On Wednesday the Muleheads trampled the Y.M.C.A. Saints 48-18. League-leading Dick Tipton with 20 points was top tallier for the Muleheads. Ed Drum and Bill Bolger dropped in 15 points apiece for the Saints.

The Alpha Sig No Hammers lost to the Athenian Bees 23-17. Walt Hiller and Dick Henderson rang up 8 points for the No Hammers and Athenian respectively.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers won over the Pre-Mins 18-10. Jim Demer with 12 points was high hoopster for the Tacks. The Pre-Mins' Ed Grigsby dropped in 10 points.

On Thursday the Y.M.C.A. Tom Thumbs vaulted over the luckless Destroyers 42-16. Jim Gardner with 15 points was the Tom Thumbs' high scorer. Sonny Shackelford was number one for the Destroyers.

The ever-powerful Snowbirds flew over the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers 22-17. Dave Mills with 8 was top basketeer for the Snowbirds. Bob Ramger added 6 points to the Sledgehammer's score.

In the last game of the day the Athenian A's nosed out the Alpha Sig Hammers 33-31. Ted Wilson with 12 points was the high tallier for Athenian. Sig's Dock Jennings was high man with 13.

There were only two games played on Friday as the Local Yokel-Alpha Sig Tackhammers game was cancelled.

The Pre-Mins smashed the hapless Athenian Bees 21-9. Doug Brian got 8 points for the preacher boys.

The Y.M.C.A. Saints downed the Alpha Sig No Hammers 31-25. The Saints' Bill Bolger and Sig's Dave Noble each dropped in 10 points for their respective teams.

In the first game Monday, January 17, the Athenian A's shellacked the Destroyers 51-26. Ted Wilson scored 16 points against his old teammates. Buddy Gilbert and Jack Renfro each added 8 to the Destroyers' score.

The Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashed the Y.M.C.A. Tom Thumbs 37-15. Charlie Partee racked up 14 points for the Sigs.

The Alpha Sig Hammers were snowed under by the Snowbirds 49-23. Chuck Dunn was the number one scorer for the Snowbirds with 24. Stan Mont contributed 10 points to the Hammer's score.

On Tuesday the Local Yokels got by the Y.M.C.A. Saints 26-22. Nat Campbell was the top scorer for the Yokels with 12. Bill Bolger with 9 was high basketeer for the Saints.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers mangled their society brother the Alpha Sig No Hammers, 42-25. Jim Demer was the big gun for the Tacks with 21 tallies. Joe Quinn got 10 for the No Hammers.

The Alpha Sig Sledgehammers trounced the Athenian A's 48-24 in the first game on Wednesday. Bob Ramger rang up 13 points for Sig with Harold O'Bannon and Mike Connolly scored 7 apiece for the Athenians.

The usually-powerful Snowbirds squeezed by the Y.M.C.A. Tom Thumbs 19-18. Chuck Dunn was once again the top man for the Snowbirds getting 10 points this time around.

The Alpha Sig Hammers also eked out a victory over the hapless Destroyers 40-39 in the last game of the day. Stan Mont scored 12 points for the Hammers with Bob Berrong scoring an equal amount for the Destroyers.

Lloyd Completing California Trip; To Return Friday

Dr. R. W. Lloyd will complete his California sojourn today. While in the state, he has met with two Maryville College Alumni groups, one in the Los Angeles area, the other from around San Francisco. He and Mrs. Lloyd are on their way home now.

On the 26th, Dr. Lloyd will be leaving for New York to attend a meeting of the Long Range Planning Committee of the General Council of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. He will be back here on Friday, the 28th.

Next Sunday, the 30th, he is scheduled to speak at the 10:30 Worship Service at New Providence Church.

The next day he will leave for Memphis for a joint meeting of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. and the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Dr. Wade H. Boggs, the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. will also be present for the meetings. The next day, February 1st., will mark the beginning of February Meetings, and Dr. Lloyd will be present to make introductory addresses, and for the remainder of the meetings.

Alpha Sig To Present Talent Show Tonight

Alpha Sigma Society will meet Saturday night in the Y-Rooms. The program will be a talent show put on by all new members.

Grapplers Beat Sewanee 29-5

Thursday night saw the Scotties win a basketball game and a wrestling match. The B Team pendent team 26-60, scoring in the last minute to win.

Phil Clapp was high for Maryville with 16, matched by G. Owenby and Fred Davis for Wildwood.

In the feature event of the night the Scot wrestlers met the University of the South. This is only the second year that Sewanee has had a wrestling team and they are still in the building process. Maryville took the match 29 to 5.

Sewanee's five points came on a forfeit after Crow Renfro hurt his thumb while warming up. The last match proved to be the most exciting as Don Moore won a well-wrestled 4-0 decision over 305 pound Jack Matthews.

Summary:

123 pound—Waters (M) pinned Jones (S), 2:00
130 pound—Miller (M) decisioned Rea (S), 9-0.
137 pound—Cummings (M) pinned Taylor (S), 2:20
147 pound—Nabors (M) pinned D. Green (S), 7-4

PLAYS....

Pygmalion is to be presented as the commencement play on May 7 and 13.

The leading roles will be held by Nancy Rideout, who will play Eliza; and Bob Lorenz, who will play Higgins. These roles were held by Wendy Hiller and Leslie Howard in the most recent motion picture adaption of the play.

Nancy Rideout is a senior drama major from Washington, D. C. Nancy will probably be remembered most for her roles as Mary in Family Portrait and Margaret in The Lady's Not For Burning.

Bob Lorenz is a senior English major from Conshohocken, Pa. He will undoubtedly be remembered for his roles in The Happy Journey and Macbeth and also for his portrayal of Shylock in Merchant of Venice.

Other roles: Pickering, Bill Deerfield; Mrs. Higgins, Ann Buckley; Mrs. Pierce, Joan McNaughton; Mrs. Eymsford Hill, Janie Wall; Clara Hill, Ruth Orr; Freddie Hill, Glenn Sherrod; Dinslittle, Bill Heird.

Rehearsals have not begun as yet, nor have stage crews been picked.

Both of these plays are in sharp contrast to Street Scene in the number of people in the cast. Street Scene had 60 or more people in the cast whereas both of this semester's plays have only about 12 to 15 members in the cast.

Experimentals' 'Thirteen Clocks' To Be Feb. 19

By Grace Stinecipher

Experimental Theater is now hard at work on its next production, "Thirteen Clocks" written by James Thurber, which will be presented on February 19.

This play is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Daniels, instructor of drama and speech.

Included in the cast are: John Mollard as Traveler, Shirley Mayfield as Barmaid, Ann Wiley as Taverner, Wendy Wood as Tosspot, Nants Harvard as Trouble-maker, Marion Drotar as Tale-Teller, James Barber as Zorn of Zorna, Ruth Wilson as Golux, Sonja Swett as Saralinda, Herb Catlin as The Cold Duke, Carol Lee Lacey as Hagga.

This play, "Thirteen Clocks", is as fantastic as the names of these characters imply. And it is also truly experimental in that it has been adapted from a children's fairy story to a play by Miss Daniels. Her reason for this is that she feels that a true play for children has never been successfully written and produced—therefore this will be an experiment for the Experimentals.

Even though this is supposedly a play for children, it should prove to be highly entertaining to anyone.

YWCA Launches New Project At Hospital

The YWCA has launched a new project in connection with its Community Service program. Each week day there will be opportunities for MC girls to go to Blount Memorial Hospital and help in the children's ward.

The work there will consist of supervising in the playroom, reading, or feeding the children. The hours for this will be 10 or 11 in the mornings, and 2, 3, 4, and 5 in the afternoon.

The general field of Community Service for YW is under the direction of Billie Marie Lester and Madlon Travis. Joan Davis is in charge of the hospital program.

Dr. Magill Is Most Enthusiastic Man On Campus

By Faith Nollner

Probably one of the most enthusiastic men on this campus right now is Dr. John Magill. When I went trotting down to have this little interview, I was almost bowled over by this aforementioned enthusiasm. After I had stated my purpose (to get an interview for the Highland Echo) he told me that the facts concerning his life history hadn't changed much since last year.

I really hadn't expected them to, and so had thought up one or two of those little leading questions which every interviewing reporter is supposed to keep up her sleeve. As it turned out, I really didn't need them, though. I just barely had to mention that I thought it would be nice to talk about things as they are now, and Dr. Magill was off, telling me, with obvious pride about his church, Abington Presbyterian Church at Abington, Pa.

Quite excusable pride—I found that Abington is the oldest church in the Philadelphia area, just recently having celebrated its 240th anniversary, and is the fourth largest church in the Presbytery. Under Dr. Magill's leadership it has doubled its size in the last five years and has 1,500 in its Church school. Incidentally, the first stop of the Vesper Choir on its spring tour will be at Abington.

Naturally, since Dr. Magill is a Maryville graduate, we couldn't neglect "the good old days" phrase which is vital for those Echo readers who remember them. With his great interest in music, it isn't,

Meetings To Last Until Thursday

Maryville's 79th series of February Meetings will continue through this Thursday morning. The final evening service will be held Wednesday.

Dr. William M. Elliott of Dallas, Texas, has been the main speaker, Dr. John Magill, Philadelphia, Pa., the song leader, and Dr. Henry Barraclough, Philadelphia, is the accompanist. Dr. Barraclough arrived here to begin playing the piano Thursday evening because of the illness of his wife earlier in the week.

In his first sermon, on Wednesday morning, Dr. Elliott warned against taking mass opinion or "following the crowd." "The voice of the people is seldom the voice of God," he said. Dr. Elliott continued, however, to explain that being controversial "simply for the sake of controvery is stupid." He stressed the point that persons must learn to change with necessary social changes.

Services are being held each morning at 9:45 and in the evenings at 7. Services will be held on Monday, although the regular chapel service is not usually held on that day.

Dr. Elliott has been a leader of the Meetings two times before. In his regular work he is pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas. In former years he has been a pastor in Knoxville and Atlanta. He is a member of the Board of World Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, US.

Dr. Magill is a church pastor in Abington (Philadelphia), Pa. He was February Meetings song leader in 1952, and 1954. He has held pastorates in Chicago and Monmouth, Ill. He is a graduate both of Maryville College and McCormick Seminary.

Dr. Barraclough is Assistant Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA. He has been the accompanist for February Meetings for several years, either part time or being here for the entire ten days.

A sign-up sheet has been posted outside the conference room in the chapel for persons wishing to have interviews with Dr. Elliott. Persons who would like to have a conference with either Dr. Magill or Dr. Barraclough should arrange with them personally, according to announcement by the student-faculty committee on arrangements.

February Meetings Schedule

A period	8:00- 8:45
B period	8:50- 9:35
Chapel	9:45-10:40
C period	10:45-11:30
D period	11:35-12:20

Elliott To Appear On Y-Radio Panel

Y-Radio will present Sunday evening a panel discussion with Dr. Elliott on questions pertaining to church union and the church in general. Ruth Orr is chairman of the panel which consists of Carolyn Lime, Jane Robison, John Graulich, Bill Deerfield, and Gary Pennington.

The series of "Man's Right to Knowledge and the Use Thereof" will be continued with the Columbia recordings of Galileo and Mahatma Gandhi on the following Sundays.

Elliott's Books Available At Store

Two books by Dr. William Elliott are available at the college bookstore.

They are "For the Living of These Days" and "Lift High That Banner." Price, including sales tax, is $2 per copy.

Sigs, Theta To Meet

Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma are meeting jointly tonight at 8:15 p.m. with talent and many surprises.

Dr. Elliott Displays His Response To A Challenge Of Responsibility

By Carolyn Cones

Dr. William Marion Elliott, Jr., leader of the February Meetings, is a man who has met the challenge of responsibility. This characteristic combined with a pleasant manner, ease of expression, and a sincere devotion to his work spells out success in the finer sense of the word.

Dr. Elliott's interest centers around Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas, Texas. He is proud of this church, which, although but twenty-seven years old, has grown to such an extent that its enrolment of over 4,500 is the largest in the southern branch of the Presbyterian Church.

He is chairman of the Board of World Missions and served as a member of the joint-negotiating committee which prepared the plan of church union. He is also a member of the board of trustees at Austin College at Sherman, Texas.

His interest in this college is more than purely academic, however, for two of his children, Joe, a senior, and Carol, a junior, are enrolled there. A third child, twelve-year-old Jannett, lives at home with her parents.

Apart from his church activities, Dr. Elliott has found the time to write three inspirational books: Coming to Terms with Life (now out of print), Lift High That Banner! and For The Living of These Days. The last two are on sale at the book store. A fourth book, Two Sons, which is concerned with the parable of the lost son and his elder brother, will come out on March 15. All of Dr. Elliott's books are published by John Knox Press of Richmond.

When asked what had been a major influence in his life, Dr. Elliott found it difficult to pinpoint his answer. He replied that the greatest influence was the people who encouraged him—his mother, his father who himself was a Presbyterian minister, his friends, and many school officials.

He spoke in high terms of his wife, Helen, whom he had met while at Park College. He stated that she was "the best thing" that had happened to him and that her understanding had helped him in his work as a preacher.

Dr. Elliott's philosophy is a very beautiful and moving one: "The secret of real happiness and fulfillment is self-forgetfulness in service of others and Christ." He stated that today's young people place too much emphasis on popularity. He feels that it is not the material possessions which matter but the ability to lose oneself in the concern of

Crews Named For Spring Play, 'She Stoops'

The business and production crews for "She Stoops to Conquer," the Playhouse production to be given March 4 and 5 have been announced by Playhouse president, Nancy Rideout.

Betty Messer will act as house manager. The stage manager will be Jim Gardner, and his assistant will be Marian Drotar. The backstage set crew is under the direction of Bob Brand, and includes Wendy Wood, Bill Heird, Bill Deerfield, and Ann Wiley.

The set is now being made under the direction of Liz Frei and Hershal Netherton, with Carol Pitts, Marian Drotar, John Mollard, and the stagecraft class also working on the committee.

Joan McNaughton is chairman of the make-up committee which includes Marvelyn Rise, Jane Hussey, and Liz Frei. The publicity is under the direction of Abigail Crosby; her committee is composed of Wendy Wood, Don Thiel, Glen Sherrod, Ann Wiley, and Bill Heird.

The ticket committee is made up of Sandy Dorsett, Charlotte Slappey, and Sadie Davis, with Dottie Enfield acting as chairman.

Bill Bolger will be at the light control board, and the costumes will be made under the direction of Ethelyn Cathey, assisted by Lila Crane, Marian Drotar, and Abigail Crosby. The props committee is made up of Ruth Wilson, chairman, Jim Barber, Wendy Wood, Don Thiel, and Janet Maib.

"She Stoops to Conquer," written by Oliver Goldsmith, is being directed by Kathleen Craven, and the principals in the cast are Carol Pitts, Hershal Netherton, Don Thiel, Marcia Williams, Carol Sleight, Bill Deerfield, Glen Sherrod, Dick Morse, Sandy Dorsett, and Bill Heird.

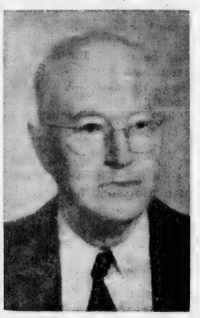
The play will be presented in the College Theatre.

Council To Study New Constitution

Student Council may take its first look at the new revised constitution at its meeting next week. In cooperation with the February Meetings program, Council held no meeting this past week.

A special student-faculty committee has been assembling materials for this new document for several weeks, and a rough draft was made during the Christmas vacation. Council president Carol Moore last week said the committee was trying to have enough work done on the constitution for council to take up the matter next week.

At the meeting last Wednesday, YWCA president Lynn Kiefer reported that Student-Faculty Senate had recommended that the Y's continue to publish the annual M-Book, rather than turning it over to Student Council as a council group recommended last semester.



YW has voted approval of Senate's recommendation, Miss Kiefer said. The matter is still to be approved by YMCA officially. Miss Kiefer added that the College had pledged help with publishing should the organizations need it.

President Moore herself introduced into discussion the matter of special privileges for senior women. She said many senior girls had talked about it and thought that seniors should have more privileges in recognition of their advanced standing.

(Dating in Knoxville is the only special privilege seniors have. Other women must first obtain special permission, according to College rules.)

No one had anything to say on the subject, so Miss Moore requested and got approval to appoint a committee of senior women to study the problem and report later.

College, Town Mourn Dr. Sisk In Funeral Services On Thursday

DR. AUGUSTUS SISK
Professor Here Since 1938

Mathematics Professor Dies At Hospital

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel for Dr. Augustus Sisk, Maryville College professor of mathematics, who died unexpectedly Tuesday morning.

This service was the first funeral to be held in the Chapel. Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd presided, and the Rev. Reuben Allen, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Alcoa, spoke for a few minutes. Mr. Allen was Dr. Sisk's pastor.

Dr. Sisk's former pastor, Dr. D. D. Lavendar, formerly with Greystone Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, gave the scripture readings and offered prayer.

In his prefatory remarks, Dr. Lloyd told of Dr. Sisk's 14½ years at Maryville College, and of his six-year attendance at Maryville, two in the preparatory department, and four as an undergraduate. Said Dr. Lloyd: "I have counted him a friend ever since he entered preparatory school when I was a freshman . . . . Here at the College we shall miss him greatly."

Mr. Allen recalled the installation of Dr. Sisk as an elder in the church on January 2 of this year. "The very look in his eye made me think, 'here is a man who believes what he says,'" the Alcoa minister declared. He had been Dr. Sisk's pastor for two years, he told the congregation.

Providing music for the service were Sheila Sutton, and a quartet comprised of Bill Howell, Harold

Other members of the College faculty in addition to Dr. Augustus Sisk, who died while they were actively working in their classes, include:

Dr. John W. Cummings, Dean of Students, 1936, Dr. J. Kelly Giffen, professor of Bible, February 4, 1937; Dr. James Henry McMurray, April 6, 1938; Dr. Morton M. Rodgers, professor of Bible, 1939; Fred L. Proffitt, college treasurer, September 30, 1943; Dr. Samuel T. Wilson, college president emeritus, died in July, 1944.

Grace Harrison's Mother Dies In Philadelphia

Grace Harrison, senior elementary education major, left Wednesday morning for her home in Philadelphia, Pa., because of the death of her mother.

Commencement Set For May 16

The 1955 Commencement will be held Monday, May 16, at 10 a.m., according to announcement made by the President's Office. Launching the Commencement activities will be the first performance of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," Saturday, May 7, in the Theatre

Exams will be held during the following week, beginning Monday with the A and B hour tests for seniors, and closing Saturday, May 14

The second performance of "Pygmalion" will be Friday, May 13, and the Alumni Day and Dinner will be Saturday, May 14. Baccalaureate is Sunday morning, May 15, followed by Commencement on Monday.

Glee Clubs To Present 'A Waltz Dream'

By Abigail Crosby

On Friday and Saturday, March 18 and 19, the Combined Glee Clubs will present "A Waltz Dream," an operetta by Oscar Strauss. The operetta is set in the imaginary kingdom of Sylvania, and involves a cast of nobles and ladies of court, an American cafe entertainer, and a troop of American tourists.

The performances are under the direction of Dan H. Kinsinger, who calls the story of the operetta a "mixture of intrigue, romance, and lovely music."

"A Waltz Dream" has been double-cast, but the persons playing each night will be announced later. The part of Maximilian X will be played by Don Thiel; Princess Helen, Erma Pinkston and Nancy Lou Jones, Prince Rupert, Jay Bollman; Lieutenant Niki, Howard Bell and Sonny Shackelford; Kay Robinson, Judy Ross and Virginia Zwicki;

Princess Matilda, Opal Miller and Roberta Hampton; Lieutenant Nomschi, David Ramsey; Duchess Louisa, Janet Maib and Nancy Peters; Bertam Budgett, Burt Jarman; Count Lothar, Bruce Ingles and Bill Potter; Count Sigismund, Kent Toomey and Lyle Talbot; Fifi, Carolyn Fuller and Sylvia Liles; and Annerl, Shirley Leever and Margaret Wilkinson.

The coordinator of the work committees is Jackie Speigner, and Morgan Biggs is the dancing coach. Kathleen Craven, is the technical advisor.

Students To Talk On Med. Schools

Nancy Dunn, Paul Payne, George Prochazka, and Professor Howell will speak at Pre-med club Thursday, February 10 on the general requirements for medical school.

The three student speakers have all been accepted at medical school. Miss Dunn has been accepted at Vanderbilt, Payne at State Medical College of Georgia, and Prochazka at Emory.

Arrangements Not Final On Math Teachers

College officials this week were not definite about the arrangements being made for mathematics classes. It is expected, however, that lower classes will be taught by one or more senior math majors, and that some other faculty member may take a higher class.

FTA, Music Ed To Have Joint Meeting

On February 24, FTA plans to meet jointly with the Music Ed. Club. The special speaker will be Mrs. Patterson.

Koster, Morris Both Have 8.7

Junior Dave Williams, philosophy-physics major from Spring City, heads last semester's honor roll with a 9.0 average. Close behind him are freshmen Eleonore Koster and Ruth Morris, both with 8.7 averages, and sophomore Polly Trnavsky with an 8.5 average.

Leading the senior class is Jim Kesler, 8.0, closely followed by Dick Thompson, 7.9. Besides Williams, the top grades of the junior class were made by Doris Glad, Esther Lerch, both 8.2, and Jean Peterson, and Gordon Van Pelt, both 8.0.

Heading the sophomore honor roll with Miss Trnavsky are Bill Deerfield, 8.2; and Dick Henderson, and Andy Loven, both 8.0. Miss Koster and Miss Morris lead the freshman class.

Other students on the honor roll are listed below.

Dr. Sisk

Already on this campus we are feeling the tremendous loss at the death of Dr. Augustus Sisk. It is at a time such as this that we realize the sound character and scholarship of such a teacher who was a friend to all his students and many others of the college whom he knew outside the classroom.

The Rev. Reuben T. Allen summarized Dr. Sisk well Thursday afternoon as "a man of sound, simple Christian faith." To us this is the most concise and accurate way to describe him.

Speaking for the entire student body, this paper expresses to his family the deepest and most sincere sympathy. We miss him a great deal.

It's Our Opportunity

Last Wednesday, Maryville College opened its 70th series of February Meetings. This week of religious emphasis is a vital part of our campus life, and is usually an integral part of other church-related colleges throughout the United States. Following a long established custom all over campus activities will be discontinued for the ten days' duration of the meetings.

The purpose of February meetings is to devote a portion of the college year to concentrated spiritual emphasis. These meetings through their long history have meant a great deal to the spiritual life of the college and to many individuals connected with it.

Again this year as in the past we will hear many complaints about the long chapels, the qualities of the speaker's voice and the choice of hymns. No doubt, to many people on campus, these ten days will mean no more than the inconvenience of long chapels.

But to many others, who will greatly outnumber the professional gripers, February Meetings will mean a great deal more. It will be a time of consecration for some, and a time of rededicataion for others. A time to re-examine values, to rethink vital problems concerning life purposes, to rekindle the bond of fellowship: this and more the meetings will mean to a great majority of the college community.

As with most phases of living, so with February Meetings the attitude of the participants is of vital concern. If you go to chapel expecting to be bored, you will be bored. If you go expecting to experience a spiritual growth, you will experience a spiritual growth.

In this secular age, let us all be grateful for a college like Maryville which is endowed with a rich heritage of Christian tradition and ideals. Long after we graduate we will look back with thankful memories to the inspiration of the February Meetings.

Let us continue this years meetings with a prayerful determination to make them a success and let us emerge from these meetings better men and women.

In The Outside World

"From time to time" we intend to pass on to some of our readers of this space some interesting facts, items, and what-not that we have found in other periodicals, including papers from other colleges, as well as regular commercial hack jobs.

Please don't confuse this effort as another imitation of the Reader's Digest. We intend to be true to the source, but what we print will hardly be a condensation of the original body of material. If such a thing ever does happen, there is a member of our publication staff whose one main purpose in life is to use any opportunity possible to harangue and slander the Digest and other condensers, so this paper will hear about any such subversive tendencies. Your comments, of course, are always welcome.

An interesting pastime we have is one of taking the Knoxville Nude-Sentinel each day and reading the headlines of sensation stories, which appear by the scores on page one during the week, whether they tell of double slayings in Knoxville or quadruple suicides on the Yukon River. Here are examples of Page-One heads in the issue of January 31:

THREE KILLED IN SEPARATE E-T WRECKS
7 HURT IN CAR-TRUCK COLLISION
FORMER LAFOLLETTE MOTHER AND 4 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE
YOUTH DIES OF CRASH INJURIES
RIDGE MAN KILLED NEAR NEWCOMB
WRECK KILLS MAN AT SEVIER BRIDGE

The biggest story was an eight-column streamer which proclaimed:

OFFICER GWINN, ESTRANGED HUSBAND HE SOUGHT TO QUESTION, DIE IN GUNFIGHT

A sob story on the murdered policeman was headed:

GWINN WAS EQUALLY AT HOME IN FLOWER GARDEN, FIGHT RING

Scots & Soda

By Bob Evans

This is the story of Dockathorpus Alexis Jennings, a gallant knight of old, who is more popularly known as Dock the Lion-hearted. Early one misty medieval morn, Dock sallied forth from his castle on his black charger, for you see Dock was not only gallant but proud. He could not afford a scrub down for his white charger, but he was too proud to ride forth without him. Consequently that morning he rode from the castle fifth. But since liquor was not permitted in that domain he poured the bottle into the moat.

I might point out here that not only was Dock gallant but his horse was gallant also. As a result, Dock named him, of all things, "Gallant." Gallant was a gallant steed in the true sense of gallantry. I might add that Gallantry was a neighboring fief. Dock's domain was called Ballantry because of the breweries there.

Now to get back to the so-called story. As Dock galloped down the road from his castle, he met his partner-in-crime "Weasel" MacCall.

Weasel said, "Do you feel like robbing a bank this week-end?"

Dock replies, "Don't be absurd! The rivers in this diefage haven't even been named—"

Changing the subject Dock added, "—Is this the to the Valley of Euphorin?"

"It's sick thirsty," barked Weasel, "or half past hate, I'm in no mood for questions."

"You're in no mood," said Dock.

"First you accoat me," replies Weasel, "then you tell me what I'm not in." With that, Weasel scurried up a telephone pole and disappeared.

Dock then zagged and zigged and zigged and zagged down the ziggish zaggish path that zigzzagged through the countryside and strangely enough was called "Zigzag Path."

In continuing down Zigzag Path to the Valley of Euphorin he passed a monastery, and as it was late, he requested accomodations for the night. The monks complied with his wishes. Among the monks Dock noticed an old acquaintance of his, Shepard the Terrible. Dock asked Shepard why he had left his native village to enter the monastery. Shepard replied that he found he could not handle a pigskin so decided to see if he could do any better with a sheepskin.

The next morning Dock took leave of the monastery and started down the road. On this road which was called Lover's Laing he met the lamp-lighter from the nearby castle, Jim Dimmer. Jim asked Dock if this was the road to Atlanta.

Dock replied, "Don't be absurd! The oceans haven't been named yet. This is the thirteenth century."

Feeling that he had done his chivalrous deed for the day, Dock continued down the road.

Now this point might confuse you but believe it or not this night had worked overtime and performed a good deed in the day. I sincerely hope that this insignificant idiosyncracy will not tend to break the smooth flow of this narrative in your mind.

At this point in the story an unusual glint appeared in Dock's eye. Soon the strange apprehension spread to his whole face, his jaw dropped and he whirled in his tracks. For you see, he had forgotten his trusty steed, Gallant.

Dock stumbled back to the monastery to get his charger. Then he set out once more. As he rode on his way or I should say on his horse, he heard a scream. He galloped off, that is his horse did, in the direction of the scream, to see if he could be of assistance. He rode into a clearing and discovered a dragon abducting a witch—(a which?) —a sorceress.

Dock said to the dragon, "Are not thou the son of Wilkins, the fire-breathing dragon who recently received a pension from Jack Webb?"

The dragon replied, "Yes, I am the son of Wilkins."

-:- -:- -:-

Dock dismounted and charged at the dragon. The dragon rapped its claws around the witch and set her aside. Dock charged across the clearing until he was so close to the dragon that he could feel the heat of the dragon's fiery breath on his face. Suddenly Dock stopped in his tracks. Cold beads of sweat appeared on his forehead, his hands became cold and clamy and fear fell upon his lion-like heart. He turned quickly and ran unhesitatingly to his steed, for you see, he had forgotten his lance.

Then with lance in hand he returned to finish the monster which he did accomplish in the middle of the third round.

He walked over to the sorceress and tried to comfort her because she had been so terribly frightened that she had begun to cry.

He spoke to her very softly and said, "What is your name?"

"Wilma Marsh," replied the sorceress.

"Where do you live?" questioned Dock.

"I'm 18, but would have been 20 except I was sick two years."

-:- -:- -:-

Dock took Wilma to the nearest police station and left her with the desk sergeant who was named Bugie Thosahagen.

In continuing on his way Dock met a balk-headed man with flaming red hair. Dock asked the elderly gentleman why his hair was so brilliant in color.

The man replied, "You'd have flaming red hair also if you had to stick your head in a dragon's mouth every day and twice on Saturdays, already!"

Dock said, "Oh, you must be Bill Butts that famous dragon trainer."

Bill said, "Heretofore, therewith and herein you'd better keep the furlshgergin dragon from letting air out of the tires on Ralph's car."

-:- -:- -:-

And now as we leave the island of Pango Dingo on our raft made of whale bones we think of those two magical words which cure all serious complications of adult life: "Don't marry "

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bill Deerfield

Attention all horse opry enthusiasts: On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday "Four Guns to the Border" will be playing at the Park. The film stars Rory Calhoun and Coleen Miller. If, however, you prefer the other type of picture, the Capitol will present three of them this coming week. On Monday only, "The Man on the Eiffel Tower" will be shown; and on Thursday and Friday, "Bowery to Bagdad." (With Huntz Hall and de Bowery Boys?)

Of course most of us prefer intellectual pursuits to motion pictures, so here are five of the 56 thousand books that are just waiting to be dusted off by us eager bibliphiles:

The Seven Deadly Sins by Bloomfield: This is a scholarly study of medieval culture that attempts to interrelate art, theology, history, and literature of the period. The author discusses the Hellenistic pagan background of the era and traces the development of the Middle Ages from its beginning through its break up at the advent of the Rennaisance. It is especially recommended for students of English literature and those in the Middle Ages in general.

Appointment With God by J. B. Philips: This new book by the celebrated Anglican clergyman is a must for every thinking Christian. In it, Mr. Phillips discusses the sacrament of holy communion and attempts to clarify its meaning in the light of New Testament interpretation. He also endeavors to explain how, as Christians, we can make the institution of the Lord's Supper a more meaningful spiritual experience.

Thurber Country by James Thurber: "A new collection of pieces about males and females, mainly those of our own species."

The Best Stories of Guy de Maupassant, selected by Saxe Commins. Ou la la!

A Russian Journal by John Steinbeck: A book composed of notes by author Steinbeck and a series of excellent photographs taken by Robert Capa while the two men toured Russia, talking with peasants, intellectuals, and, of course, the "workers."

This interesting book, like the recent photographic articles that appeared in Life, does not deal with the political side of the nation's life, but rather that of the average individual, presenting his thoughts on the problems that are facing all men the world over.

Return of the Native by Thomas Hardy: This famous novel, written in the late nineteenth century, depicts symbolically the universal struggle for existence. Set against the somber backdrop of the heaths of Wessex, it tells the story of Eustacia Vye, who is a vixen of the Scarlet O'Hara school.

Her ambitions and connivings make fascinating reading for anyone with fortitude enough to wade through author Hardy's introductory chapters which, although they set the mood of the novel, are rather long winded and overly descriptive for the tastes of the modern reader.

POETRY

(ED. NOTE—The following poem was selected and published in the Eleventh Annual Anthology of poetry by the National Poetry Association. The anthology includes work by college students throughout the country. Mr. Lorenz wrote this poem last year to fulfill a requirement for Writers' Workshop.)

OBSESSION

Dead memories and voiceless echoes, washing souls of time,
You come from rocky years to drown this calm divine,
Oh, faded figures, passing truth, and godless hearts of men,
A some uncherished hope your lost souls try to ken,
Try vainly to relieve the easy pains of pleasant sorrow
And try to soothe with peace their yesterday's tomorrow
Yet knowingly some victor claimed a wreath from off their brow
And saturated firm inconstancy that now
Pursues your faithless faithful travelers groping on with pride,
Who stumbles fearlessly, caught in your ebbing tide.

Sports Spotlights

By Sonny Shackelford

The sports world is really looming. The U.S. tennis stars, Bill Seixas and Tony Trabert, have returned from the land "down under" where they won the coveted Davis Cup, symbol of world supremacy in that field. . . The indoor track season is drawing a lot of attention with some outstanding participants in the high jump pole vault and mile run. . . The roving racquet, which has taken a lot of criticism lately, is trying to clear itself. . . The fight it's making affords good reading. And what has become of the much sought after fight between Marciano and Archie Moore, the light-heavy title holder. . . Now that there have been a few more upsets around the country, highlighted by Georgia Tech's second upset victory over mighty Kentucky the fans are eagerly awaiting to see who shall emerge the nation's best ball clubs.

In the realm of baseball, don't be surprised if in the near future, one of the leagues adds a couple of new teams. And for those of you who delight in the word, spring training in both football and baseball isn't too far away.

Now that we have glimpsed the sports news, let's go into some detail. Yes, the U.S. Davis Cup squad defeated Australia back in September. Seixas and Trabert stayed over and won a few more tournaments before returning. They took the Nat Double title from Rosewall and Hood. Rosewall, the hard-hitting southpaw, upset Trabert, however, and beat his friend and partner Lew Hood to win the singles title recently. The U.S. stars will be ready come August, when the National Singles event will be held, closely followed by the Davis Cup challenge round.

I mentioned the indoor track season. Probably the event causing the highest interest is the mile run. Wes Santee, the country's only hope to break the four-mile barrier, and Gunna Nielsen, the fine runner from abroad, have put on some fine shows. Since the miracle milers Landy and Bannite have returned, the eyes of the world are on these two. Last week in Boston with 13 thousand fans cheering wildly, Sautee clipped one whole second off the old indoor record when he covered the distance in 5:03.8. Who knows. . . the slim Kansan may break that four minute barrier pretty soon, inside or outside.

Boxing has been put on the spot. A lot of evidence has been presented against boxing, showing that in many respects, it is a bad business. I believe that some of the people are trying to clear it up, but that they are failing because the "big boys" are doing fine as it is. Maybe there will be a break in the situation soon. Part of the mess comes from doing things the way they are doing the Marciano-Moore proposition. Many people want the fight, but the promoters keep giving ridiculous reasons for not having it—probably protecting Marciano.

In basketball, some of the conference races are pretty clean. Basketball is having a good year, and it won't be long before the climax is reached. The two biggest tournaments, the NIT and NCAA, will be picking contending teams in a short while. And if you think you've had some upsets, wait till the pressure is really on in the big games.

Spring training for baseball and football is not far away. Many believe that squads are made during the practice sessions. If that be the case, you should watch out for your favorite team as they prepare for the coming seasons. Our own team, now that basketball season is closing, will be out working. You can get a preview of the coming season by watching them practice.

Fast E&H Boys Win Close One By 96-94

By Mike Connolly

On January 24th, the Scots played host to a favored Emory and Henry five, only to lose in the last five seconds 96-94. The game was played at a very fast pace, and the Scotties were in the game until the last second. The half-time score saw the Scots in the lead 53-49.

Keny and Wallace Pace Scots

Center Jack Keny and forward Bill Wallace paced the Scots' attack with 36 and 22 respectively. Tip-ins by Keny kept Maryville in the game until the last five seconds, when the Wasps' forward Don Youell pushed a long one-hander that hit from the corner with the score 94-94.

"Slug" Blair with 10 points early in the game was in trouble with fouls and finally fouled out in the third quarter, Bill Wallace also fouled out late in the game. Guards Bob Shelton and Lynn Sexton bucketed 14 and 9 points respectively.

Wasps Brought Stingers Out

The Wasps brought their stingers out in the second half and overcame the four point lead that the Scots had held at the half. Some quick fast breaks and some costly interceptions of Scottie passes are what hurt in the final few minutes of play.

The Wasps were led by their tricky little guard Bill Bennett who netted 36 points. Don Youell and Dave Couk scored 23 and 16 points respectively in adding to the Wasp victory.

Scots Have Biggest Lead

The Scots took the biggest lead in the game in the fourth quarter, when they pulled ahead by ten points 86-76. However, the Wasps fought back and with four minutes to go in the game, the score read 91-91.

Jack Keny then scored on a three-point play which put Maryville ahead 94-91. But, the Wasps tied it again, and with only five seconds to go, Youell sank his one-hander that won the game.

Hiwassee Easily Defeated

On the very next night the Scots played host to Hiwassee College and had no trouble in defeating them 74-57. Forward Bill Wallace paced the Scots with 19 points. Jack Keny and "Slug" Blair each added 13, and Lynn Sexton 10.

Subs Used Freely

Coach Honaker used his subs freely after the starting five had piled up a 45-19 half-time lead. Eleven Scots shared in the scoring and left the Hiwassee Cagers bewildered. Poe, Doran and Buckner led Hiwassee with 19, 14, and 13 points respectively.

Maryville College To Play Host To SEC Wrestling Tourney Next Weekend

Maryville College will be this year's host town to the Southeastern Conference Wrestling Tournament to be held February 18 and 19, next Friday and Saturday.

Auburn will be the team to beat as they go after their seventh consecutive title. Other schools participating will include Vanderbilt, Middle Tennessee State, Emory, Sewanee and Chattanooga.

Two Scotties will be defending their titles. Buford Miller, 130 pounds, should repeat his last year's win. Tom Bugenhagen, who is wrestling at 177 pounds this year, will go down to 167 pounds for the tourney. He should take the crown at this weight, but will be pushed by Al Myers of Auburn. Bugenhagen is the defending 167 pound champ.

Other Scots who will be heard from are: Jerry Waters, Jim Cummings, Jack Renfro, Don Nabors, Don Moore, Tom Tom plus a heavyweight. Waters is undefeated, is S.E.C. competition this year and could go to the finals. Ray Downey of Auburn is a sure bet to repeat in the 137 pound class. Jim Cummings has a good chance to meet him in the finals. The 147 pound class will prove to be a battle between Dick Getz of Chattanooga and Jerry Emby of Auburn. Getz is the defending champ but Emby did not wrestle in college circles last year. Dick Downey of Auburn is favored to repeat in the 157 pound class. The 177 pound class looks like another tiger from Auburn, B. Saunders. Don Moore has a chance at the 191 pound crown while Abe Cohen will take the heavyweight championship.

The Highlanders should do well on a team basis taking a second or third. Auburn will take their seventh straight team championship.

Scots On Road

The Maryville quintet received a well-earned three day rest before leaving for Alabama to play Birmingham Southern, and Jacksonville State. On January 28, the Scots bowed to a strong Birmingham Southern team 105-65, despite Jack Keny's 22 points, which was the game's high scorer.

Bill Wallace, Lynn Sexton and Bob Shelton also tallied 13, 13, and 10 points respectively in the defeat. Birmingham set a hot pace throughout the whole game, leading at half-time by a 55-38 score. Birmingham was led by their two forwards Richard Lee with 18 and Lynn Crouch with 17 points. Twelve players scored for Birmingham in the contest.

Jacksonville State Next

The very next night the Scots were on the court again, this time against Jacksonville State. The score was fairly close throughout the first half of the game, with Jacksonville holding on to their lead and pulling away in the last half and winning by 87-67.

7 Point Lead at Half

Jacksonville only held a seven point lead at the half 41-34, but opened up in the third and fourth quarters with some quick scoring and gained a substantial lead, which they held for the remainder of the game.

Big Jack Keny was again the game's high scorer with 25 points respectively. Jacksonville was led by forward Bryan Yates and guard Floyd Mayers with 18 points each. Their center Howard Wuldrep also added 15 points to their victory.

Scots Home Again For T.W.C.

Just two days after their trip to Alabama, the Scots played host to Tennessee Wesleyaan College and bowed by a score of 84-72. The score was close throughout the game, with Wesleyan holding a slight lead.

At the half the Scotties were behind only by 5 points 43-38. Wesleyan pulled away late in the fourth quarter and held off various Scottie rallies to gain their victory.

Keny High Again

For the third straight game, center Jack Keny was the games high scorer with 33 points. Jim Saunders also contributed 12 for the Scots. Wesleyan was lead by Farmer and Knight with 19 and 18 points respectively.

Auburn Bests Scot Matmen

Alabama Polytechnic Institute defeated Maryville last Friday. Auburn boasts three S.E.C. champs and has ruled S.E.C. wrestling circles for the past six years.

Buford Miller was the only Scottie to win when he pinned Henry Bennett in six minutes. Heavyweight Don Moore lost a close 6-5 decision on riding time. The Scots picked up five points on a forfeit in the 123 pound class.

Summary:

123 pounds, Maryville won on a forfeit; 130 pounds, Miller (M) pinned Bennett (A), 6:00; 137 pounds, R. Southern, UC Play Scots Tonight

Birmingham Southern College and the University of Chattanooga will furnish the opposition tonight in the Scottie sporting world. Southern boasts a fine basketball team including a 6 ft. 8 in. center. They previously ran over the Highlander five, 105-68.

The Scottie wrestlers took a close 18-16 decision over Chattanooga last semester. Tonight's match should be a good one.

On Friday, January 21, the Local Yokels smashed the Athenian Bees, 40-17. Don Moore with 17 points was on top of the heap for the Yokels. Walt Hiller bounced in 10 for the Athenians.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers forfeited to the Muleheads in the second game of the day.

The Pre-Mins whalloped the YMCA Saints 57-26. Doug Brian was top tallier for the pre-seminarians with 24 points. Ed Drum scored 10 for the Saints.

The annual Stinkin' Shoe Classic, which is an intersociety basketball battle between Alpha Sig and Athenian, was held at 8:00 p.m., Saturday, January 22. The Alpha Sig Globetrotters downed the Athenian Lakers 50-41 in a highly contested battle. The officials for the game were Bill Dent and Jack Crouch, with Ken Wilkinson acting as announcer.

Alpha Sig was ahead throughout the entirety of the game. Athenian stayed within striking distance but never did gain the upper hand. The game was decided largely upon fouls, for Alpha Sig made 11 of its 20 foul shots whereas Athenian made only 4 out of 25.

Charlie Partee was high scorer for Sig with 14 tallies. Bill Strickland and Bob Ramger scored 13 and 8 points respectively for Alpha Sig. Mike Connolly with 9 points was top man for the Athenians. Sam Buffat added 8 to the Lakers' score.

The Pre-Mins edged by the Local Yokels 32-31 in the first game Monday. Doug Brian was again high hoopster for the Pre-Mins, this time with 15 points. Jim Cummings got two less for the Yokels.

The ever-powerful Muleheads trounced the Alpha Sig No Hammers 49-27. Jim Gregory rang up 19 points for the Mules with Mike Connolly scoring 12 for the No Hammers.

The last game of the day, the Athenian Bees forfeited to the YMCA Saints.

On Tuesday the Local Yokels sailed over the Alpha Sig No Hammers 31-18. Nat Campbell was top hoopster for the Yokels with 9 tallies. Dave Noble added 10 for the No Hammers.

In the second game the Muleheads shellacked the Pre-Mins 32-17. Jim Gregory with 12 was high tallier for the Mules and Ed Griggby got 7 for the preacher boys.

The YMCA Saints nosed by the Alpha Sig Tackhammers by a basket 31-29. The Saints' Bruce Ingles and the Tack's Blackie Blackwell each racked up 12 for their respective clubs.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers lost to the Local Yokels 31-20 in the only game last Wednesday. Nat Campbell was the number one man for the Yokels with 11 points. Jim Demer with 8 was on top for the Tacks.

League play was to end here, but due to a petition presented to Coach Johnson by many intramural basketball players, a third round of games was scheduled.

The third round began on Friday with the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashing the Destroyers 66-21. Lee Hammond came through with 26 big points for the Sledges and Sonny Shackelford with 11 points was top basketeer for the Destroyers.

The high-roosting Snowbirds trounced the Athenian A's 50-43 in the second game of the day. Chuck Dunn and Clarence Shepard were the top scorers for the white-feathered clan getting 14 apiece. The Athenian likewise had two high men. Ted Wilson and Harold O'Bannon each got 11.

The YMCA Tom Thumbs squeezed by the Alpha Sig Hammers 28-27. The Toms' Phil Young with 9 tallies was their number one scorer. Stan Mont was the Hammers' big gun getting 12 points.

This Monday the Local Yokels forfeited the first game to the always-powerful Muleheads.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers trampled the Athenian Bees 26-18. Harry MacCall was the top scorer for the Tacks with 9. Lynn Counts got 6 for the Athenians.

The Pre-Mins barely eked a victory over the Alpha Sig No Hammers. Doug Brian and Ken Hutson were top men for the preachers and No Hammers respectively with 14 points each.

The league-leading Snowbirds flew over the despondent Destroyers 66-32. High-scoring Chuck Dunn led the snowfowls with 25 points. Sonny Shackelford added 16 points to the Destroyers' score.

In the third one-pointer in two weeks, the YMCA Tom Thumbs just scarcely won over the Athenian A's 36-35. Herb White with 11 was the number one basketeer for the Toms. Mert Hall and Harold O'Bannon each rang up 9 points.

The Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashed the Alpha Sig Hammers 53-32 in the third game of the day. Bob Ramger tallied to the tune of 20 points for the Sledges. Jim Heddon racked up 12 tallies for the Hammers.

Vols To Have Discussion Sunday

This Sunday night Student Vols will hold a discussion after Vespers with Dr. William Elliot.

At the next meeting, February 13, the film, M'Vondo. is to be shown. It will serve to introduce the financial project Vols is sponsoring this semester.

Dr. Sisk . . .

Kelly, Harry MacCall, and Jim Akin. Eugene Jenkins was pianist. Men of the college faculty served as honorary pallbearers, and mathematics majors were active pallbearers. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery in Knoxville.

Dr. Sisk died at Blount Memorial Hospital, where he had entered last week end for a physical checkup. He passed away about 7 a.m. on Tuesday, and announcement of his death was made at the regular college chapel service. The Anderson tower flag was at half mast on Wednesday and Thursday.

For over 30 years Dr. Sisk was a teacher of mathematics in high school and college. He received his B. A. degree from Maryville College in 1917. In 1923 he received an MA degree from the University of Kentucky, and his Ph.D. in 1932 from Cornell University.

From 1923 to 1938 he taught mathematics at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. He began teaching at Maryville in 1938, and at his death was in his 15th year with the college.

According to Maryville barber M. F. Farmer, Dr. Sisk worked as a barber in town while he was attending Maryville College.

In addition to his other college courses, he attended four summer quarters at the University of Chicago. For four years he was a teacher primarily of math and physics in high schools, and also taught at Lincoln Memorial University and Peabody (Nashville) during summer terms.

Dr. Sisk was born June 5, 1889, in Marion, N. C. As a mathematics teacher he was a member of the American Mathematics Association and the Tennessee Teachers' Association. He contributed a number of articles to various publications in his field.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Steelman Sisk; three daughters, Mrs. John M. McGhee, Union City; Mrs. Chester Wright, of Beaver Falls, Pa.; and Mrs. Harold Kidder of Starris, Conn.; eight grandchildren.

Dr. Elliott . . .

the great cause of the people.

Dr. Elliott was born in Indiana and reared in Texas and New Mexico. He was graduated from Clovis High School in New Mexico, received his A. B. at Park College near Kansas City, and his B.D. at Louisville Seminary.

He won two fellowships while at seminary, the Newberry and Humphry, which helped to make it possible for him to get his Ph.D. at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. He counts his stay in Edinburgh and his opportunity to know and preach to the people there as a great experience in understanding Presbyterianism.

After receiving his doctor's degree, he returned to Louisville Seminary where he taught for a year. Dr. Elliott's first pastorship was at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian in Knoxville where he remained for five years. Druid Hills Presbyterian in Atlanta was in his charge for almost nine years. Dr. Elliott is now at Highland Park where he has been minister for the past eleven years.

surprising that Dr. Magill was connected with both the Men's Glee Club and the Vesper Choir while he was a student here.

He was also active in the town religious activities, as director of the New Providence choir. He was a member of the college quartet.

Neither did he neglect his dramatic activities, for he took a part in the glee-club presentation of "Iolanthe" and also played the part of the king in "Hamlet."

Not the least of Dr. Magill's activities at Maryville was meeting his wife, a native Maryvillian and also a graduate of the college. Now they have two children, Carol 11, and David 7, both of whom are following in their musical parent's footsteps. Carol plays both the piano and the trumpet and David plays the piano.

A real addition to the college may be the result of one of Dr. Magill's memories of February Meetings when he was a student here. Meetings were held in Voorhees Chapel then, which had no organ. The leader of the Meetings decided there was a need for one and as a starter for an organ fund, donated his honorarium which he received for leading the meetings. Looking around at our organless chapel, Dr. Magill smiled enigmatically and said: "'Go thou and do likewise.'"

Choir To Make LP Of 'Peaceable Kingdom'

To Record Later In Spring

By Grace Stinecipher

This spring the Vesper Choir, in addition to its many other activities, will make a recording of the "Peaceable Kingdom" by Randall Thompson. When completed, this will be a ten-inch long-playing record in a regular commercial case.

Different from the first recording made by the choir five years ago will be the fact that there will be no stock kept of this new album. Only those who order and pay in advance will receive one.

Martha Freeney and Anne Buckley will receive the orders and payment. The deadline for ordering a record will be Monday, May 9. The records will then be made by Recorded Publications Inc. (RCA) in Camden, N. J. and sent directly to each buyer.

The price for this album has not yet been determined, but will be announced soon.

Annual Skit Nite Set For March 12

The annual Skit Nite, presented by the four societies, has been set for Saturday, March 12, at 8 o'clock. The place has not yet been determined, but will be announced later. Skit Nite is under the joint sponsorship of the Social Board and Inter-Club Council.

Heading the Skit Nite committee for Alpha Sigma are Charles Partee and Guy Selander; the script is being written by Charles Partee. Perry Fuller is the Athenian Skit Nite chairman, and the Owls' script is being written by Jim Hopkins.

Carol Moore and Junior Davis are in charge of the preparations for Theta Epsilon, and their script has been written by Carol Moore. Heading the committee for Bainonian are Sue Burton and Ann Yater; the script was written by Abby Crosby.

Each year the societies present a 20-minute skit, and the winner, chosen by a panel of judges, is awarded a trophy. If this trophy is won three years in succession, the winner keeps it permanently. As Theta Epsilon won permanent possession of the trophy last year, a new one is being made for the 1955 winner.

Alpha Sigma To Present Sweetheart Show

By Carolyn Cones

Alpha Sig's annual Sweetheart Show will be held in the intramural gymnasium tonight at 6:30. The theme will be "Sweetheart Memories."

Principals of this musical performance include Joe Quinn, Jim Laster, Bob Lorenz, Bob Finertie, and Harry MavCall, M.C. There is also a chorus.

Highlights of the show will be the presentation of the new sweetheart of Alpha Sig and her four "cupids" and the singing of the new "Alpha Sig Sweetheart Song," an original composition by Bob Lorenz.

The program was written and directed by Bob Lorenz with John Borter, Bob Basford, and Ben Stabley assisting.

Discussion On Germany

The International Relations Club will have its next meeting on February 21 at 6:40.

At this time Gene Spiekerman will head a panel that will discuss Germany.

Dr. Lloyd Again Makes Trip To California

Yesterday Dr. Lloyd left by plane to attend the Second Annual Western Area Meeting of the National Council of Presbyterian Men in the United States of America, to be held February 11-13 at the Hotel Senator in Sacramento, Calif.

Dr. Lloyd will conduct the celebration of holy communion on Sunday morning and also the closing worship service on Sunday evening.

Then, he will continue his tour of speaking engagements by flying to Ottowa, Canada, on Monday World Presbyterian Alliance.

From Ottowa, Dr. Lloyd will fly to New York to speak at a dinner of the First Presbyterian Church of Buffalo on February 18. Sunday, February 20, will find him at the Brick Presbyterian Church in Rochester in the morning and at a public ecumenical service in where he will spend three days attending a meeting of the North American Area Council of the Syracuse that same evening. Dr. Lloyd will remain in Syracuse through Monday evening for the purpose of attending a dinner and reception to be held by the presbytery.

On Tuesday, February 22, he will be heading back toward Maryville, but he will stop off at Baltimore for another presbytery dinner and meeting before arriving on Wednesday.

Then, after a day and a half of rest, he will be off again to attend another church meeting to be held in New York City.

'Geez! And It Was 65 Yesterday!'

After having enjoyed a balmy Thursday with temperatures in the 60's, students headed for breakfast Friday morning received a cold wet shock on stumbling out into a saturated two-inch snow fall. It began falling about 4 a.m. Maryville early risers reported.

They really couldn't say they had not been warned; Thursday afternoon weather forecasts predicted that winter would return, but in the form of a cold rain. "Snow flurries are forecast for some portions of Tennessee and Kentucky, but not for this area," said a weather story in a Thursday evening paper. Rain began Thursday afternoon and began coming down harder around midnight.

Snow continued to fall during the morning, as campus crew workers fell to with shovels, brooms, and tractors. After a brief forecast of what spring would be like, nature appears to have remembered that, after all, it's still February.

College Room Rent Was $15-$20 — But That Was In 1904!

By Carolyn Cones

The President of Maryville College publicity announced college expenses as $1.35 per week for board, $6.00 per term for tuition, and room rent from $15 to $20 for the entire school year.

My goodness, how did a statement like that find its way into The Echo? Was the proofreader day-dreaming? Has the administration cracked under the strain? Are we in the midst of a depression? No, the figures are quite correct. They were taken from a 1904 copy of The Maryville Record, and the President referred to is Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson, the man in whose honor our present chapel is named.

A survey of the 1904-1905 copies of this newspaper in the library will produce other quaint, interesting, and sometimes surprising items about the college. Traditions may be traced and fascinating contrasts and parallels drawn.

For example, the dogs which roam the campus today are accepted as a part of Maryville College, and 50 years ago animals also constituted a segment of MC life. Although the members of the canine family are not mentioned in the paper, there is an item in the regular college column of a pet owl which was suffering from loss of sleep because its sleeping hours coincided with the students waking hours.

The societies, of course, were here at that time, but their function appears to have been of a more cultural nature than now. There are mentions of meetings which featured vocal and instrumental solos, discussions on literature and political problems, and debates.

One debate in particular serves to date the article: "Resolved: That the U. S. Senators should be elected by the people." Also one society discussed the advisability of remaining neutral in European affairs.

MC participated in sports and won a distinguished record for itself, especially in football, for it was in this sport that the college fought to the very top of the association.

The girls took part in interscholastic basketball and had a team which accomplished the defeat of U-T to the tune of 29-0. Oh yes, the baseball team from the coffin factory was defeated by our second team, no less, by a score of 16-2.

The two years covered by the paper were important ones in the advancement of the college. It was then that the contest over the estate of the late David B. Fayerweather was decided, and MC was awarded $175,000.

A week later came the announcement that Ralph Voorhees of New Jersey had given $15,000 toward the construction of a much needed chapel and an additional $85,000 which was granted under certain conditions. It was also at this time thaat the college was soliciting funds to go toward the erection of two new dormitories, and an extension was added to Baldwin.

Four Now Teaching Mathematics Classes

Williams' Son Teaching Class

The schedule of mathematics classes as just announced is as follows:

Freshman Math 102 will be taught by Sarah Pledger, a senior math major. Calculus 206 will be taught by Margaret Hennemuth, who is an assistant in the Student Help Office to Miss Mary Miles.

The surveying course, or math 204, is under the supervision of J. E. Fortescue, who is employed as an engineer at the Aluminum Company of America. Mr. Fortescue is a graduate of the North Carolina State College at Raleigh, North Carolina.

Charles Williams, son of Dr. L. L. Williams, who graduated three years ago from Maryville, and who has had a year of graduate training at Vanderbilt University, is supervising math 301, and is also in charge of the Special Studies of mathematics majors. He is employed at Oak Ridge.

These last two classes, course 301 and 204 are currently meeting at night, due to conflicts of the students' schedules.

8 To Perform In Recital On Tuesday

Tuesday afternoon, there will be a student recital in the FAC. Howard Bell, baritone, will sing "La Sciatemi morire" by Monteverde and Floyd Hickman, tenor, will sing "Er Ist Gekommen" by Franz.

Lynn Mitchell, pianist, will present "Etude in C Minor, Op. 25, No. 12" by Chopin. Carolyn Lime, contralto, and Mary Brasfield, organist, will render "My Master Hath A Garden" by Randall Thompson. "Vogel als Prophet" (The Prophet Bird) by Schumann will be played by Louise Ogden, pianist.

Martha Jackson, soprano, will sing "The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes" (Gitanjali) by Carpenter and Bobbye Carson, contralto, will sing "Mon Coeur S'ouvre a Ta Voix" (Samson et Dalila) by Saint-Saens.

Pre-Mins To Hold Business Meeting

Pre-Ministerial Association will hold a business meeting this coming Thursday at 6:45 in the Y Rooms.

The constitution of the organization and other important matters will be discussed, and all members are urged to attend.

Fund Begun For Memorial To Dr. Sisk

A group of mathematics majors and students in advanced math classes have begun a fund for a memorial to the late Dr. Augustus Sisk, who died last week.

It is not yet decided what form the memorial will take, a spokesman said this week.

Persons desiring to contribute to this fund may see Tom Bugenhagen, Sarah Pledger, Phil Young, Milton Carpenter, or Gavin Douglas.

Coulter Speaks To Business Club

Harold Coulter, Advertising Manager for Proffitt's Department Store was guest speaker for the Business Club meeting Thursday night.

A film is planned for the next meeting, which is February 24, Gordon Van Pelt, president, has announced. The club is also planning a field trip in the near future. Doc Jennings is vice president, Harold Jones is secretary, Marion Gamble is treasurer, and Newell Witherspoon is the faculty advisor of the club.

Maryville's YW Nearly 67 Years Old; Originally Formed For Bible Study

By Janet Whitmore

YWCA has been in existence on Maryville campus since April 22, 1888. It was begun then by Miss Helen Lord, the only woman on the faculty at that time. She established it for the purpose of Bible study for at that time the curriculum did not provide for this subject.

The Maryville group was organized 15 years after the first student YW in the U.S. The Maryville YW met on Sunday afternoon for devotions and on Monday night for Bible study. The meetings were held first in Baldwin Hall and then in the Voorhees Chapel until 1947 when that building burned. In 1950 YW began holding its meetings in the Fine Arts Center.

In the early years YW provided a reading room at the back of Baldwin Hall. It contained carefully selected books and papers for Sunday reading. Later this reading room moved to the second floor of Thaw and served also as a recreation room.

In 1919 a Y store was opened in Pearsons lobby. There a student could buy cans of milk, soup, beans, crackers, cheese and ice cream in season. In 1941 the Y's decided to work it jointly and so purchased the Chatterbox or what is now the Alpha Sig House.

Nu Gamma was begun in 1924. During this time campaigns were also held to send girls to the Blue Ridge Conference in North Carolina. Some other activities sponsored by the Y were: the Y "Bee" published weekly, the Lyceum programs, which later became the Artist Series, athletic tournaments such as Varsity now conducts, Y Retreat, mission work, community service and May Day.

Pancake Breakfast Planned Monday

By Don Adams

Next week, the YWCA of Maryville College is joining her sister organizations all over the country in celebration of 100 years of growth and service.

The original Young Women's Christian Association was formed in 1355 in England by Lady Kiniard, who brought together several existing groups in Scotland and England for the purpose of providing homes for young women.

In 1894, the world YWCA was organized with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, six years after the Maryville College, Christian Association was formed. National Headquarters were set up in New York in 1912.

The main object of the YWCA is the building of a better society by interpreting Christianity in terms of today. The motto of YW indicates the Christian emphasis of life: "Not by might, nor by power but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

There are YWCA's all over the world, associations are located in all large cities, and many college campuses have their associations.

Maryville's Y centennial is a scheduled series of week-long events beginning Sunday, February 20 with the reenactment of the first meeting of Y on April 22, 1888, in Baldwin Hall. Martha Jackson has charge of activities centering about the first meeting. Some 30 girls are to take part.

Sunday evening, Y Radio will devote a special program to the 100th anniversary of the YWCA. All faculty members are cordially invited.

President of Y Lyn Kiefer has announced preparations for the all campus-faculty Pancake Breakfast to be held at the Y rooms Monday, February 21.

Co-chairmen of the Breakfast are Elizabeth Murphey and Dee Woods. The breakfast committee is composed of Betty McKenny and Lila Crane. In charge of publicity are Pat and Nancy Jones, Sue Settle, Judy Ross and other members of the YWCA publicity staff.

Program Chairman, Liz Murphy, announced that daily observances of YWCA history presented in interesting sketches of evens of 20-year periods will be presented during the week. Clara Jo Minarik and Ruth Orr are supervising these events.

Schedule Given For Echos

Here is a tentative schedule for publication of The Echo during the remainder of the semester:

February 26, March 12 and 26, April 2, 16, and 30; May 7 and 14.

Persons desiring to subscribe to The Echo may do so by seeing business manager Jim Cummings. The rate is 50 cents per semester.

Meetings Close With Expressions Of Appreciation

Maryville's 79th series of February Meetings closed Thursday morning as spokemen for the College and students expressed appreciation to the leaders, and with the leaders' stating their appreciation of the opportunity to come to Maryville College.

Student Body president Carol Moore presented Dr. William Elliott, Dr. Henry Barraclough, and Dr. John Magill with certificates showing that they would receive recordings of "The Peaceable Kingdom" by the College Choir later this year after the work has been done.

Dr. Elliott told the assembled faculty and students and many outsiders that no other college he knew of had "the same feeling" in a time of religious emphasis that Maryville had. "Nowhere else can I feel as free to preach what is in my heart as I can here," the Dallas minister said.

During the time he was here for the Meetings period he preached 16 sermons and spoke at other meetings and discussion groups on campus and in town.

Dr. Barraclough told the congregation of his first hearing about Maryville from Dr. Charles Alexander, one of a well-known evangelistic team with whom Dr. Barraclough worked about 40 years ago. "I am a trustee of colleges and a theological seminary, and they all have excellencies of their own," he said, "but none of them I have ever been to has what Maryville has." He added that he looked forward toward returning to the College each year for February Meetings, partly because he could practice "my first love—music."

Dr. Barraclough is assistant stated clerk of the Presbyterian USA General Assembly.

Dr. John Magill is the only person of the three leaders this year who is a Maryville graduate, and his remarks centered around reminiscences of the four years he was here. "Things have not changed a bit in 20 years" in relation to the Meetings, he said. Dr. Magill is minister of the Abington Presbyterian Church in the Philadelphia, Pa., area, and enjoys music as an avocation. Near the end of the Meetings he announced that the congregations had sung over 75 hymns of the church.

All three men left by plane shortly after noon Thursday. Dr. Magill and Dr. and Mrs. Barraclough left together for Philadelphia, Dr. Elliott back to his work in Dallas, Texas.

Most of Dr. Elliott's sermons were recorded on tape; further announcement is to be made concerning the use of these recordings. Books by Dr. Elliott are still available at the college bookstore.

Crothers To Speak At Vespers

The speaker at Vespers this Sunday will be the Rev. Robert R. Crothers. Mr. Crothers is the pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Decatur, Illinois, and is also the son of Dr. W. H. Crothers, a well-known Maryville retired minister.

On Sunday, February 20, Dr. Cecil W. Lower of McCormick Theological Seminary will be the speaker at Vespers. Dr. Lower is associate professor of Pastoral Theology at McCormick Seminary. Dr. Lower will be on the campus until Monday afternoon and will be very glad to talk to anyone interested in a church vocation or interested in going to McCormick Seminary.

Cathey, Graulich To Read At Workshop

Monday at 4:30 Ethelyn Cathey and John Graulich are scheduled to present their original manuscripts before the members of Writer's Workshop.

Dr. E. R. Hunter and Jim Hopkins will serve as critics.

An Appreciation

As Dr. William Elliott, Dr. John Magill, and Dr. Henry Barraclough leave our campus this week The Echo would like to express in this way our appreciation for their excellent leadership of the February Meetings, in which we all participated over a nine-day period.

To Dr. Elliott we send our thanks for his sincere messages of faith and its application in the Christian life; for the challenges and provocative questions he gave to us through his tremendous aptitude for speaking expression. We hope that he will soon be able to visit this College again, before that new generation of students comes along, if possible.

Dr. Magill seems already a familiar acquaintance, although he is not on our campus so frequently. Throughout the Meetings he has always been willing to take time to speak to any student who wished to see him. On one occasion when a student asked if he had time to talk, he replied, "Of course. Time's the one thing I do have." A small thing in comparison with the larger values we encounter during February Meetings is the familiarity we gain with some great hymns we ordinarily do not sing very often. Nevertheless, this seems quite worthwhile as something for which to thank Dr. Magill, as well as for his enthusiastic, capable leadership of the singing.

"Barry," come back. We think everyone recognizes your extraordinary ability to lead a congregation in singing with the piano, and your wonderful personality is always apparent. It seems nearly incredible that a man with your heavy job and multitude of responsibilities would desire to take time off to come to Maryville. We feel quite envious just in knowing you like it here. We are quite sure you must be pleased to be our accompanist because of the number of times you have returned for the February Meetings. May you be back for several more years.

The service of these three church leaders is an excellent example of the outstanding type of Christian witness and service. It is to be hoped that we may wish to perform our jobs in Christ's Kingdom with our best will also.

A Step Ahead

It has long been thought that the whole college should adopt an honor system, but it seems virtually impossible in face of the opposition with which various proposals have met. The chorus which invariably follows any honor play is "It'll never work! Maryville isn't ready for it." But no one can tell you why it won't work and why MC isn't ready.

The girls in Baldwin have decided, however, that an honor system will work, and that Baldwin, at least, is ready to give it a try. The girls are basing the system on the idea that honor is merely the application of consideration with sincerity and integrity. Their system was created to make each girl feel herself an integral part of the house. The girl becomes important insofar as the success of the system is up to the individual.

Needless to say, certain rules are still enforced, and recommendations for behavior and action have been made, but the old police system has been abolished.

In place of the old system, each girl is responsible for her own conduct; should she violate the principles of conduct, she feels obligated to report herself. In addition, each girl is responsible for the conduct of others whereby she feels obligated to report an offender if the disturbance or violation continues after a polite warning.

The girls in Baldwin are to be congratulated on their attitude toward self-discipline. Their desires and actions prove adult minds. We hope that Baldwin's honor system is a step forward toward a total honor system which Maryville surely is capable of administering.

Council Progress

We are glad to hear what progress the Student Council is making. When the words "student council" are mentioned, the student part seems to be generally disregarded, and we tend to forget that they have been elected by us to represent our desires. That these powers are limited we are aware, but we congratulate them on the fact that they are taking advantage of what powers they do have.

This is the only organization on the hill which has a full representation of the student body and is the only place in which student views can be aired with the possibility of something being done about them. We believe that in approaching things as they are doing, the council will find that it has increased its powers.

Scots & Soda

By Pate Boyd

Since Abby was more concerned with running innocent people from that establishment that we so lovingly yclep "dining hall" (i.e. hall in which one, two, or possibly several more "dine") than she was with informing the writer that our beloved Echo comes out this week and not next week, all interesting, humorous and biting material will have to be dug, digged, dag, or as Pogo would say, "dunged" (probably with a bit more truth) from none other than youm—we could be corny and say "youm-all".

* * * *

Only just recently have Memorial and her versions (if you're reading this aloud to someone, don't explain—either way is taken for granted) of fine, young womanhood been exposed to another reign of terror from the ever diligent and protecting eyes of—you know what the little dog says, 'ralph! ralph! Accordingly, Humble Harry Mc. is no Humble but Heavenly! Why? Ahh, the ways of admonition are severe indeed.

It seems that the worthy matron of said dorm, in the following of certain duties, interjected this to the squirming young lass who is at present Heavenly's affair of heart, "Now (let's be indiscriminate and call her Sue) Sue, you know about the boy who told his girl that kissing her made him feel wondrously good and heavenly. The girl looked at him a moment and asked him not to try to get to heaven in one night." This was to be passed on, in all its brilliance to ol' Ex-Humble, alias Heavenly. Of course everybody knows it would be impossible for anybody to get to heaven in one night, but we feel sure that some are certainly heaven-bound.

* * * *

Alas! Memorial, it is feared that you are more menned against than menning. Have good courage and plenteous cheer. A new dawn arises when you shall come into your own. . . . Pearsons.

Please ignore the next few names—it was promised that the following should appear here: Carol Lee Lacy, Shirley Mayfield, and Marilyn Monroe. Two hits and a Miss.

Indeed, a miracle has surely been wraught. It was discovered that Dr. Lloyd has given up traveling for February Meetings. What sacrifice will be apparent during Lent? (We're really glad you're back, Sirrah!)

* * * *

Which brings us to this. During the wee hours of this morning when the first sleepy members of the Wespir Kwyr were stumbling to the chapel for rehearsal, the following scene was observed: Dad Lloyd is seen counting his reflections in the windows surrounding the what-ever-it-is-that-doesn't have-a-roof-over-it. After satisfying himself he walked to his shiny, black, Oldsmobile (number 377) and got in. All, gentle reader, seemed well. Albeit, the frosty currents of air were creeping silently throughout his motor. A noise was heard but it waned and died. The students stood aghast at the audacity of that mean ol' cart to defy our el presidente. Pulses were throbbing in expectancy as a look of determination was seen to form on the visage of the high official. Again, and again he pushed the starter—but to no avail. Just when the suspense was terrible, a mere member of the proletariat came to the rescue. Turning deftly in the middle of the street, H. H. Harter came on the scene. Their bumpers touch, a roar, a cheshire grin from the chief of staff and a Studebaker had done it again. When hounded by the curious for a statement (he really held up rehearsal to tell the choir) Comrade Harter ejaculated, "It's not everybody who can push the Moderator around."

* * * *

In meager conversation at a certain table in the dining-hall, someone was heard to say that they wondered why the people who ask the blessing almost always forget to ask a blessing for the food.

* * * *

The flu-bug seems to be abiding in a very prolific manner amongst the good-in-heart Lately. A certain person whose name will not be mentioned, but whose initials are Duchess Coker was sick enough to be moved to the (heaven forbid!) infirmary. While being visited there notice was taken of her motherly looks while wearing pajamas and lying in bed. At that moment a baby was heard to cry in another room. Ducky did some fast talking and we are happy to announce that she is the proud mother of only a great desire to become a mother. . . . someday.

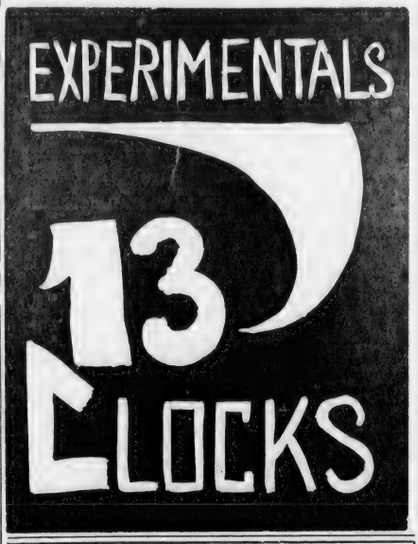
* * * *

We won't write an apology (Plato did that) for the lack of transition in this little bit of nothing, but we will promise more backfence gossip if you like Just write any dirt you have to "Wash" in care of Carnegie Hall (they never do there). Its slogan is appropriate, 'If you have any dirt, it will come out in the Wash."

Operetta Crews To Be Named By Miss Speigner

Crews for the operetta have not yet been announced according to work committee chairman, Jackie Speigner. Tentative crew members will be notified soon.

The operetta, "A Waltz Dream" will be presented by the glee clubs on Friday and Saturday nights, March 18 and 19.



The operetta has been double cast with parts given to the following people: Don Thiel, Nancy Lou Jones, Erma Pinkston, Jay Bollman, Howard Bell, Sonny Shackelford, Judy Ross, Virginia Zwicki, Roberta Hampton, Opal Miller, Dave Ramsey, Janet Maib, Nancy Peters, Burt Jarman, Bruce Ingles, Bill Potter, Kent Toomey, Lyle Talbot, Carolyn Fuller, Sylvia Liles, Shirley Leever and Margie Wilkinson.

Students Pray

The prayer meeting which was held Thursday evening, February 10, in the Y rooms was devoted entirely to prayer. No special leader was present.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

by Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Carolyn Cones

Planning to take in a movie this week? Here are the possibilities at the Park: Saturday, "Colorado Sundown" and "Miracle" (both westerns); Monday, "Chicago Calling"; Tuesday and Wednesday, "The Long, Long Trailer" with Lucille Ball and Desi Arnez; Thursday and Friday, "Notorious."

Today the Capitol is featuring "The Forty-Niners" with Bill Elliott and "Singin' in the Corn" with Judy Canova. "Closed Swords", starring Errol Flynn, will be playing on Monday and Tuesday.

On the more cultural side, all of you opera lovers will be interested in knowing that the U-T Concert series will present Jan Peerce and Leonard Warren, both of the Metropolitan Opera, this Monday at 8:30 p.m. If you would like to attend, you should sign the paper posted in the dorms before Monday noon.

Moving on into the literary field, anyone who is at all interested in the advances made in science might enjoy reading The Atomic Submarine and Admiral Rickover by Clay Blair, Jr. The book tells of the design and construction of The Nautilus, the first atomic sub, and of the determination of Admiral Rickover, who conceived the idea of such an undertaking, to see the project through.

If travel books appeal to you, will want to read Beyond the High Himalayas by William O. Douglas. Here you will learn of the hazards of travel and of the people and their homes in a strange and isolated part of the world. This book, however, goes deeper than a regular travel book, for it also deals with the vital question of the conflict of Democracy, Communism, and tradition.

T. S. Eliot, a Nobel prize winner in literature, has brought four of his long poems—Burnt Norton, East Coker, The Dry Salvages, and Little Gidding—together in a single book, Four Quartets.

Also along the poetry line is Goethe the Poet by Karl Vietor. An interesting parallel would be Goethe the Thinker by the same author. This book gives a scientific study of the many phases of Goethe's thought with particular emphasis on the relationship between his idea of evolution and the modern theory.

Because of the recent important archaelogical discoveries and the new trend in motion pictures, many people have become fascinated with the science which deals with study of man's early history. If you are one of these persons, Spadework by Sir Leonard Wolley might prove to be highly entertaining reading. It is a non-technical book which tells of the reminiscences of this well known archaelogist who worked at such places as Italy, Antioch, and the Roman ruins at Northumberland.

MC To Be Host To ET Music Festival March 12

Dear Sir:

A few short years ago, as a mathematics major at Maryville, I had the distinct pleasure to be associated very closely with Dr. Augustus Sisk. I came to know and respect him as a teacher, a friend, and a very fine gentleman. He was indeed an example of the success and happiness that are achieved through contentment in and love for one's profession. His was a life well lived—one to be rewarded by everlasting life. I am sure that all his students—both undergraduates and alumni—join me in paying a belated tribute to one of the fondest parts of our memories of Maryville. Our lives were made richer by knowing him.

Dr. Orr Honored At Surprise Party

Some members of the college faculty and the February Meetings leaders were among the guests at a surprise birthday party for Dr. H. E. Orr Tuesday evening at the Orr home, following the evening services in the chapel.

Mrs. John Cummings baked Dr. Orr a birthday cake, and the entire group helped prepare a special birthday greeting which was mounted on cardboard.

Scots Break Losing Streak, Beating C-N 73-71

Win Comes After 4 Loses

By Mike Connolly

Thursday night the Scots ended a four game losing streak by defeating a favored Carson Newman squad 73 to 71. Before this victory, the Scots had previously lost to Birmingham Southern twice, Jacksonville State, and Tennessee Wesleyan in a row.

Birmingham Southern Last Loss

On Saturday, February 5, the Scots played host to Birmingham Southern and lost in a nip-and-tuck ball game 95 to 83. This was the fourth straight loss for the Scotties.

Birmingham Southern was expected by many to just run off with the game, since they had beaten Maryville by 40 points in Alabama 105 to 65. The game proved to be very exciting, however, right down to the wire, before the Birmingham boys finally pulled away for a victory.

Blair and Keny Pace Scots

"Slug" Blair and Jack Keny were the high scorers for the Scots with 29 and 27 points respectively. Blair had to share top honors as the game's high scorer with Birmingham's Rod Wells who also had 29. Denson Hitson and Harold Faught had 17 and 16 points respectively in adding to Birmingham's victory.

Game Close All The Way

The game proved to be close all the way until the final few minutes. At the half, the Scots lead 40 to 39. Bill Wallace fouled out for Maryville with 9 points. The Scotties had one last chance late in the game when Birmingham's big gun Rod Wells fouled out; but they were held in check, and fell short of the necessary amount of points.

Scots Win Thriller

On Thursday night, the Scots played before one of the biggest, if not the biggest, crowd of the season, aainst the Carson Newman Eagles. It seemed to be a perfect set-up for a Maryville victory, and that is exaactly what happened, the Scots winning 73 to 71. The game had many thrilling points, especially in the final seconds. At the half the score was at a 36 to 36 deadlock.

Four Scots Foul Out

Four of the starting five Scots fouled out, which put the second string up against quite a problem; but the Scots handled everything in fine fashion and went on to upset the Eagles.

Guard Bob Shelton kept Maryville in the game all the way after Wallace, Blair, Sexton, and Keny had fouled out, and was the game's high scorer with 21 points.

Big Jack Keny added 19 points for second high before fouling out. Carson Newman also lost three of their starting five due to fouls. Lib Julian led the Eagles with 16 points followed by Creed Daniel and Arnold Mellinger with 13 points each.

Scots Earn Victory

There was no doubt about it that the Scotties received a well-earned victory. The score changed hands many times throughout the game, before the Scots pushed the last shot through the nets with the score tied at 71 to 71; and ended the four game losing streak in a thrilling manner.

Tonight the Scots play host to L.M.U., so let's all go over to the gym and cheer the Scots on to another victory

Intramurals....

By Bob Evans

This was the week of upsets with the third-place Alpha Sig Sledgehammers surprising the first-ranked Snowbirds on Saturday. On Monday the then fifth-ranked Sig Tackhammers upset the second-place Local Yokels with the cellar-roosting Athenian Bees doing likewise to the then third-ranked Pre-Mins.

On Friday, February 2, the ever-powerful Muleheads galloped over the YMCA Saints 53-26. Jim Gregory was once again high hoopster for the Mules with 16 tallies. The Saints' Ed Drum had 14 points.

The Alpha Sig Tackhammers trounced the Pre-Mins 48-30. Bob Leech with 15 points was top scorer for the Tacks. Doug Brian amassed 18 for the pre-seminarians.

The Alpha Sig No Hammers squeezed by the Athenian Bees 27-26 in the last game of the day. With 11 points Ron Morley was high man for the No Hammers. Lynn Counts added 12 to the Athenians' score.

On Saturday the YMCA Tom Thumbs trampled the despondent Destroyers 49-29. Phil Young was top tallier for the Toms with 20 big points. Sonny Shackelford got 13 for the Destroyers.

The Sledgehammers upset the high-flying Snowbirds 37-32. Charlie Partee with 15 was high scorer for the Sledges. The leagues' leading scorer, Chuck Dunn, led the Snowbirds with 13 points.

The Athenian A's mauled the Alpha Sig Hammers 41-26. The Athenians' Mike Connolly and the Hammers' Stan Mont each rang up 16 tallies for their respective teams.

On Monday the Alpha Sig Tackhammers got by the Local Yokels 26-23. Jim Demer with 10 points was top hoopster for the Tacks. The Yokels' Don Moore got 11 points.

The Alpha Sig No Hammers forfeited to the YMCA Saints on the second game for the day.

The Athenian Bees edged by the Pre-Mins 31-29. They accomplished their third win of the campaign in a double overtime. Lynn Counts with 16 points was high tallier for the Athenians. Clem Birkelbach scored 11 points for the preacher boys.

On Wednesday the Snowbirds flew over the Alpha Sig Hammers 58-28. Bob Berrong was the big gun for the white birds, getting 21 points. The Hammers' Jim Heddon ot 10.

The YMCA Tom Thumbs eked out a victory over the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers 31-30. Jim Gardner with 10 tallies was top man for the Toms. Lee Hammond dropped in 9 for the sorrowful Sledges.

The Athenian A's shellacked the down-hearted Destroyers 52-26. Mike Connolly tallied to a tune of 20 points for the Athenians with Sonny Shakelford racking up 12 for the Destroyers.

The leading scorers in each league:

Scots, Mocs Tie 15-15 In Home Match

By Jim Demer

Last Saturday night the Highlanders and the University of Chattanooga battled to a 15-15 tie. The Scots beat UC in a previous match 18-16, at Chattanooga.

Going into the last match, the Scots held a 15-12 advantage. But Abe Cohen had pinned Don Moore in their earlier meeting. Cohen is the S.E.C. 191 pound champ. This time Don held out and lost a 5-2 decision while taking a lot of punishment. Jerry Waters also deserves a hand as he came back to win after hurting his ankle in a first period take down.

Maryville College will be the site of the Southeastern Conference Wrestling Tournament, Feb. 18-19.

Summary:

123 pounds: Waters (M) decisioned Clary (C), 10-6; 130 pounds: Miller (M) and Farr (C) drew, 6-6; 137 pounds: Maryville won by forfeit; 147 pounds: Gaetz (C) decisioned Nabors (M), 4-2; 157 pounds: Shaw (C) pinned Templin (M), 1:54; 167 pounds: Renfro (M) and Graves (C) drew, 1-1; 177 pounds: Bugenhagen (M) decisioned Dyer (C), 4-0. Heavyweight: Cohen (C) decisioned Moore (M), 5-2.

The Lincoln Memorial Basketball team and the Emory University wrestlers will provide the opposition tonight in the Scottie sporting world.

YM To Hear Flyers

Representatives from the Air Force Base will be present at YMCA this Sunday to speak on air defense.

Knox US Group Disapproves Union By 55-25 Vote

The Knoxville Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church, US, last Tuesday voted in a meeting at Sweetwater against the proposed plan of union which was recently defeated or postponed by sufficient vote of other US church presbyteries.

According to news reports, the presbytery voted without debate against the plan 55-25. Prior to its convening, several spokesman had correctly predicted the outcome of the vote.

Despite the opposition of a majority of the Southern church, several leaders in all the Presbyterian denominations have been quoted as believing that union will be inevitable.

The Knoxville Presbytery includes US churches in Knoxville and this general area.

Miss Patterson To Speak

Miss Mildred Patterson will be guest speaker at the next meeting of the Christian Education Club. Miss Patterson is the Superintendent of Music for Knox County.

All those interested in hearing her educational talk are cordially invited. The Christian Education Club meets the fourth Tuesday of every month.

'56 Med Candidates Advised To Take May Admission Test

Candidates for admission to medical school in the fall of 1956 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May, it has been announced by Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the test for the Association of American Medical Colleges.

These tests, required of applicants by almost every medical college throughout the country, will be given twice during the current calendar year. Candidates taking the May test, however, will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall, when many medical colleges begin the selection of their next entering class.

Candidates may take the exam on Saturday, May 7, 1955, or on Monday, October 31, 1955, at administrations to be held at more than 300 local centers in all parts of the country. The Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to classes starting in the fall of 1956 take the May test.

The MCAT consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on understanding of modern society, and an achievement test in science. According to ETS, no special preparation other than a review of science subjects is necessary. All questions are of the objective type.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which gives details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, are available from pre-medical advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J. Completed applications must reach the ETS office by April 23 and October 17, respectively, for the May 7 and October 31 administrations.

Y-Radio Continues Columbia Series

This Sunday night, Y Radio will present another in the series of "Man's Right to Knowledge and the Use Thereof" with the Columbia University recording of "Galileo." Walter Hampden plays the lead. Although Galileo's views are now widely accepted, this recording shows the opposition he was up against during his lifetime.

On Sunday, February 20, Mahatma Gandhi's victory over prejudice and tradition on behalf of the untouchables of India will be presented. Gandhi will be portrayed by Alfred Drake.

Last week the discussion with Dr. Elliott was unexpectedly cancelled by WGAP. The Y Radio committee "deeply regrets that this happened" it said, and it is hoped that the recording can be broadcast at some later date.

Knox Teacher To Speak To Music Ed.

Music Ed. Club will meet February 24 at 6:45 in the Fine Arts Center Lounge. The program chairman, Lynn Mitchell, announced yesterday that the guest speaker would be Mrs. Mildred Patterson, superintendent of music in Knox County Schools. Her topic will be: "Music in Elementary and Secondary Schools."

Not only Music Ed. Club members are invited, but all who wish to attend, as Mrs. Patterson's subject is of general interest to all.

Selander Elected German President

Guy Selander was elected president of the German Club at their last meeting. Vice president is Ben Stabley, secretary is Sylvia Liles, and Tom Perry will serve as treasurer.

Fraulein Rodemann will show slides of Germany at the next meeting. This meeting will be held Monday night, February 14.

Hampton Speaks In Chattanooga

James W. Hampton, Public Relations Director, recently returned from a trip to Chattanooga where he spoke to various church and school student groups concerning the church related college in general and Maryville in particular.

His first meeting was in Chattanooga High School where he attended meetings of the guidance directors and spoke with several interested students.

Socially Speaking

By Abigail Crosby

On December 28, 1954, in the First Presbyterian Church of Wilmington, N. C., Barbara Scott, '53, and Dick Patton, 53, were united in marriage. Rod Patton, ex '56, and Doris Scott, '56, served as chief attendants for the couple. Mrs. Harold Glad (Maggi Warren, '52) was a bridesmaid, and ushers were Bill Breen, '55, Jake Peppers, ex '54, Hup Upton, ex '52, and Harold Glad, '53.

The couple is living in Wilmington.

Natalie Prinzing, '55, became the bride of Rod McMillan, '54, in a candlelight service in the Macalester-Torresdale Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, Pa. Betty Watson, '55, played the organ for the ceremonies, and Robert Young '54, and Charlie Yates, '55, were ushers. Serving at the reception were Kathie Chase, '55, Betty Belle Fauber, ex '55, and Polly Trnavsky, 57.

Natalie is finishing her senior year at MC, and Rod is stationed with the Army at Ft. Devens, Mass.

Miss Dorothy Baumgarner, '56, became the bride of Ralph Petree, '55, in a home wedding performed New Year's Day. Kyle Petree, '55, brother of the groom, was the best man, and Roberta Myers, '53, was maid of honor.

Ralph finished his college work at Christmas and is now teaching in the Blount County area while Dorothy is continuing her schooling.

Dave Williams, philosophy-physics major from Spring City, is the junior class representative to Student Council. Elections were held last week.

Williams replaces Bill Howell, who transferred to the University of Tennessee this semester.

Students Demanded More Rights In 1940 Too As April-Fool Issues Reveal

By Abigail Crosby

From time to time students demand more rights, more privileges, more this and more that. But our college generation is no different from any other age. The Echo morgue will attest to this fact. It contains Echoes from as long ago as twenty years or more, and the yellowed, cracking newspapers are a store-house of interest and surprises.

One evening last week, one Echo in particular caught my attention. It was only six columns wide, and had a different mast head on it, with a sketch of the Anderson tower in the background. It, too, was yellow-brown, and quite dusty—but it was not this that caught my eye.

It was, rather, the "ears," the extreme upper corners of the paper, which read "Mrs. FDR To Come Here Next Week" and "Faculty Bans Notebooks From Classes." Naturally, such statements whetted by curiosity, and a further study of the April 1, 1940, newspaper left me a bit confused, to say the least. The two big stories of the week were headlined by "Griffitts Runs As Candidate For President" and Seniors Favor Comprehensives As Opportunity."

The story about Griffitts named his qualifications for president, and his platform, and included a brief biographical sketch. It closed with this bit of politicking: "Unquestioned ability, a handsome face to enhance campaign posters, a 'Johnny Reb' ancestry, the glex (combination of glamour and sex appeal) to pull in the suckers—Griffitts has everything."

"Seniors Favor Comps," subheaded by statistics about 'blondes and wide-awake upperclassmen' was really quite a challenge. How could anybody, least of all a senior, favor comps? But reasons were quoted—"because during the years one is an underclassman, the thought of these final exams spurs one on to great heights. . . ." Pooh.

The banning of notebooks, however, was the big controversial subject in 1940 The students were all up in arms about it, and quite justifiably, because 'no longer will they have a chance to lug the darling things to class; never again can they experience the exciting pleasure of trying to squeeze them in the chapel hymnal racks, the thrill of balancing an umbrella on them on rainy days, and more important, the fascination of drawing artistic masterpieces of portraits in them during lecture period."

The administration seemed to have had sound reason for the announcement, and their rebuttal included such items as the economic standpoint (no student should be deprived of a college education by having to buy and continually re-fill such a luxury as a notebook), and the effects of them in class (evidently the professor who made this point did not enjoy looking at the non-committal tops of his students' heads). Evidently the students won in this argument because the current college generation is still reaping the benefits of the notebook.

Another headline declared a let's-all-sleep day, and a front page article developed a library plan suggested by the student council, whereby the library would be open all night, from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. The reasons for this proposal were rather vague, but the article stated that if the project was proven successful, the college would adopt the plan as a permanent regulation.

An additional item which was discussed in this Echo of 15 years ago and which, it is felt by some, should be revived anew, deals with the system of the MC honor roll. This story concerned a faculty meeting at which it was suggested that honors be given to the lowest-averagers. Such a suggestion was supported by these five reasons:

"1. The bravery of students who go home to face parents who have previously received the students' report cards, and found it to be adorned with five F's.

"2. The helpful extra-curricular activities usually carried on by such students.

"3. The excellent preservation of text books used by these students.

"4. The unselfishness of these students who cut classes in order to be representatives of the college at the various eating and entertainment establishments in town.

"5. These students do not congregate in the library and thus cause a crowded condition not conducive to intelligent study by other students."

Wel-l-l-l,—who knows what the students and/or faculty members will campaign for next?

Vols To Give This Year's Fund For Leprosy

Tomorrow evening, after vespers, the Student Volunteer Organization will open its annual financial project with the showing of the "Healing of M'Vondo," a color film produced by the American Leprosy Missions, Inc., the organization to which this year's contributions will be sent.

The film depicts the touching story of Mose, an African child, who contracts leprosy and is cured through the love and care he receives in a missionary leprosy village.

Last Tuesday, after considerable discussion, the Vols Cabinet voted to set the goal of the project at $100. Although this is a much greater amount than was collected last year, it was felt that this figure would presen a challenge to the 60 members of the group, to participate in some truly sacrificial giving toward alleviating the sufferings of others. Project chairman, Betty Knott, pointed out at the meeting that this would be an excellent way to put into practice the self-giving that was emphasized during the February Meetings.

After the program Sunday night, small piggy banks will be given to each member to be "fed" with coins. The banks will be emptied from time to time throuhout the remainder of the semester, and the total receipts will be sent to the Leprosy Missions sometime in May

Five MC Debaters At State Tourney

Five students from Maryville are attending the Tennessee Debate Tournament this week-end at David Lipscomb College in Nashville

They are Jo Brooks, Sarah Pledger, Graeme Sieber, and Tom Paton. Margallen Hanna, alternate, is entered in the indpendent contest of oration and extemporary speaking.

Debate adviser Newell Withspoon is with the students on this trip.

College Room . . .

Facts picked up at random: The enrollment of 484 was the largest in the history of the college up to that time. Of this number only about 90 students were not from Tennessee, but these represented 23 states. Fred Hope is mentioned in a personal item.

Nine groups of studies were offered by the 22 instructors, and students were graduated from the departments of music and elocution for the first time in 1905. The College Cadet Company presented public drills and mock battles on the campus.

The newspaper itself would be considered unique by modern-day standards. The pages are about the regular size, but the paper is folded like a greeting card, and as it is printed inside and out, it is awkward to read.

Style of the writing is somewhat eloquent and stiff but is nevertheless correct in form.

Just to prove that even newspapers can be wrong, however, here is a sentence taken from an April 1, 1904 copy that the English majors can puzzle over: "The game was very interesting up to the fifth inning, when Chilhowee got mad over a play made by a Maryville man, which the umpire didn't see and couldn't pass judgment on, and left the field refusing to finish the game although Maryville offered all reasonable concessions."

But what of the students who lived and studied here 50 years ago? Were they the serious-minded scholarly type, or did they have a sense of humor besides a studious manner? Well, an enlightening item tells how the junior class made off with the ice cream that the sophomores had ordered for a class social. You can draw your own conclusions.

POETRY

ETERNALNESS

The sun sets, for Him,
In the hills of the west,
And floods the earth with deep red.
Prepare! O thou earth!
For the long, silent night,
For soon the day will be dead.

The leaves He commands
That they fall from the trees,
And slowly drift to the ground.
The birds He commands
To their long, homeward flight,
E're night, of years, shall abound.

The wind now blows low,
With a cold, sharp chill.
The clouds o'ercast the gray skies.
And then, as the Lord
Bids the night to descend,
The snow of winter first flies.

The night settles down
On the winter-white world.
The moonbeams shine from afar.
And still the broad fields
As they glisten with snow,
Reflect each glittering star.

The earth slumbers on
Through the long, silent night.
The seasons pass, as dreams won.
Sleep on. Silent earth!
The seasons pass, as dreams won.
Sleep on! Silent earth.
Soon the long night will end,
And wake, at last to the sun.

Awake to begin
The mysterious round
Once more, of days and of years.
Awake, sleeping earth.
By the might and the will
Of Him who hears thy long prayers.

Choir To Travel 2,132 Miles

Plans To Leave After Graduation

By Bob Evans

The Vesper Choir is to tour Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Washington, D. C., Virginia and Maryland this summer immediately after graduation. This is the fifth annual choir tour. Approximately 42 members will make the tour. However, Mr. Harter has not yet chosen those who will make the tour.

The tour will be a fifteen-day tour extending from May 17, the day after graduation, to May 30. The choir will travel 2,132 miles in this year's tour.

Before going on tour the choir will make appearances at Oak Ridge and Knoxville on April 3. They will also perform at Harriman and Rockwood on April 17.

The Vesper Choir's Home Concert will be on May 8 at 8:00 p.m. Following graduation on May 16, the choir will proceed to Abington, Pennsylvania on May 17; to Morristown, New Jersey on May 18 and to Roswell, New Jersey on May 19.

On May 20 they will sing in the West End Presbyterian Church in New York City.

They will appear in Trenton, New Jersey on May 21; in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on May 22; in Mount Vernon, New York on May 23; in Irvington, New Jersey on May 24; in Darby, Pennsylvania on May 25; in Audubon, New Jersey on May 26 and in Wayne, Pennsylvania on May 27.

They will be at the Sherwood Presbyterian Church and the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D. C. on Many 28 and 29 respectively. On May 29, they will also perform in Falls Church, Virginia and Hyattsville, Maryland.

The last stop in this year's tour will be at Toms River, New Jersey.

Dr. Hunter To Read Paper At Philological Meet

Dr. E. R. Hunter will read a paper, "The Duke of Vienna: A Study in Motivation" at the 50th anniversary meeting of the Tennessee Philological Association meeting at Sewanee next week.

The meeting will be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Other MC teachers who will attend include Arthur S. Bushing, Miss Amelia Wier, Miss Jessie Heron, Miss Catharine Wilkinson, and J. H. Schwam. Dr. Hunter is the only Maryvillian who is scheduled to be on the program.

Sewanee was the original location for the first meetings of the language group in 1905, so this meeting is designed to be a rounding out for the semi-centennial observance.

Cureton, Brasfield To Present Junior Recital

Tuesday afternoon, there will be a Junior Recital in the F A C. Mary Alice Brasfield, an organist from Butler, Missouri, will present "Prelude and Fugue in D Major" by Bach; "Pastorale" by Franck and "Sketch in F minor" by Schumann.

Charles Cureton, a baritone from Washington, New Jersey, will sing Grieg's "Ein Schwan" and Franz' "Bitte." His accompanist is Sheila Sutton.

The college orchestra will join Mary Brasfield in rendering Handel's "Organ Concerto No. 4" in F major.

'4 Centuries Of French Prints,' New Exhibit, To Open Tuesday In FAC

Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m., a new art exhibit, Four Centuries of French Prints, open for the month of March at the Fine Arts Center gallery.

This representative collection, part of the George Benet Print Collection of Brimfield, Mass., consists of 75 prints or graphics of the best artists of the four periods.

The 17th century baroque, the 18th century rococco, the romantic and neoclassical period of the 19th century and modern up to Matisse is included. Representative artists include: Claude Lorraine, 7th century; Francois Boucher, 18th century, J. A. D. Ingres and Delacroix, 18th century; Daumier, Paul Cezanne, and Auguste Rodin are included in late 19th century French Art.

The modern period includes Picasso and others up to Matisse.

The collection is for sale with prices of individual prints ranging from $25 to $350.

Mrs. R. E. Beard will open the new exhibit with an informative talk on highlights of the periods and the artists and the prints themselves. The public is cordially invited to the opening Tuesday night in the Fine Arts Center.

RUSSIAN CULTURE—Jaroff's Don Cossack Chorus will be performing for the second time at Maryville College when the veteran White Russian entertainers are here Thursday, March 10. Some of the members here demonstrate both their dancing and singing ability.

Don Cossacks To Make Second MC Appearance

To Perform Here March 10

By Bill Deerfield

Maryville College-Community Artist Series will present its third program of the year when the Original Don Cossacks Chorus and Dancers perform at The Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel on March 10 at 8:15 p.m.

It will be the second appearance at Maryville College for the famous group, formed by conductor Serge Jaroff from members of the White Russian forces that were engaged in a bitter but futile stugle against the Communists back in 1921.

It was not long after the formation of the Cossacks that the group became the choir of the Orthodox Catherdral of St. Sofia in Bulgaria. Since that time it has toured every country in the world, "except Russia, where they would be shot on sight," advance information says.

Since 1930 the Cossocks have toured the United States annually and have sung in every town with a population of over 50 thousand, and in 1936 the group accepted American citizenship en masse.

In 1945 they made a U.S.O. tour of all the major European countries, singing for American servicemen, among them President (then General) Eisenhower, whom they entertained at his farewell party given by SHAEF in Frankfort, Germany.

Their appearance at Maryville will be part of a present world tour "rounding out over seven thousand concerts—a record never equalled in musical history."

Goldsmith's 18th Century Humor Is Set To Provoke Laughter Thurs. And Fri.

A rollicking 18th-century British comedy is on the agenda for the 1955 spring play. It is Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," and it will be presented at 8 o'clock on the nights of March 4 and 5.

The crazy, mixed-up motivations of a certain Hardcastle and wife provide the basis for the daffy doings of a daffier young man, Tony Lumpkin.

The daughter Hardcastle and a Lord Marlowe make up the major love plot, which coincides with a minor one consisting of Neville and Hastings, respectively. These are only as funny as the droll Britishers make them.

The cast, in the order mentioned previously, are as follows: Don Thiel, Carol Pitts, Glenn Sherrod, Marcia Williams, Morris Netherton, Carol Sleight, and Dick Morse.

ABC Show Termed As 'Abstract'

Athenian and Bainonian societies will embark on an adventure into the abstract with their ABC Show, "Romantic Imagination". The show, which will be held in the Intramural Gymnasium, will start at 7 o'clock tonight, according to John Graulich.

Heading the cast are Ann Wiley, Chuck Wagner, and Sam Buffat. Co-directors are Dick Preston and Jim Gardner.

The ABC girls, Bainonians who are elected for the honor, will be presented at the event. Their identities remain a secret until show time.

Glee Clubs Prepare For Musical Fantasy

'Waltz Dream' Is Show Name

By Don Adams

An indecisive king, a prince-to-be, a determined and lovely princess, and an American girl with glamour form the ingredients of a romantic triangle—and a Strauss musical fantasy in three act, "A Waltz Dream."

The date is March 18 and 19, at 8 p.m., the place is the Theatre, Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel; the romancers are the Combined Glee Clubs under the direction of Dan Kinsinger, and technical direction of Miss Kathleen Craven.

Tickets go on sale about March 12th it has been announced and tickets for the operetta will be sold at a place to be stated.

The two-day production will have a different lead cast for each day; the set is impressionistic in style.

The cast for each days' presentation of the Waltz Dream is as follows: Friday the 18th of March lead cast:

Here Is Text Of Constitution

Here is the complete text of the new revised Student Body Constitution as drawn up by a student-faculty committee and approved this week by both the Student Council and the Executive Council of the faculty. All students are urged to read and study this document so they will be familiar with its contents when a special student body meeting is called next week to ratify it. Student body president Carol Moore has said the constitution will not be read then, since everyone has a chance to read it in this form. Persons who have any questions about it should have them ready when they come to the meeting, when all questions will be fully answered.

15 February, 1955

TO: Student-Faculty Senate

FROM: Constitutional Revision Committee of the Student-Faculty Senate

The accompanying proposed constitution is submitted in accordance with the responsibility laid upon the committee at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1954-1955. It is submitted at this time, without the accompanying proposed legislation, in order that action may be taken before the regular Spring elections.

The Committee sugests the division of the campus law into (1) the Constitution, which lays down the continuing fundamental framework for government of the campus, (2) the By-Laws, which lay down the continuing detailed organizational pattern, and (3) the Rules of Procedure, which lay down the detailed organizational procedure of a less permanent nature. The Constitution shall be changed through joint action of the Student Council, the Executive Council of the Faculty, and the Student Body; the By-Laws shall be changed through joint action of the Student Council, the Executive Council of the Faculty, and the Student Body; the By-Laws shall be changed through joint action of the Student Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty; and the Rules of Procedure shall be changed by Student Council action alone.

The committee has followed the principle of centralization of responsibility so as to eliminate overlapping and independent or semi-independent organizations. With this in mind a Student Council, representing the student body instead of special interests, has been designed, in which has been centered responsibility for activities affecting the entire student body.

Proposed Constitution of The Student Body of Maryville College

Preamble

We, the students of Maryville College, in order to provide a responsible student government to represent, lead, and unify the student body and in order to promote maximum cooperation among the students, faculty, and administration, do establish this constitution.

Article I—Name

The name of the organization shall be the Student Body of Maryville College.

Article II—Purpose

The purpose of this organization shall be to unify the student body in the common motive of self-government in order to assume responsibility in the management of our affairs, strengthen the cooperation among students, faculty, and administration, and increase loyalty to the best interests of the College.

Aricle III—Membership

All students of Maryville College shall be members of the Student Body.

Article IV—Meetings

Meetings of the Student Body shall be held at the call of the President of the Student Body.

Article V—General Organization

Sec. 1.—The general administrative and legislative organ of the Student Body of Maryville College shall be the Student Council, which shall share authority with the Executive Council of the Faculty.

Sec. 2.—The Student Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty shall cooperate through a Student-Faculty Senate, which shall consider and recommend legislation.

Sec. 3.—The Women's Student Government Association shall constitute an independent administrative department of the government and shall govern only on matters pertaining to women's residence.

Article VI—Officers

Sec. 1.—The officers of the Student Body shall be a president and a vice-president.

Sec. 2.—The President shall be a member of the senior class and the Vice-President shall be a member of either the junior or the senior class.

Sec. 3.—The President and the Vice-President shall be elected for a term of one year by the Student Body by a majority of the votes cast.

Sec. 4.—The duties of the officers shall be as follows:

a. The President shall
   (1) Preside at meetings of the Student Body and of the Student Council.
   (2) Call special meetings of the Student Council when necessary.
   (3) Nominate the chairman of the standing committees of the Student Council and submit them for approval to the Student Council.
   (4) Nominate the members of the standing committees of the Student Council, after consultation with the standing committee chairman concerned, and submit them for approval to the Student Council.
   (5) Set up such temporary special committees as shall be necessary from time to time, subject to the approval of the Student Council.
   (6) Serve as ex officio member of all standing and special committees.
   (7). Serve as Vice-Chairman of the Student-Faculty Senate.

b. The Vice-President shall take over the duties of the President in his absence.

Article VII—Student Council

Sec. 1.—The objectives of the Student Council shall be to Meeting Slated For Next Week

By Ted McDaniels

The most significant item of business at Student Council meeting last Wednesday night was the ratification of the new constitution for that body.

Work on this new constitution began in the fall semester and over the Christmas holidays. A. D. Ainsworth, political science instructor, wrote up the first draft. This rough draft was then considered by a committee of both faculty and council members.

The proposed constitution was submitted to the Student-Faculty Senate in February this year and last week was approved and sent back to the Council. The constitution was considered by the Council Wednesday and was ratified by a unanimous vote of the Council members.

This constitution was reviewed by the Executive Council Friday afternoon. It must now be ratified at a student body meeting next week.

Council also took up the subject of town night violations. There was only one, a freshman girl who through ignorance to the law had signed out on a town night slip when she actually needed special permission to go where she did, thereby violating town night by being out of bounds.

Maximum penalty for this violation is the suspension of twon night privileges for four weeks. Leniency was recommended, and it was then proposed that the suspension be for two weeks. But this was still thought too severe, so her privilege was suspended for one week.

Committee reports were then heard, a Social Board Chairman, Harry McCall, reported that there would be two functions on campus tonight. There will be the Athenian A.B.C. show beginning at 7 p.m. and then at 8:15 p.m. the movie "Bend in the River" starring Jimmy Stewart will be shown in the theater.

The committee on I. C. C. regulatoin is the suspension of town a study of initiation procedures and had made several suggestions for the improval of the procedures. Among these were the limiting of initiation to one day each semester and have all club initiations on that day. The initistion period is to end at 6 p.m. of that day.

Schedules of initiations and their processes must be submitted to the committee. It was also suggested that the committee explain these rules to the different initiating bodies and make them realize that failure to abide by these rules would suspend the initiation rights for the coming year.

ICC also made two suggestions about Rush Week procedures: Rush Week is to be limited to two days, and that all members of the rushing committees must be paid members of the society for which they are working with the exception of technical help, such as lighting, etc.

The report from the Student-Faculty Senate was that the body had come to the end of its investigation of the honor system in other schools and could go no farther until they had the opinion of the students of this school. In the near future there will be a poll taken after a student body meeting.

The newly-formed Curriculum Committee was accepted by the Council last Wednesday night and will be put into the legislative processes of the school for further consideration.

It was reported that plans were being made for a Vesper Service in which the four religious organizations of this campus would lead. No definite date has been set but there are definite possibilities. Also Dick Jensen reported that plans for an exchange chapel service with Carson-Newman were

Are We Lazy?

While we are at college it is natural for us to get into a fixed groove of activities because our academic system is made that way, with scheduled meetings of classes and other appointments we must meet. But too many of us at Maryville are letting this system lead to a certain lethargy in the area of participation and interest in matters of living outside our regular education.

With this condition it becomes actually painful or difficult to do something new and different. Perhaps the fault partly is that of the system of this College, which sets up a world on this campus which is all its own and very removed from the outside. Our society here can be completely removed if we allow it to become that way. The College's position is that one comes to college to study; consequently everything during the week is usually set up towards that end. It is the social board chairman's job to insure organized social activity on week ends, a duty generally carried out capably. These functions are there, waiting for us.

But other opportunities (and there are many of them) are available, independent of "the system" and which offer a chance for education through participation. But have you ever noticed how successful most of these are? Unless there is some sort of glitter and "prestige" hanging about it, few students are interested in an activity. Business Club had to disband at one time because of lack of support. Yet when this club had an official of the CIO speak on a nationwide steel strike, the Y-Rooms were packed. Pre-Med is usually small, but the attendance was said to be "huge" when an outstanding Oak Ridge chemist spoke recently. The Glee Clubs for the past couple of years have had a hard time because of the failure of prospective members to co-operate. Even a surprisingly-low number from this college attend concerts at UT, which offer the outstanding artists only 15 miles away. Approximately 30 students out of nearly 700 enrolled attended a recent concert. Our own Artist Series has fared little better proportionately. We on the Echo are conscious that people do not want to write because it apparently entails more individual responsibility than adventure.

At our advanced age we should all be mature enough to realize that individual education is not the responsibility of someone else; it is up to the person. Advancement of any kind depends upon initiative. So do we have a similar challenge here: are we going to make our stay here nothing more than a dull, four-year grind, or will we broaden ourselves by taking advantage of chances to learn by doing? If we do not we will be contributing ourselves to a large part of our own discontent.

Congratulations

We should like to congratulate YWCA for its new work in co-operation with the staff at Blount Memorial Hospital. It is quite appropriate and significant that our Maryville YW has undertaken this fine project in the year of the National YWCA centennial.

This is one of the many very excellent parts of the service work of Y, and a feature of it which has kept it a vital Christian group throughout these years.

Carson-Newman's sheet, The Orange & Blue, had several interesting items on the subject of cheating in one of their more recent issues. The chief purpose seems to be the rather laudable one of preventing the vice, but one sees it mentioned so much in the paper, that we wonder if there is a serious problem or if it has not been mentioned too much.

The lead story informs the students that "we are not measured by our medals, but by our scars—DO NOT CHEAT!" An editorial tells a familiar C-N story about a graduate a few years back who returned his diploma because he realized he had gained it by dishonesty. The final paragraph of this editorial begins, "Now is exam time. The temptation to cheat is present on every hand. But when the temptation is the strongest, remember the graduate who did not keep his diploma . . . ."

* * * * *

Knoxville newspapers announced last week that our big, rich, worldly neighbor UT would probably not get to build that giant fieldhouse they've all been hoping for because the legislature had cut their expenditure. We can certainly sympathize with them in their hour of trial; they certainly can never hope to beat Adolph Rupp's Kentuckians unless they have a magnificent structure to inspire their basketball players.

Scots & Soda

By Abigail Crosby

Well, kids, spring is on it's way! Such was the observation of one of the favorite teachers as she looked across the campus and saw, not jonquils along the sidewalk or blossoms on the dogwood tree, but couples scattered here and there, defying the still-brown grass and the wintry skies—all because of a few warm breezes.

But at least we know spring is really and truly on the way, thanks to the rain and the nice little yard-lakes we've been wading through this week!

* * * * *

One drowsy day last week, quite an argument was raging among the members of the Shakespeare class as to whether or not the windows should be open. "Rather hard to tell," the able professor remarked, "it's spring when class starts and quite another story a few minutes later."

And, a few minutes later, when Dr. Hunter thought he was going to get an intelligent comment out of one of the members of a very sleepy class, he called on Herb White. "Nothing," was the answer, "I'm just scratchin'."

* * * * *

Judging from the looks of a few of the chins (and indeed, necks!) on this campus, there must surely be some sort of centennial celebration—but would Graves, Basford, Selander, Partee, and others be observing the YWCA centennial in such a manner? Cheer up, girls, they'll soon shave them off! ! ! (But Charles Rogers is so henpecked he won't grow one in the first place!)

* * * * *

Following a philosophy class in which Dr. Orr had been discussing a philosopher (can't remember who, right off hand) who reduced everything to IDEA, J. B. Adams scooted out of the room, stumbled a bit, and was heard to remark, "Ooops—better be careful I might slip and fall down the ideas!"

And, the same class, the following conversation just has to be repeated:

Pate: "Well, then, would the key word in the problem of evil and error be 'distortion?'"

Dr. Orr. That's right, Mr. Boyd. The same distortion you seen when you look in a mirror."

While we're on the subject—that class produced some awfully brilliant answers! When, for the sake of illustration, Dr. Orr asked how we could tell the difference between a bottle of H_2O and a bottle of H_2SO_4, one student (obviously not a chemistry major) ventured an answer—"Taste it?"

* * * * *

Overheard around a huddle of teachers: "I don't mind students looking at their watches in my classes, but when they begin to wind them, I'm apt to get a bit irritated!"

* * * * *

When forced to pay her Writers' Workshop dues (under threat of a spanking), Sheila looked into her billfold and asked if anyone had change for a two dollar bill. In explanation, she said, "I understand the Air Force is distributing them so they can trace the circulation of money. But I assure you I did not come by it directly," she added hastily.

* * * * *

Mr. Cragan thinks his classroom is haunted. He claims that whenever he is about to make a rash statement about something he doesn't know much about, a window crashes down or a radiator explodes—whereupon he changes the subject and the students are none the wiser.

But he has a rather inteersting theory about the influence of geographic and climatic environment on a group of people. For instance, Greece and Tennessee are on approximately the same parllel, and the weather is much the same. "Well," drawls said professor, "are we like the ancient Greeks? Let's compare—how about Aristotle and Cas Walker?"

* * * * *

The far-from-studious pupils of Miss Blair's Victorian class were greeted with this cheery message last week: "I've decided to take a poll and see how Tennyson is impressing the twentieth-cenutry reader. Will you each take pencil and paper, please?" Pretty sneaky, we thought,- until she amended herself by saying, "Oh, no—this isn't a pop quiz. Just for my own information." Kinda like those diagnostic tests we used to take at the beginning of every semester in high school—and what we got on those was our grade for the year!

Why did Ethelyn think there was a dog in the dining hall the other day?

* * * * *

After hearing about the various class stratifications in Marriage and the Family last week, I decided to do a little research and see how the average Maryville student fits into the system. Let's face it—we're just plain Upper Upper! ! ! Here are a few of the qualifications:

Select colleges—well, why did we come to Maryville?

Liberal expense, but lack of ostentation—Maryvillians are always broke, and never have anything to show for it.

No efforts to keep up with the fashions; clothes last eight or ten seasons—well? ? ?

Homes often in old and somewhat run down section of town—no explanation is really necessary here for most of us.

Marry at a very late age—typical conversation: "When are you getting married?" "Oh, not for years and years—the army and graduate school, you know."

Daughters "come out"—All-Campus Square Dance, by jingo! Well, anyhow ——. Hope you don't take me too seriously!

* * * * *

Have a nice vacation—just eleven weeks from Monday!

Shaggiest dog classic we've seen in a long time: A cartoon showing man and dog sitting in the corner, face to face. The wife is saying to her visitor, "I just can't understand what they see in each other."

Talk of The Week . . . . .

by Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bob Evans

Those of you who have recently struggled through Don Quixote in Sophomore English and others interested in dabbling in the works of Cervantes might be interested in knowing that the library has recently acquired two books dealing with Cervantes.

The first of these books is a new translation of Don Quixote by J. M. Cohen. Mr. Cohen felt that it was time to "make a fresh attempt to reproduce Don Quixote in its entirety, and in language which, while making concessions to the deliberate archaism of many passages, strives to be resolutely contemporary." This translation is much more exact and precise in following the original manuscripts which were written in Cervantes' native language, Spanish.

The second of the new books dealing with Cervantes is a book by Ludmilla Bokctoff Turkevich entitled Cervantes in Russia. It is a study of the influence of Cervantes upon Russian culture. Included is a survey of the current translations of Cervantes' works into Russian, as well as information on outstanding ballets and plays with Cervantian themes.

Those interested in philosophy and rather deep reading might be interested in trying to digest Treasure of Philosophy by Dagobert D. Runes. In this comprehensive collection of philosophical writings are to be found not only the great thinkers of the Western World, but many of the important and less familiar philosophers of the Orient.

The Art of Eating which is a collection of the gastronomical works of M. T. K. Fisher, is a rather large collection of strange and unusual recipes from around the world. Imagine that this book might attract the attention of many a campus gourmet, or should I say glutton.

Be sure not to miss She Stoops to Conquer, a delightful comedy by Oliver Goldsmith. It is to be presented on March 4 and 5 in the College Theater.

And now we turn our attention to the lighter side of life, the movin' pictureshow or as it is sometimes called, "the poor man's television."

Thundering Caravans with Allan "Rocky" Lane and his more imtant half, his stallion Black Jack, is at the Park today. Gary Cooper as The Westerner is playing at the Capitol.

At the Park on Monday is Big Town with Pat McVey playing the part of Steve Wilson in this adaptation of the famous radio and television program.

The Capitol is featuring Marlon Brando, the Streetcar man, in the The Mild One on Monday and Tuesday.

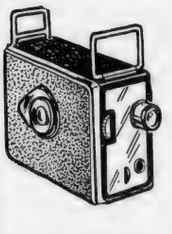
Tuesday and Wednesday, the Park is presenting the technicolor production, Genevieve, with Dinah Sheridan and John Gregson.

Music Faculty Gives Music Of 20th Century

Music faculty members performed last night in the Music Hall of the FAC in a concert of Twentieth Century Music. First on the program was a Sonata for violin and piano by Burrell. Katherine Crews played the stringed instrument and Jane Johnson the piano.

Second on the program was an original composition by H. H. Harter entitled "Folk Dance". It was played by students, Margaret Wilkinson and Jerry Overall on flutes and Emma Lou Arnold and Walter Hiller on clarinets.

Miss Dorothy Vawter interpreted Samuel Barber's "Excursions" for Piano as the next number.



The final rendition was a Sonata for two Pianos written by Paul Hindemeth and played by Jane Johnson and Rebecca Moore.

Pre-Mins met at the home of Dr. Francis Pritchard last Thursday to hear a recorded sermon of Peter Marshall.

Tennis Men Get Set In Their Racket; To Play U-T March 26 In First Match

Practice and warm-ups for the tennis team began on Tuesday of this week.

This year's team will be centered around returning lettermen Bob Neir and Sonny Shackelford, and Dave Williams and Phil Young who returned from last year's team.

Those new and old at the game who are also out are Doug Brian, Herb White and Charlie Partee, Ron Morley, Ray Williams, Mike Connolly and Stan Mont.

The first match of the season will be against the University of Tennessee and will be played on March 26.

Scot Cagers Win 3 Of Last 5

By Mike Connolly

On Saturday, February 12, the Scots played host to a strong L. M. U. quintet and lost in the final minutes of play 84-79. Behind at the half by 18 points 46-28, the Scots staged an all out drive which fell just short of the mark.

Keny Leads Attack

Maryville's Jack Keny was the game's high scorer with 25 points, while Don Burton lead L.M.U. with 24 points. Guard Bob Shelton and forward "Slug" Blair scored 15 and 14 points respectively for the losing Scotties. Forward Ben Essary was second high man for L.M.U. with 14 points.

Win Over Chattanooga

The Scots' lone win this week came at the expense of the University of Chattanooga 77-46. Leading at the half 34-26, the Scots fought off a last quarter splurge by the Mocs and held the ball for the victory.

Bill Wallace led the Scots with 24 points, while Jack Keny bucketed 19 and Bob Shelton 17. Wallace had to share the games' scoring honors with Chattanooga's forward Bayliss, who also netted 24 points.

Scots Lose Overdime Thriller

On February 16, the Scots played one of the most thrilling games of the season at Tennessee Wesleyan, when the final buzzer sounded for the regulation time, the score was knotted at 96-96. The Scots, apparently tired from their game the night before and the long trip, just didn't have it in the overtime period and lost 113-101. At halftime the Scotties held a four point advantage 45-41.

Keny High For Scots

Big Jack Keny led the Scots with 28 points, while Wallace and Shelton each had 22. However, the game's high scorer was Wesleyan's forward Knight with 40 points. Not far behind Knight was Farmer with 37.

Three of the Scotties' starting five fouled out, and Keny and Shelton each had 4 personals on them. It was a see-saw battle all the way until the overtime period which decided the difference.

Tusculum Next

Three days after their game with Wesleyan the Scots journeyed to Tusculum and lost 89-85. The Scots had a big rally going, after trailing at halftime 51-36; but were held in check in the final minutes of play and fell short of the tying or winning mark.

Jack Keny and Bill Wallace led the Scots with 23 and 20 points respectively. However, the game's high scorer with Tusculum's Statler with 33 points. Second high for Tusculum was their center Ralph Horne with 20.

Tusculum Here

Three days after their game with Tusculum on Tusculum's home court, the Scots trying to get revenge met them again at home, and again were defeated 93-73. The Scots played minus their regular starting forward "Slug" Blair, who is now in the hospital with ulcers. Tusculum held a 7-point halftime lead 40-33 and held the lead throughout the remainder of the game.

Final Home Game

This game marked the final home game of the 1955 Scotties' schedule, and also the last home game for three of the Scots, Keny, Shelton and Sexton. Shelton was the game's high scorer with 26 points, while Bill Wallace also added 16 in the loss. Center Ralph Horne and guard Bob Bowers led the Tusculum five with 23 points each.

Maryville Loses Center

Maryville lost the aid of their big center Jack Keny in the third quarter as a result of a technical foul; therefore hurting Maryville's rebounding chances. Keny collected 10 points before being put out of the game.

The Scotties will end their season against Carson-Newman February 28. They met LMU Thursday night.

Miller, Waters Make Top In Tourney

By Jim Demer

The MC matmen finished second to Auburn in the Southeastern Invitational Wrestling Tournament held at Maryville this past Friday and Saturday. Auburn won the team title for the fourth consecutive year with Maryville finishing second, Emory third, Chattanooga fourth, Vanderbilt fifth, and Sewanee sixth.

Auburn Myers Most Outstanding

Al Myers, winner of the 167-pound class, was named the most outstanding wrestler of the tournament. Myers beat Tom Bugenhagen, defending champ, in the semi-finals and pinned Fred Shaw in the finals. Bugenhagen decisioned Myers 3-2 to win the championship last year. Maryville's Buford Miller ran Myers a close race for the coveted award. Miller pinned all three of his opponents to win the 130-pound crown.

Waters, Miller, Win Crowns

Two Scots, Jerry Waters and Buford Miller won the 123-pound and 130-pound championships. Waters did an outstanding job as he pinned one man and decisioned two. As was mentioned above, Miller was runner up for the most outstanding wrestler award.

Moore, Cummings, Take Second

Jim Cummings, 137-pound, and Don Moore, 191-pound, won second place in their divisions.

Text Of Revised Constitution

a. Cooperate with faculty, administration, and students in maintaining Maryville's distinctive major policies, such as those of (1) high scholarship, (2) low expense rates, (3) positive Christian emphasis and program.
b. Represent accurately the points of view of the Student Body with respect to the following three phases of campus life: spiritual, academic, and social.
c. Consider, develop, and seek to promote matters of student interest in cooperation with the faculty and administration.
d. Supervise and coordinate certain student activities as provided for in this Constitution and its By-Laws.
e. Promote good relationships with other colleges.

a. The membership shall consist of the following 24 students:
(1) The Student Body President and Vice-President.
(2) The four class presidents.
(3) The following class representatives:
a) Four freshmen.
b) Four sophomores.
c) Five juniors.
d) Five seniors.

b. To become and remain eligible for membership in the Student Council a class representative shall meet the necessary academic requirements for membership in the class which he represents.
c. Class representatives shall be elected for a term of one year by a majority of votes cast by their respective classes.
d. A member may be dropped from the Student Council for the following reasons:
(1) Four unexcused absences per semester.
(2) Inability to carry on Student Council duties because of illness or other reasons.
(3) Conduct unbecoming to a Student Council member.
e. The class concerned shall have the power to fill any vacancies arising between regular elections.
f. The officers of the Student Council shall be a President, a Vice-President, and a Secretary-Treasurer.
(1) The President and the Vice-President of the Student Body shall be the President and the Vice-President of the Student Council.
(2) The Secretary-Treasurer shall be elected by the Student Council at the first meeting of the year from its own membership, and shall
a) Keep minutes of all Student Council and Student Body meetings.
b) Handle all correspondence for the Student Council.
c) Keep a record of the collection of all funds for Student Council purposes and of all expenditures.

Sec. 3.—The duties of the Student Council as a whole shall include the following:
a. The Student Council shall meet at regular intervals as it may decide, but at least twice a month from September to May.
b. The Student Council shall conduct all campus-wide elections.
c. The Student Council shall assume responsibility for regulating and enforcing such agreements as may be entered into with the Executive Council of the Faculty.
d. In carrying out its objectives the Student Council shall refer questions to the Student-Faculty Senate for consideration and recommendation, and shall present to the Student-Faculty Senate proposals for enactment of legislation which may be considered desirable. The Student Council shall also receive, consider, and pass upon recommendations of the Student-Faculty Senate for such legislation.

Article VIII—Student-Faculty Senate

Sec. 1.—It shall be the purpose of the Senate to
a. Consider all questions and proposals referred to it by the Student Council or the Executive Council of the Faculty.
b. Recommend for consideration and ratification by the Executive Council of the Faculty and the Student Council such legislation as may be deemed wise and necessary.

Sec. 2.—The Student-Faculty Senate shall be composed of
a. Eight students who shall include
(1) The Student Body President.
(2) Seven members of the Student Council.
b. Eight faculty members.
c. The President of the College.

Sec. 3.—The members of the Student-Faculty Senate shall be selected as follows:
a. The Student Council members shall be elected by the Student Council from its number at the first regular meeting of the fall semester.
b. The faculty members shall be appointed from the Executive Council of the Faculty by the President of the College at the opening of the fall semester each year.

Sec. 4.—The President of the College shall serve as chairman of the Senate and the Student Body President shall serve as vice-chairman of the Senate; the Senate shall elect a secretary. The vice-chairman shall serve in the absence of the chairman.

Sec. 5.—The Senate shall meet at regular times as it may decide, but at least twice a month from September to May.

Sec. 6.—A quorum for the transaction of all business shall consist of at least five students and five faculty members.

Article IX—Amendment and Revision

Sec. 1.—Each amendment or revision shall be approved by a two-thirds vote of the membership of the Student Council.

Sec. 2.—The amendment or revision shall be presented to the Executive Council of the Faculty for approval.

Sec. 3.—If approved by the Executive Council of the Faculty, the amendment or revision shall be published in the issue of the Highland Echo immediately preceding the date set for presenting it to the Student Body, together with a notice of the time and place of meeting.

Sec. 4.—The amendment or revision shall become effective when ratified by the Student Body by two-thirds of the votes cast.

Article X—Ratification

This Constitution shall become effective upon completion of the procedure laid down in Article IX.

PROPOSED INTERIM ACTION OF THE STUDENT BODY

Until the necessary By-Laws and Rules of Procedure are drafted and adopted to supplement the new Constitution, all situations not covered by the new Constitution shall continue to be governed by the old Constitution and the By-Laws made under it, provided, that in case of conflict the provisions of the new Constitution shall take precedence.

under way and that the letters of invitation had been written but no answer had been received.

Also mentioned before the Council was the fact that the time for the election of the Chilhowean editor for the coming year was close at hand. This was placed in the hands of the elections committee so that a date could be selected.

In the closing minutes of the meeting Sophomore representative Gene Garren brought a suggestion from a member of that class that the Sunday dating privilege be extended to Sophomore girls. After short consideration, this suggestion was denied, WSGA officials advising that such a move would be unwise this year.

Ethelyn Cathey Is Author Of Y-Radio Script

Ethelyn Cathey has written an original radio play which will be presented this Sunday night on WGAP at 9:30 p.m. The play is in commemoration of the YWCA centennial. It is a factual drama concerning the growth of a "Y" in a growing town.

Leads are being taken by Joe Gilliland and Ann Wiley. Others connected with the production, actors and technicians are, Herb Catlin, Charles Cureton, Ray Samhons, Sally Butts, Lyle Talbot, Ruth Wilson and Carol Sleight.

Campus Playing Host To E-T Band Festival

ET Students Attending Music Festival Nearly Equal Present Enrollment

Today there will be on campus as many or more public school students from East Tennessee schools as there are now College students.

These 450 performers and their accompanists friends, and parents will spend the day at Maryville. The Solo and Ensemble Festival sponsored by the East Tennessee School Band and Orchestra Association will begin at 8 a.m. and will close with a Festival Concert by outstanding performers of music instruments at 7:30 in the College Chapel. There will be no admission charged at this concert, and the public is invited.

Woodwind instrument solos will be performed for Howard Brown (Director of Music Education, Nashville City Schools, Nashville), in Room 102 at the Fine Arts Center. Brass instrument solos will be judged in the Chapel by Paul L. Arrington (Band Director, William King High School, Abingdon, Va.)

Tom Hewgley, Band Director from Columbia, will hear brass and woodwind ensembles in Room 101 at the Fine Arts Center. String instruments and percussion instruments will be heard by Ludwik Sikorski, (Head of Music Department, Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va.) in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Mrs. Peggy Bradshaw of Suffolk, Va. will judge the twirling solos and ensembles in the Alumni Gymnasium. Auditions will run from 8:30 a.m. until approximately 4.30 p.m. Students are invited to attend if they wish. Members of the Music Education Club and other music students will act as guides, door-keepers, ushers, office assistants, etc. Festival Manager is Assistant Professor of Music Katherine Crew.

Towns represented at the Music Festival are Alcoa, Athens, Bristol, Clinton, Coalfield, Dayton, Elizabethton, Erwin, Etowah, Harriman, and Kingsport. Also represented are, Knoxville, LaFollette, Lake City, Maryville, Johnson City, Morristown and Pikeville.

Sheila Sutton Plans Recital For March 25

Sheila Sutton will present her senior recital on March 25 at 8 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Miss Sutton is a senior voice major from Chadbourn, North Carolina. She has been a member of the Vesper Choir for four years. She also won a voice scholarship in her freshman year and has sung in the Madrigals.

Eugene Jenkins will accompany Miss Sutton.

The program to be presented by Miss Sutton:

The Passion according to St. Matthew, J. S. Bach; Recitative: To All Men Jesus Good Hath Done; Aria: In Love My Saviour Now is Dying.

Oh Think My Soul, J. S. Bach.

Wagner, Liebestod (Love's Death)

Trauer and Trost, Peter Cornelius; Trauer (Mourning); Angedenken (Remembrance); Ein Ton (A Tone); An dem Traum (On the Dream); Treue (Faithfulness); Trost (Consolation).

Symphony in Yellow, Charles Griffes.

There Will Be Stars, John Duke.

Central Park at Dusk, John Duke.

If Love Hath Entered Thy Heart, Joseph Marx.

Floods of Spring, Serge Rachmaninoff.

Priest To Be Guest Of YMCA

YWCA will meet Sunday, March 13, for a joint meeting with YMCA in Bartlett Hall.

The guest speaker will be a Catholic priest.

Rev. E. F. Dolstrom To Preach At Vespers

The Reverend Edwin F. Dolstrom, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Harlan, Ky., will be the speaker at Vespers this Sunday evening at 7 p.m. Mr. Dolstrom was formerly of Knoxville.

Last Sunday evening the Vesper speaker was the Rev. W. Heston Milligan, minister of the New Prospect Church in Knoxville.

Two Campused By Council Last Week

Due to the lack of business Council held an unusually short meeting on Wednesday night of last week.

The only conclusive action taken in this meeting was the campusing of two sophomore girls for violation of the town night privilege. The girls went up town to get something to eat without signing out, the town night committee reported, and thereby were charged with cutting campus.

Maximum penalty for this violation is eight weeks suspension of town night privileges. The motion was made and seconded that the girls be given a four week suspension. It was pointed out, however, that the girls know they were doing wrong. A short discussion followed, the previous motion was withdrawn and a new one asking for a penalty of six weeks was made and carried.

Lyn Kiefer reported that after talking with the Faculty and not being able to find a suitable date to schedule the Council Vesper Service, it had been decided that the idea would be abandoned.

Dick Jensen reported that as yet he had not received any word from Carson Newman in regard to an exchange chapel service.

Also Jensen, as president of the sophomore class, reported that his class would hold a meeting Thursday morning, March 10, for the business of nominating the candidates for editor and business managers of the Chilhowean.

Two suggestions were made by Jim Cummings to the Council for its consideration. He suggested the possibility of the Council buying about five bicycles and having them on hand for the students to rent. He was made a committee of one to investigate possibilities.

He also suggested that the Council could make plans for the spring vacation to be on a certain day and then rent busses to take the whole college to the mountains for the day with guided tours by the rangers.

Cummings stated that Miss Ware would probably pack lunches for all those going. Harry McCall, Social Board chairman was put in charge of investigating the possibilities and making the necessary arrangements.

The suggestion of having the college keep horses on the college farm and making them available to the students for riding was also brought before Council. This was thought unwise, however, due to the time and money involved in keeping horses.

Council held no meeting this week because of lack of business to bring before the group.

Mrs. Kolter Visits Here

Mrs. Kathryn C. Kolter, housemother of Carnegie Hall from 1948 until last spring, is on campus visiting this week-end

Mrs. Kolter has been living in her home in Ohio since leaving Maryville.

Operetta Slated Next Week End

By Carolyn Cones

All the efforts of the combined Glee Clubs will culminate on the evenings of March 18 and 19 with the presentation of "A Waltz Dream" a three-act operetta with music by Oscar Straus.

The operetta is set in the 19th Century and has a slight "Student Prince" flavor in that a bankrupt kingdom desires a profitable marriage for the heir to the throne. The resemblance ends here, however, for the future ruler of the mythical kingdom of Sylvania is none other than a high-spirited princess.

Included in the evening's entertainment will be waltzes, love triangles, and a taste of court life, Sylvania style.

"A Waltz Dream" is under the direction of Dan Kinsinger and Miss Kathleen Craven.

Hampton Starts 'Buck of Month' Alumni Club

Public Relations Director W. H. Hampton and Alumni president Edwin J. Best have united in an effort to re-activate the Maryville College Alumni Clubs throughout the country. Considerable impetus to the program has come from the visits of President Lloyd in his current and extensive travels this year.

A letter being sent to all MC alumni asking, not only for their support as alumni but for a contribution of money for the work and needs of the school. The letter asks for the contribution of one dollar per month.

One alumni, seeking to become a charter member of this new "Buck of the Month Club" has already sent a check for $12.

Barabara Chubb was the leader for the All-Campus Prayer Meeting held Thursday night in the Y-Rooms.

E. R. Walker To Retire At Semester's End

Treasurers' Reports Due

Treasurers of all student organizations are asked to turn in mid-semester financial reports to Dr. L. L. Wiliams in Fayerweather Hall or to the faculty sponsor of the organization.

Dr. Williams asks that this be done as soon as possible.

Six Girls Honored In ABC Show

Athenian Society honored six Bainonian girls recently in the annual ABC Show. Those so honored were Lyn Kiefer, senior English major from Pennsylvania; Dee Woods, junior phys. ed. major from Ohio; Mary Brasfield, junior organ major from Missouri; Nancy Priest, junior home ec. major from Florida; Jeanne Boyd, sophomore math major from Pennsylvania; and Elinor Bass, sophomore English major from Virginia.

The skit was written by John Graulich and was under the direction of Dick Preston and Jim Gardner. Ann Wiley and Sam Buffat were the narrators, and Chuck Wagner played the only stage role.

FTA To Have Audio-Visual Program

On its March 17 meeting FTA will have as its guest Mr. Rouser, a representative from an audio-visual company, who will present an exhibition including slide projectors, recorders, film-strip projectors, and motion-picture projectors.

Ernest C. Ash To Be Successor To Prof. Walker

President Lloyd has announced the appointment of Ernest Clinton Ash, Jr., to fill the position to be left by Professor Edgar Roy Walker, Associate Professor of Mathematics and Physics, who is retiring this semester. Mr. Ash is now a member of the faculty of Tarkio College, Tarkio, Mo.

A native of Alabama, he received a B.S. in Chemical Engineering from the University of Alabama in 1942, and a degree of M.S. in physics and mathematics from the University of Washington in 1952.

He held a position with the Tennessee Copper Company for two years, served in the U. S. Navy for two years, and was a research and control chemical engineer in the state of Washington for four years.

At the University of Washington he had both a research fellowship and a teaching position. He has been professor of physics at Tarkio College for the past two years.

Y-Group Gives Choral Reading To UT Y

Maryville's YM-YW deputation team presented a choral reading to the combined Y organization at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville Tuesday night.

Name of the choral reading is "The Least of These." Ten students, including director John Graulich, made up the group. This same reading was given at a joint Y meeting last semester.

Students who presented the program in Knoxville included Jim Fisher, Malcolm Bonner, Jim Cummings, Don Williams, Marcia Williams, John Graulich, Sam Buffat, Jim Gardner, Phil Muir, and Perry Fuller.

The trip included a tour through UT's new Student Center and dinner by small groups in various fraternity houses with members of the University Y.

Physics Teacher Ending 46 Years

By Barbara Wilkie

Professor Edgar Roy Walker will retire from his position as Associate Professor of Mathematics and Physics at Maryville College at the end of the present semester President Lloyd has announced.

Professor Walker, who became a teacher here soon after his graduation in 1909, is the senior member of the faculty and staff, having completed almost 46 years of continuous service

Born into a large family of boys, Professor Walker was reared on a farm on Montvale Road in Maryville. He graduated from the Preparatory Department of the College in 1906 and received his B.A. degree in 1909. His graduate work includes three years at the University of Chicago and several years at the University of Tennessee, where he received his M.A. degree in 1930.

Professor Walker was active in a number of organizations on campus during his student days at Maryville College. The 1909 "Chilhowean" rather jokingly pictures him as always asking for money, probably because he was secretary-treasurer of the senior class.

He also must have been a good student in all of his subjects except one, as the following "poem" taken from the Chilhowean indicates:

Ever presenting a dun
Considers six studies mere fun—
Recites well, when awake,
But a nap he will take
When the time for Psychology's come.

A member of Alpha Sigma Society, Professor Walker was also chairman of the social committee of the YMCA in 1908, manager of the track team in 1908, and assistant manager of the Boarding Club from 1907 to 1909.

After his graduation he served as proctor of Memorial Hall when it was still a men's dormitory. He went to Carnegie Hall after that and was living there when it burned in 1916. His wife, the former Miss Edith Zimmerman, was also a member of the faculty.

They had a son and two daugh-

Societies To Compete For Skit Trophy

Set For 8 In Alumni Gym

By Bill Deerfield

Tonight at 8 o'clock Theta Epsilon, Alpha Sigma, Bainonian, and Athenian will present the annual Skit Night in the Alumni Gymnasium. Each society will compete against the other in staging brief skits in hopes of winning at least temporary ownership of a new trophy. (Last year Theta won the old one for the fourth time and was given permanent ownership.)

This year Theta's skit, directed by chairman Carol Moore and Helen Davis, will involve "Watchbirds." The cast includes Judy Burgos, Doris Glad, Liz Enloe, and Marion Drotar.

Alpha Sigma will present a short "play" entitled Sneak Scene, written by Charles Partee and directed by Dock Jennings. The cast is made up of Jim Kennedy, Doug Bryan, Bill Strickland, Tom Paton, Bob Ramger, Joe Lowery, Bob Finertie, and Guy Selander.

Pogo at Maryville College is the plot center of Bainonian's skit, which was written by Abby Crosby. Sue Burton and Ann Yater are chairmen for the production. Among those who have important parts are Carol Williams, Isabel Easley, Carol Lee Lacy, Shirley Mayfield, Louise Ogden, Shirley Peterson, and Sarah Min Davis. Anne Buckley will direct the show, and Liz Frei is in charge of scenery.

Athenian's skit promises to be light and amusing—Gone With The Streetcar. Written by Jim Hopkins, the melodrama stars Jim Gardner, Bill Deerfield, and Harold O'Bannon.

Williams, Miss Craven To Read At Workshop

Writers' Workshop will meet Monday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. in the E. R. Hunter's classroom. Dave Williams and Miss Kathleen Craven will present original manuscripts and will be criticized by Charles Partee and Marcia Williams.

Student Recital Set For Tuesday

Tuesday, a Student recital will be presented at 4:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Program selections are as follows:

Blow High, Blow Low, Dibdin; Howard Bell, baritone, Henry Emmans, accompanist In A Persian Garden from "Myself When Young"—Liza Lehman, sung by Richard Morse, bass and Louise Ogden, accompanist.

Dans un Bois, Mozart; L'Eclave, Lalo, Beau soir, Debussy; Bonjour Suzon Delibes sung by Sidney Tedford, tenor. Lynn Mitchell is the accompanist. This is in partial fulfillment of the Sophomore Requirement for Voice Majors.

Je Dis, Que Rien ne M'Epouvent (Carmen), Bizet sung by Shirley Leever, soprano. Janice Clemens is the accompanist. Hear My Prayer, Dvorak, Elizabeth Murphy, mezzo-soprano. Jane Robison is the accompanist. Continuing the program is Sonata Op. 78 (Adagio cantabile-allegro ma non troppe) Beethoven, Janice Clemens, pianist. Concluding the program will be Do Not Go, My Love, Hagaman, Anne Buckley, soprano, Jackie Speigner, accompanist.

Maryville Debaters Win 'Excellent, Superior' Ratings At Speech Tourney

By Adlai Boyd

The MC debate team brought home the verbal bacon from their recent trip to Columbus, Miss., where they competed in the Magnolia Speech Tournament. The tournament was attended by eleven leading Southern colleges and universities.

The team of Jo Ann Brooks and Sarah Pledger received a rating of "superior" winning four of five debates. Margallen Hanna and Tom Paton won three out of five debates.

Miss Brooks won individual ratings of "superior" in oratory, debate and interpretative reading, and an "excellent" in radio address reading. Ratings of "excellent" were received by Sarah Pledger in after-dinner speaking, Margallen Hanna in extempore speaking and Tom Paton in oratory. Newell Witherspoon accompanied the group in the capacity of chaperon.

Plans are now under way to attend the Strawberry Speech Festival to be held in Fredericksburg, Va. in April.

There will be a practice debate held in Mrs. Pieper's classroom Tuesday during F hour. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

In the last contest the debate team participated in, it won 50 per cent of the debates in which it competed. Eight colleges were represented in Nashville.

Choir To Appear On Television Next Sunday

Maryville Vesper Choir will appear March 20 on TV, WATE, Channel 6, Knoxville, from 2 to 2:30. The program is sponsored by the Knoxville Council of Churches.

The Choir is in the process of recording for six radio programs to be presented on the show "National Radio Pulpit." The first two programs that the Maryville Choir will be heard on will be broadcast March 20 and 27.

The last four programs will be presented later in April. "National Radio Pulpit" is presented by the National Broadcasting Company in cooperation with the National Council of Churches of Christ in the USA. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman is the minister.

Business Club Sees Film On Credit

Business Club viewed a 35 minute movie dealing with credit at its last regular meeting. The film was put out by Dunn & Bradstreet.

A good attendance was at hand to make plans for the forthcoming Business Club banquet. Other plans were made for more films and interesting speakers for future meetings.

Shop Makes Shower Curtains, Garbage Bags—

Satisfied Customers Provide Most Of College Maid Shop's Advertising

By Carolyn Cones

One thing so remarkable about a college building is the great diversity of us to which it lends itself. Take our own Thaw Hall for example.

The second floor is devoted to classes; the first houses the library and The Echo and Chilhowean offices; in the basement may be found old newspapers and—the College Maid Shop.

Many people have entered Thaw and passed by the door at the left of the stairs without noticing it or wondering where it led. To the girls who work at the College Maid Shop, however, it is the entrance to a world which is in strange contrast to the realm of academic work. Here the tools are sewing machines instead of books, and the end-products are uniforms rather than grade points.

The very first thing that impresses a person about the Maid Shop is its size, which is about half that of the main reading room of the library. This space is occupied by sewing machines and a number of long, broad tables where the uniforms are cut.

The names of some of the styles of uniforms made here might be somewhat confusing to the uninitiated. A mention of "Marine," Army," and the "old" and "new Navy" might cause one to think of blue or khaki material, but this is not so here. The uniforms are of a snowy white, for they are made to be worn by nurses.

Ever hear of the slogans that say the satisfied customer is the best advertisement? This was certainly never truer in the case of the Maid Shop, for it is, surprisingly enough, its sole source of promotion.

One order of twelve uniforms came from a woman who had never purchased from the Maid Shop before. The reason? She had admired the custom-made uniforms that one of her friends had ordered. This word-of-mouth advertising has resulted in business amounting to from $500 to $1,000 per month—sometimes as high as $1,500.

All uniforms start out from the electric cutter, an instrument which will cut up to twelve thicknesses of material at once. As each order calls for different measurements, the girl who operates this machine sometimes runs into unexpected difficulties. For instance, for one order a size 30 pattern, the smallest size generally made, had to be cut down to a tiny size 28, while another time a mere size 54 was needed

There are no assembly line methods in the Maid Shop. A uniform is started and completed by the same girl, who usually takes from one hour to an hour

About Letters

The Echo is printing this week two letters which were received the week of the last issue but unfortunately had to be omitted because of space requirements or because they were received too late to be printed. One letter has reminded us that it has not been made definitely clear this year that the Echo is always glad to receive and print letters from its readers on significant topics.

We invite your comments about your school paper and about things going on which affect us all on campus. We have received few letters this year, and it is probably our own fault, not having invited comment from readers. Please be assured that we are always glad to have them. Different points of view on a matter are usually necessary for any intelligent discussion to be carried on; we will assist in trying to place these before the student body.

We do request that you keep your letters comparatively brief; this will insure speedier publication, as letters which are too lengthy often cannot be carried in their entirety. Please do not mind if we edit your letters, and please state your message clearly and factually; use the language of common sense. Your viewpoint and ideas are the most helpful we can use. Let us know about them.

Why Hurry?

Why must we always hurry? The American college student is killing himself by degrees simply because he insists on hurrying. And not only does it do him absolutely no earthly good; it earns him enemies.

When the bell rings, we slam our books together, sit on the edge of our seats, and fidget until the professor gets the idea that we're in a hurry and dismisses class.

The doors to the dining hall open, and we rush in head first, simply because we're hungry—but we don't get our dinner eaten any more quickly than the students we shoves and push out of the way.

What a way to make an impression on people! Ther's a difference between being prompt and determined and being boorishly selfish and discourtous. When we came to college, we intended to make friends of the other people here, but we won't be doing too well if we insist on snapping off a curt greeting in passing, or if we think that so-and-so knows us so well we don't have to be nice to her any more.

The rule that reigns supreme in making friends reigns in keeping friends, too. And that rule is the famous, but never hackeyed, Golden Rule, "Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you."

Sounds simple doesn't it? And it is simple. All it takes to make and keep friends is to slow down a little bit. Stop for a friendly hello-how-are-you conversation, and wait until the professor has indicated that class is through before you rush out of class.

And, even though it may appear to be going from the sublime to the ridiculous, along with gaining friends, you'll be preserving your health. You know—no more heart trouble.

Take it easy, and SMILE once in a while.

A.M.C.

Ideal Teacher

You can't win! ! ! But pity the poor teacher...

If he's brand new at teaching, he lacks experience; If he's been teaching all his life he's in a rut.

If he seldom admits a mistake, he's arrogant; if he ever admits a mistake he ought to go back to bricklaying.

If he hands out plenty of high grades, he has no standards; if he hands out plenty of low grades, he's a butcher.

If he sticks to his specialty, he's got a one-track mind; if he tours the encylcopedia, he's a show-off.

If he's young, he needs more seasoning; if he's old, he's seen better days.

If he gives lots of quizzes, he's a slave driver; if he seldom gives a test, he's too lazy to read papers.

If he gets his name in the newspapers, he's publicity mad; if he never appears in the papers, he's so much dead wood.

If he dresses decently, he's trying to be a fashion plate; if he thinks about something besides clothes, he's a bum.

If he plants an occasional joke in lectures, he's a comedian; if he never condescends to an academic nifty, he's duty dull.

If he writes books, he's neglecting his teaching; if he never publishes, he's never had a thought worth publishing.

If he uses notes, he's unoriginal; if he gets along without notes, he's an ad libber.

If he can't identify Janowicz or Stanky, he isn't human; if he listens to sports broadcasts, he's illiterate.

WORD OF ADVICE:

If you flunked your mid-terms don't worry too much, wait till the night before finals, and really dig in.

We Aren't Morticians

As many of you have noticed, the Echo has recently been printing verse written by students, and we are quite willing to continue this practice. But this week some one went a little too far and on Thursday deposited in the Echo office an "Ode to a Fallen Bird"—and the dead bird itself very gently laid one one of the desks.

Now a newspaper is supposed to serve its readers, but in our case we do not interpret this case as a duty to bury all the dead birds who arouse the sympathy of our campus poets. We suggest that, should another such calamity occur, the poet bring his "Ode" to our office; we print the memorial, you bury the deceased.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

The movie prospect for the coming week is big and colorful, to say the most. Alphabetical order is usually a good excuse for impartially so here is what our metropolitan theatres say they have in store for town nighters.

Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol is "Witness to Murder," starring Barbara Stanwyck, George Sanders, and Gary Merrill. The title sounds good and violent; everytime we hear of Barbara Stanwyck, we think of seeing previews of "Double Indemnity" and then being forbidden to go because of being so young. So much for that digression. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday they offer the biggest, thrillingest ever: "Sitting Bull," in Cinemascope, and starring Dale Robertson, Mary Murphy, and J. Carroll Nash.

The Park doesn't know about Monday, but on Tuesday "Duel in the Jungle" is featured, with Jeannie Crain and Dana Andrews. Thursday and Friday Richard Conte stars in "Race for Life." We know, why go to the movies when you could study?

Biographies and science are the big topics on the library displays this week. It never sounds quite intelligent to tell people what is up there, but we know as well as you do that you never look at them, so here's some poop on what's offered.

Tar Heel Editor by Josephus Daniels is a 1939 autobiography by the late publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer. Mr. Daniels was also Secretary of the Navy during World War I. His son, Jonathan, is currently connected with the Raleigh newspaper, and is perhaps more widely known for his HST biography The Man From Independence.

Some of the other offerings which are advertised are quite well known in the field of personl history. Included are The Doctors Mayo by H. B. Clapeseattle, Good Night Sweet Prince by Gene Fowler about John Barramore), and Ethel Waters' autobiography, His Eye Is on The Sparrow.

The other bulletin board has been featuring for quite some time Science in the News, not an exact title, but a "serviceable" one. In addition to newspaper front pages from the Washington Post & Times-Herald and the New York Times, a variety of science-topic books are out.

One we don't hear much about nowadays is Science Is a Sacred Cow by Anthony Standen, which had the honor of being quite lengthily treated in Life a few years ago. Mr. Standen took it upon himself at that time to prove that science was not quite the wonderfully absolute thing many people took it to be, and, he said, as many scientists would have people believe. Many didn't recognize at that time that another stronger opinion against scientists would develop in this time.

If you are suffering from the two great maladies of the times (obesity and fast living) you would do well to consider a couple of works by two MD's. Your Weight and Your Life by Alfred L. George and Broadway Stomach by Joseph F Montague are the works.

At the risk of trying to add to the two definitive studies of best seller books, here are the leading five from the New York Times Book Review for March 6.

Fiction

1. The View From Pompey's Head by Hamilton Basso. We have it in the library, but it remains checked out.

2. Love Is Eternal by Irving Stone. This fictional biographer (Immortal Wife) is still writing strong.

Echo Forum

Dear Sir,

Some people may seem to think that it is improper for students to voice their dissatisfaction with school policies and the like, even when these dissatisfactions are entirely honest and heartfelt. I think the time has come when that is necessary.

I, for one, love M. C. for the fine institution it is, and certainly would not be here if that were not my feeling. But my love for a school as a whole doesn't necessitate whitewashing of the few things that I think to be out of character within it. This must be understood before this letter will do any good at all.

Everyone knows of the "crackdown" on the alleged promiscuity of students in front of Memorial Hall and possibly within and around other dorms. I honestly feel that an injustice is being done in that it has been implied, and consequently felt, that the boys on campus of the Christian Maryville College cannot we trusted. I resent this implication, as do most of the boys who date at all.

Why must we continually be subjected to rules that were made in good faith but have now become entirely obsolete? Again, why must

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

The end of the basketball season is in sight, highlighted by the NCAA and the NIT. Play started in the former this past week with all participating teams seeing action. The odds favor Kentucky and San Francisco with defending champions La Salle and Utah given a good chance. San Francisco and Utah played yesterday with the results coming in too late for this printing. In a big time tournament like the NCAA, any team could win, as has been seen in the past. Many a dark horse has come all the way to cop the crown. This author looks for La Salle to repeat the Explorers' last year's performance.

THE NIT starts this afternoon. Duquesne is the team to watch. If nothing happens to Ricketts and Green, the Dukes are a sure bet. Holy Cross, defending champion, doesn't have a chance to repeat. But that's what they said about the Crusaders' chances last year.

The coach-of-the-year award went to Phil Woolpert, coach at the University of San Francisco. The Dons were the nation's number one college basketball team in the final UP and AP ratings. Adolph Rupp of Kentucky has won the runner-up, although far behind Woolpert, in this annual United Press award.

All of the All-American teams are out by now with only Tom Gola of La Salle on them all. This big six-foot-seven Explorer has been the most publicized player this season. Gola has been a star since his freshman year, when he led underdog La Salle to the NIT crown. Two years later he was the big man in La Salle's NCAA championship. Gola has been mentioned on most All-American teams since his first year.

Probably the best litlle man around is Robin Freeman of Ohio State. Freeman, who is five feet eleven, is only a junior. His chief asset is a one-handed jump shot, which he hits with deadly accuracy. The jump shot has developed into basketball's most popular shot.

Duquesne has the honor of having two men on four of the five major All-American teams, Dick Ricketts and Schuge Green make the Dukes one of th nation's best.

The latest issue of Sports Illustrated carried a story on Buzz Wilkinson of the University of Virginia. Booton Herndon claims that Wilkinson lacks only one thing to be the best basketball player in the country—publicity. Wilkinson was second in scoring this year and third the year before. His four year average of 28.4 points per game is the second best in recorded basketball history. All of the pro clubs have their eye on him. Wilkinson made honorable mention on Collier's district 3 all-star team.

The three major unsets of the 1954-55 season were Georgia Tech's two wins over Kentucky and St Francis' (Pennsylvania) 82-72 win over Duquesne. Some coaches claim that the new bonus foul rule made the difference there and many other games. The purpose of the new rule was to reduce the foul rate. During this season 4.3 less fouls were called per game.

The Tennessee State High School Tournament has been in the headlines the past few days. Knoxville's candidate, East High, lost a tough 71-70 decision to Peabody High. It looks like the winner of the Kingsport-LaFollette match will go all the way. LaFollette boasts one of the best high school teams seen around these parts in a long time.

Congratulations to the Snowbirds for winning both first place in season play and the tournament. The Birds had to come back to beat the Sledgehammers two games in a row. The scoring of Jim McCall and Chuck Dunn and the rebounding of Doby Berrong proved too much for the tired Sledgehammers. For those not in the know all this action was part of the Maryville College basketball intramural program.

Snowbirds Take First In Intramural Play

By Bob Evans

Last Thursday the Double Elimination Championship Tournament continued in basketball with the Snowbirds floating over the Muleheads 39-22. Chuck Dunn with 13 was the leading scorer for the hard-playing Snowbirds. Terry Tipton added 8 to the Mules' score.

The Alpha Sig Sledgehammers downed the Tom Thumbs 29-23. Sigs' Charlie Partee and Bill Strickland each amassed 10 tallies. The Tom's Phil Young got 8.

The Local Yokels trotted over the Alpha Sig Hammers 26-15 in the last game of the day.

The only game played on Friday was a game on the Consolation Tournament, which the Saints took from the Athenian Bees 42-32. Bill Potter and Jim Conklin were the high scorers for the Saints with 11 points. Lynn Counts hit 18 for the Bees.

On Saturday the Local Yokels shellacked the Muleheads 23-11. Nat Campbell with 7 points was the number one tallier for the Yokels. The Muleheads' Terry Tipton ran up 9 points. The Sledgehammers smashed the high-flying Snowbirds 63-57. The top hoopster for the Sledges was Charlie Partee with 23. Jim McCall got 18 for the white-feathered clan.

The Tom Thumbs won over the Athenian A's 32-27. With 11 tallier Phil Young was the top man for the Toms. The Athenians' Mert Hall added 12 to their score.

On Saturday the Tackhammers trounced the Pre-Mins 33-19. Bob Nier and Jim Demer were the high men for the Tacks, getting 8 apiece. The Pre-Mins' Ed Grigsby hit 7 points.

The Saints walloped the Destroyers 28-14. The Saints' Bill Potter was their high scorer with 10 tallies. Pete Nix came through with 7 for the Destroyers.

Alpha Sig's No Hammers trotted over the Athenian Bees 27-24. Joe Quinn with 8 was the high basketeer for the No Hammers. Lynn Counts and Walt Hiller each had 10 for Athenian.

On Monday the Tom Thums mangled the Local Yokels 46-38. The high hoopster for the Toms was Phil Young with 13. Doly Berrong got 12 for the Yokesl. The tackhammers galloped over the No Hammers 29-17. Jim Pace was top basketeer for the Tacks with 9. Bob Finertie and Dave Noble hit 5 for the No Hammers.

On Wednesday the Snowbirds flew over the Tom Thumbs 50-38. The number one man for the Snowbirds with 13 points was Doly Berrong. Phil Young hit 7 points for the Toms. The Destroyers forfeited to the Tackhammers in the other game of the day.

On Friday the Snowbirds bounced back from their previous defeat to down the undefeated Sledgehammers 60-52. Jim McCall with 24 tallies was on top of the heap for the Snowbirds. Sigs' Lee Hammond scored 16 points.

There was a repeat performance on Monday with the once-defeated Tackhammers coming down to down the Saints 35-19. Harry McCall was the high basketeer for the Tacks with 10. The Saints' Jim Conklin got 7 tallies.

The triumphant Snowbirds succeeded in mauling the hard plugging Alpha Sig Sledgehammers 58-39. With 25 big points Chuck Dunn was the Snowbirds' top tallier. The Sledges' Lee Hammond racked up 11 points.

Congratulations to the Snowbirds and the Tackhammers for copping the respective crowns.

Vollyball began on Monday of this week. The Sinners sailed over the Pre-Min Bees 15-3 and 15-12 in the first set of the season.

The Pre-Min A's fared better than their brother club, downing the Athenians 15-11 and 15-12. The YMCA Bartleteers trampled the Alpha Sig Blusters 15-5 and 15-13.

On Tuesday the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers trampled the YMCA Spikers 15-8 and 15-10. The Alpha Sig Blusters really smashed the Pre Min Bees 15-4 and 15-6. The Faculty vaulted over the Sinners 15-10 and 15-9.

On Wednesday the Alpha Sig Blusters snowed under the Sinners shellacked the Sledgehammers 15-11 and 15-7. The Athenians 2, 15-10. The Faculty downed the Cabelleros 13-5, 11-15 and 15-5 in the only match set in three days.

we endure the attitudes expressed by some in the carrying out of these rules and in making arbitrary decisions themselves? Yes, here it is again. Somebody kicking about rules and their enforcement. "If you don't like this place then why are you here?" I may be asked. The stupidity of that question is obvious and won't be dealt with.

I don't mean to present a total reform movement, but I would like to see some very definite action taken by the powers that be to rid us of the thorns that are unnecessary and sometimes unjust and insulting policies and rules. Again, "It takes time! You can't hurry things like that!" Why, in the name of better college relationships, not? When a rule is in the way of an oganization that must grow and expand, whether it be church or business, it is immediately dropped, so as to provide for the necessary progress.

Maryville is an instution whose ". . . . purpose is to provide a broad education under conditions which develop Christian Character and belief . . ." This cannot be best accomplished when we are subjected to various rules and arbitrary acts that belie the age-old trust of fellow Christians.

We are not wolves that run in packs, searching only for self-satisfaction. Neither are we sheep who allow themselves to be governed by any hand—even that of a well-meaning, but sometimes unsatisfactory shepherd. I present a challenge to both faculty and students—let us prove our integrity; as a unified whole and as struggling individuals. Spying definitely is not indicative of a wholesome attitude among either factor. We would like to be trusted; I think we are worth it. Isn't it time M. C. proved it has progressed for 135 years in every field?

Granted, there is never any excuse for uncalled-for necking in front of a building, in the bushes or anywhere else. Granted, a wholesome relation between sexes is not found in an advocacy of free love. Please grant also, the we feel the necessity for expression as much, if not more so than do our elders. With the current attitude among some of our leaders we have no ways of expressing personal, private and true feelings to those in whom we find spiritual, intellectual and emotional relief, and in whom our hearts find a great measure of affection.

We need guidance! That is a simple fact and one that most everyone will accept. But, we never need inhibitions, never rules and attitudes rammed down our throats that make couples feel like animals fulfilling primitive desires when they kiss. No one likes to hide in bushes. We are proud to be seen with the women we date and should never be ashamed of our honest feelings or expressions thereof!

Perhaps what is termed "privileges" by some are thought to be unnecessary by others. Does any reader think that it is up to a school to say who can take advantage of the Lord's Day, and how they may do so? Did it ever occur to whomever it is that makes these rules that perhaps Sunday fellowship is probably the most opportune time for creating that "Christian character and belief" we hear so much about? Couples have been known to desire to spend Sunday afternoon in prayer, meditation, and communion with nature in its highest sense. Now, I'm not foolish enough to state that that is the sole reason for Sunday dating, nor even that it should be. But, it can be considered high on the scale, along with genuine fellowship and relaxation.

I want it understood that this has not been written with any malignancy towards any person or persons—or even to the rules themselves, for the most part, as they were made and, I think, carried out in good faith. I just want to have it in the records that the students, I think, as a whole aren't satisfied with some of the attitudes and interpretations concerning dating, and would very much like to see them changed, or at least altered to the point where mirrors for spying, meetings to warn women of men and our watchman's supposedly necessary ubiquity at the various halls after activities, are abolished. I would like to feel like a decent human being when I'm with a woman and not a fourth grader or a fiend.

I again reiterate my absolute sincereity of purpoce behind the composition of this letter. On several queries as to the effect this might have, I was met with opinions that it will probably be ignored by the powers and that nothing will come of it. In every case, however, the students have backed me up, suggested, and agreed. I do hope this will not be lightly passed over. It's not good when a voiced opinion is worth absolutely nothing.

Very sincerely,
Adlai Boyd

Roger P. Williams Dies In Knoxville

Roger P. Williams, star Maryville College athlete of the mid 1920's, died Wednesday in Baptist Hospital is Knoxville. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Williams played football and basketball at Maryville in the 1924-25 season, and later had a brief career as a professional baseball player.

More recently he had held state jobs with the Finance and Taxation and Highway Departments of Tennessee, and had been Knox County roads supervisor.

Kribbs Address Sigs

Alpha Sigma was the host to Ken Kribbs of station WGAP, last Saturday night.

Mr. Kribbs spoke on the "medium of radio." This Saturday night there will be a pep rally at 6:15 at the Alpha Sig house. All members are invited to be present.

David E. Maas Appointed To Virgin Island Post

David E. Maas, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, and a Maryville College graduate, has been named Acting Commissioner of Trade by Governor Archie Alexander of the Islands

He is the first to head this special organization created January 10 of this year. For many years he was chairman of the Tourist Board, having been originally appointed in 1947.

Mr. Maas is a native of Norwood, Ohio. Following his attendance at Maryville, he obtained his law degree at Chase Law College in Cincinnati.

Pordgony To Represent MC At Model UN

George Pordgony will represent Maryville from April 28 to April 30 at the Mid-South Model U.N. conference to be held at Vanderbilt. Each of the schools attending will represent a different country, and the meeting procedures of the U.N. will be followed.

There will be a General Assembly in which the students debate and discuss current questions of world importance. Any IRC members who are interested in attending should contact Margallen Hanna or Martha Jackson.

Last Monday evening IRC met at 6:40 p.m. in the Alpha Sig house where Nancy Kotz presented a program on Central America.

Natalie Wells To Head Next Bainonian Program

Bainonian will not meet this evening, since it is All-Campus Skit Night. Last week a group of Athenians gave a program of talent and music, in exchange for which Bainonians put on a "radio" program for the Athenian meeting.

A short meeting is tentatively scheduled for next Saturday night with Natalie Wells, chairman of Phi chapter, in charge. A "clothes pin party" is being planned for March 29 with Carol Lee Lacy, chairman of Mu chapter, in charge.

Bainonians are asked to watch for details in later announcements.

Y-Radio To Give Two 15-Minute Mission Programs

This Sunday evening over station WGAP, two 15 minute dramas concerning national missions will be heard. Bezy Zimmerman will direct "The Hunter," and "Pioneers Again" will be directed by Jim Conklin.

Paul Green's "A Start in Life" will be broadcast Sunday, March 20. It is the story of the economic plight of the Negro and will be directed by Herb Catlin.

A recording of a discussion between Dr. Elliott, February Meeting leader, and several students was presented last Sunday evening. Ruth Orr was chairman of the discussion which dealt with topics of general interest to Christians.

Frosh To Debate March 23-25

The second annual Intramural Debate Tournament will be held March 23-25. It is sponsored by Pi Kappa Delta in cooperation with the teachers of Freshman English.

Subject for debate this year is: Resolved That Non-agricultural Basic Industries Should Guarantee Minimum Annual Wages to Their Workers . Preliminary rounds of debate will be held March 23 and 24. The final debates will take place on Friday, March 25. Approximately 20 freshmen have indicated intentions of participating.

The winners of last year's Freshman Debate Tournament were Graeme Sieber and Robert Finertie.

Tom Jones Wins Louisville Award

Thomas L. Jones, MC '52, has been awarded the Olof Anderson Memorial Fellowship at Louisville Presbyterian Seminary.

This award is given on recommendation of faculty members in practical theology on the basis of general excellence of scholarship, personality and promise of usefulness in the ministry.

Mr. Jones is a native of St. Petersburg, Fla. His sister Nancy is presently a junior philosophy major here. During his period of study at Louisville Seminary, he served in the Meadowview Presbyterian Church in Louisville, where he will continue as pastor following his gradution this spring.

Mr. Jones was one of four graduating seniors to receive fellowships for graduate study. Each award provides $500 aid.

Mexico Still Has 'Spiritual Need,' Rosser Says

The Rev. Edwin Rosser of Mexico City told the student body Thursday morning that despite four centuries of the knowledge of the name of Christ, there is still a "tremendous spiritual need" in Mexico and all other Latin American countries. "They are only words on lips," the Presbyterian missionary said.

Mr. Rosser was introduced by Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church in Maryville. Mr. Rosser is currently on furlough from his work in Mexico City, where he is with the Presbyterian Student Hostel on the campus of the University of Mexico.

His talk centered around his own experiences and conditions in general in Mexico. The Board of Foreign Missions, he said, must provide a bond of $10,000 for each missionary because of Mexican law. Missionaries have no status as ministers, and can only preach at the invitation of a Mexican pastor. Church property is frequently nationalized, Mr. Rosser said further.

The missionary's estimate of Presbyterians in Mexico was 70,000 out of a total population of 25 million.

Gilly To Speak On Mardi Gras

French Club will meet March 17. The program will consist of a talk on the Mardi Gras given by Margaret Gilmore.

A native of New Orleans, Miss Gilmore has visited the Mardi Gras numerous times and will give important and interesting facts concerning the balls and parades, along with a few of her own experiences.

Prof. Walker . . .

ters, one of whom, Arda, is now an Assistant Professor of History at the College.

For many years in addition to teaching school, Professor Walker operated a dairy farm on the Old Niles Ferry Pike. He has always been active in religious activities and is now a member of the Highland Presbyterian Church in Maryville.

Although he is evidently leading a very full and interesting life, Professor Walker doesn't talk about it much. He seems to dislike talking about himself—one of the reasons why most of the above information was gathered from other sources. "Brownie," who has been here almost as long as Professor Walker, was a fellow student and has been a friend of his for many years, probably knowing more about him than any other staff member.

When asked how he felt about Maryville, Professor Walker declared, "It's a great place—a great place to live!"

Maid Shop . . .

and 15 minutes for the job, depending on material and style. Part of this speed is due to the girl's own skill and a part to the power-driven machines, which make an ordinary sewing machine seem tame by comparison.

Even these girls, as experienced as they are, will sometimes make mistakes. Once a sleeve was sewn in the neck hole, and another time the yoke was sewn to the waist seam. Things like this don't happen very often, however, and when they do, they are quickly noticed.

After a uniform is made, gathering threads must be pulled, buttonholes and eyelets made, and stray threads clipped. A particular bad scare came just before Christmas when the eyelet machine decided to cease functioning, and a large pile of uniforms was eagerly waiting to be fed into its greedy little jaws The Maid Shop pulled through, though, with the valuable assistance of a borrowed machine.

Anything unusual ever happen down there? The girls still shudder when they think of one eerie incident. An order had been already cut and was on the machines when word came the woman who had placed the order had passed away. The uniforms were made anyway and were stored away.

Then there was the time a nurse decided that she didn't like the way her uniform fitted, and she had her picture taken in it so the Maid Shop could see why. An examination of the picture revealed the reason for the woman's trouble—she had stood with her shoulders bent over. Nevertheless, her uniform was altered as she had requested.

The work of the Maid Shop takes a number of different forms for the college itself. Each year about 250 gym uniforms are made for the girls' physical education classes. Those cute plaid uniforms you admired on the cheer-leaders also came from the needles of the shop. The shower curtains in the various dorms and, yes, even the garbage bags that you see being dragged through the halls were made in our Maid Shop.

The girls, who work under the supervision of Mrs. Carrie Brown, take pride in their work and like the place where they do it. The shop is mercifully cool in the summer and warm in the winter, and there is even a radio there if they desire more music than the merry hum of their sewing machines. All in all, it's a rather unique place on our campus.

Two Maryville Debaters To Match Harvard

Brooks, Pledger Go For MC

Miss Sarah Pledger and Miss JoAnn Brooks of the Maryville College debate team will meet two members of th Harvard University debate team in a debate at 9:30 Monday morning, April 4, in the Music Hall of FAC

The question to be debated is the national inter-collegiate debate proposition for this year, "Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China." The Harvard team will debate the affirmative side of the issue, while Maryville will take the negative

Harvard's team is making a tour of colleges and universities in this area and will be guests on the Maryville campus Sunday night and Monday morning.

The Maryville team of Miss Pledger and Miss Brooks recently received a rating of superior at the Magnolia Speech Tournament in Columbus, Miss., where they won four out of five debates.

Miss Pledger is a senior mathematics major from Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Brooks is a junior political science major from Louisville, Ky.

All interested students and faculty members are invited to attend the debate.

Bainonian Wins In Skit Night, Athenian Close

Bainonian's skit, "Poge Goes to Maryville," took first in the annual Skit Night held Saturday evening, March 12. Skit Night chairman for Bainonian were Ann Yater and Sue Burton.

Athenian's "Gone With The Streetcar," written by Jim Hopkins came in a close second.

Women's Dorms To Have Open House Tomorrow

Open House will be held this Sunday afternoon for the women's dormitories. Baldwin and Memorial will be open from 3 to 4 and Pearsons will be open from 4 to 5.

Refreshments will be served in Pearsons. The men's dormitories will be open Sunday afternoon, April 3.

Committee To Report On Honor System

By Bill Deerfield

Sometime next week a committee, composed of students and faculty, will make a report to the student body of the investigation it has made into various honor systems in operation in other colleges and universities. Along with the report a questionnaire will be distributed for the purpose of determining the advisability of instituting such a system at Maryville.

The committee, appointed last May by the Student-Faculty Senate, has met regularly for almost a year, and from information gathered on the honor system from correspondance with other schools, articles from various periodicals, and general discussion, has attempted to formulate a picture of what adoption of the system would imply, as to obligations on the part of students and faculty, penalties for violations, etc., and further to suggest a possible plan for Maryville.

Such a plan would include the areas of campus life that would be covered by the system and its organization.

All this discussion of the various aspects of the honor system would be brought out during the chapel report, but it will of necessity be very general.

The committee, working in cooperation with the Student-Faculty Senate, wishes it clearly understood that its function is merely that of an investigating body and nothing more. Its report will be designed purely to inform students and faculty of what it has discovered concerning the system and to find out by means of the questionnaire the reaction of the group toward the adoption of such a system.

The committee will then make a final report to the Senate, in the light of the group response, in which it will either recommend the drawing up of a definite plan for Maryville, to be submitted to the student body for ratification at a future date, or a postponement of the whole idea for the present.

Them Comps Are Comin'!

Comprehensive examinations for senigrs will be given April 12 and 13. These exams covering matter dealing with the major field will be held on the two afternoons, and they will last about three hours each day.

The places designated for the exams to be given will be announced by the major advisors, and seniors will be excused from all classes on those two days.

Exhibit To Open On Tuesday

On Tuesday evening at 7:30 a new art exhibit will open at the Fine Arts Center gallery. This new exhibit will consist of prepatory drawings and lithographs for murals on Tennessee life that Marion Greenwood is doing in the Student Center Building at U-T.

Miss Greenwood will be here for the opening Tuesday night. She is originally from New York and is now teaching at U-T. Some of her art work is still being exhibited in a New York gallery.

Partee, Miss Nollner To Read At Workshop

Readers at Workshop next Monday will be Charles Partee, who will be criticized by David Williams and Faith Nollner who will be criticized by Bob Lorenz.

On April 4 the readers will be Jim Hopkins, criticized by Ruby Roberts and Bob Lorenz criticized by Jim Laster.

Graulich Play To Be Given For Easter

"For Us He Suffered,' an Easter choral reading of scripture arranged and directed by John Graulich, will be presented in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center Saturday, April 9, at 8 p.m.

The cast includes Sally Butts, Rachel McCastalain, Clara Gowans, Don Nabors, Harold O'Bannon, John Ribble, David Spilver, Lyle Talbot, and Sidney Tedford. Mary Brasfield will furnish organ music.

Maynard Catchings To Speak To Y's

Maynard Catchings, the YMCA's guest, will arrive on campus today. Tomorrow night, after speaking at acombined YW-YM meeting in the afternoon at the F.A. C., he will speak at the Vespers service.

Mr. Catchings has indicated that he will be avaialble for conferences on Y work on Monday. For one of these interviews, you should contact him personally. Monday afternoon at 4:30 he will speak to the Racial Committees of the YW and YM.

ET Division Of State College Governments To Meet Here April 1

By Ted McDaniels

In Council it was pointed out that the East Tennessee Divisional Meeting of the Tennessee Association of Student Governments was to meet on our campus this year. Ann Wiley was appointed as Committee head to make the neeessary arrangements, and to send out the letters of invitations to the schools that are to participate. This list of schools includes almost any school you can think of in this division of the state: Carson-Newman, East Tennessee State, Milligan, Tusculum, U. T., Southern Missionary College, U-C., and King are the colleges that are to be invited to attend the conference on our campus April 1.

It was reported by Carol Moore that the results of the Chilhowean elections had resulted in the choice of Louise Ogden as editor and Gene Garren as Business Manager.

Jim Cummings reported that he had investigated the questions of bicycles and he advised the council that the plan would be too expensive for the council to undertake. It was suggested that he try to contact people who might be interested in donating a bike or two to the school.

President Moore then read a letter addressed to the Council from Gordon College of Boston. The letter was asking MC's opinion on the organization of a Federation of Christian liberal arts school governments. The feeling of the council was that such an organization would be impracticable as far as the school is concerned, since Maryville is too far away from the headquarters to be active.

SURPRISE FOR DR. LLOYD—Dr. Lloyd really had an extemporaneous speech to make Thursday morning in chapel when he was unexpectedly called to the platform to receive the "Rising of Sport" medal from George Podgorny, who presented the award as representative of the Shah of Iran and Organization of Physical Education and Scouting. Dr. Lloyd is the first American ever to receive the award. A special citation to Dr. Lloyd was also read. (Courtesy Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times)

Dr. Lloyd Becomes First American To Receive 'Rising of Sport' Medal

Dr. Lloyd Thursday became the first American to receive the "Rising of Sport" award from the Iranian government, Department of physical education and scouting. At the chapel service Thursday morning Iranian student George Podgorny made the presentation to the president, who was completely surprised.

George presented a citation signed by Gen. Dr. A. Izadpanah, president of the Organization of Physical Education and Scouting. The citation read: "I was informed about your great kindness and hospitality toward Mr. George George Podgorny one of the active staff members of our organization who is studying at Maryville Collge. our helpfulnss and wise guidance as well as the friendly attitude of the faculty and student body toward our Iranian student is a fine contribution to our Sport and Scouting Movements in education and preparing him for better service.

"In view of this, I am more than glad to inform you that I, by his Imperial Majesty Shah-in-Shah of Iran on the behalf of The Iranian Organization of Physical Education and Scouting, decorate you with the Medal of "Rising of Sport," which I hope you will accept.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank you for all that you have done, and assure you of our sincere wishes for your success in social service."

AAUW To Have Reception

The American Association of University Women have invited the senior women of Maryville College to a reception at the Fine Arts Center at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 28. Miss Nathalia Wright will be the guest speaker.

Dr. Wright was in Europe for the past year studying on a Guggenheim Fellowship. Hostesses will be the officers and members of the following committees: Membership, Hospital Auxiliary, Publicity, and Reporter.

Chilhowean To Be Ready About May

Chilhowean editor Faith Nollner indicated this week that this year's edition should be ready for distribution "either th last week of April or the first week of May."

In recent elections for editor and business major, Louise Ogden and Gene Garren were chosen, respectively. Miss Ogden is a piano major from Knoxville, and Garren is a history major from Maryville.

Police Chief To Speak At Sig Meeting

Chief Bluford of the Maryville Police Department will be guest speaker at the weekly meeting of Alpha Sigma, tonight at 6:15.

There will also be a discussion of the newly proposed constitution.

TIME FOR A STORY—Sophomore Sue Burton entertains the youngsters on Saturday morning at the Maryville City library while the parents are downtown getting their groceries for the week end. This weekly story hour is sponsored by the YWCA as one of its many community activities. The hour lasts from 10:30 to 11:30, an dis designed for children from the first to the fourth-grade level. Frosh Debate Tourney Begins

Last Wednesday night the ten freshmen debate teams began their altercation on the resolution, "Resolved: That the basic non-agricultural industries in the United States be guaranteed a minimum annual wage."

The first two rounds of the debate were held on March 23 and 24. In these two preliminary debates the teams will be scored on the basis of 40 points per debate. After the two preliminary debates, the two teams with the best total scores; one affirmative and one negative team will compete against each other on March 25.

Winner was announced in chapel this morning. Also there will be an award for the best individual debater, that is the person in the debate that scores the most points will receive special recognition.

The honorary debate society on campus, Pi Kappa Delta, sponsors this debate for two purposes; one, to help the English department in their program of training in speech, and second to develop and discover potential debaters in the freshman class who might be interested in debating for the team in the coming years.

Athenian To Vote On New Name

Ray Sammons has announced the big Athenian Whopper Contest is tonight at 6:30 in Athenian Hall. A prize is to be awarded for the best whopper based on originality and humor.

Jim Crawofrd has been appointed chairman of committees for the Spring Formal dance scheduled for April 23.

Bill Bolger stated that a vote will be taken by the members of Athenian on a motion to: add the letters Alpha Kappa Phi to Athenian, which will then mean Society of Everlasting Friendship.

This is to be voted on the meeting of 2 April.

Top Scholarship Is Recognized

Barbara Chubb, Harry Hassall, Barbara Hubbard, Pat Jones, Jim Kesler, Marilyn Kiefer, Ruth Orr, Sarah Pledger, Richard Thompson, and Herbert White are the seniors elected this spring to membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, Maryville College scholarship society

These students represent subject fields as follows: three Greek majors, two English majors, and one each from the departments of psychology, sociology, history, French, and mathematics.

The Society's requirements, similar to Phi Beta Kappa, require a minimum general average of 6.5 and good moral character. Not more than ten per cent of the senior class may be elected. Alpha Gamma Sigma this year voted to eelct the full ten per cent. Students must have been in Maryville College for two years.

Miss Chubb

Barbara Chubb is a sociology major from Athens, Pa. This year she is a member of Student Council and Student-Faculty Senate, and last semester was one of nine students to be elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities She is also a member of Writers' Workshop, serving on the Governing Board this year and was editor of Chips her junior year.

In YWCA Miss Chubb was an officer when she was a junior and served as one of the directors of Barnwarming. Last year she was a member of the Daisy Chain and was a Homecoming attendant last fall. Miss Chubb has also belonged to the Girls' Choir, French Club, and is a Bainonian.

Hassall

Mr. Hassall is one of the three transfer students elected to the Society. He transferred to Maryville from Centre College in Kentucky in his junior year. His major subject is Greek and his home is in Nashville. On campus he is a member of Alpha Sig and Pre-Ministerial.

Miss Hubbard

Barbara Hubbard is also a transfer student, having come to Maryville in her junior year from Wright Junior College in Chicago.

Eleven To Vie Today For Fine Arts Awards

By Bob Evans

This morning applicants for the Music and Art Scholarship Awards will be auditioned and judged in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Interested members of the student body and townspeople are invited to the auditions.

There will be one scholarship awarded in each of the following categories: piano, voice, brass instsurments, and art.

The applicants must be high school seniors who can meet requirements for students at Maryville College. Sixteen applications have been received in the fields of music, with 11 of them having been accepted for auditions.

There have been five accepted for piano, five for voice, and one brass instruments. Three applications were made in the field of art, of which one qualified for the competition.

The applicants are from as far south as North Carolina and as far north as Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Three competent judges have been secured from Knoxville and Chattanooga, Harry Harter, acting head of the music department, said.

The scholarship fund was established in 1951 by the General Service Foundation of St. Paul, Minn. This is the fourth annual competition.

Miss Sutton Gives Recital

Senior voice major Sheila Sutton gave her senior recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center Friday night. The program included works by Bach, Wagner, Peter Cornelius, Charles Griffes, John Duke, Joseph Marx, and cluded works by Bach, Wagner, Serge Rachmaninoff.

Miss Sutton is from Chadbourn, N. C., and has been a member of Vesper Choir for four years, She also has been active in Madrigals and Opera Workshop. Her accompanist is Eugene Jenkins.

Lifesaving Course To Begin On April 4

The second Senior Lifesaving Course this year will be held April 4-12. The hours of the classes will be from 7 until 10 on these nights.

This course is open to anyone over 16 years of age, but he or she should be a strong swimmer. Anyone interested should contact Mrs. William Largen.

Our Congratulations

The Echo staff wishes to extend its heartiest congratulations to the newly-elected members of the Alpha Gamma Sigma from the class of '55.

To be eligible for MC'c honorary scholastic society, a student must have been in attendance at this college for at least three semesters, and must have maintained an overall average of 6.5 or above for seven semesters. Not more than ten per cent of the prospective graduates may be elected.

The new members are, theoretically, selected by the entire membership of the society, but of necessity, the actual choosing is done by the local membership. At first a small number of students are selected; they are notified of their election, and at another meeting, attended by the local members and the few newly chosen ones, the remaining students are selected. A morning chapel service, usually during April, is set aside for formal recognition of these students.

Membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma ,is, perhaps, the greatest and most significent honor that can come to an MC student. We feel that the 1955 choice has been a sound one; and we repeat our sincere congratulations.

Kindness and Tolerance?

In these days we are profoundly aware of the matter of character assassination on the national level. Here on a small college campus it is just as deadly and more quick in reaching and affecting an individual. We all are so close together and so familiar with fellow students' personalities that it poses a real challenge to us all in the matter of living and tolerance.

Certainly we cannot possibly be pleased with every thing characteristic of the people we know; though Maryville College students are a "selected group," variety of personality types seems to be a significant part of the student body here. With the isolation of dormitory students, there is a tendency among us—both male and female—to use our leisure time for the vicious practice of assassinating and ostracizing some person by whispering campaigns, straight gossip, and sometimes even silly juvenile "plots." One who can excel at nothing more than such as these things should begin searching for a source of security so he or she may continue developing the practice to a high degree of skill.

One wonders sometimes just how many practicing Christians there are who live on this campus; idle ivory-clickers contribute a great deal to the notion of Maryville has few who really understand tolerance. Richard B. Sheridan should be living now to observe and write about our own school for scandal.

Scots & Soda

By Ann Wiley

MOSTLY SODA

Can one ever be a freshman without headaches? We drag into the dorm dead beat, stagger down the endless corridor to our cell, and just outside the door we slip and fall down on the newly waxed floor. Not too trying——

* * * * *

Then there's always the Freshman Debate Tournament. After long consideration we decide, "No. . . too much work." Your English prof isn't well pleased, but it's too late anyway. . . (Ah, famous last words.) Two days before the debate the tension is unbearable. Members of the English class are publicly ostrasized—threats of being pushed down the stairs in Anderson are murmured in low tones—the battle of nits (oops, wits that is—okay, okay, nitwits, then), goes on. And so now we have. . . (ahem) . . . RESOLVED . . . So much for that!

* * * * *

And then there's the little matter of the spring holiday. Rumors fly like mad. Upperclass authorities name the day with a wise nod—freshmen just follow the crowd and hope for the best. We tear into chapel and slid into our seats just as one of the honorable announcers approach the mike. About half way through, Dr. L. comes in the side door. He beams. . . we beam. . . TODAY'S THE DAY! First song. All of us still beaming. Scripture lesson, last song. . . patience is ebbing, time is running out. . . we glower. Recessional is begun. . . Dr. L. beams. . . .

* * * * *

Which brings to mind several weeks ago when the loud speaker on the extreme right side of the chapel was out of order. Just so happens Dr. L. was in our presence and had risen to the mike to say a few words. After he was through, the recessional had been played, and the last of the downstairs Freshman section filed out, Dr. Mc. approached and said with a glance upward indicating the broken you-know-what——"Did the speaker bother you this morning?" Not too funny——

* * * * *

So there you are, and here I am, in the dining hall. And speaking of the dining hall, IT hasn't seemed to meet the needs or satisfied the wishes of ITS patrons lately—oh, well, who are we to complain. We can always eat Girl Scout Cookies.

Then there was the Waltz Nightmare, which really turned out to be a dream in spite of the efforts of those involved. Of course several members of the cast not to mention the accompanists had a few term papers due, but they weren't worried. At least one of the aformentioned accompanists wasn't—she just turned the piano stool bottom-side-up, regardless of the scattered music and the consternation of her fellow performers.

* * * * *

Well, group, the headaches Iv'e mentioned are neither here nor there. . . mostly everywhere. Yours are probably larger by comparison, but it's just according to the way you look at it. An ache either in a small vacuum or a big one causes the same result. . .

I kid you not.

In one of his many fine sonnets, E. A. Robinson had a point to make on this matter. His poem is called "Glass Houses."

Learn if you must, but do not come to me
For truth of what your pleasant neighbor says
Behind you of your looks or of your ways,
Or of your worth and virtue generally;
If he's a pleasure to you, let him be—
Being the same to him; and let your days
Be tranquil, having each the other's praise,
And each his own opinion peaceably.

Two others once did love each other well,
Yet not so well but that a pungent word
From each came stinging home to the wrong ears.
The rest would be an overflow to tell,
Surely; and you may slowly have inferred
That you may not be here a thousand years.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Abigail Crosby

With Saturday night coming up, the inevitable question of "What's going on on campus?" arises. . . . A well-placed phone call, catching Band Director Moore in a talkative mood has provided the answer to that question: "The most interesting and probably the best band concert we've ever had at Maryville."

And it promises to be just that. The band has been working hard and has perfected a number of rather interesting pieces which will be presented tonight, along with several solo and ensemble numbers. The curtain riser is Kruger's "Now Thank We All Our God," followed immediately by Mendelssohn's "Overture for Band." This latter number is especially interesting in that it was written by young Felix at the age of fifteen and is one of the first compositions written specifically for a band.

The clarinet quartet (composed of Robbie Gibbs, Margaret Potts, Webb, Gentry, and Eugene Jenkins) will perform with two numbers; and Penny Neff will present Canevea's "Marimba Capers," which, Mr. Moore has promised, will be a lot of fun and excellently done.

The band will then return with Morrissey's "Martinque Beguine" and a medley of Gershwin tunes, among which are the favorites, "Embraceable You," "Lisa," "I've Got Rhythm." Then, under the direction of Bill Van Zant, the band will render a traditional Sousa march, "March: Sabre and Spurs," which will be followed by a clarinet solo by Walt Hiller. The next number is another piece by Morrissey, "Interlude."

Other numbers on the program are Cailliet's arrangement for band of Handel's "Overture to the Messiah"; an original composition by Fred Wyman for the brass choir, "Pentambulism"; and Mr. Harter's "Folk Dance," an original composition for two flutes and

The Editor

The Highland Echo
Maryville College
Maryville, Tennessee
Sir:

As one of your more northern readers, I'd like to let you know that I sincerely enjoy receiving The Highland Echo regularly. I am one of the results of a Maryville marriage, and I know a member of the present freshman class. Therefore, I like very much to read about Maryville through your newspaper.

I was particularly interested in one of last semester's editorials which attacked a campus lack of interest in political and social concerns. This is, of course, a problem not limited to Maryville. I was interested also in reading about your February Meetings. It seems to me that perhaps interest in public affairs could be aroused by applying the principle of the February Meetings to political and social action. At Bates the Christian Association sponsors a biennial Public Affairs Conference, alternating years with a Religious Emphasis Week. It emphasizes public affairs from the standpoint of the Christian ethic. Good speakers for a week of this sort include politicians, men and women active in such social concerns as civil liberties and academic freedom, and ministers noted for their social action emphasis or theological seminary professors of social ethics.

The February Meetings fulfill a basis need; they should be emulated by other colleges. However, a strong personal faith alone can not adequately deal with the challenges presented by the modern world. Politics and world affairs must not be left to the "politicians." These concerns need direction supplied by Christian citizens. If the Christian is to be effective in political and social affairs, he must be aware and informed.

Of course, I am one thousand miles away, and I don't know much about Maryville except what I read in your paper. I suggest, though, an intensive public affairs emphasis from the point of view of the Christian ethic as a possible solution to the "apathy" attacked in last fall's editorial.

Very truly yours,
Brent Stearns.

Lloyd To Go To Indianapolis

Dr. R. W. Lloyd leaves March 26 for a tour of speaking engagements. March 27 he will preach in Tabernacle Central Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Ind.

That evening he will conduct the service at Ossian Presbyterian Church Ossian, Ind., where he preached as a student pastor while attending McCormick Seminary.

March 28 Dr. Lloyd will attend committee meetings in Philadelphia; Tuesday, March 29 at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va. He will return to Maryville then and will remain until April 2.

April 2 Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd will fly to Portland, Oregon, where he has some speaking engagements at the Synod of Oregon.

'The Outpost' Is Play On Y-Radio

Tomorrow night over WGAP, Y Radio will present "The Outpost," a missionary drama adapted for radio and directed by Clara Gowans.

Next week a drama, "Release," written by Dorothy Clark Wilson will be presented. This is the story of Barabbas, the murderer released in the place of Christ. Sandy Dorsett has adapted this story for radio and she will also direct it.

On Easter Sunday, an original drama by Jim Conklin will be given.

SPECIALTY CHORUS AND WALTZERS— Aline Stevenson, Virginia Marshall, Marian James, Gail Shiffer, Sandra Booth, Joan Grey, Helena Mason, Margaret Potts, Rachael McCastalain, Kay Hummel, Joan Jefferson, Joyce Ciancola, Ruth Morris, Carol Pitts.

TRUMPETERS— William Van Zant, John Williams.

FLUTIST—Nita Ann Baylor.

Last Saturday night, the Combined Glee Clubs of Maryville College, under the immaculate direction of Dan H. Kinsinger, presented Oscar Straus' operetta "A Waltz Dream" in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Theater.

The production was quite enjoyable, in spite of the fact that my seat was on the right of the center in the tenth row.

The part of Kay was skilfully handled by Virginiaa Zwicki who was handicapped by a heavy Southern accent.

Howard Bell, as Lt. Niki, the reluctant bridegroom, gave a powerful performance. His makeup, consisting of base, powder, and eye liner, was extremely effective and carried good.

The entire show was stolen by the flutist of the evening, Miss Nita Ann Baylor. Her tone was delightful!

As Princess Helene, Irma Pinkston gave a touchingly beautiful performance in spite of a slight tendency to be tongue-tied. She had the loveliest alto voice in the entire group.

The fluter, Nita Ann Baylor, walked off with the entire production. Her terills were skilfully engineered.

The accompanists, Jane Robison and Lynn Mitchell, managed to stay a measure behind each other and two behind the soloists and chorus throughout the entire show.

Nita Ann Baylor, who played the flute, executed her song prettily.

Maximillian, as the pompous Don Thiel, gave a performance.

Sylvia Liles, Roberta Hampton, Nancy Peters, Margaret Wilkinson, Bill Potter, Dave Ramsey, Lyle Talbot, Jay Bollman, and Burt Jarman all did pleasant jobs, but it was Nita Ann Baylor, flutist, who really stole the entire operetta.

The chorus was nicely put together. The girls looked very well in their evening gowns, and the men were handsome in their Sylvanian uniforms.

Special commendation should be handed to Oscar Straus who wrote this delightful opus. I feel sure he would like to have been there, that evening to hear Miss Nita Ann Baylor deliver her sweet flute solo.

AND THE WALLS CAME TUMBLING DOWN—Anderson Hall is a dirty, sloppy, stinking mess after the ivy came off and it came down with a great big noise. Notice how our gallant local fire department put up ladders to holds the walls, but it was no use. Looks pretty bad, doesn't it? Well, it ought to—this ain't really a picture of Anderson Hall, but it still looks like a dirty, sloppy stinking mess.

Cas The Walker Says. . . . .

Certain parties and I won't stoop to mention names) have made the charge that the Y-STORE has a MONOPLY on campus business, especially dairy products and fruit juice. In all fairness to my customers of this branch of my stores (Never Closes) I would like to say that NO ONE ELSE could offer as cheaply and as honestly as my Y-Store does the superior product that the Y-Store offers. Even the book store (and my apologies to Doc Griffitts) does not DARE TO STEP into that realm of business. This should stand as a very good indication that the students place utmost confidence in the Y-Store's products and will continue to trade there— monopoly or no monopoly.

Dangerous Group Plots Activities

Upperclassmen are cautioned about dealings with members of the freshman class, who are now considered dangerous because of the recent announcement of their mid-semester grades.

One is quoted to have said that he "had it in for those dirty D. A. R.'s".

(A well-known leftist trick is slimy propaganda against the DAR, widely known for its patriotic work.)

Speed Blamed For Frequency Of Accidents

A proposal has been placed before the lower house of the Tennessee state legislature in an effort to decrease the speed limit for thoroughfares in and around Maryville campus.

The practically unlimited limit of 15 mph is considered too high by some town students, who suggest either the abolishment of automobiles on campus or the lowering of the speed to 10 mph.

Bud White and Earl Whaley are spokesman for the town-student group.

Foreign Outsider

A loiterer of unknown nationality (probably collie) escaped after being chased by an indignant campus police official this week, a witness said.

The officer, "Hamburger," was not available for a statement late last night. It is his duty to prevent disreputable or suspicious individuals from taking over the campus.

Fer Gals Only . . .

Well, now that it's spring agin, most of us gals'll probably be wantin' to git into the Spring Swing. Probably the first thing you'll be doin' is takin' off your shoes and I don't blame you; but gals, let's try to control ourselves. I've been snoopin' around over in Knoxville and it looks like to me that this spring SHOES ARE THE THING!

Now maybe you'll laugh and I know that this is a sort of extravagant statement, but if you'll just go over there and look in the store windows, maybe you'll believe me. THEY'VE GOT SHOES ALL OVER THE PLACE! Why, do you know, in one store they didn't have nothin' but shoes.

Since shoes have come to be such an important part of the wardrobe this spring, I reckon it might be a good idea to find out exactly when you should wear shoes. Over in Knoxville I seen the women a'wearin' them all over everywhere but you know city folks are inclined to be extreme. Probably shoes should be worn to church, but if the preacher should hold on too long, they can be slipped off and stuck under the pew in front of you.

Also, they should be worn to the movin' pitchers. Once inside, after you hev tromped all over everbody's feet gittin' a seat, you kin take the shoes off. (Tip: it's a good idea to tie strings around the heels of your shoes and to your ankles so you won't lose your shoes in the dark.)

Another place where shoes ought to be worn, more fer your own protection than anything else, is going to chapel and the dining hall. Sometimes people who git caught in the last minute rush have been known to get their toes stomped off.

But I don't reckon there's any need to be so formal in the classes or going to the store as to wear shoes. Of course, there are always some city slickers who have to show off and wear their shoes all the time, but thank goodness they are the exception rather than the rule.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

Sunday, followed by Monday and Tuesday. It is likely Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will follow.

Light in the morning—dark at night.

Investigations this week by the Maryville College Disciplinary Committee revealed that the mysterious collapse of Anderson Hall two days ago was caused by a group of discontented alumni, who cut the protective ivy from the building's walls.

Residents of Carnegie, Memorial, Baldwin, and Pearsons Halls were thrown from their beds about 2 a.m. Thursday morning when the well-known old historic structure crumbled to the ground with a great roar.

Big Persecution Under Way

Our undercover agent in Persons Reformitory for Girls has reported to us that the student-governor general has issued cats-o-nine-tails and short pieces of rubber hose to the House Committee of each reformitory.

It is rumored that each girl found with her bed light on after 11 o'clock will be given 40 lashes by the chairman of her Committee. If the girl is a habitual offender she will be flogged round the reformitories

To be flogged around the Reformitories means that the girl will be taken to each of the girls reformitories and will be administered unto with forty by each chairman of each houses' Why and How Come Committee.

Any girls found in the wrong room after 11 will be required to study six nights out of the week in the shower, with the water dripping slowly on her head. The prescribed rate of drip is seven drips per minute.

This has been calculated by the student-governor general to drive the girl completely insane by the sixth night.

We have also been told by our agent that any girl who comes in late after a date with a member of the boys reformitory will be given the water treatment.

The water treatment is a gentle method requiring that the girls have only an iron set of lungs (Aqua) preferred to withstand the treatment.

The water treatment is as follows: first the girl will be bound hand and foot, then her feet will be given a specially prepared mud pack, approximately 300 pounds of cement.

When this mud pack has hardened, it will be soaked off by throwing the girl into the institution's swimming pool. This eratment is expected to put an end to the habitual or even the one time losers on the town night privilege.

One of our pictures—caught by the alert Echo photographer who just happened to be getting in at that time of day—shows the groups of outsiders watching with great interest the demolition of the college administration building. None of the group has been identified, but local officials believing that these are the dirty culprits who took the support away from the walls.

The dirtiest, sloppiest, most scandalous investigation ever is expected to begin soon. Efforts are bieng made to have the full proceedings presented in the chapel so all our students may grasp the technique of committee investigation ,the Echo learned.

Reserve your seats now for the big show; it promises to be more exciting than the one last year—you know, "Life with Joe and Ray" at "What's My Schine."

Big Crackdown Planned On MC Campus

(special to the Smear)

A campus-wide crackdown is about to be made on certain individuals and organizations at Maryville, a spokesman from a highly reliable source has revealed. Faculty and students are likely to be involved in extensive investigations, testimonies, and trials concerning alleged subversiveness. This paper will not hold back any of the details in the belief that the public should know the facts.

It is this paper's opinion that plotting for the violent overthrow of this institution has been operating on a wide scale. Suspicious looking groups have been gathering at the Ruins at regularly appointed hours to do their scheming. Mutterings of a suspicious nature have been known to occur in the dining hall for no known reason.

Strange goings-on have even been reported from Anderson Hall. What leftist conspirator put an empty container for alcoholic

The Misses Sally Butts and Emma Curtis entertained recently in their home on 405 Main Fourth, Pearsons, in celebration of a box which Miss Butts received from her summer home in Waterloo, Iowa.

The History 306 Club met recently in the class room of Mr. Tom Cragan, just off Thaw Blvd., and after a very entertaining program, the group adjourned to the student center where coffee, scrabble, and ping pong were enjoyed by all. This was an unusual meeting as the attendance was nearly perfect.

The latest winners of Club 234 have just been announced by President Kenneth Wilkinson. The triumphants are Tom Paton, Jim Demer, and Marry F. MacCall, XIIII. Club 234 is one of the oldest organizations in the community, having been formed in 1819 for the purposes of studying the arts and sciences of jacks, queens, and kings.

The Misses Billie Marie Lester, Nancy Kidd, and Marilyn Johnston are on an extended visit at the home of Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz, well known in this area for her culinary arts. The Misses Alice Buchanan and Cuddles Lime have recently returned from a similar stay at the Thaw Boulevard mansion.

Do You Have Any Nominations!

Press reports in the Sunday papers gave the Harvard Lampoon list of the "ten worst pictures of 1954." The Lampoon is the humorous monthly on the Harvard campus.

Movies included in the list are "Haji Baba," "No Business Like Show Business," "The Egyptian," "The High and the Mighty," "Magnificent Obsession," "Beau Brummel," "Student Prince," "Knights of the Round Table," "Demetrius and the "Gladiators," and "White Christmas."

Other recognitions credited "The Caine Mutiny" as the "best argument against Naval ROTC," and "The Long Long Trailer" as the "greatest waste of gas."

Movie players Tony Curtis and Grace Kelly were especially mentioned. Curtis was singled out bcause his "marcelled and mobile grease locks . . . have titilated scores of bobby soxers"; Miss Kelly, the editors said, "easily earns the title 'Ironclad Virgin of 1954.'"

Alpha Sig was the second society to organize on campus. It was begun in 1884.

Big, Big, Crackdown

GENERAL VIEW OF BIGGEST CHAOS EVER—Boy what damage there was around here the other day when all the undercutting intrigue caused the building to fall! Up at the top you can see what was left of the downtown part of the great city of Maryville after college people went on a rampage (really it was done by the faculty volleyball team supporters after Bushing, Witherspoon, Cragan, et al., finally got within hte first five in team standings.) Below a group of subversive looking outsiders watch with great glee all the confusion, and (right) this poor sucker is actually crying over it all. Believe it or don't.

spirits on Dean McClelland's desk? Such activity is nothing new; strange messages and objects appeared mysteriously on Miss Blair's desk as early as last semester.

The entertainment here at Maryville is not exempt from signs of underground tendencies. A certain operetta performed in our own theater recently satirized government officials and contained leftist revolutionary elements which were cleverly and subtley disguised so as to be passed over by a gullible audience.

This paper will strive to give the reading public in subsequent editions of the Smear a factual account of any material that is uncovered in the investigations, upholding freedom of the press and barring from print no names which may be connected with subversive activity on our campus. At present no more information has been revealed by the high authorities.

55 Years Ago Alpha Sigma Had 100 Members, Fined When Absent

Alpha Sig Society was a thriving literary organization 55 years ago, according to Professor Edgar R. Walker who was then a member. Prof. Walker, who was 17 at that time, says that there were over 100 members and the attendance was very good at all the meetings, for there was a fine levied for all absences.

Alpha Sig was divided into two sections: one for the prep-school boys and one for the college students.

The meetings were held once a week in what are now the Bible classrooms on third floor Anderson. The society was purely literary, and there was a debate scheduled for each weeks meeting. Sometimes mock trials were held. Everything was then faculty sponsored.

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

Basketball finally moved out of the spotlight with the finals of the NCAA and NIT held last Saturday. This writer picked all four of the finalists and the winner of the NIT. Big Bill Russell, star center of the San Francisco Dons, proved to be too much for La Salle to handle. All-American Tom Gola was the bit disappointment of the night, scoring only 16 points. Over in the other big tournament the terrific combination of Green and Rickett scored all but 17 of Duguesne's points as the Dukes edged out the Dayton Flyers. The outstanding player of the NIT was Maruive Stokes of little St. Frances of Loretto, Pa. (enrollment 600).

This was the first time the NIT award went to a player not on one of the two finalists teams. St. Francis lost to Cincinnati in the consolation game.

The National Basketball Rules Committee has come up with six new rules changes. The three major changes are (1) Held ball to be called after five seconds of a "freeze" dribble; (2) Free-throw lanes widened from 6 to 12 feet; (3) The bonus rule adopted for the full duration of the game. Two of the changes sems to be good ones, bua the new fire second rule was unfair. Ball handling is part of basketball and just as important as shooting and passing. If a good dribbler can freeze the ball indefinitely all the more power to him. Widening the freethrow lane will cut out many cheap baskets after mised foul shots. Coach Frank McQuire of the University of North Carolina feels that adopting the bonus rule full time will "make basketball a 40 minute game again."

Ted Williams, all-star outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, will return to baseball this year. Ted may give many reasons for changing his mind, but behind them all will be his salary; 100 thousand dollars is a lot of money to pass by!

From Close Up

By Anderson Adams

Ah, glorious spring. Spring is glorious, everyone will agree. What's a little rain in the rosebuds? Primarily in the spring a yonng man's fancy turns to baseball and rolling around the landscape seeing what the turf over yonder looks like.

Now not intending to be the meanest man in the world or any impossible missing link prize package either, it looks like no baseball for ardent fans of swat this year.

Coach Whizzaker of the Knocks anad Rattle Team figured the team is OK but the powers that be turned thumbs down on games of chance, et cetera. Folks, the benches remain unpolished this sem— er, season! The old familiar call, "popcorn, peanuts, cracker jacks" may resound over Ebbetts Field but not here, not here. Whatta Gripe.

Since the Russians, having invented the game, have turned their attention elsewhere, we'll just concentrate on our memories of a glorious past, records in bases stolen (again?) and go on to—swimming and horse racin' yarns. Yarns is right—there ain't no Horses.

Reckon I'm too old to race around town with the women, no golf clubs anyway, so the next best thing maybe we can make the front page by tripping over the young'uns rollerskates or sumpin'.

Did ja ever sniff a rose or maybe a sarvis flower around campus with a bee in it? Huh—that's even a race; the bee won and for the poor old cool sniffer, spring lost its smell for a while. Ah, baseball.

The Yankees and the Phillies can have our nickel popcorn. Nother thing. There's been talk in the major leagues about jumping th gun on spring training, talk of fines for tossing balls around before March 1st. Threat and counter threat. Why, our spring was in February, and there was ball tossin' over the clotheslines long before that! It's a case of the presidents of the leagues fighting it out, then, win or lose, the president of the Association gives 'em the green thumb. So, who's worrying about basketball? Ask the rookies and Coach Whizzaker.

Wal, pip pip y'all, gonna roll over to Cowslip and see if there's any real gone goats or ducks with a story to tell. Ole Jim Demer is sittin' hard in the animal husbandry department, so, as the sayin' goes, No knews is kno news until the rag is put to bed. Are y'allowed to bury rags around here?

On Tuesday, March 10, the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashed the Pre Min A's 15-3 and 15-2. The YMCA Spikers needed three to down the Caballeros 15-5, 5-15, and 15-7., The Bartletteers shellacked the Pre Min Bees 15-10 and 15-4 in the last game of the day.

The Bartletteers started off Friday by winning over their brother team, the Spikers, 15-6 and 15-11. The Athenians trounced the Cabelleros 15-0 and 15-13. The Faculty trotted over the Pre Min A's 5-15, 15-6, and 15-13.

On Monday the Caballeros finally won one 16-14 and 15-13 to the dismay of the Pre Min Bees. The Bartletteers sailed over the Sinners 14-16, 15-6, and 15-5. The Pre-Min A's walloped the YMCA Spikers 5-8 and 15-9.

The Spikers lost to the Athenians 15-5, 8-15, and 15-8 in the first game on Tuesday. The Alpha Sig Blusters trampled the Pre Min Bees 15-2 and 15-7. The Sledgehammers downed the Faculty 15-17, 15-5, and 15-4.

The powerful Bartletteers on Wednesday surprised the Sledgehammers 10-15, 15-8, and 15-11. The Blusters mangled the Caballeros 15-1, 5-15, and 15-6. The Faculty vaulted over the Pre Min Bees 15-4 and 15-8.

On Thursday the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers tangled with their society brothers the Alpha Sig Blusters with the Sledges coming out on the long end of the score, 15-6 and 15-9. The Athenians delivered the trouncing of the season when they beat the Pre Min Bees 15-1 and 15-1. The Pre Min A's fared a little better than did the Bees, downing the Sinners 9-15, 15-12, and 15-4.

On Friday the Athenians flew over the Sinners 15-7 and 16-14. As was expected, the Bartleteers snowed under the Cabelleros 15-4 and 15-10. In the last game of the day the Faculty overcame the YMCA Spikers 15-13 and 15-9.

On Monday of this week the Pre Min A's got the best of the Pre Min Bees 15-9 and 15-9. The Spikers mauled the Sinners 15-11, 4-15, and 15-13. The Bartletteers were successful in downing the Faculty 15-12, 6-15, and 15-8.

The Athenians galloped over the Alpha Sig Blusters 15-12, 3-15, and 15-10. The highly-ranked Bartleteers made it eight in a row by throwing the Pre Min A's 15-6 and 15-1. The Sledgehammers pounded down the Caballeros 15-6 and 15-7.

The Sledgehammers defeated the Sinners 15-2 and 15-8. The basement boys are running true to form, having the same kind of luck this year which they had last. The Spikers were victorious over the hapless Pre Min Bees 15-7 in two games. The Faculty, playing their usual good ball game, triumphed over the Blusters 15-13 and 15-7.

Volleyball ended yesterday with softball beginning on Monday. All team lists for softball should be handed to Coach K. P. Johnson today.

League standings as of Wednesday afternoon:

Bartletteers	8	0
Athenians	6	1
Faculty	6	2
Sledgehammers	6	2
Pre Min A's	4	3
Blusters	4	4
Spikers	3	5
Caballeros	1	6
Sinners	1	7
Pre Min Bees	0	9

ECHO FORUM

Dear Mr. Editor:

Discontent with certain things at MC have been expressed from time to time and in many different ways by both students and faculty. Each desires with great sincerity that the problem should be solved, but while urgency is some what blinded by the trees, Wisdom looks down and ponders which is is needed. Maybe we can look to the past with profit and get back before the time when our troubles started. Something concrete? Let's do away with town night, the movies.

Today if a boy doesn't kiss a girl, she thinks he must be a drip or without emotions—incapable of affections, o rthe girl may get an inferiority complex and feel she is unbearable. And the boy thinks if he doesn't kiss her he will be labelled as drip and get no more dates, or worse yet, thinks he is not all loving and so will quit trying to date. This all must be due to the influence of movies, for the attitude was not in the past generations.

The same thing must be the cause for all the other petty ideas. Let me go back to the time when there was to be no physical contact; it works well in a university over the hill. Holding hands is very childish; you do not see mature adults who are well adjusted in their social life holding hands. If you say it somehow gives a feeling of understanding or unity, then you are admitting the sensation caused by holding hands and there is no telling what will come next. Yes, that is the place to start our reform.

And then when people realize they should not hold hands they will go to functions for the sake of that particular entertainment. No doubt then theer will be less attendance at these affairs, and so Maryville can truly live up to the edge of low expense.

Some of that saving might be passed on to the faculty so they can have a salary worth their efffort. . . .

Very truly yours,
J. B. Adams.

Netmen To Open Season Today

The Highlanders open up the 1955 tennis season with a practice match against the University of Tennessee this afternoon. Coach Johnson's men will play a return match on Maryville's courts Wednesday afternoon.

The netters have a tough road ahead with only three lettermen back from last year's team. Missing are Kent Buser, John Anderson, and Marshall England. Buser and Anderson ended a poor season on a note of victory when they won the state doubles crown at Sewanee last spring.

Ladder matches were in order the past few days making the Highlander line up in doubt for today. The probable order will be Bob, Nier, Captain Sonny Shackleford, Doug Brian, Phil Young, Charlie Partee, and Herb White. Nier, Shackleford, and oung are the returning lettermen.

The schedule:

April 1—Tenn. Wesleyan	Here
April 11—High Point	Here
April 14—LMU	Here
April 15—E. Tenn. State	Here
April 18—Sewanee	There
April 19—Carson-Newman	Here
April 22—E. Tenn. State	There
April 25—TPI	There
April 27—Milligan	There
April 30—Carson-Newman	There
May 3—Chattanooga	Here

two clarinets. The members of this ensemble are Margaret Wilkinson, Jerry Overall, Emma Lou Arnold, and Walt Hiller. The finals on tonight's program will be the well-known "Blue Tail Fly," a folk-like tune by Grundman.

But what happened to that New Year's Resolution in which you promised yourself you'd read a book a week? Kinda behind, aren't you? Well, the Library can remedy that; the New Book Table and the Reading Room Selections offer a wide store to choose from. High on the list of everyone's recommended reading should be Gilbert Highet's "A Clerk of Oxenford," a series of short, highly entertaining, and often amusing essays and lectures. Mr. Highet includes every topic under the sun—and a few that aren't quite.

An essay, entitled "One Smith in a Billion," is devoted to the anecdotes and sayings of a not-too-well-known humorist of the eighteenth century, Sidney Smith; another one dwells at great length on Icelandic sagas and other literature, and Mr. Highet wonders if Iceland didn't perhaps produce earlier and greater literature than the epics we study in sophomore lit (but don't go starting anyone to thinking about it, hear?)

Another chapter deals with Japanese poetry, one with the gentle art of invective, (how to tell one where to go—in a nice way of course), and one presents the steps and necessary precautions necessary for escape from a prison camp. Mr. Highet, of course, includes the inevitable chapter on Hamlet's Madness, which he has cleverly retitled to read, "The Madness of Hamlet."

But by far the most entertaining chapter of all is the one called "Arms and the Woman." In this chapter the author bows to the truth that it is a woman which is behind every great and noble deed of history. Indeed, if it weren't for a woman nudging the elbow of every great hero, there would be no history.

Mr. Highet goes so far as to suggest a series of novels dealing with Molly Madcap. He would open his series with "Molly Madcap and the Civil War," but, remembering Scarlet O'Hara, he denies himself the luxury. He does, however, insist on "Molly Madcap and the Missouri Compromise," "Molly Madcap and the Fourth Crusade," and "Molly Madcap and Her Little Ship the Nina." He sorrowfully rejects the idea of "Molly Madcap and Julius Caesar," because G .B. Shaw beat him to writing it and Vivien Leigh has already popularized the idea.

But it is one of the most entertaining books in the Library.

A new reference edition has recently been added to the library— Appleton-Century Crofts' "New Century Cyclopedia of Names." It is a huge, three volume series including all sorts of information, nowhere else so easily found, gathered together in one set. Within this work there are over 100,000 separate entries, and over 1,000,000 specific facts. Our library is privileged to have such a complete storehouse of material in a single comprehensive work.

In April, 1953, a young acheologist and explorer, Dr. Wendell Phillips visited the campus and spoke at Vespers, showing his movie, "Queen of Sheba Land." Dr. Phillips was recently named one of the Ten Young Men of the Year (1954), in addition to publishing an interesting and informative account of his expeditions in Arabia.

This book, "Qataban and Sheba," is the report of his trips and explorations into strange and exotic civilization buried in the wastelands of southern Arabia. He tells unusual tales of dangerous living and "nightmarish difficulties" in trying to persuade local authorities to allow him and his company to excavate the ancient Sheba moon temple at Awwam, only to be attacked by Arab tribes and barely escaping with their lives.

Two Christopher Fry plays have recently been added to the drama-poetry collection of the library. (Fry will be remembered as the author of "The Lady's Not For Burning," the 1954 spring play). The additions are, strangely, enough, his first publication and his latest. "The Dark Is Light Enough," published in 1954 and enjying a current run on Broadway, starring Katherine Cornell and Tyrone Power, is the story of a Hungarian Countess in the Revolutions of 1848. Fry's first play, "The Boy with a Cart," until recently available only in England ,is the dramatization of the legendary Cuthman, Saint of Sussex, and the youth's determination to success in building a church against all odds

Other intriguing titles on the New Book Table include such things as "The Art of Eating" (by the same author of "How to Cook a Wolf" and "The Gastronomical Me"), "Indiana Basketball," and "Price Making and Price Behavior in the Petroleum Industry." But the titles, "Thurber County" and "The Seven Deadly Sins" at least sound interesting!

Oh, Yes—for the laughs of your life, read the "New Yorker" cartoons.

THE MARTYRS

He joys in the affliction
Who bound with blackened chain
Awaits with prayers, creamation——
The searing heat, the pain

He stands with face illumined
Upon that burning pyre,
Enduring all this world's contempt
And agony of fire.

Another psalms is chanting,
Not silenced by the roar
Of wild beasts whose shaggy manes
Will soon be dripping gore.

He kneeling there upon the sand,
Beneath ten thousand eyes,
Proclaims his faithfulness to all,
As bravely now he dies.

The privilege and the glory
To bear the mocking shame,
To shed the blood of innocence
In witness to His name.

'Tis said by blood of martyrs
The seeds of faith were sown.
They stand arrayed in purest white
Before His kingly throne.

And yet, for all their courage,
Theirs was the easy way
Into the realm of glory
And never ending day.

For men, though saints or devils,
Will suffer patiently,
If only martyred from a stage
For all the world to see.

How brave by far are "martyrs"
Who in secret bear the chain,
That binds not hand, but spirit
And bows it low in pain.

For these endure with patience
Without one pitying eye,
To help them as they suffer,
To help them as they die.

And He alone sustaining,
Wipes away the tears
That flow not for a moment
But through the long dark years.

Perhaps in His great wisdom,
In His omniscient eyes,
They stand of all most blessed
In that fair paradise.

—Bill Deerfield

MR. AND MRS. HENRY ALEXANDER VAWTER, 217 Mountain View Boulevard, Maryville, have announced the engagement of their daughter Olivia Carlyle to Snell Austin Mills, Jr. of Inverness, Fla.

Both Mr. Mills and Miss Vawter will be graduated from Maryville College in May, and will be married May 21 at Broadway Methodist Church in Maryville. Miss Vawter is a member of Theta Epsilon and Mr. Mills is a member of Alpha Sigma society on campus.

Concert Band To Play Tonight

Under the direction of Ralph Moore a Band Concert is to be presented this evening in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 8 o'clock.

Highlights of the concert, composed of 25 picked players, will include the beloved and familier music of all time.

Bill Van Zant will conduct the band in the Sousa March followed by "Saber and Spurs," a rousing martial air.

The clarinet quartet, composed of Roberta Gibbs, Margaret Potts, Webb Gentry and Eugene Jenkins, sets a new pace in spirit in "Folk Dance" by Harry Harter. This selection of two clarinets and two flutes is played by Margaret Wilkinson, Jerry Overall, Emma Lou Arnold and Walter Hiller.

The brass choir composed of nine players then execute Fred Wyman's "Pentambulism" and the following "Interlude" by Morrissey is a clarinet solo played by Walt Hiller.

Continuing and concluding highlights of the concert this evening also include the "Overture" to Messiah by Handel, and then some favorite George Gershwin selections. Of note and humorous recollection to many tonight will be Grundman's "Blue Tail Fly," a concluding part of the concert.

Her home is in Chicago, and she is a psychology major. Miss Hubbard belongs to Bainonian Society.

Miss Jones

Patricia Jones is a history major from Elizabethton. This year she has served on the YWCA cabinet on publicity. In Theta Epsilon she has been an active member, serving as vice president this year. She works in the college bookstore and assists in the history department.

Kesler

James Kesler is now in Princeton Theological Seminary, having completed his college work at Maryville last Decmeber. He is the only member of this group who was graduated at Christmas. Mr. Kesler while at Maryville was an Athenian, on Student Council, in Vesper Choir, and Pre-Ministerial. He also was quite active in Parish work. His home is in North Hills, Pa:. and he was a Greek major.

Miss Kiefer

Marilyn Kiefer is an English major from Easton, Pa. She is currently president of YWCA on campus and belongs to Bainonian society. She was also named to Who's Who last fall, and is now a member of Student Council. Also she is on the student program committee and serves on Social Board. Her freshman year she was a members of Girls' Choir and has been in Vesper Choir during this year. Last spring she was in the Daisy Chain, and was in Writers' Workshop her junior year.

Miss Orr

Ruth Orr is a French major from Maryville. She is this year's secretary of Student Council, and is also on the council executive committee. She was a member of Vesper Choir her first three years in college, and has been active in Playhouse. She is quite active in Theta, currently serving as president. She was a majorette for four years.

Miss Pledger

Sarah Pledged is a mathematics major from Birmingham, Ala. Since she has been at Maryville Miss Pledger has been one of the more active members of the college debate squad. This year she is president of Pi Kappa Delta. For three years she has been a Y-Radio director, and she is in Writers' Workshop. She has been teaching a freshman mathematics class since the death of Professor Augustus Sisk.

Thompson

Richard Thompson is a Greek major from Dunellen, N.J. He transferred to Maryville his sophomore year from Rutgers in New Jersey. He is a member of Athenian Society, and Pre-Ministerial, and works in the college parish organization.

White

Herbert White is an English major from White Plains, N. Y. For two years he has been on Student Council and YMCA cabinet. He was president of his junior class and is currently on council's elections committee. Mr. White is also in Playhouse and has been in Writers' Workshop since he was a junior. This year he has been on the Governing Board.

Newell Witherspoon, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, also announced this week that the Society is sponsoring a fund for a scholarship. Their goal now is $1,000, he said, and about $625 has been gathered so far.

Such a scholarship would be the income earned per annum for the total fund, and would be presented to the student having the highest average at the end of his sophomore year. The sum would be applied on the next year's tuition at Maryville College.

Other officers of the Society include Edwin J. Best, vice president; and Dr. E. R. Hunter, secretary-treasurer.

Faculty members who belong in addition to Mr. Witherspoon and Dr. Hunter are Miss Evelyn Guss (Phi Beta Kappa member), President, R. W. Lloyd; Miss Viola Lightfoot, Miss E. Frances Massey, Miss Dorothy Vawter, Miss Sarah Brown, and Miss Arda Walker.

Easter Rites To Begin Today

Council Approves Two By-Laws; Hears CD Official

Council last Wednesday night revised by-laws numbered two and three for the new constitution. The by-laws were ratified by the student council and were passed on to the executive council for their action on Thursday afternoon.

By-law number two is concerned with the formation of an athletics committee as a part of the student council and the dissolving of the old Athletic Association.

By-law number three is concerned with the formation of a Social Committee as a part of the student council, thereby dissolving the Social Board and making the chairman of this committee an appointee of the council.

These by-laws have already been reviewed by the Student-Faculty Senate and were passed Frday, April 4.

The elections committee announced the schedule of the student election to be held this month to elect the President and the Vice President of the student body for the coming year.

A meeting of all candidates and their managers is to be held Monday morning. Candidates will review the rules of procedure for elections on the campus and will be instructed in the schedule for the week's activities.

The elections committee also stated that the classes will hold meetings for the nominations of their officers for the coming year on Wednesday. The voting for the class officers will be on the following day.

Social Board Chairman Harry McCall reported the week-end activities as the annual Easter play that is sponsored by Y.M. and Y.W.C.A. for this Saturday night.

Once again there were no town night violations.

The regular council meeting was adjourned, and Mary Ann Thompson introduced Mrs. A. D. Howell, Deputy Director of Civil Defense in Blount County.

Mrs. Howell spoke on the need for a civil defense force here on our campus and gave council many helpful suggestions for settings up such a plan. She informed council that this area is number five on the top target priority lists and that the need for such a plan on MC campus is a primary one.

A committee has been appointed to look into the matter and to work out some type of plan with the administration. Then if the setting up of this Civil Defense force seems advisable and practicable further steps will be taken. The feeling is now, however, that it is too late in the school year to take any final action on such an important and widespread plan, it was indicated.

Pre-Mins To Elect New Officers

The Pre-Ministerial Association will meet on Thursday, April 14, at 6:45 in the Y Rooms.

PAUL SCHREIBER AND HIS well-known St. Louis Sinfonietta are pictured here as they will perform here on the night of April 15. Mr. Schreiber's ensemble program ventures from symphonies to harp-strings. The concert will be presented in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel and will begin at 8 p.m.

St. Louis Sinfonietta Last In Artist Series

Orchestral Group Is Fourth Concert

The St. Louis Sinfonietta will appear in Maryville on April 15. This is the fourth concert in the current Maryville College-Community Artist Series. The concert will begin at 8:15 in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

Paul Schrieber, founder and conductor of the St. Louis Sinfonietta, conceived the idea some years ago of creating a small concerta orchestra for the purpose of bringing symphonic music to audiences everywhere. The group includes not only the usual strings but also every instrument represented in a full symphonic orchestra.

This instrumentation permits authoritative presentation of the classic symphonies of Haydn, Mozart and Schubert, the impressionistic compositions of Ravel and Debussy, as well as the modern orchestrations of Gershwin, Morton Gould and Jerome Kern.

Since its formation in 1937, the St. Louis Sinfonietta has toured constantly. Its first "tour" consisted of but a single concert. The tours gradually expanded until now the orchestra, traveling in its own custom-built bus, brings symphonic music to audiences throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Christian Ed. Major To Highlight New Curriculum Offerings Next Year

By Don Adams

Among the new course offerings for the coming fall semester is a new major field in Christian Education. Dean Edwin R. Hunter has announced that the new major is being set up according to certain agencies of the church as preparation for full time workers in Christian Education. It is expected that many young women will take advantage of this new offering, the dean said.

The major program is as follows:

1. Principles, Organization and Administration, (203), three hours;
2. Materials and Methods (204), three hours, plus one hour of practice;
3. Bible (101 plus two others), ten hours;
4. Teachings of Jesus (Philosophy 204), three hours, and Ethics (Philosophy 211), three hours;
5. Counselling (to be announced), three hours;
6. Church History (Religion 316) three hours are included in the Christian Education major, making a total of 28 hours.

In addition students taking the major are required a Special Studies for 6 hours credit.

The following related courses are required in the new Christian Education major. Development Psychology (218), three hours; Recreation and Leadership (Physical Ed. 311), three hours; Group Leadership (Examples: Art 42, 313, Drama and Speech 310 and Music 421, etc.), four hours.

Students planning for this major will take Bible 101 their freshman year. The articulation of the other items with the student's total program will be worked out in the near future. Advanced students wishing to adjust to this new major should consult members of the staff in attempting to work out a program.

Dr. Hunter has also announced new course offerings in Drama, English and Latin for next year.

There are four new course offerings in Drama: Drama 102, 103, Introduction to the Theatre, is a two-semester beginning course for drama majors. Also offered are Drama 305, (advanced acting), and Drama 312, (Design for the Theatre.)

The English Department offers a new course in Advanced Composition, (329), three hours, and Dr. Hunter also announced that English 334, (Shakespeare) has been reduced to a one-semester course and will be taught the second semester.

A new course in Latin, Composition (Latin 209), four hours; and a course in Industrial Psychology, (Psychology 311), three hours, round out the new offerings for the coming year.

Honor Committee Counting Results Of Questionnaire

The committee appointed to investigate different honor systems of American colleges reports that the ballots filled out by students in chapel last week are still being counted and information from them is still being compiled.

This committee is made up of three faculty members; Dean McClelland, Dr. Case, and Mr. Bushing; and three students: Barbara Chubb, Herb White, and Bill Deerfield. They expect to make a definite report sometime in the near future.

Sig, Theta To Meet Jointly

Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma will have a joint meeting at Theta hall at 6:20, tonight.

A special program is planned.

'Under The Stars' Is Spring Dance Theme

Formal Set For April 23

By Carolyn Cones

"Under the Stars" will be the theme of the annual Spring Formal which Athenian and Bainonian are sponsoring.

This formal will be held on Saturday, April 23 at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. Henry Emmans and Buddy Jenkins with an organ-piano combination will provide the music for the evening.

Tickets will be $1.25 per couple and will go on sale next week, it was announced.

Members of the committee who are working out the details of the formal include Barbara Belmore, Jim Crawford, Ray Sammons, Dee Woods, and Ann Yater.

Marcia Williams Elected President Of Playhouse

At a recent meeting of Playhouse, Marcia Williams, junior drama major from Peeksill, N. Y., was elected president for 1955-56. Other officers elected were Bill Deerfield, sophomore English major, vice-president; Liz Frei, junior art major, secretary; and Joan McNaughton, sophomore English major, treasurer.

Plans for a spring picnic were discussed, at which time persons who have recently achieved the rank of Player or Master-Player will be formally recognized.

Lynn To Teach Business Next Year

Robert A. Lynn, '52, has been appointed an instructor in Business Administration for the coming year, President Lloyd recently announced.

The classes in Economics and Business Administration now offered, with some additional courses, will be divided between Lynn and Newell Witherspoon.

Lynn is at present a candidate for the Master's degree in Business Administration at the University of Tennessee. He is married to Naomi Burgos, '54.

'The Lottery' To Be Given On April 16

Elizabeth Daniels, Instructor in Speech and Dramatics, has announced the cast of the next Experimental Theater play to be given Saturday, April 16. "The Lottery," a drama by Brainerd Duffield, is adapted from the story by Shirley Jackson.

With the exception of a few roles the cast is complete with the following: Martin, Bill Creamer; Delacroix, Chuck Wagner; Hutchison, Herb Catlin; Mrs. Dunbar, Judy Ross; Mrs. Watson, Susan Cook; Mrs. Besson, Isabel Easley; Old Man Warner, Tony Clark; Belva Summers, Lottie Jerkins; Joe Summers, Herchel Netherton; and Tossie Hutchison, Ann Wiley.

Ruby Roberts To Read At Writers' Workshop

Writer's Workshop will meet Monday, April 18, at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Ruby Roberts will read and Margaret Blackburn will criticize.

The election of new members will also be considered.

Full Preparations Now Underway For 'Pygmalion'

By Bill Deerfield

On May 7 and again on May 15, George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, this year's commencement play, will be presented in the Theatre at 8.

The play, directed by Miss Kathleen Craven, will star Nancy Rideout as Eliza Doolittle and Bob Lorenz as Professor Higgins. Anne Buckley will play the role of Higgin's mother; Joan McNaughton will play his housekeeper, Mrs. Pearce; Bill Deerfield will play Colonel Pickering, Higgin's elderly friend; and Bill Heird will portray Eliza's roughish father. Others in the cast will include Jean Morgan as Mrs. Eynsford Hill, Ruth Orr as her daughter Clara, Cary Valentine as her son Freddy, and Abigail Crosby as Mrs. Higgins' maid.

The action of the play centers around a bet, made by Pickering with Phonetician Higgins, that the latter can't train Eliza, a Cockney flower vendor, in the arts of diction, grammar, and social grace and then pass her off as a fine lady at an ambassador's garden party.

Once the bet is made, the fun, which for the most part is contained in Eliza's verbal blunders as she attempts to learn the king's English, begins.

The members of the cast, who have been rehearsing since March, are working hard to perfect authentic English accents which director Craven feels will be necessary for a play whose theme is language and whose humor depends so much on witty, sophisticated dialogue.

The presentation of "Pygmalion" will utilize much of the equipment in the new theater. The set committee, under the direction of designer Bob Brand, will construct two completely furnished interiors in the ornate, overstuffed style of the early part of this century. A third scene, set out of doors, will require, a London drizzle and a taxi-cab, both of which will be realistically created by special effects apparatus.

Don Thiel will act as stage manager for the production. Morris Netherton will head the stage crew, and Marcia Williams will be house manager.

The make-up, lighting, costume, and publicity committees are in the process of being selected.

Sunrise Service At 6:10 A.M.

By Ruth Wilson

Tomorrow, at 4:50 a.m. a group of band members will begin the first of the traditional Easter Day ceremonies at Maryville, by playing either from the tower in Anderson Hall, or if it is too dark, under the streetlight in front of the book store.

Later on they will retire to the Woods, playing as the people walk to the amphitheatre.

One of the events that does not take place on the day itself, however, is also an old custom, the presentation of an Easter-centered program the night before. Tonight such a program is being given in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center, at 8 o'clock.

It is a choral reading entitled "For Us He Suffered," and was arranged and directed by John Graulich. The cast includes Sally Butts, Rachel McCastalain, Clara Gowans, Don Nabors, Harold O'Bannon, John Ribble, David Spilver, Lyle Talbot, and Sidney Tedford, with Mary Brasfield at the organ.

Sunrise Service

The Sunrise Service, probably the most inspiring and impressive of all traditional functions, will begin at 6:10 a.m.

Dr. Francis Pritchard of New Providence Presbyterian Church will present a meditation on "The Discarded Cornerstone." Dr. Jerry Elwood, the assistant pastor at New Providence, will also take part in the service.

The Vesper Choir will sing several anthems during the service. Opening the devotions, is one anthem which has opened countless Sunrise Services of Maryville's past, "Christ Is Arisen," by Hirsch. Also included is the hymn that will re-echo from Easter Services all over the whole nation, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." "Ye Shall Have a Song," from Randall Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom," is scheduled, too.

It is requested by the college that people coming in cars enter the campus from the Wilkinson Pike entrance to get to the Woods. The road leading from the center of campus to the Woods will be blocked to automobiles.

In the afternoon, a recording of Handel's "Messiah" will be played in Baldwin Parlor, for those who wish to hear it. Probably one of the more popular things to do is to walk in the College Woods. It is necessary to have at least two couples to take advantage of this privilege, permitted on Easter Sunday.

Dr. Frank McClelland will be the principle speaker at Easter Vespers. The choir will sing Randall Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom" in its entirity. With this program, Easter at Maryville is ended.

Traditional Service Held On Friday

Students observed Good Friday yesterday morning in the annual traditional chapel service, with the Vesper Choir and three faculty members participating.

Dr. H. E. Orr presided over the service in the absence of President Lloyd.

The Choir offered the following anthems: "Go to Dark Gethsemane" by T. Tertius Noble, and "Crucifixion" from The Passion Trilogy, a Ukranian Canticle. As response after the scripture readings and meditations, the choir also sang a special adaptation of the Seven Last Words of Christ.

Miss Evelyn Guss, Dr. Paul J. Cooper, and Dr. D. H. Briggs were faculty members who read the scripture and gave five-minute meditations.

At the close of the service, Dr. Orr read the Biblical account of the burial of Christ. A unison prayer followed.

M C Debaters Defeat Visiting Harvard Squad

Jo Ann Brooks and Sarah Pledger of Maryville's debate squad Monday morning defeated Vance Larson and Joseph Frank, representating Harvard University, in a specially arranged meet here on campus.

The two schools debated the national college debate proposition for this year: "Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China." Harvard took the affirmative; Maryville, the negative.

Judges for the special event were Mrs. Martin Badgett, drama and speech instructor at Maryville High School; Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of New Providenee Presbyterian Church; and Joe K. Walker, vice president of the Bank of Maryville.

Debate coach Newell Witherspoon presided at the meet. In announcing the decision, he stated that the match was "very close." The Harvard debaters are on a special spring tour of this area, and made Maryville their first stop. From here they went to Bowling Green, Ky., for another debate Monday night to continue their tour.

Miss Brooks is a political science major from Louisville, Ky., and Miss Pledger is a mathematics major from Birmingham, Ala.

Edwin J. Best To Speak April 28 For Alpha Gamma Sigma Chapel

MC Alumni president Edwin J. Best of Maryville will be guest speaker for the special Alpha Gamma Sigma recognition service on April 28, AGS president Newell Witherspoon announced this week.

Ten seniors recently chosen for membership in the college scholarship society will be recognized publicly at that time. President R. W. Lloyd will preside at the service.

Students elected to the society include Barbara Chubb, Harry Hassall, Barbara Hubbard, Pat Jones, Jim Kesler, Marilyn Kiefer, Ruth Orr, Sarah Pledger Richard Thompson, and Herb White.

Mr. Best is an alumnus of Maryville College, having been graduated with the class of 1936. His occupation is as an auditor for the Tennessee Valley Authority in the Knoxville offices, but he makes his home in Maryville. His wife is a sister of Mrs. A. F. Pieper.

Mr. Best is vice president this year of Alpha Gamma Sigma. While at Maryville, he majored in English and did honors work in that field on comedy in the York cycle of drama.

Alpha Gamma Sigma speaker last year was Dr. Raymond Paty, one of the directors of TVA.

Our Own Rebirth

The thoughts of new life which invariably enter our minds with the blossoming of spring turn our hearts and minds toward our own hope for rebirth through Christ.

It is fitting that Easter comes in the spring, for what is a more fitting season for this religious observance? Spring is the season of the reawakening of nature; the return to life of those things dormant or presumed dead. Should not this reawakening of nature make us mindful of our lax acceptance of Christ and make us want to reestablish a firm faith in the Risen One?

There are so many things in nature this time of year which should turn our thoughts to the day of resurrection so long ago. One of the first signs of spring is the blossoming o fthe Dogwood. As you might know from "The Legend of the Dogwood," the cross upon which our Lord was nailed, was supposedly made of the wood of a Dogwood tree.

With the dawning of Easter tomorrow let us pledge anew our faith in our resurrected Lord.

Ability Counts

With the all-campus elections in the near future, it is wise for us to stop and think again just exactly what is involved in holding such an office and what the qualifications are for it.

The President of the Student Body has, perhaps, the biggest job on the campus. It is through him that policy is formed and regulations enforced; and it is he who represents the college to freshmen and visitors. In short, he is the official spokesman of Maryville College.

Needless to say, in this respect, intelligent voting is necessary. Too often a student thinks that his one vote won't count—but it will. That one vote is just as important to the candidate in some respects as a unanimous vote is in other respects.

When casting a ballot, it is important to keep several things in mind, the most pressing of which is "Why am I voting for this candidate?" Is it because he always has a big grin for everyone? Is it because he makes straight A's, so naturally he'd be a good officer? Is it because all my friends told me to vote for him? Or is it because I honestly think he has more ability than anyone else to do the job?

If the student's reason for voting as he does is founded on the last question, he is safe in so casting his ballot. But if his reason is founded on any other basis, perhaps he had better revise his thinking before voting.

Ability, then, is the main criterion of judgement in determining who is most fit for the office. To be sure, ability without a sense of responsibility and integrity is worthless; but the latter characteristics will be of no use whatever if the officer does not possess ability.

More On Campus Debates

The Echo extends its own and the entire campus' heartiest congratulations to Miss Jo Brooks and Miss Sarah Pledger for an exceptionally fine display of debating skill in the meet with Harvard University last Monday. We were quite happy to witness the representatives of our school showing the type of speaking ability which we so often hear about.

It has brought to many people's minds a wish that more intercollegiate debates could be attended by the students on campus who do not participate in the activity themselves. Probably this has been a problem since the four societies ceased to have debates for their Saturday evening entertainment.

The recent series of freshman debates seems to have done a great deal in creating interest among students just beginning college, and in recognizing one member as the outstanding freshman debater.

We do hope that more on-campus debates such as the one with Harvard can be arranged in the future so the entire student body will have a chance to become familiar with and understand the workings of a debate squad. In addition to creating interest in debate itself, it will do much toward providing a stimulant for student interest in current affairs, a thing badly needed here.

Scots & Soda

By Bob Evans

This here's the story of Little Red Rooding Hide, a communist subversive. Some say that this kid was a square but I'm here to tell you that this gal was no square. She was really with it and could tell a chapel from an airplane hanger any day in the week.

Red's grisly little story starts when her activities were brought to the attention of the public. She was sent before Student Council on the following charge: shorting out Mrs. Shepard's television cameras in the bushes, stealing silverware and hymnals, reading notes passed in chapel and lastly and mostly unheard putting "Gilbey's Gin" into the punch served at Carnegie's open house.

: : : :

When brought before the un-Maryvillian Activities Committee, she was rather uncooperative and hid behind the Student Center.

When asked, "How long you been in this country?", she replies, "All day."

The committee continued with the inquiry "What's the difference between a duck? Why is a horse?"

She very cleverly stated, "You're still about a quart short, Stella."

"Is it true that on the night of Marchuary the sixth and seven-eighths you signed out to the library and went into town?" queried the attorney for the offense.

"Yes," replied Red.

"For what purpose?"

"To attend a political meeting."

: : : :

The attorney for the Student Council called as his first witness, Ralph Irwin.

"Mr. Irwin, is it true that many times during the course of an evening you leave your automobile on matters of business?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is it also true, sir, that you very often leave your keys in your automobile?"

"Yes, that is so."

"That's all we wanted to know. Thank you sir. Your witness!"

: : : :

The attorney presented as his next witness, Hyrltnprd Clmstck, a Martian. (For your sake and for my safety, I shall call this witness "Mr. Ex. For you see, if I spelled that name out about five more times, I think the Linotype operator might seriously consider breaking my wrist.)

Mr. Ex, before I begin the questioning, I wonder if you would like to make a statement?" asked the attorney for the offensive.

"Ah-ah-ah-chooo!"

"Thank you, sir. Your a witness."

Next the offensive attorney called the deferent, Miss Hide, back to the stand. Placing her hand on a Mad Comic she swore the oath of allegiance and sang a few bars of the Alma Mater.

"Is it true, Miss Hide, that you instigated a strike against pop quizzes and in so doing incited a riot?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is it also true that you led a band of students who broke several windows in Anderson Hall, threw a bomb into the Personnel Office and cut off all means of communication to and from the building in the course of the rioting."

"Yes, indirectly I had a part in the vandalism in Anderson Hall."

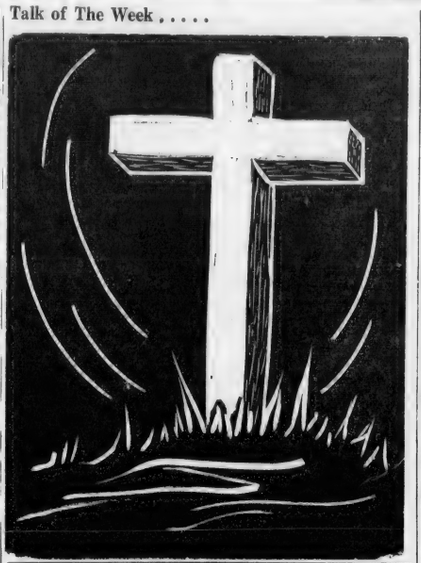
: : : :

Suddenly the trial was interrupted as a woman, later identified as Miss Abigail Crosby, jumped up from her seat, screaming hysterically, and fainted.

"Are you also acting chairman of the Tuesday Morning Club?"

"I was, sir, until I went to Vespers last Sunday night."

"Thank you, Miss Hide. Your witness."



"No questions," replied the counsel for the defendant.

At this point in the trial there was another disturbance created when two boys (the Echo is withholding their names because of their respective ages), well known on campus, bust into the courtroom, ran down the center aisle, and left hurriedly by a side door. Shortly thereafter Ralph (Irwin, that is) entered the courtroom, and pursued the same course as did the two boys.

After many more hours of questioning by the attorney for the offense, the trial was brought to an end with Red being found guilty by a jury composed of six women (they hated her!) and three men (they never did find out what the other three were). The judged sentenced her to (1) proofread all freshmen research themes and special studies reports for this year, (2) glue leaves on the new tree in the chapel courtyard until it had full foilage, and (3) count the bricks and panes of glass in the west wall of the Fine Arts Center.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Carolyn Cones

If you have no desire to tackle any outside reading but would like to attend a movie, we can't be of too much help. The listings for the Park weren't available at the time of this writing, but today the Capitol is featuring "The Silver Star" with a cast of unknowns and "Hell Raiders of the Deep," a foreign picture with Eleonora Rossi Drago and Pierre Crassoy. On Monday and Tuesday "Young at Heart" with Frank Sinatra and Doris Day will be playing. "On the Waterfont," the movie that won Marlon Brando and the Academy Award, is listed simply as "comin", so if you want to see this one, be watching for the date.

Edgar Allen Poe must have been psychic, for surely he must have been thinking of the Maryville freshmen when he penned the lines, "Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered weak and weary over a many quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore. . . ."

For the most part, however, the agony of the freshmen research papers is over, and although some of the references used were perhaps "quaint," a number of books were unearthed in the library which would be of interest to the general reader as well as the researcher.

One such book is Voltaire, a short biography by Andre Maurois of the fiery Frenchman who was a politician, philosopher, scientist, reformer, theologian, and playwright. If you have ever wanted to learn more about Voltaire but hesitated to take the initial step because you feared that he was too deep for you, this book might prove to be a good starting place. The many and varied events in the life of this extraordrinary man are given in chronological order, and his basic philosophy is stated in terms that anyone can understand. The presentation is straight-forward, yet spiced by a number of the colorful incidents which occurred in the life of Voltaire, and, what is probably more important, is easy and interesting to read.

One research paper was written on the Great Smokies, and one of the references was, appropriately enough, "Great Smokies", a book by Laura Thornburgh which deals with the history, legends, geology, plants, animals, peaks, fishing, and recreation of these mountains. Although this piece of work is by necessity factual, it is not dry reading because the author has managed to inject humor into her writing.

Another paper was done on a writer, Bess Streeter Aldrich, so some of her novels, including "A Lantern in Her Hand", were read by the researcher. This particular book is a historical novel which vividly portrays the hardships of a pioneer family in Nebraska. The story is, in reality, a character study of Abbie Deal, a woman who wanted to become a singer and to possess fine clothes and a respected place in society but instead lead the hard life of a pioneer mother. Her reward was one of watching the talents developing in her own children.

"Seven Steeples" by Margaret Hendrickson is another novel which is outstanding because of its characterization. The plot is woven around a woman minister, but the story is actually one of Maine and her people. If you prefer to read the novel which is dependent upon local color, you might like this one.

Everyone knows that phyisologically you feel better when you laugh than when you cry, but "Laughter and Health" tells you that is also better for your wellbeing. This entertaining, nontechnical books says, among other things, that laughter causes the organs to joggle, hence they are massaged, and blood circulation is increased.

To Hold Joint Meeting

Athenian and Bainonian will hold a "Depression Party" in Bartlett Hall tonight at 6:15.

Amidon, Miss Cathey Elected Y Heads

Forrest Amidon, English major from Erie, Pa., was elected next year's YMCA president in elections held last week. He succeeds Jim Fisher.

Others elected include Charles Williams, vice-president; Bruce Ingles, secretary; Gavin Douglas, treasurer; and Gary Pennington, freshman representative to the advisory board.

Newly-elected YWCA officers are Ethelyn Cathy, president; Betty McKinney, vice-president; Ka Leeth, secretary; Evelyn Blackburn, treasurer; and Ann Kelton, Nu Gamma leader.

A joint picnic-outing of YWCA and YMCA will be held Saturday, April 16, at Whiskey Hollow.

Y-Retreat To Be Held April 29, 30

The annual Y-Retreat will be held this year April 29 and 30 at Laurel Lake.

There will be two guests during the entire stay who will lead the worship services. They will be Al Payne, who is the General YMCA Secretary of the Southern region and Dorothy Whipple who is from Peabody and is a Danforth Foundation Graduate.

The main emphasis of this year's Y-Retreat is the purpose and function of the Student Christian movement.

French Club Sees Slides

French Club met last Friday evening, April 1, at the home of Miss Wilkinson. Slides of France were shown, and refreshments were served.

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

Here we are with only two more days until comps. Plenty of time to write an interesting and controversial sports column. Something that will make people sit up and take notice. It would have to be good to be classified with the other fine columns we have had this year. And after all, student participation on the sports page has been so great that we have had to turn copy away. Week after week the editor is besieged by so many sports stories that even Grantland Rice would suffer from the keen competition. Thus with all the help we have had, it is inevitable that students turn to this page first; even putting down their new copy of Sports Illustrated. So what if we leave out a baseball, tennis, or basketball story every week? Well—better luck to the sports staff next year.

Speaking of Sports Illustrated, I don't know of a better source of plagiarism for a senior who doesn't want to fail comps. Here is a letter to the editor taken from the April 4 issue of SI, concerning a seasonal sport, baseball.

Sir:

I just want to get my two cents about baseball in.

It is often said that the world hasn't really improved much in the last two centuries. This may be true about some things; however, two centuries ago the people of the world were without one of the most enjoyable things in life: baseball.

Amazing isn't it that those ancestors of ours who were such smart fellows hadn't put their heads together and invented the game that today thrills millions each year. We can only be thankful that we live in a time in which baseball is one of the necessities of life.

However, this great neglect can, to some extent, explain difficulties suffered by those not so fortunate.

For example: If Romeo had lived when there was baseball, no doubt he and Juliet would have had a much more private love affair, what with all the kin out at the ball park. Or imagine how much sooner America would have been discovered if the scouts had been out looking for good ballplayers. They wouldn't have let a little ocean stand between them and a pennant. And if King George had been a baseball fan he wouldn't have wasted all those strong soldiers fighting the Yankees; he would have given them bats so they could play the Yankees. George Washington would have been the best rookie to come along in years with that throwing arm of his. Why, come to think of it, the civilization of the world would be greatly advanced today if only baseball had come along about the time of Adam.

Course we are fortunate to have had it invented when it was. Suppose it still didn't exist: The world might not have found any reason for inventing the radio for use in the late spring, the summer, and the early fall. Simply because there wouldn't have been anything worth listening to. Horrors! What a calamity that would be.

Good grief! What a relief it happened at all.

Monday, March 28, the Scots dropped a 9-0 practice match to the University of Tennessee netters. Last Saturday the Vols led 4-0 in a return match when the rains came.

High Point College of North Carolina will be the Scots' next tennis opponent on the home courts this Monday afternoon.

Baseballers To Play LMU On Monday; Down Airmen In Opening Season

By Jim Demer

The baseball team's first game proved to be a winning one as they rolled over McGhee-Tyson airbase 9-1 the day of the big holiday.

Bob Ramger, Bob DeLozier, and Fred "Rosie" Roseborough divided the pitching chores with Rapid Ramger getting the win. Bill Dent with a bases-loaded triple and a homer by Don Moore provided the big blows in the game. Everyone saw duty in the practice session.

Two games have been rained out; one with Tennessee Wesleyan and one with the Vols. A game with the U-T Freshman team has been set for May 9.

The schedule:

April 14—Cincinnati	Here
April 15—Tusculum	There
April 16—Tennessee Wesleyan	There
April 18—East Tennessee State	Here
April 21—Tennessee	Here
April 22—Emory and Henry	Here

May 9—McGhee-Tyson	Here
May 14—Tusculum	Here

rain the two teams met again. The Howies were determined to avenge their defeat while the Chillies were eager to keep on winning. Jane Kirkpatrick started pitching for the Chillies and Liz Murphy for the Howies. Emma Curtis soon came in for the Chillies and pitched the rest of the game. Liz pitched the whole game for the Howies. At the end of the first inning the Howies led 4-0. Liz kept the Chillies to a low of 3 runs while the Howies moved ahead to win by 12 runs.

The annual Spring M-Club hike is scheduled for April 16 and 17. At this hike the new members of Women's M-Club are initiated. The hike is to be at Laurel Lake and all are looking forward to it with the exception of the neophytes who usually work pretty hard during these two days. Beware Neophytes! !

The YMCA Bartletteers won the volleyball tournament last Wednesday, and softball began on Friday.

On Thursday, March 24, the YMCA Bartletteers eked out a victory over the Athenians 16-14, 7-15 and 15-8. The Pre-Min A's walloped the Caballeros 15-1 and 15-3. The Alpha Sig Blusters got the best of the YMCA Spikers 18-16, 10-15 and 15-3.

The Alpha Sig Sledgehammers won by forfeit over the Pre-Min Bees. The Sinners came out on the long end of the score 17-15 and 15-9 over the Caballeros. The Faculty squad surprised the Athenians 10-15, 16-14, and 15-11.

League Standings as of Wednesday Afternoon

Team	W	L
Bartletters	9	0
Faculty	7	2
Sledgehammers	7	2
Athenians	6	3
Pre-Min A's	5	4
Blusters	5	4
Spikers	3	6
Sinners	1	8
Caballeros	2	7
Pre-Min Bees	0	9

The volleyball single elimination tournament began on Monday.

In the first game of the tournament the Alpha Sig Blusters shellacked the Sinners 15-7, 9-15, and 15-7. The Athenians flew over the YMCA Spikers 16-14 and 15-8. The YMCA Bartletteers trounced the Pre-Min Bees 15-9 and 16-14.

On Tuesday the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers smashed the Caballeros 15-5 and 15-12. The Athenians trotted over the Pre-Min A's 15-6, 5-15, and 15-7. The Faculty team nosed out the Alpha Sig Blusters 15-11, 6-15 and 16-14.

The Athenians sailed over the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers 14-16, 15-4, and 15-4. Finally the YMCA Bartletteers downed the Faculty 13-15, 15-7 and 15-5 and the Athenians 15-4, 6-15, and 15-10 to take the tournament.

Friday was the first day of a new month and also the beginning of the softball season.

In the first game of the year the strong Alpha Sig Sledgehammers thrashed the Athenians 24-7.

On Monday Ted Godfrey pitched a one-hitter for Mountaineers as they trampled the YMCA team 4-0.

The Diablos Rojos squeezed by the Alpha Sig Doobers 13-12 on Tuesday afternoon.

The smooth-playing Crows mauled the Pre-Mins' squad 10-0 on Wednesday. Tom Berrong pitched hitless ball for the Crows.

VAA Beginning Outdoor Sports

By Joan Herschelman

With spring approaching, the members of the Women's Athletic Association are turning to the outdoor sports of track and softball after two months of basketball and swimming.

Since the revision of the point system has taken place, the girls love to keep on their toes to make the team in order to secure points toward a sweater or letter and "M" Club membership. A complete revision of the rules is in progress at the present time and the new rules will be more practical and workable than the old ones.

With the election of captains and managers the real team play began. Mary K. Alison captured the leading position for the Chillies and Joan Jefferson is manager. For the Howies, Joanie Herschelman is captain and Betty Cutler manager. These four girls have the responsibility of the team and its play. They pick the team and substitute during games.

The Chillies were the victors in the first game defeating the Howies by a score of 11-9 last Tuesday. The Howies led until the top of the third inning when the Chillies came ahead to win. Emma Curtis led the Chillies as pitcher and the entire team worked hard to defeat the favored Howies.

New Athletics Committee By-Laws

The following is the text of By-Laws two which will be included with other such by-laws to accompany the recently-approved student body constitution. This particular document provides fo rthe establishment of an athletics committee, with equal numbers of students and faculty, to take the place of the present Athletic Association, which consists of the entire student body.

In order that everyone may understand how the new system would work, the Echo is printing this text in co-operation with the student-faculty committee which has prepared it. At a student body meeting next week, the Athletic Association will meet for the purpose of turning over its duties and authority to this group.

Sec. 1. The Athletics Committee shall be a student-faculty committee composed of the chairman and equal numbers of faculty and students. It shall include the director of Athletics and such members of the Faculty Committee on Athletics as the President of the College shall designate.

Sec. 2. It shall be the function of the Athletics Committee to represent student and faculty poins-of-view in athletic matters, to cooperate with the Director of Athletics and his staff in promoting intramural and intercollegiate athletics, and to carry out the other duties specified in this by-law.

Sec. 3. The Athletics Committee shall elect athletic team managers from the student body to fill such places as the Director of Athletics shall designate.

a. The Director of Athletics shall make to the Committee such nominations for managerships as he may desire, and other nominations may be made by members of the Committee.
b. The Committee shall elect such persons for managers as shall be acceptable to the Director of Athletics.
c. Managers for the various teams shall be elected not later than the following dates preceding the playing season: Football, by June 1; Basketball, by December 1; Baseball, by March 1; Track, by March 1; other teams by the dates designated by the Director of Athletics.

Sec. 4. Letters and monograms shall be awarded by the Committee upon the recommendation of the Director of Athletics.

a. A student shall be eligible to receive the Maryville College Varsity "M" when he has completed the semester in which the season ends, is in good standing in the College, and in a given season meets one of the following requirements:
(1) Has played in fifteen quarters of regularly scheduled intercollegiate football games.
(2) Has played in at least one-half of the regularly scheduled intercollegiate basketball games.
(3) Has played at least five innings a game in each of one-half of the regularly scheduled intercollegiate baseball games, or pitched at least thirty-six innings.
(4) Has scored at least a total of ten points in all track meets, or has placed first in the State meet.
(5) Has scored at least ten points in varsity wrestling competition on the following basis: five points for a fall, three points for a decision, and two points for a draw.
(6) Has played in at least one-half of the intercollegiate tennis matches and has won at least four singles and/or doubles matches.
(7) Has won at least one first or second place in an intercollegiate swimming meet and has won at least ten points in inetrcollegiate meets.
(8) Has scored at least ten points in an intercollegiate cross-country meet on the following basis: 1st place, ten points; 2nd place, nine points; etc.—10th place, one point.
(9) Has met the women's athletic point system requirements as specified in Section 5.
(10) Has been an active cheerleader for two years and has been recommended by the Pep Committee.
(11) Has served one year as apprentice manager and one year as regular manager in the same sport.
b. The Director of Athletics shall have the right to recommend for athletic letters players who for justifiable reasons have not met all of the minimum requirements; and he may, upon statement of his reasons, decline to recommend players who have met the minimum requirements listed above.
c. The types and sizes of the Maryville College "M" awarded for athletics shall be as follows:
(1) Football, a seven and one-half inch block "M".
(2) Basketball, Baseball, and Track, a six-inch block "M".
(3) Wrestling, Tennis, Cross-Country, and Swimming, a five-inch block "M".
(4) Cheerleader, a five-inch block "M" with a megaphone design approved by the Committee.
(5) Women Point System, as specified in Section 5.

Sec. 5. Women students may be awarded letters and monograms for achievement in the women's athletic point system by the Committee upon the recommendation of those in charge of physical training for women and the Director of Athletics.

a. The content of the point system and the requirements for awards shall be determined by the College Division of Physical Education and Athletics.
b. The required number of points and the awards shall be as follows:
(1) For earning 500 points; a seven by six inch "M".
(2) For earning 400 points, a six and one-quarter by four and one-half inch "M".
(3) For earning 300 points, a six and one-half by six and one-half inch "MC" monogram.
c. The design of the above letters and monogram shall be determined from time to time by the Committee upon recommendation of the Director of Athletics.

Spanish Club To Have Picnic April 21

A skit "La Prueba" (The Trick) was presented at the Spanish Club meeting last Thursday evening. Those taking part in the skit were Hazel Engle, Harold Crane, Bob Cruze, and Ann Murray.

Plans were also made at this time for a picnic which will be held April 21 at Senor Schwam's home.

Dr. Lloyd Flies To Alaska

On Thursday, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Lloyd flew from Seattle, Wash., to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Yesterday Dr. Lloyd conducted Good Friday Service in Fairbanks. On April 9 Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd will fly to Point Barrow, Alasaka where they will remain over Easter. Dr. Lloyd will present the Easter service there.

On April 12 they fly back to Fairbanks where he will address the Presbytery of the Yukon. April 15 he will speak at Palmer, Alaska, and April 16 and 17 he will speak at Anchorage. April 18 and 19 they will be at Sitka, Alaska where Dr. Lloyd will address Sheldon-Jackson College. April 20 and 21 he will speak at Juneau at meetings of the Alaska Presbytery.

On April 22 they will return to Seattle where they will remain until they fly home April 27.

Seniors Make Plans For Future Days

By Carolyn Cones

When the seniors were asked what they were planning to do after graduation, they responded with a wide variety of answers.

Thirty-five stated that they were definitely planning to further their education, and included in this number are twelve who are entering seminary and two who are going on to medical school. Sixteen answered that they intended to teach, at least seven will enter military service, and at least ten are planning to marry after their graduation.

Jim Akin is one of the number going to seminary. He will enter Princeton Theological Seminary in the fall.

Shirley Axley is planning to enter the teaching profession but has secured no definite position as yet.

Rosa Bauerle will marry Harry Robinson, who was one of last semester's graduates, on June 4. She will live in Princeton, New Jersey where Harry is attending seminary and will work as a stenographer for the R.C.A. Victor Corporation.

Bob Berrong is planning to enter the Army after graduating from summer school.

Bill Blair wants to coach and teach in Knox County.

Malcolm Bonner is going to Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia.

Bob Brand plans to work for his Master's degree at Boston University.

Bill Breen wants a commision in the U. S. Marines.

Alice Buchanan is planning to serve a dietetic internship, probably at Portland, Oregon.

Anne Buckley will work as a clerk-typist at the Pentagon.

Barbara Buttrill is going to teach in elementary school, perhaps at Charlotte, North Carolina.

Sally Butts will teach elementary school in Waterloo, Iowa.

Herb Catlin plans to attend the Vanderbilt School of Religion.

Kathie Chase will work in the society section of the Vineland Times Journal, the daily paper in Vineland, New Jersey.

Barbara Chubb is considering Y.W.C.A. work.

Janice Clemens will marry in June and next year will teach piano in the Blount County schools.

Dixie Conner will be married by telephone in the fall and will then go to Japan where she and her husband will have a military wedding.

Harrell Coulter will attend summer school where he will complete his graduation requirements.

Lynn Counts will either join the armed services or do laboratory work in chemistry.

Abigail Crosby is planning to work in the Indianapolis Public Library.

Emma Curtis will do graduate work in physical education at U.T.

Bill Davis is entering the armed services.

Jim Demer plans to work for the Social Security Administration.

Nancy Dunn will study at the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Jim Fisher will attend Union Theological Seminary in New

'Bugs Bunny In Fairyland' May Day Theme

By Ruth Wilson

On Monday, May 28, Maryville's amphitheatre will be invaded by adults, children, fairies, wooden soldiers, Bugs Bunny, and all of his colleagues. This is Maryville's May Day Ceremony, and it is centered around the theme of "Bugs Bunny in Fairyland."

Besides the guests watching the festivities, there will be the May Day Court viewing the events. This year the Court consists of a May Queen, Emma Curtis, May King, Bill Davis, and their attendants. From the Senior Class come Caroln Lime and Bob Shelton; from the Junior Class, Ethelyn Cathey, and Bill Strickland; from the Shophomore Class, Margie McClure and Harold O'Bannon; from the Freshman Class, Ann Wiley, and Lyle Talbot. Other attendants include the flower bearers, Elise LeQuire and Mary Frances Lentz; the crown bearer, Edwin J. Best, Jr., and the scepter bearer, Stephen LeQuire.

Several dances will be included in the day's activities. The May Pole Dance, a Maryville traditional, will be performed by Willa Duvall, Norma Kay Henry, Pat Hoover, Anna Horvath, Helen Jansen, Eloise Jordan, Ann MacCluney, Joyce Neal, Sue Nelson, Donna Lee Ransom, Natalie Richards, Marianne Richman, Grace Ann Roberts, Sue Settle, Doris Taylor, and Betty Lou Zimmer-

Miss Brooks Named To Advisory Board Of College Guide

Jo Ann Brooks, junior political science major from Louisville, Ky., has been named to the College Board of the next volume of the Going-to-College Handbook, annually published in Richmond, Va., for students in and looking forward to college.

Nominated by college or national youth officials, members of the College Board serve as advisors to the editors in planning and developing the book.

At the present time the College Board is being polled to discover attitudes on a number of lively campus problems.

Scheduled for publication next August in time for home town going-to-college functions, the Handbook will be used during the remainder of the year by students looking forward to college.

Athenians Nominate New Officers

The Athenian Society met at their regular time last Saturday night to nominate their next year's officers. The society enjoyed new furniture that they have recently acquired. A report was made about the successful progress of tonight's dance and the meeting was adjourned.

Orchestra Concert Held April 29

By Ruth Wilson

The program for the orchestra concert to be held on April 29, at 8 o'clock in the Music Hall, has been announced by the Fine Arts Division.

To be included in the program are, first of all, the French Baroque Suits by Lully. This particular type of music is interesting since it was the forerunner of the symphony. The different movements are approximately one or two minutes long. To emphasize the difference between the two the next selection on the program will be Schubert's Symphony Number 5 in B flat. The piece was composed especially for a small orchestra, omitting parts for instruments that would be found in big orchestras, since the piece was to be played by a group of amateurs who gathered at the composer's home. Mr. Ralph Moore has adapted a drum part into the orchestration.

After Beethoven's Overture from "Prometheus," a delightful arrangement of Prokoviev's "Peter and the Wolf" will be played. In this the different characters in the story are played by instruments, with a narrator filling in some of the details. The narrator will be Marcia Williams.

Mr. Moore has included an original work in the program, that of his Overture to My Heart's in the Highlands, a poem written by Robert Burns.

Last on the program is Suite in D, including the Air on the G String, and Gigue, by J. S. Bach.

Evans Edits Echo

Bob Evans, sophomore psychology major from Haddon Heights, N.J., was the editor of this week's Echo.

In accordance with custom, Evans, is editing one issue of the paper in the process of his candidacy for next year's editorship.

Flourescent Lights For Math Room Are Sisk Memorial

The committee for the procuring of a memorial of Dr. Sisk, after some deliberation has finally announced its decision. Fluorescent lights for the Math room, 295 Fayerweather, will be purchased.

A plaque will also be mounted in the room with the statement that the lights were purchased in memory of Dr. Augustus Sisk, professor of mathematics, who died in service, February 1.

The estimated cost of the lights is $85. As of now, the committee has $57 on hand. Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund is to see Tom Bugenhagen or Sarah Pledger.

Coker Elected Vols President

By Bill Deerfield

In the Student Vols election, held recently, Duckie Coker was elected president; Gene Spiekerman, vice-president; Betty Knott, program chairman; Shirley Peterson, secretary; and John Barrows, treasurer.

Rosa Bauerle, retiring president, urges all members to continue to give to this year's financial project which is just nine dollars short of its hundred-dollar goal.

Members are also reminded that boxes will again be placed in the dorms for a final collection of clothes to be sent to needy mining communities in Kentucky.

Council Votes On Extending Senior Women's Privileges

By Ted McDaniels

Last Wednesday night Nancy Jones, secretary of the Student-Faculty Senate, reported to the council that a committee of the senate had considered the question of the extension of privileges for senior women on campus.

The committee voted unanimously in favor of senior women being allowed to go to Knoxville any night of the week until 11:00 p.m. The vote on the question of allowing two couples in cars (senior women) was three in favor and two opposed. The vote on the last problem, unlimited town night dating for senior women was passed by a four to one vote in favor of the plan.

Once more there were no town night violations. Seems that the girls have reformed themselves, and decided to be good for the rest of the semester.

Mary Ann Thompson, chairman of the committee on Civil Defense on Campus, reported to the council that no definite action on setting up a working plan for the school had been taken. The general opinion expressed by the council was that they could see a definite need for such a program here. But, they thought that it was too late in the year for any practical action to be taken. The The committee, however, was given license to work up a rough draft of a plan to be presented to the council at its next regular meeting.

Carol Moore reported that the State Convention of Student Councils was to meet the week-end of May 7, 8, at Belmont College. There was a question as to who should be sent as delegates and the idea was posed that next year's president be sent. The Council then moved that no more definite action be taken until after the elections.

The week-end activity is of course the Athenian-Bainonian Spring Formal in the Alumni Gym.

Vols Aid Lepers

By Bill Deerfield

The newly elected officers of Student Vols will be formally installed at a consecration service to be held Sunday night, May 1, at 8:00 o'clock in Bartlett Hall. The new officers: Duckie Coker, president; Gene Speakerman, vice president; Shirley Peterson, secretary; John Barrows, treasurer; and Betty Knott, program chairman.

Miss Knott, who is acting as head of this year's financial project, has announced that the organization has already exceeded its goal, and has collected $138.00 to date. Before the money is sent next week to the American Mission to the Lepers it is hoped that the amount will be increased to $160.00, which will be enough to support four children, suffering from leprosy, for a year.

Piano, Violin Duo At FAC April 26

Two main functions have already taken place in the Fine Arts Center News. One of these was the 2-piano recital given by two members of the faculty of the Chattanooga Conservatory of Music, on Thursday evening. The other was the senior piano recital of Janice Clemens on Friday evening.

One of the most famous husband and wife teams of the fine arts will be on the agenda for Tuesday evening, April 26, at 8 o'clock. This will be Keese Kooper and Mary Alice Boehme who are artists in residence at the Peabody College in Nashville. They have made several tours in Europe and the United States Mr. Kooper is a violinist; Miss Boehme, a pianist.

Choir To Make Recording

Students are reminded this week by the Vesper Choir that order payments for the choir's recording of Randall Thompson's "Peaceable Kingdom" must be made before the end of April.

Both orders and final payments are to be given to either Martha Freeny or Anne Buckley. The record is to be a 10-inch long playing one, and will be mailed directly to the individual from the RCA processing plant.

The choir will record the work before it begins its anual tour at the end of this year.

Honor Committee Tabulates Votes

By Bill Deerfield

After having tabulated the results of the questionnaires distributed in chapel several weeks ago, the committee investigating honor practices has come to the conclusion that adoption of such a system would not be feasible for Maryville College at the present time.

Roughly eighty-three per cent of the student body (551) turned back questionnaires, and at first glance the positive responses seemed to be in the vast majority. For example, in the question concerned with the reporting of cheating and other violations, 307 students replied that they would, if necessary, report any infractions of the system that they observed. However, 307 students represents only fifty-four per cent of the 551 who handed back questionnaires and only forty-six per cent of the entire student body.

One question, which if answered with a sufficient number of "yeses" would have favored very much the adoption of the system was, "Would you feel more at ease in an unproctored examination?" Only 233 replied "yes" as opposed to 285 who replied "no."

In another important question, concerned with the minimum punishment to be meted out to offenders, over half the students

Workshop Admits New Members

Writers' Workshop mets Monday at 4:30 p.m. in Dr. Hunter's classroom to welcome 10 new members.

The new members are Barbara Wilkie, Shirley Scott, Carol Sleight, Clara Gowans, Sadie Davis, and Joan McNaughton. Also elected to membership are Lavinia Lee, Darold Johnsonbaugh, Adlai Boyd and Bill Deerfield.

Sheila Sutton will read a paper at the meeting Monday afternoon.

Y-Retreat To Be Held April 29-30

By Grace Stinecipher

On April 29-30 Laurel Lake will be the scene of the annual overnight YWCA-YMCA Retreat which will be attended by both the old and the new cabinet members of each group. The purpose of this retreat is to make plans for the coming year. Also very inspiring messages will be heard at this time centered around the theme "Upward Still and Anward."

The leaders of this retreat will be Miss Dorothy Whipple of Peabody College, Nashville, the 1954-1955 Danforth Foundation Graduate for Tennessee and Al Payne, General Secretary of the Southern Region National YMCA. These leaders will speak Friday evening after the campfire program, lead an evaluation of the year's work on Saturday morning, and will lead discussion groups that afternoon. Dr. Douglas Elwood, pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church, will assist Ethelyn Cathey and Forrest Amidon, presidents-elect, conduct the consecration service Saturday evening.

The new cabinet members who will be attending this year will include in YWCA: Jackie Speigner, Artists Series; Faith Nollner, Barnwarming; Martha Jackson and Lavinia Lee, Program; Barbara Cech, Devotions; Helen Hasenstab, Home Avenue Missions; Millie Beard, Negro Church; Jane Hussey and Barbara Wilkie, Community Service; Mary Brasfield, Social; Ann Yater, Publicity; Carol Sleight, Y-Radio; and Lynn McMillan, Y-Store.

New cabinet members in YMCA are: Charles Cureton, Interracial; Pete Bailey, Community Service; Doug Brian, Missions; Darold Johnsonbaugh, Y-Radio; Morgan Biggs, Artist Series; Bob McLeod and Gaeme Seiber, Devotions and Discussion; John Borter and Bill Potter, Fellowship; Don Nabors, M Book; Cap Johnston and Jay Bollman, Maintenance; Bob Hassell and Howard Meyer, Publicity; Ray Sammons, Worship; Ronnie Morley, Barnwarming.

Gary Pennington Writes Article On Delinquency

Freshman class president Gary Pennington, who is a member of the Youth Advisory Committee in Kentucky, has an article in "The Story of Our Time Encyclopedia Yearbook for 1955."

Pennington's article concerns juvenile delinquency in the book's special section on that subject. He is one of a number of young people chosen to present their views on the matter.

Traditional Chain To Be Formed By Fourteen Girls

By Abigail Crosby

Fourteen junior girls have been chosen by Dee Woods, vice-president of the junior class, to make up the traditional Daisy Chain which precedes the yearly Commencement procession. They are Mary Brasfield, Jo Ann Brooks, Ethelyn Cathey, Barbara Cech, Sarah Min Davis, Marg Allen Hanna, Esther Lerch, Betty McKenney, Lyn McMillan, Roberta Myers, Faith Nollner, Jackie Speigner, Marcia Williams, and Dee Woods.

Chosen according to their representation of Maryville College and the junior class, the girls pick and make a daisy chain which they will carry in the procession.

Miss Brasfield, an organ major from Butler, Mo., is the WSGA president-elect, a member of Y-cabinet, and a Bainonian. Miss Brooks, a political science major from Louisville, Ky., has been on Varsity Debate for two years, is a member of Pi Kappa Delta, and is an active member in Theta Epsilon. She was a Nu Gamma leader and has been on Y-Cabinet. Miss Cathey, an English major from Clarksville, Ark., will serve as the 1955-56 YWCA president. In addition, she was a Nu Gamma leader, Nu Gamma chairman, a member of Playhouse, Writers' Workshop, and French Club. She is a Theta.

Miss Cech, a sociology major from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is a member of Bainonian, and has served on the Y-Cabinet. Miss Davis, an English mapor from Clearwater, Fla., was a Nu Gamma leader, a member of the ECHO staff for two years, on the editorial staff of the 1955 CHILHOWEAN, and has been an officer of Bainonian.

Miss Hanna, a sociology major from Louisville, is a member of the Varsity Debate, was in Vesper Choir, has been an active member of Y-Radio, IRC, and Theta Epsilon. Miss Lerch, a biology major from Clearwater, Fla., was a Nu Gamma leader, a majorette with the Highlanders Band, a member of the orchestra, and has been an active Bainonian. Miss McKenney, a home economics major from Beaver, Pa., is the YWCA vice-president for 1955-56, was on Y-Cabinet last year, and is an active member of Theta Epsilon.

Miss McMillan, a sociology major from Philadelphia, Pa., was a Nu Gamma leader, is currently a member of Y-Cabinet, and has been an officer of Bainonian. Miss Myers, a physical education major from Friendsville, is an active member of the Women's M Club and Pi Gamma. Miss Nollner, an English major from Carthage, is the editor-in-chief of the 1955 CHILHOWEAN and servde for two years on the ECHO staff. She is a member of Theta Epsilon.

Miss Speigner, a music major from Enterprise, Ala., was a Nu Gamma leader, and is a YWCA officer for the current year. She is an active member of Disc Club, music ed club, and Bainonian. Miss Williams, a drama major from Peekskill, N. Y., will serve as the president of Playhouse for the coming year. She is an active Playhouse member, a member of Theta Alpha Phi, and a Bainonian. Miss Woods, vice-president of the class, is a physical education major from Cincinnati, Ohio. She has been a member of Vesper Choir for two years and was a Nu Gamma leader. She is a Bainonian.

McWilliams Leads Prayer Meeting

All Campus Prayer Meeting was held Thursday evening at 9:30 in the Y Rooms. The leader was A. C. McWilliams.

Rev. Wallace C. Merwin To Be Commencement Speaker On May 16

Rev. Wallace C. Merwin will be the Commencement speaker here May 16 in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. Mr. Merwin, ex-'27, took part of his college training here at Maryville. He finished college at the University of Louisville. He graduated from Louisville Theological Seminary and received his mater's degree from Union Theological Seminary in New York.

For many years Mr. Merwin served as a Presbyterian Missionary in China. He is now Executive Secretary of the Far Eastern Joint Office Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches.

His son, Paul Merwn, graduated from Maryville in '53.

Brasfield Elected Head of WSGA

Mary Brasfield, junior organ major from Butler, Mo., will head the 1955-1956 Women's Student Government Association, as the result of recent elections. At the same time Liz Enloe, junior sociology major from Atlanta, was chosen to serve as Pearson's house chairman; and Willa Jean Duvall and Carol Williams will head the house committees in Memorial and Baldwin, respectively.

Spring Formal To Be Tonight At 8 O'clock

"Under the Stars" is the theme of the annual Spring Formal which is to be presented by Athenian and Bainonian tonight at eight o'clock in the Alumni Gymnasium.

The music for the evening will be presented by Harry Emmans on the organ. Mixed with the music will be the perfume of beautiful flowers and the russle of summer formals.

The members of Athenian and Bainonian have been hard at work for the past several days getting the gym into shape for the big event. The members of the committee who have worked on all the details include Barbara Belmore, Jim Crawford, Ray Sammons, Dee Woods and Ann Yater.

Interest In Sports

The Echo's sportswriter this week mentioned crowds of students around the Student Center, who have been interested in the new horseshoe pits. In a similar observation we of this column would like to express satisfaction and pleasure at the increased interest in athletic activities by most students during the past several days.

Of course one of the main reasons is the fact that warm (but still wet) weather has arrived, and it is evidently more enjoyable to pitch a game of horseshoes and watch softball, baseball, and tennis than it is to concentrate on the matters found in books. We suspect also that all of these activities are violating the traditional practice of one activity at a time on campus, and are thus managing to bring about an interest among the students, which has been noticeably lacking in many phases this year. And this observation leads to another: the social opportunities on this campus are not lacking; how one coordinates and takes advantage of them is the challenge.

—J. T. G.

A Formal Tragedy

Fellas, are we a bunch of wallflowers? We moan and groan that this college does not have adequate social functions, and then we fail to participate in one of the biggest social events of the semester—the Spring Formal. That is, it is it is the majority of us who do not attend this function.

The only reasonable excuse which can be offered is the lack of money. However, one would certainly be on the verge of bankruptcy not to be able to afford to attend the dance for it is easily possible to attend for as little as three dollars. This price includes both the cost of a ticket and a corsage.

What is the matter? Haven't we the courage to ask a girl to one dance a semester? Can't we afford or don't we have the time for one night out a semester?

We must realize that to many girls the formal is one of the most important if not the dance of the semester. Whether or not we go to the dance is of little concern to us. However, it certainly does make a difference to the girls. Let us show a little concern for the feelings of our fellow man (or in this case our fellow woman) from now on.

Remember this article when the fall formal rolls around this year.

—B. E.

The German class wakes up once in a while. Like for instance, the other day one of the Herrs was reading how Maili dove into a swoon behind the door when the old man said to Hans, "nix no Tochter for you." So quick like the Progessor yells. "Spoon! What into she fell?" the Herr answered faintly. FAINT. Class roar: FAINT.

Scots & Soda

This is not a story. This is not a story within a story within a bottle. It's hot. You're hot or just waking up from chapel service where you couldn't believe your ears. That's it. Wash them. Here we go.

: ! ! :

Five Ways to Get Through College Without Even Trying sounds like a good theme. Freshmen and so forth take note and write your last Wills and Referendums. First: Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject. Second: Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it. (Like somebody I know). Third: Sit in front near him. That is, if you're staying awake. Fourth: Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it, just ask. Fifth: If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone dozing.

The prof schlipped this one in: he sez: If you have any intention of making the Dean's List by following these suggestions you have our sincerest hopes for making the right one!

. . . Four out of five women haters are women . . . The Kinsey Report proves just one thing: Women like to talk. A gentle Presbyterian (for our purposes named Ralph), hearing a strange noise on his beat one night, got out and discovered something busily at work. So he went and got his gun, then came back and stood quietly behind a bush. Now in the Quaker manner he said: "Friend, I would do thee no harm for the world, but thee standest where I am about to shoot". . . and then there was the ??? coed, who soaked her strapless evening gown in coffee so it would stay up all night.

: ! ! :

Since there's three weeks of school left and lots of work to be done, we thought maybe we'd catch and weep with somebody yet. Have a good laugh too also among the lamentations.

: ! ! :

Term Papers Provoke Lament of Freshmen.

E is for the subject of English to which all the Freshmen feel indebted because they have been given the opportunity to write an English Term Paper.

N is for the "No-Doz" which we consumed to keep us awake at night.

G stands for the good times which had to be forgotten, but only for a while.

L is for the library in which so many hours were spent taking notes and compiling bibliographies.

I is for the idle moments we wish we had not wasted.

S is for our subject, too broad, which still has to be broken down.

H stands for the hours which have been spent out of class and in secluded places like the Grill, compiling all our "mixed-up" notes.

T stands for the typewriters which were "hush-puppied" from the attic to the basement for typing after hours.

E is for the effort we made to get our papers done on time.

R stands for our roommates—the poor kids.

M stands for our Maryville Manual without which we could not have completed our task.

P is for our professors who gave us the impossible to accomplish in such a short time.

A is for the grade we all feel we deserve for our effort.

P is for the progress we didn't make until the night before papers were due.

E stands for the emotions we feel toward our work. Crazy isn't the word for it!

R is for the result? Hopohopahope!

One more word before saying goodbye. This for all the prospective, would be, engaged people: Marriage, now get this, is that process of finding out what sort of a guy your wife would have preferred . . . But on the other hand, darned socks are much more comfortable than holy ones.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Barbara Wilkie

This column usually contains suggestions for leisure-time reading, but this time no book reviews will appear. After a careful, unofficial, casual survey of people—mostly students—I have come to the conclusion that leisure time is a scarce article these days. However, there is one suggestion I will make to sophomores—there is an excellent book to which you all have access. Read it sometime in the near future. It is, of course, that nobel novel "Moby Dick." (Try saying that one over six times before you start reading.) No particular reason for reading it—just be sure to read it.

For freshmen through with research themes and seniors through with special studies and comps I will try to list some cultural things for you in your spare time. (Juniors don' count because they already have too many worries—or so I hear.)

Let's begin with the library. After you've browsed through "Facts on File," the dictionary and "Envyclopedia Britannica", you might desire to look into other fields of knowledge. Try the magazines and newspapers. Maryville, Knoxville, Washington, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York are represented among these latter publications. News on the current telephone strike will be of interest to boys who would like to resume making their regular calls to the girls' dormitories.

What does this week's cover on the "Saturday Evening Post" look like? And what is that contraption on the front of "Colliers"? If you don't know, maybe you should visit that section of the library, so you can keep up with the outside world.

This past week seems to have been Pan American week. The library had some interesting exhibits deisgned to acquaint you with our Southern Hemisphere neighbors. If you heard Ima Sumac at UT last month, you would be interested in the article about her which is shown along with pictures on the display table.

After you have exhausted the library (and the librarians), you many enjoy taking a look at the Fine Arts Center bulletin board. Numerous activities are scheduled in FAC for the remainder of the semester. Recitals and exhibits are there for your enjoyment. The orchestra concert is next Friday night, and there is always an interesting art exhibit on hand.

For you town-nighters there will be showing pretty soon at the Capitol "Country Girl", with Bing Crosby and oscar-winning Grace Kelly. It has been recommended very highly—see it if you can. "Country Girl" presents the problem of an alcoholic. There will also probably be a western or two and some other adventure story to pick from, so take your choice.

"On the Waterfront" with Eva Marie Saint and Marlon Brando, who was the other oscar winner, played this week. Problems of the longshoremen were portrayed very realistically and dramatically.

And so ends the weekly round-up of campus culture. Investigate the possibilities—remember, there are only three weeks left in the smested in which to loaf around!

'Pygmalion' Crews Are Chosen

Crews for the graduation play, "Pygmalion," have been chosen and they are all active. The various crews and their chairmen have started their work, which entails the gathering of all materials necessary for the play's production, and promising the best. The crew-heads: Sets, Bob Brand; Lights, Hershal Netherton; Make-up, Elizabeth Frei; Costumes, Ruth Wilson; Stage Manager, Don Theil; House Manager, Marcia Williams; and Publicity, Betty Messer.

Lloyd In Seattle

Yesterday Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Lloyd flew from Alaska to Seattle, Washington. They will remain there until April 27 while Dr. Lloyd attends the Synod of Washington. On April 27, they will return to Maryville.

Dr. Lloyd will attend the US Conference of World Council of Churches at Buck Hill Falls, Pennsylvania on May 4, 5 and 6. He will speak at Blair Academy in Blairstown, New Jersey on May 7.

It was a shock to the nation this wek when the aged Professor Albert Eistein died. Prof. Einstein was 77 and had been for twenty years the Professor at the school of graduate study at Princeton University. Prof. Einstien was the first to unlock to the world the secrets of Atomic Energy through his revolutionary theory of relativity.

Disc Club Hears Duo-Piano Recital

Thursday night the Disc Club presented Emily Habine and Earl Miller from Chattanooga in a duo-piano recital. The program included "Sheep May Safely Graze" by Bach, "Sonata in D" by Mozart, "Grand Rondeau" Op. 107 by Shubert, "Five Waltzes" Op. 39 and "Variations on Theme by Hayden" by Brahms and "Espana Rhapsody" by Chabrier.

Sports Spotlights

By Sonny Shackelford

When the fragrance of the flowers stir our nostrils, and a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, then you may be sure that spring has arrived. The true sign, however, is the crack of the bat or the lofty flight of a ball in the air. Baseball, our national pastime, gets its start in the spring and slowly edges its way into the sweltering summer months. As the young major league season continues, it looks as if the hitters are going to be troublesome this year. Most of the teams are riding along on the strength of heavy hitting and only mediocre pitching. The American League is fairly close, but the Dodgers are on the rampage in the national—they won their tenth straight to set a modern National League record for games won at the beginning of the season.

Our own Highlanders have given the home fans some exciting moments. With "Rapid Robert" Ramger and Bob Shelton, the Loudon Lover, pacing the Maryville hitters, the Highlanders have exhibited a solid batting attack and strong will to win. Once the pitching staff rounds into shape—when the starters can be set aside for the reliefers —Maryville must be feared as a well-balanced club.

For those of you who like baseball's younger sister, softball, there are some good teams in the intramural league. I understand there is a tight race for the championship—maybe the women's varsity is offering some competition as to the center of attention.

One of Maryville's minor sports has shown an increase in school enthusiasm. Not only do many players wait in line daily for tennis courts, but many have been observing the college matches. Just as with baseball, the weather unfortunately has hampered full activity. Clay courts just weren't made for play during these April showers. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to get the courts in decent playing condition during pleasant weather.

Many tennis fans are awaiting the Davis Cup challenge round later this summer. The United States will stick to Tony Trabert and Vic Sexias in an effort to retain the Cup. Ham Richardson, the Rhodes Scholar whom some students saw play in Knoxville recently, will again be on the squad. Trabert, ranked nationally behind Sexias, has been giving Vic a rough time.. Tony has won five straight tournaments from him. A surprise of late has been Dick Savitt, the Wimbledon winner of 1951. Maybe he is ready to challenge the leaders again.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the one-time Memphis dentist, pulled the golf surprise of the tournament circuit. He won the Masters by a record margin. Bantam Ben Hogan finished second, followed by 'Slammin' Sammy Snead. Many followers were happy to see Hogan in bigtime competition again. Recently it was said he was finished, but I believe he'll win several more big prizes before he retires.

Those of you who like track will have to visit elsewhere for competition. The college does have an intramural meet which attracts scattered interest. It is always fun—except for the aftermath, when the soreness of the horrid workouts and unconditioned muscles sets in. Recently there has been much discussion about the Olympic Games to be held in Australia next year. The Russians are going all out—complete government assistance—in an attempt to outdo America. It will be interesting to follow. Lately Wes Santee and Bobby Marlow have turned in excellent performances in the mile and 100-yard dash, respectively. These two will possibly perform in the Games next year, so watch their progress.

Have you seen crowds gathering around the Student Center? Some horseshoe pits were placed there. They have proved extremely popular; it's too bad they couldn't have been though of in 1819. I believe the outdoor shuffleboard courts would be used too. Since the school has the equipment, all that is needed is some type of an outdoor box to hold it.

It is this time of the school year when one begins to think of his hobbies and activities. The weather just isn't conducive to studying. You sit in an upstairs classroom, look out towards the mountains, and say, "I want to go wandering beneath God's clear blue sky." The lakes where you may fish, swim, boat, and ski—and the mountains, where you may hike and camp, are calling you. Maybe you prefer tennis, golf, or just sunbathing. At any rate, I believe a great part of life should be spent outdoors. As for me, I can hardly wait.

Lines To A Student

The summer has issued its call
"Try me," say the lakes and the hills.
There's joy to be gained from it all.

Intramurals....

On Thursday, April 7, the Athenians walloped the Pre-Mins 33-5.

The Crows trotted over the YM CA squad 15-5 on Friday.

On Saturday the Diablos Rojos fell under the crushing blows of the Alpha Sig Hammers 21-3.

The Alpha Sig Hammers continued their winning streak on Monday, April 11, by trouncing the YMCA team 15-6.

Tuesday and Wednesday's games were rained out. Because of Tuesday and Wednesday's postponements games were played on both the east and west fields for the remainder of the week.

On Thursday the Crows, playing on the west field, shellacked the Athenians 24-5. The Alpha Sig Doobers, playing on the east field, sailed over the Pre-Mins 11-5.

The Alpha Sig Hammers trampled the Pre-Mins 26-5 on the west field on Friday. The Mountaineers eked out a victory over the Diablos Rojos 10-9.

On Monday of this week the Mountaineers continued on the warpath downing the Alpha Sig Doobers 13-5.

The Alpha Sig Doobers mangled the YMCA squad 35-21 on Tuesday.

On Wednesday the Mountaineers, playing on the west field, nosed out the Athenians 12-11. However, the Crows, playing on the east field, really smashed the Diablos Rojos 17-1.

The standings of the league are rather unevenly distributed with but one team in the middle, three tied for first place and four tied for the last two places.

The league standings as of Wednesday afternoon:

Team	W	L
Crows	4	0
Hammers	4	0
Mountaineers	4	0
Doobers	2	2
Diablos Rojo s	1	3
Athenians	1	3
YMCA	0	4
Pre-Mins	0	4

Scotties Win Two

By Jim Demer

Lose To Tusculum

In an error-filled game the Scotties dropped a 7-1 decision to Tusculum College. This is Maryville's only loss this season.

Rally to Beat LUM

The Highlanders scored four runs in the ninth inning to down the Railsplitters, 6-3. Bob Shelton was the big gun driving in the tying and winning runs with a single. Bob Ramger went all the way for Coach Honaker giving up nine hits. Maryville got seven hits off two LMU hurlers.

Edge State 8-7

The Scotties came out on the long end of the 8-7 score even though they were out hit 10 to 5. Bob Ramger, playing in centerfield, got 3 of the 5 hits, scored two runs, and stole two bases. Bob DeLozier went all the way for Maryville while three pitchers saw duty for State.

Netters Win One Tie Another

By Jim Demer

Mike Reys-Varela, Mexico's National Junior Champion in 1945, '46, and '47 paced High Point College of North Carolina to a 5-2 win over Maryville, April 11. Reys-Varela was a member of the Mexican Davis Cup team in 1947. Mexico played Australia that year. Only Phil Young and Charlie Partee, playing in the number 4 and 5 positions respectfully, were able to win.

The Highlanders and the Bucs from East Tennessee State battled to a 4-4 draw on the Maryville courts last Friday. State won the number one and two singles and both double matches. The number three doubles were called on account of darkness with the score tied 9-9 in the third set.

The always powerful University of the South handed the Scots a 6-3 setback Monday at Sewanee. Captain Sonny Shackleford and Bob Nier both won singles and combined to take the Scots only double win.

Coach Johnson's netmen finally came through as they won the big match of the season. The Scots won 5 singles and one of the two doubles matches played to cap a 6-2 win over Carson-Newman.

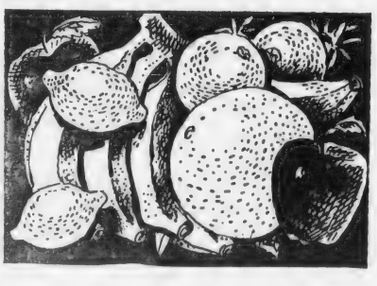
Sigs Camp Out



The Alpha Sigma society had no regular meeting last Saturday. A group of the men went on an overnight trip to the Chimney's camping grounds. Doc Jennings was in charge of the trip.

Plans are being made for the picnic to be held at the home of the Mannings. This now annual event will be held on May 2, immediately after the May Day celebrations.

Style Show To Be Presented April 30

Saturday, April 30, at 8:00 in the Theater the Home Economics Department will present the 12th annual style show. About 80 garments, both men's and women's all of which have been made in the Home Ec. department will be worn for the most part by the people who made them. The garments will represent the work of five classes from simple to advanced dress making.

This year's show will feature conventional and new materials, standard and new designs. There will be garments featuring handiwork and some will be made from patterns drafted from individual measurements. Some of the garments will feature historic characteristics.

The interval music will be provided by the music department. The dramatic-art department will take care of the staging and lighting. An explanation and commentary will be presented on each garment.

Pre Min Officers To Be Installed

Forrest Amidon announced yesterday that the Consecration service for the newly elected officers of the Pre-Ministerial Association is scheduled for Thursday evening the 28th of April at 6:45 p.m. in the Y rooms.

The slate of officers for the coming year includes: President, Ed Grigsby, a junior from Hazard, Ky.; First Vice President, Harold Kelly, a freshman from Uniontown, Pa.; Second Vice President, Dick Lovingood, a freshman from Louisville, Ky.; and elected Secretary-Treasurer for the coming year is Graeme Seiber, a sophomore from Blairs Mills, Pa.

felt that automatic failure for the exam would be sufficient. This is the penalty under our present set up, and consequently there would be no change in this vital area if the honor system were adopted. It is interesting to note that only thirteen were in favor of suspension from school, which is the usual penalty in schools operating under the system.

Concerning the most important question, "Would you like to see an honor system proposed for Maryville College?", fifty-nine percent of the entire student population said they would. This is again a little more than half.

In reaching its decision, the committee felt that in order to have the honor system work effectively it would need the active support of an overwhelming majority of the students. Assuming that the results of the questionnaires are a true index of the feelings of the students (only half responding favorably to most questions) the committee believes that there is not enough support to make a definite proposal practicable.

man.

Mary Ellen Lee and Lavinia Lee will do a Dance of Spring. Lavinia Lee will also perform in the Dance of the Fairy. Closing the dance sequence will be the Wooden Soldier's Dance, with Beryl Ackley, Susan Browne, Marion Drotar, Roberta Gibbs, Jane Gore, Bettye Harrill, Gail Harrison, Virginia Kates, June Keeney, Helen Kim, Opal Miller, Joan Neckerman, Erma Pinkston, Susan Short, Ruth Wilson, and Anne Woodmore.

Both group dances are by members of the Modern Dance class taught by Mrs. Largen.

Of special interest is the play which carries out the theme. Bugs Bunny, played by Helen Davis, goes to Fairyland and there meets several of his own friends, and also some of the famous storybook characters we all know. Besides Bugs, there are Elmer Fudd, played by Alva Garret; Porky Pig, Lena Layman; Daffy Duck, Nancy Given; Ole King Cole, Joan McNaughton; three fiddlers, Natalie Wells, Katrina Wells, Bev Cooper; Miss Muffet, Jean Pavlavsky; Little Bo Peep, Sydna Cash; Mary, Emily Swanton; Little Boy Blue, Dee Woods; Little Red Riding Hood, Barbara Berger; and the Wolf, Susan Shaffer.

Students Flock To Campus For Annual High School Day

Seniors from all area high schools thronged the Maryville campus yesterday to hear discussions on vocations, tour the campus, and be introduced to both student and administrative leaders of the college.

Student Council assumed a large part of responsibility for conducting the day's program, in cooperation with various faculty leaders. Following registration of the visitors, the high schoolers assembled in the chapel before going into individual groups for two-hour discussion periods.

Maryville-Alcoa Chamber of Commerce president W. F. Register presided at this assembly. The Rev. Thurman Levacy, a pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation, and choir director Harry Harter led group singing. Other special music was given by the Maryville College Male Quartet.

Presentations were made of President Ralph W. Lloyd, Hugh T. McDade, public relations director of ALCOA, and of the high school seniors and their sponsors. Dean of Students Frank D. McClelland was in general charge of vocational discussions.

The high school seniors and MC student council members had a picnic lunch at noon, followed by a band concert at 12:50. At 1:10 they saw a swimming, diving, and lifesaving exhibition at the college pool, and went on tours of the campus at 1:30. The afternoon wound up with a baseball game between Maryville High School and Alcoa High School.

Podgorny Wins Honors Recently At Model UN

Maryville students Maryel Vogel, Bob Bogle and George Podgorny represented Iran at the third Model United Nations of Mid-South held at Vanderbilt University in Nashville April 28-30. Colleges from six states participated, and presented fifteen resolutions to the General Assembly. Two of them sponsored by the "Iranian" delegation were concerning the right of veto and coordination of youth organizations under the UN. This latter was passed and adopted by an overwhelming majority.

Other achievements of Maryville included naming of George Podgorny as best individual delegate and speaker at the Model UN. The decision was made by a jury of professors from participating colleges.

Chips Sold Out

The Writers' Workshop publication, "Chips," has been sold out completely, according to John Graulich, who was in charge of sales. It contained 16 articles from the past three semesters written by student and faculty members of Workshop and was put on sale this week.

Bugs Bunny Journeys To Fairyland on May Day

Maryville College celebrated May Day in the amphitheatre on Monday afternoon, May 2, with "Bugs Bunny in Fairyland" as the theme.

Emma Curtis and Bill Davis ruled the royal court as queen and king, with Carolyn Lime and Bob Shelton as senior attendants, Ethelyn Cathey and Bill Strickland from the junior class, Margie McClure and Harold O'Bannon from the sophomore class, and Ann Wiley and Lyle Talbot as the freshman attendants. The flower bearers were Elise LeQuire and Mary Frances Lentz; the crown bearer, Edwin J. Best, Jr., and the scepter bearer, Stephen LeQuire.

Mrs. Largen's Modern Dance class performed the May pole dance and the dance of the wooden soldiers, while Mary Ellen and Lavinia Lee did a dance of Spring.

Bugs Bunny, played by Helen Davis, while fleeing from Elmer Fudd, found himself in Fairyland. There he met such storybook notables as Little Miss Muffet, Jean Pavlovsky; Porky Pig, Lena Layman; Mary, Rachel McCastalain; Little Bo Peep, Sidna Cash; Little Boy Blue, Dee Woods; Little Red Riding Hood, Barbara Berger; the Wolf, Suzie Shaffer; Daffy Duck, Nancy Givens; Ole King Cole, Joan McNaughton; three fiddlers, Natalie and Katrina Wells, Bev Cooper; and Elmer Fudd, Alva Garrett.

Seniors Honored At Send Off

By Don Adams

The Senior class of 1955 were "honored" last Tuesday by the third annual Senior Send Off on Honaker Field. The first Send Off was originated in 1953 by the present Senior class, as a mark of respect, good fellowship, and best wishes for the future.

Sponsored by this year's Sophomore class, Ray Sammons was in charge of the affair. After the outside picnic-style supper on Honaker Field, for which thanks and credit go to Miss Ware, for her cooking and Sandra Booth and her crew for lugging and serving, the skits of Past, Present and Future got under way.

The Freshman class skit was written and directed by Bezy Zimmerman. Its theme: "the future." "The present" was the theme of the Sophomore class skit written by Herschel Netherton and with Marcia Williams directing Faith Nollner's Junior class skit of "the past," high jinks of student life and 'manners' came to an end.

The people pulling strings include Bill Bolger in charge of the bonfire; Harold O'Bannion, properties and staging; and publicity, thanks to Virginia Marshall and Natalie Richards. Sandra Booth and Miss Ware supplied the calories for the third annual Senior Send Off.

Pre-Med Club Has Picnic

The Pre-Med club of this campus enjoyed an outing to the home of Nancy Dunn last Wednesday evening. The members and their friends played games and had refreshments before returning to the campus. This gathering was the club's last meeting until next year.

Elections Result In Run-Offs

Jim Cummings, physics major from Maryville, was elected senior class president in the run-off on Friday.

For sophomore council representative, Shirley McNeill was named to the seat for which six students were candidates in a run-off.

Thursday's class elections forced two runoffs which were to be held on Friday of this week. For president of the senior class, Jim Cummings, and Charlie Rogers battled it out, and six rising junior candidates were in a runoff for the remaining fifth seat on Student Council, which was in dispute.

Definitely elected as presidents were Dick Henderson, biology major from Mount Holly, N. J., president of the juniors; and Bob Hassell, of Nashville, president of the 1955-56 sophomores.

Evelyn Blackburn, home economics major from Maryville, was elected vice-president of the juniors, and Ed Drum, political science major from Latrobe, Pa., was named secretary-treasurer. The four elected to council positions were Sam Buffat, Bill Dent, Bruce Ingles, and Bill Schofield.

New vice-president of the seniors is Bill Wheatley, business major from St. Petersburg, Fla. Another Floridian, Nancy Priest, home economics major from Tampa, was elected secretary-treasurer. Named as student council representatives were Doug Brian, Jo Brooks, Nancy Jones, Tom Paton, and Bill Strickland.

Lyle Talbot, philosophy major from Elba, N.Y., will be vice-president of next year's sophomore class. Serving with him will be Dolly Berry, English major from Orlando, Fla., as secretary-treasurer, and the following as council representatives; Charlie Garrison, Sharon Rise, and Ann Wiley.

Senate Committee Passed On Privileges

The Echo erroneously reported in a headline in the last issue that Student Council had voted to extend senior women's privileges.

Actually the information should have stated that a committee of Sudent-Faculy Senate had approved three proposals already submitted to the Senate by the Council. This committee was reporting back to Senate at a Senate meeting, after having considered the matter and voted on it.

Student Council cannot alone give such privileges or pass any legislation without concurrence by Student-Faculty Senate and the Executive Council of the Faculty.

The Echo sincerely regrets this misleading error.

Vesper Choir To Give Home Concert Sunday

Tomorrow at 7:00 p.m. in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel the Maryville College Choir will give its home concert. This will be the Choir's final concert presentation in preparation for its Spring Tour. The program will include: "Exultate Deo" by Alessandro Scarlatti, "Sicut Cervus" by Giovanni P. da Palestrina, "Passion Trilogy" by Alexander Koshetz, and "So We May Sing" by Normand Lockwood.

The Choir will also sing "The Lord's My Shepherd" an arrangement by Harry Harter which has recently been published by the Shawnee Press, "Two Wings" arranged by Harry Harter, "Nunc Dimittis" by Alexander Gretchaninof, "Rise Up My Love, My Fair One" by Healey Willan, "Trois Beaux Oiseau Du Paradise" (Three Lovely Birds from Paradise) by Maurice Ravel. They will also render "The Peaceable Kingdom" by Randall Thompson.

Four To Appear on '55-'56 Artist Series

The Maryville College-Community Artist Series will present four programs during the 1955-56 season.

The first of these will be Melvyn Douglas, celebrated stage and screen personality and his wife, Helen Gahagan Douglas. They will appear here on Thursday, October 27.

On Monday, November 14, Igor Gorin, famous baritone, will be presented in the second of the series.

Then on Tuesday, January 24, the Zurich Little Symphony, Orchestra will play in its first appearance in the United States.

Sanroma, piano virtuoso, will be presented on March 1 in the final concert of the season.

Activity Fee To Be Raised Next Semester

Next semester the activity fee will be raised to ten dollars per semester. This is an increase of four dollars over the present fee.

Student body president Carol Moore stated that she could not say what expenses would be included under the new fee, she did say that the allowances given to such activities as the Echo and others would be increased.

Hickman Gives Recital In Music Hall

Last evening in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center, Floyd Hickman, tenor, presented his senior recital. He was accompanied by Myrna Ginaven.

Mr. Hickman is a senior voice major from Waynesburg, Pennsylvania. He has been in the Vesper Choir, has sung in the Madrigals, and was a soloist in the Messiah.

The program presented by Mr. Hickman included

Su, venite a consiglio, Scarlatti; Sento nel core, Scarlatti; Caro laccio, dolce nodo, Gasparina.

Judas Maccabaeus, Handel; Recitative: Thanks to my brethren, Air: How vain is man.

Die Lotosblume, Franz; Childe Harolde, Franz; Die stille Wasserrose, Franz; Er ist gekommen, Franz.

The Daisies, Samuel Barber; The Birds, Benjamin Britten; John Mouldy, C. Armstrong Gibbs; So Perverse, Frank Bridge; Music I Heard With You, Richard Hageman.

Pi Kappa Delta Holds Banquet

Last Thursday evening Pi Kappa Delta held its annual banquet at the Chilhowee Inn for the purpose of initiating these five new members: Lavinia Lee, Margallen Hanna, Tom Paton, Graeme Sieber, and David Wiliams. Mr. Williams has been in Pi Kappa Delta for a year but had not as yet been initiated.

Also attending the banquet in addition to these and the old members were: Dr. and Mrs. Queener, Mr. and Mrs. Cragan, Mrs. Peiper, and Mr. Witherspoon.

The entertainment consisted of after dinner speeches given by the new members.

Pi Kappa Delta is a National Honorary Debate Team to which outstanding members of the debate team are elected each year. Maryville College is a member of the Tennessee Alpha Chapter whose purpose is to promote forensic activity on campus.

Final Reports Due From Treasurers

Dr. L. L. Williams has requested that all student treasurers turn in final reports on finances before the end of the semester, preferably before the beginning of exams.

These reports are due at the end of each year before organizations' business can be properly wound up. They may be left in Dr. Williams' office in Fayerweather Hall.

Installs Officers

French Club met Thursday night to install its new officers. Refreshments were served to the old and new members.

136th Commencement Events Announced

By Ann Wiley

The program for the one hundred and thirty-sixth annual commencement services will begin officially on Friday, May 13, at 8:00 a.m. with a chapel service and the distribution of prizes and music program. That night at 8:30, the commencement play, "Pygmalion" will be presented. On Saturday, May 14, at 8:00 a.m., the Senior Chapel Service will begin the day's activities. At 9:00 a.m. there will be the spring meeting of the directors. From 3:00 until 5:00 that afternoon there will be a reception at Morningside for all alumni, seniors, parents of students, faculty, and other guests. At 7:00 is the annual alumni dinner and at 9:30 is the band concert. On Sunday, May 15, there will be the Baccalaureate Service at 10:30 a.m. with the sermon by Dr. Lloyd. At 4:00 p.m. is the senior music hour and at 7:00, Commencement Vespers will be held in the chapel.

Monday, May 16, marks the close of the 1955 commencement activities with the graduation exercises at 10:00 a.m. with the address by Rev. Wallace C. Merwin.

Three Faculty To Take Leave Four To Return, Lloyd Announces

According to an announcement by President Lloyd, two faculty members will be on leave during all of next year. They are Harry H. Harter, Assistant Professor of Music and Director of the Choir, who will continue his work toward a doctorate in sacred music in New York City; and Miss Ingeborg Rodeman, Instructor in German and Education, who will study German at the University of Illinois and serve as a graduate assistant there.

Also, it is the present purpose of Miss Gertrude Mieselwitz, Professor of Home Economics, to spend the second semester of next year on leave of absence doing graduate study at Ohio University.

Four members of the faculty now on leave of absence will return to their duties at the College at the beginning of the fall semester. They are: Miss Frances Massey, Dean of Women, who is studying at the University of Tennessee; Miss Katharine C. Davies, Professor of Music and Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, who is studying in England and Europe; Miss Elizabeth H. Jackson, Associate Professor of English, who is studying at the University of Colorado; and Miss Arda Walker, Assistant Professor of History, who is studying at the University of North Carolina.

Students Elect Jackson, Shackleford

In recent all-campus elections for student body officers, Sonny Shackleford and Martha Jackson were chosen to fill the position of president and vice-president, respectively.

Shackelford, a rising senior English major from Oak Ridge, won the presidency on the third day of balloting. Other contenders for the office were Nancy Jones, Jo Brooks, Jim Cummings, and Charles Rogers.

Miss Jackson, a rising senior English major from Nashville, gained a majority of votes on the second day of balloting, defeating Cary Valentine and Bill Wheatley.

Nu Gammas, Ten Key Men Are Announced

Busy making plans for greeting next year's freshmen are the sixteen Nu Gamma Leaders chosen by the YWCA and the Ten Key Men chosen by the YMCA. These twenty-six students will make it possible for the freshmen to be greeted personally during the summer through letters and upon their arrival on the campus in the fall. This responsibility does not end after the first few weeks of school; rather, these leaders work continuously throughout the year planning outings and helping the freshmen in any way possible.

The fifteen freshmen girls chosen for this responsibility are: Katrina Wells, Clinton, Tennessee; Jean Pavlovsky, Smyrna, Georgia; Ann Murray, Bluff City, Tennessee; Marion Drotar, Newton, Pennsylvania; Joan Neckerman, West Norwood, New Jersey; Lynn Mitchell, Knoxville; Amelia Maples, Knoxville; Ann Wiley, Heiskell, Tennessee; Paula Kronenberg, Fayetteville, Arkansas; Mary Ellen Lee, Fayetteville, Arkansas; Janie Wall, Burlington, North Carolina; Anita Cole, Miami, Florida; Beezy Zimmerman, Clearwater, Florida; Sharon Rise, Sioux City, Iowa; Gretchen Hill, Norwalk, Ohio. Also, Marvelyne Rise from Sioux City, Iowa, a sophomore, will help in the greetings of transfer students.

Miss Wilkie Edits Echo This Week

Barbara Wilkie, sophomore English major from Skyland, N.C., was the editor of this issue of the Echo. Miss Wilkie is trying out for editor, and is editing one issue as part of her candidacy for the position.

An editor will be elected by the staff before the end of the semester.

Senior Women Get Knoxville Privileges

By Ted McDaniels

Wednesday night, May 4, Carol Moore's reign as student body president came to an end at the final meeting of the student council. The prospective members of next year's council and its officers were present, just to get an idea of what goes on and how it is done.

The most significant article of business was the announcement that the Executive Committee had considered and approved one of the proposals for extended privileges for senior women. It was announced that at the last meeting the Executive Council of the Faculty had approved the proposal that senior women be allowed to return from their night-in-Knoxville as late as 11 p.m. The Executive Council has not yet taken any action on the other two proposals; however, they will be carefully considered and the best possible decision will be reached. The other proposals are that the senior women be given an unlimited town night privilege.

Once more there were no town night violations.

Reports Wind Up

The Constitution Committee reported that they had worked out rough drafts for by-laws five, six and seven, which have to do respectively with Student Organization, Pep Committee, and Publications Committee. These will be the first considerations of the Committee next year.

After the various committee reports Bill Strickland and Nancy Jones gave reports on the National Student Association Conventions at E.T.S.C., where they were sent as observers last week end.

It was announced that Sonny Shackleford, president-elect of the student body, would be the delegate sent to the East Tennessee Student Government Conventions.

By-law number four was considered by the council and approved last Wednesday night. This by-law has to do with class organizations: how the offices are set up, the officers elected, and how the elections are to be handled.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1955

Going Forward . . . .

"Upward Still, and Onward" has been chosen as the new theme for 1955-56 YMCA and YWCA. An aspiration toward greater service, this theme also implies past accomplishments. The organizations have always stood for an upward movement in developing body, mind, and spirit. This past year has been no exception.

Making new students feel at home through the Nu Gamma, Big-Little Sisters, and Ten Key Men programs was only one aspect of Y service. Of direct bearing on other phases of campus life were Y-sponsored worship activities, availability of the Y Rooms to students, the M Book, athletic activities, Artist Series and Barnwarming. Pi Gamma was designed to bring town girls closer to dorm girls. The whole community of Maryville was touched through Y radio, Home Avenue and Negro missions and the various aspects of community service, which includes the newly organized hospital program.

The YMCA and YWCA are truly an integral part of Maryville College life. Two ways of climbing "upward still, and onward" were suggested at the recent retreat for the old and new cabinets. Next year there will be more emphasis on cooperation through joint activities of the YMCA and YWCA. An interested effort will be made for drawing everyone in Y into a closer fellowship, so that service will become more meaningful. Indeed, Y has a challenge for creating a stronger feeling of Christian brotherhood on Maryville campus.

B.J.W.

Reappraisal Needed

In view of the recent grumbling and expressed dissatisfaction on campus, we feel that the time has come for a re-evaluation of attitudes and policies. We are, of course, referring to the disciplinary action which is being taken in the cases of the unchaperoned students who were in the mountains on the spring holiday.

The college catalog states that Maryville is situated near the Smoky mountains, a fact which is obviously used for publicity for the college. Yet the number of students who are able to enjoy the mountains is amazingly low. While we are occasionally invited to ride up to Gatlinburg or Cades Cove (and we do appreciate it), we hesitate to ask a faculty member to give up his time and the use of his car to take us for the length of time most of us would like to go. Certainly some accommodation could be made in order to make it easier for students to go to the mountains—to enjoy a hike or picnic in the holiday spirit and without the unnecessary fear of being accused of doing something wrong.

This might be a good time to re-examine and re-evaluate the general rule which prevents going places in cars without chaperones. It stands to reason that the students who made the holiday trip to the mountains did not do so with immoral intent, but went merely to enjoy themselves and the Smokies. Most of us have been accustomed to unchaperoned dating in cars before coming to college and while we are home in the summers. Therefore most of us look upon cars merely as vehicles of transportation, rather than symbols of potential physical danger or of immorality. In view of the established place the automobile holds in the social relationships of young people in America today, liberalization of the Maryville car-chaperone rule would probably provide us with a more normal and realistic social situation, a situation which would be in keeping with what most of us are familiar with when at home on vacations.

The wise suggestion has been made that a joint committee of students and faculty members conduct a survey of various universities and church related colleges in other sections of the United States in order to determine whether or not Maryville is as far behind the times as she is alleged to be by some. The results might be surprising and would probably not involve any great change in general policy.

Perhaps such a survey would serve to bring the students to the reluctant realization that there are reasons for such a rule and would reduce the intense feelings of resentment which can be felt on the campus at this time. On the other hand, this survey would, perhaps, reduce the absurd rigidity of the rule and do away with the hard-and-fast absolutism of the situation.

One important improvement which seems advisable, in view of the circumstances, would be to allow a limited number of trips for the upperclassmen, trips which would naturally, be completely arranged with and approved by the dean of women and/or the housemother. Another accommodation which would do much to create a better spirit and attitude would be to grant SIMILAR PRIVILEGES TO ALL STUDENTS ON THE SPRING HOLIDAY, in keeping with the holiday spirit and general gaiety observed by both students and faculty at that time.

In any event, we feel that a survey and re-appraisal of the rule would accomplish several purposes: namely, it would clear up some very real misconceptions which both the faculty and students have gotten; and it would necessitate a re-evaluation of attitudes and would eventually bring the students and administration into a closer and more flexible co-operation and agreement concerning all rules and discipline.

Scots & Soda

By Joe Gilliland

Both direct and indirect information has it that Dr. Hunter is organizing a big gambling ring, right now taking bets on whether the tree in the chapel court will last through the annual Tennessee drought. Speculation usually goes on after chapel and before and after Vespers.

: : : :

Speaking of our often-spoken-of chapel, some Very Important Visitors were shocked and frightened recently while touring the famous building. They were peacefully walking down one of the halls, when suddenly Herschel Netherton's head appeared from behind the sliding doors of a broom closet. Herschel smiled and shouted, "Going up please!" His red glow could only be matched by the little red hat Chapel Janitor Weaver wears while on duty.

: : : :

Since we have been reading in this issue and last about the plans of the seniors, certain things become apparent:

1. Columbia University and environs are going to be overrun by some of our friends who have decided to spend a few more years making teachers miserable in the big city. How Herb White can sit in a seminary class without having to answer questions because he can claim immunity from hand raising because he was "just scratching" Fisher of course, will continue to bring the copy of The Sporting News to class to catch up on news of extracurricular activities. Over at the school of music they have had some warning; Mr. Harter is more at home there because it is where he spends his summer vacations, and the musicians had a chance to become accustomed to Sheila Sutton, since she auditioned there during Christmas vacation. (They must have pre-entrance auditions just to protect them against such people.)

2. Your friend and mine, the United States Army, will welcome many of our finest young men, giving them ample opportunity to develop further all the learning they picked up while at Maryville. We musn't leave out the other branches of the armed forces, however, because there is a chance that many will be applying for commissions. For instance Bill Breen may someday be known as "that !%$c"()! Lieutenant Breen" by his affectionate subordinates in the Marine Corps. He may even later work out some kind of a deal so that in the head of a Marine barracks, early rising non-coms will see on the shelf under the shaving mirrors the sign: "7:30, CHARLIE."

3. Libraries and offices will have some secretaries and typists educated in fields highly unusual for that profession. Maybe the Pentagon will have Anne Buckley directing a morality play for the State Department. Such work could be called, "The Second Dulles Play." And out in the great Midwest Abby Crosby will be helping disseminate culture to the library patrons of Indianapolis. Could be, however, that in the future she plans to contribute to the Midwestern library scene as a Molly Mayfield columnist for the Chicago Tribune.

4. With all the elementary teachers in the class, it seems inevitable that first, second, and third graders throughout the United States will learn to write through such MC devices as Systematic Discourse and by filling out honor reports that they haven't talked while teacher was out of the room. Would this help or hinder plans for future enrollment of 800?

5. Dock Jennings seems to be serious in his secret plan to return and be president of the college after trying "different types of employment." Current rumor says, though, that Dock plans to be temporary director of the Vesper Choir next year.

: : : :

Guess what happens beginning on Monday (and today for a few of us)? Yes, it's one of those easy weeks which come only twice during the school year—when you don't have to go to classes, and the appointments you do have to keep meet at different times, and thus give you a lot of variety. In case anyone has an official reason to enter the printing office, he'd better carry a passport because of the ultra-secret air about the place now that tests are being printed. Of course by the time this little blurb "hits the street" most of the mimeographing will be finished, the tests smouldering and the professors laughing gleefully. Much luck to everyone, but it sometimes helps if you study a little too. (Last statement entered by the censor.)

: : : :

Being very loyal and patriotic to affiliations, we must make a big speech here about CHIPS. The price of 65 cents this year is not entirely due to inflation or Workshop' desire to make a profit, something not usually done by campus organizations. Notice the first "shaker" by Mr. Bushing. When he read that story, he really shook everybody present and later it disturbed the CHIPS staff too because his story was so long.

Practical note to all readers: Don't open the copy too violently because the staples won't stand the strain.

SHAGGY DOG JOKE DEPARTMENT

Two baboons are in a room playing with blocks. Through the door comes an official-looking gentleman with clipboard, and clad in a white coat. One of the animals says to the other: "Here come old Know-It-All again."

: : : :

She: "What's the matter with your ear?
He: "I bit it."
She: "Well, how in the world could you do a thing like that?"
He: "Oh, it was easy—I just stood on a chair."

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Janet Whitmore

People say that you shouldn't cram for exams. So why not take that advice and go to the movies? Monday the Park Theater is offering "Operation Manhunt" with an all British cast. Tuesday and Wednesday there will be "Fast and Furious" starring John Ireland and Dorothy Malone. Thursday and Friday will feature "Twist of Fate" with Ginger Rogers and Stanley Baker. Monday through Wednesday the Capitol Theater is offering "Bestry" with Audie Murphy.

See Pygmalion

Now let's look at entertainment campus-wise. Tonight will be the first performance of the commencement play, "Pygmalion." It is to be at 8 o'clock in the Theatre. If you can't make this performance, be sure and go Friday, May 13. You'll need a break—or something after the hard grind of the week. "Pygmalion" will star Nancy Rideout as Eliza Doolittle, Bob Lorenz as Professor Higgins and Ann Buckley will take the role of Higgins' mother. Joan McNaughton will portray Mrs. Pierce, the housekeeper of Prof. Higgins; Bill Deerfield will be Colonel Pickering, an elderly friend of Higgins; and Bill Heird is to be Eliza's roughish father.

The action centers around a bet made by Pickering that Higgins can't train Eliza, who is a cockney flower vendor, in the social graces and pass her off as a fine lady at an ambassador's garden party. The members of the cast have been working hard to perfect their English accents.

The staging is under the direction of Bob Brand and promises to be pretty terrific. Much of the new stage equipment has been used and many realistic effects are created.

Good Books To Read

For those seniors who have nothing to do this week and for the lower classmen who don't believe in studying, why not check the New Book Table in the library and catch up on some of the reading you've been meaning to do all semester. There are a couple of biographies on Willa Cather, the author of "My Antonia," "O Pioneers," "Death Comes to the Archbishop," etc.

For a good psychological study read "Why Did They Kill" by J. B. Martin. It deals with the case histories of three teenage boys who committed a brutal murder. Martin shows some of the reasons these teenagers were led to crime.

"The Cross and the Sword" by Manuel de Jesus Calvan, translated by Robert Craves is a historical novel of action and intrigue which portrays the heroic struggle of the Indians for freedom from Spanish colonial rule. It combines factual accuracy with great imaginative scope.

According to the bulletin board this week is National Music Week.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor,

While the spring dance is still fresh in everybody's mind, I would like to make some observations on the way people dress for such occasions. Why do people who wear blue serge suits have to show up wearing white bucks? White bucks are generally considered by society to be sports wear; hence it is common sense that they should not be worn on such a formal occasion as a dance. As a matter of fact, I can't see why white bucks are worn with any suit. I'll admit that they do add contrast to an outfit, and they possibly look sharp," but nevertheless, the days of the zoot suit and other flashy outfits are over, I hope. White bucks indeed look very nice when worn with casual sport outfits, for they add a touch of coolness to summer wear.

While on this subject, I might as well express my ideas on the wearing of shirts and ties without coats. This too seems to be a mark of coming summer: every Sunday we see the parade of men, walking to and from dinner and attending Vespers (worst of all) with no coats. I'm sure that these gentlemen could suffer the agonies of spring heat for a short time every Sunday to attend dinner and religious services, properly dressed for the occasion.

I have been fortunate to have visited several other campuses: university, small college, and technical schools. I think that the majority of the men at Maryville dress above par, as compared with the dress at the other schools where I have been.

I realize that in this letter I may have trampled on the toes of several persons, but I make this written observation after having seen trends in dress at Maryville for four straight years. I should add, however, that this is not a gripe against anyone's personal dress; rather, as has been stated above, it is an observation.

Sincerely,
Bob Weaver.

Sports Spotlights

By Malcolm King

Yankees in '55

This is once again the time of year the beauty of the dogwoods dominate the campus, and the crack of the bat is consistently heard daily near Honaker Field. Instead of the Far East peril and Ike's golfing game grabbing first-notice news, the likes of Willie "Say, Hey" Mays, Mickey Mantle, and Stan (The Man) Musial fill the thoughts of baseball-crazed Americans.

As usual the pre-season "Who's gonna win?" polls have appeared in newspapers and magazines all over the country. The experts again are shooting par as each one picks his own—and different—pennant winner. Oddly enough, the World Champion New York Giants rate no better than second, even third, in most predictions, (experts like Brooklyn Dodgers and Milwaukee Braves) while the American League champs Cleveland Indians take a back seat only to the phenominal New York Yankees.

Three Team Race

Three teams are expected to make strong bids for the pennant flags in each league—Yanks, Indians and Chicago White Sox in the American League and the Braves, Dodgers and Giants in the National League. No other teams are expected to figure in the title scrap, but prior to opening day talk about the St. Louis Cardinals being a Dark Horse in the National League drifted up from their spring training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla. From an amateur's viewpoint, the Redbirds lack power, pitching and reserve strength to be a serious pennant contender.

The big interest of this season's flag scramble is whether crystal-gazing Casey Stengal can manipulate his Yanks to their sixth pennant in seven attempts, and pin revenge on his old nemisis, the Indians.

Turley, Hunter

It was one of those surprising off-season trades that has given the nod to the Yanks—the acquisition of Bob Turley, a 14-15 pitcher from the cellar-dwelling Baltimore Orioles. The stocky right-hander, major-league strikeout king with 185, is plagued with wildness, and his value to the Yanks depends on whether he can overcome this weakness. Stengel has hopes that Turley will prove himself enough to become the Yank's no. 2 mound man.

Another new face in the New York lineup will be shortstop Billy Hunter, ex-Oriole acquired to fill in for the aging and bespectacled Phil Rizzuto. A good fielder with occasional fumbleitis, Hunter will make a more than adequate replacement for the Yank great if he can boost his strong hitting to a more consistent level.

Ol' Case might have the unexpected find of the year with rookie hurler Johnny Kucks, recently released from the Army. Prior to the service, Kucks had a stellar 19-6 freshman record at Norfolk in 1952. In spring training, the 21-year-old pitcher bested the power-packed Dodgers 7-0 on a three-hitter at St. Petersburg. Should Kucks live up to past performances, the Yanks may have the answer to their faltering pitching staff.

Yanks' First Negro Player

For the first time in the Yanks' history a Negro ball-player will be wearing the New York uniform. Big, powerful Elston Howard, the most valuable player in the International League last season, will double as a catcher and outfielder, and his booming bat should be an asset "magnifico" to the Yanks.

Before the season is very far along, hard-hitting Bill Skowian may be playing regularly at first base for the AL runners-up. Last year he alternated with the veteran Joe Collins but should Skowian continue to pepper the outfield at the 340 pace of last year, Joe could be a permanent member of the bench team. Collins is noted for his steady, consistent playing while Skowian is more outstanding, and is an excellent fielder.

Covering the center pasture lands for the Yankees will be th controversial but terrific Mickey Mantle. This year should be the switch-hitting fielder's return to the limelight after a mediocre '53 season, followed by a "slow" '54 season. Not since his glorious performance in the '52 Series has the kid lived up to his notices. The experts still predict that he will be great, and should be the best performer in the league with his power, speed and superb versatility. Less strikeouts, a little more experience and an easier temperament should boost "The Mick" to the top.

Berra, Ford Ready

Casey's ace in the hole and most reliable member is backstop Yogi Berra, voted the AL's most valuable player in '54. Few catchers in baseball's history have had all-around ability of Berra—consistent, long-ball hitter, strong arm, excellent catcher. Number one pitcher Whitey Ford will be out for the 20-game season he just missed last year. He is Casey's most tried and reliable starter, and, if he loses the occasionally "erraticalness," Whitey is a sure 20-game winner this season.

Twenty-game winner Bob Grimm will be the Yank's third starter and is expected to have another fine season, provided he eludes the sophomore jinx. This sophomore moundsman made twelve starts last season, completed only eight full games. Though being a good fielder and possessing an excellent fast ball, Grim needs more experience. Lefty Ed Lopat, the old junk man is expected to be used once about five days. With old Father Time catching up with him he will be pitted against strong right-handed-hitting clubs, the ones with whom Ed is most effective. Tom Morgan is a hurler with talent, but lacks seasoning in every way. However, he may find himself, and be the Yankees' surprise of the year. The elderly Tommy Byrne, a fireballer with control trouble, may come through for the Stengel men and round out a much-needed reliable pitching staff.

The Yanks' Andy Carey is fast becoming one of the best third basemen in the league, and is easily the most improved "hot corner" man in the business. His hard, timely hitting was a big aid to the Bombers after he broke into the lineup as a regular during last season. Steady-playing Gil McDougald will be at second for the Yanks and will be ready to supply the New Yorkers with his terrific clutch playing.

Irv Noren, who batted .319 and led AL batters for three months of the '54 season in hitting, will be back in left field for the Stengel men. With hard hitting Hank Bauer in right field (one of the club's steady, dependable and best clutch players), the Yanks will have one of the most potent outfields in the majors.

Martin to Return

In June, Casey will probably be wearing a broader grin because the spark of his '53 World Champs, second baseman Billy Martin, will be free from the clutches of Uncle Sam's Army. Martin literally carried the Yanks through that winning season with his drive, spirit, consistent hitting and superb fielding. He reached his peak in the Series when he was, by far the most outstanding player in the Series.

For the most opposition for the flag, the Yankees again look toward Cleveland and the mound-superior Indians. The Tribe once again has six top pitchers plus the addition of a sensational rookie Herb Score (22-9 record at Indianapolis in '54) of Lake Worth, Fla. Score is rated par to Bob Feller when the aging fireballer first entered the big leagues. Cleveland's big three will be Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia, and Early Wynn, with Art Houtteman, Hal 'Prince' Newhouser and Feller following in that order. This is by far the best pitching staff in skill, experience, and talent in the majors with only one flaw—Father Time is numbering their effective playing days.

Tribe Has Kiner

One other factor will make the Indians the top Yank threat is the addition of Ralph Kiner to their already hard-hitting pasture men of Al Smith and Larry Doby. Should Kiner's big bat explode with the dynamite it once hheld, the Indians will have a good chance to duplicate last year's astounding 111 wins.

A pesky trouble-maker in the league this year should be the Boston Red Sox, a youthful team that may find itself, provided it gets the pitching. Could be they will be the AL darkhorse.

This 1955 season should be an interesting one with more teams in contention for the flag than last year. Here is my prediction of final AL standings:

New York
Cleveland
Chicago
Boston
Washington
Baltimore
Kansas City

Tennis Team Ends Season

By Jim Demer

Coach Ken Johnson's tennis team finished up the 1955 season with a respectable four wins, four losses and one tie. Matches with T.P.I. and L.M.U. were lost to the fine East Tennessee weather.

The Scots played some good tennis, and, considering the lack of experience of all six men, they really did better than expected. Even-tempered Bob Nier, alternating between the number one and three positions finished first with eleven wins. Charles Partee, the number five man, ranked second with ten wins. Nier won five single matches and was on six winning double teams, while Partee won six single matches and took part in four winning doubles. Partee had one doubles match called because of darkness and did not play in two meets since only the first two doubles teams played.

Win Over Carson-Newman, Milligan

The Highlanders' big wins of the year were the two over Carson-Newman and the 4-4 tie with the East Tennessee State. The netmen broke even in the last four matches, winning against Carson-Newman and Milligan and bowing to East Tennessee State and Chattanooga. The Chattanooga match was a close one with the Scots coming out on the wrong end of the 4-3 score.

Four players left Wednesday to journey to Sewanee for the State Tournament. Those participating are Doug Brian, Bob Nier, Sonny Shackleford and Charles Partee. Tournament time is May 5-7.

Crows Win Softball Tourney

By Bob Evans

The high-flying Crows were victorious over the Alpha Sig Hammers 9-5 on Thursday afternoon, thus winning the softball tournament. The Crows outplayed the Hammers but the Hammers outhit the Crows. The game was a hard fought battle with the Crows winning out in the end.

On Friday, April 22, the Crows, playing on the west field, shellacked the Alpha Sig Doobers 29-11. The Athenians encountered the Diablos Rojas and trounced them 14-3.

The Alpha Sig Hammers downed the Mountaineers 19-12 on Monday.

The YMCA diamond squad walloped the Pre-Mins on Tuesday afternoon. The Crows trotted over the Mountaineers 20-5.

On Wednesday the Athenians trampled the Alpha Sig Doobers 23-14. The Crows' streak was broken by the Hammers who sailed over them 13-3.

Track Meet Held

On Thursday, April 28, the annual Intramural Track Meet was held. There were no track records broken or even threatened in this meet. However, there certainly was plenty of competition out there in all those track and field events. The events, the winners of the events and the winning times are listed below:

Tau Kappa Chi Initiates Four

At its meeting Monday night Tau Kappa Chi, the honorary music organization at Maryville, initiated four new members: Clara Gowans, Ann Kelton, Sidney Tedford and Henry Emmans. Following the formal initiation, the new members entertained with an original song honoring Miss Vawter, Miss Johnson and Mr. Harter—three members of the music faculty.

Members are chosen because of their high scholarship and character, skill shown in public performance, and recommendations by their applied music teacher. All except twenty-five per cent must be music majors.

Tau Kappa Chi is composed of the music faculty and the following students: Maryel Vogel, president; Jackie Speigner, vice president; Louise Ogden, secretary; Floyd Hickman and Fred Wyman. The organization seeks to promote student and community interest in the music department, particularly in student participation.

Home Ec. Girls Stage Show

The home economics department presented "The Tenth Annual Fashion Revue" on Saturday night, April 30, in the Theater.

Over eighty garments, all of which were sewn in the department, were displayed, usually being modeled by the maker. The program was divided into four sections: separates—skirts, blouses, and jumpers; informal wear—women's informal apparel including jumpers, Bermuda shorts, and night wear, and men's infomal clothing including an Italian style shirt, sport shirt, and sport coat; suits and coats; and dresses—cotton, linen, the newer fibers and mixtures, wool, and rayon

Miss Meiselwitz, head of the department, commented on each garment as it was being displayed and pointed out current trends in style and material as illustrated by these fashions.

Members of the music department provided special music for the evening, and lighting and staging was handled by the dramatic art department. Billie Marie Lester was chairman of the publicity committee; while Marilyn Johnston was stage manager.

FTA Discusses Teaching In Panel Group

F.T.A. met briefly to approve the slate of nominees for the next year's officers on Thursday, April 28. The chapter was invited to the monthly meeting of the Delta Kappa Gamma the honorary educational society, at Fort Craig school.

Members participated in a panel discussion "Why I will like to Teach."

Socially Speaking

By Jay Kanick

On June 25, Ella Swift, '51, will wed Richard Heeps Enfield at Bethel Church in Jarrettsville, Maryland. Her bridesmaid will be Jessie Dye, now the wife of Branin Boyd, both former students of Maryville. Richard is a brother of Dotty Enfield, a sophomore here.

—:—

Last week-end Mary Stanley Ray, '54, and Pat Hallstead, '54, teachers in Atlanta, visited the college. Also on campus were Joan Douglas, '54, and Mr. and Mrs. Richards, the wife being the former Maurie Glanville, '53.

Emmans, Colwell To Go Abroad

Henry Emmans, junior organ major from Succasunna, N. J., will spend the greater part of his summer vacation in England and on the Continent.

Mr. Emmans will leave by plane from La Guardia field in New York on July 3 and will arrive in London on the following day. From there he will fly to Oslo, Norway and will take a trip around the coast to Bergen.

Next he will visit Denmark, where he will attend a Hamlet Festival. After two days of sight seeing he will board a plane for Amsterdam, and three days later he will return to London where he will remain for about a week, visiting places of historical interest.

After another week he will travel to Bristol to visit family friends and an old ancestral home.

The remainder of his vacation will be spent in touring Ireland, Wales, and Scotland where he will attend a music festival in Edinburgh.

He will return to this country in late August.

Ginger Colwell, sophomore psychology major from Kearny, N.J., will sail in early September for France. She will spend a month at the University of Lyon before studying in Paris under a noted French psychologist. She also intends to study in Vienna.

Miss Colwell plans to return to Maryville in her senior year to complete her college studies.

YWCA Install New Officers

The "Y" girls met last Sunday, May 1, to install their new officers for next year. The main officers will be: President, Ethelyn Cathey; Vice President, Bets McKinney; Secretary, Ka Leeth; Treasurer, Evelyn Blackburn; Program Chairmen, Martha Jackson and Lavinia Lee.

The installation was the last meeting of the Y.W. this year.

Athenians Vote To Change Name

Athenian met on Thursday, April 29. The members decided to put a proposal before the faculty to change the name of the club to Cappa Phi. On Saturday the 30th a meeting was held jointly with Bainonian at which Mr. Edwin J. Best of Maryville spoke.

Spanish Club Meets With The Schwams

The Spanish Club had as its last meeting a picnic at Senor Schwam's home on Thursday, April 21. The newly elected officers are Sandy Booth, president; Anne Murray, vice-president; Hazel Engle, secretary; Gretchen Hill, tresurer; and Jay Kanick, program chairman.

Prayer Meetings End

The last all-campus prayer meeting was held in the Y-rooms Thursday night with Don Williams as the leader. The meetings will again be observed early next year.

Publications Committee Makes Promotions

In a recent meeting the Student-Faculty Publications Committee made the following promotions and additions to the staff for the Echo next year:

Rising seniors: Don Adams, Janet Whitmore.

Rising juniors: Bill Deerfield, Bob Evans, Barbara Wilkie, Ted McDaniels, Adlai Boyd.

Hampton Is Optimistic About 800 Enrollment

To Stress Blount Enrollment

By Don Adams

James W. Hampton, Publicity Director of Maryville College expressed optimism that the total enrollment for next fall may reach or exceed 800. Many applications have been received with more coming in every day.

He emphasized that much credit for getting names of prospective Maryville College students should go to the students for their strong participation in interesting prospective young people in Maryville College.

Mr .Hampton stated that more consistent publicity is being devoted to the local area of Blount County in order to build up local enrollment. This summer he plans to make personal calls throughout the county in line with this program.

He noted that the college is attracting many honor students from surrounding areas. Of all the students interested in Maryville College he talked with in local and distant high schools, over 80 percent were honor students in their classes.

Miss Marianne Morris, valedictorian of Clinton High School and winner of the $1500 General Mills Betty Crocker Scholarship over 3500 others in the state, has made Maryville College her first choice this fall. Also enrolled is Robert Joseph McNeal, valedictorian at Everett High School and winner of the Alcoa $2000 Scholarship.

Barbara Wilkie Named Echo Editor For 1955 - 56 School Year

Barbara Wilkie, rising junior English major from Skyland, N. C., was elected editor of the Highland Echo for the school year 1955-56. Miss Wilkie has been a member of the staff since she was a freshman.

Election was by the Echo Staff earlier this week. Miss Wilkie has not as yet made appointments of managing editor and sports editor.

Miss Wilkie is also a member of Bainonian, having served this year as program chairman; has been in French Club; and this year was elected to Writers' Workshop. In YWCA this year, Miss Wilkie has been serving with the community service projects by teaching piano to a group of young town girls, and is a member of the Y cabinet.

Library Adds Variorum 'Troilus and Cressida'

The college library has recently added the Shakespeare Variorum edition of "Troilus and Cressida" to its reserve collection of the other Shakespearean plays in this set.

This play is one of the more recently 1953 additions to the Variorum, currently under the auspices of the Modern Language Association. Harold N. Hildebrand is the editor of this 25th volume.

Everett Honor Student To Enter Maryville

Robert McNeal, valedictorian of the Everett High School senior class, plans to enter Maryville College this fall with proceeds from a $2000 ALCOA scholarship he recently won.

McNeal is interested in taking pre-medical studies. The scholarship is payable to the winner at $500 per year for the four years of college.

Announcement of the award was made this week by ALCOA.

Here Are Plans Of Some Teachers For Summer

This summer those members of the faculty that will not be relaxing after a year's work at Maryville will be engaged in study, teaching, and various other activities.

Mr. Schwam will study at Columbia University in New York.

Dr. Barker will teach psychology classes at Furman University.

Mr. Bloy will be a tour escort for The American Express Co.

Mrs. Kramer will direct children's activities at a vacation school.

Miss Styles will be a reservation clerk at a North Carolina Hotel.

Dr. Briggs will work on his

$68 Yearly Increase In Fees Announced

Last Increased In 1953

The cost of attending Maryville College will be $68 more next year due to an increase in fees recently announced by the college. The college's statement said the "continued nationwide rise in operating expenses and living costs has made it necessary for Maryville College to increase somewhat the fees for 1955-1956 over those listed in the 1954-1955 Catalog."

Individual costs have been raised as follows:

TUITION—from $130 to $140 per semester.

ACTIVITY FEE—from $6 to $10 per semester

TEXTBOOK RENTAL— average up from $10 to $12

ROOM—increased to range of $50-$60, as compared with $40-$50

BOARD—increased from $150 to $160.

Approximate total for the student living on the campus equals $370, per semester, an increase from the $336 figure quoted in last year's catalog. For the student not rooming or boarding on the campus, approximate cost is $150, increased from $136.

Rising costs have forced the college to raise fees just about every two years. In the spring of 1951 an increase was announced for the coming school year, and the latest rise in fees before this year was for the 1953-54 school year.

Costs of tuition and board per semester in 1953-54 were $120 and $133 respectively. They were increased to $130 and $150. The activity fee and room rent figures remained the same.

These increased costs will be effective beginning August 30 of this year when the next semester begins.

High School Day Termed 'Success'

Dean Frank D. McClelland reported this week that high school day on the MC campus last Friday was "very successful."

This year the weather was with us," the dean stated. "The past two years we've had rain." The dean added that several persons had expressed to him satisfaction with the day's program.

Seniors from 11 high schools were on the campus and heard leaders in several vocations discuss vocational fields. Other entertainment included a tour of the campus, band concert, and a high school baseball game that afternoon.

Seniors Plan to Scatter All Over The Country

By Carolyn Cones

By the end of this summer, an even one hundred members of the class of 1955 will have received their diplomas. This includes thirteen December graduates, eighty-five scheduled to graduate at the end of the current semester, and two who anticipate graduating after the completion of summer school.

With a group of this size representing such a multitude of interests and abilities, it is only natural that post-graduate plans should encompass many different fields of endeavor.

Henrietta Laing will study for a Master's degree in botany at the University of North Carolina, where she has an assistantship.

Billie Marie Lester will teach school in Chattanooga.

Carolyn Lime will serve a dietetic internship at the University of Virginia Hospital.

Bob Lorenz plans to study at the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which is located in Philadelphia.

Natalie Prinzing McMillan is going to Germany, where her husband is stationed.

A. C. McWilliams plans to marry and attend Columbia Bible College in Columbia, South Carolina.

Harry MacCall is considering joining a branch of the armed forces.

Jim Mays will enter Princeton Theological Seminary in the fall.

Evelyn Miller will teach second grade in School 6 in Troy, New York.

Snell Mills will wed Olivia Vawter on May 21; he plans to enter the military service.

Carol Moore wants to do graduate work at Radcliffe College.

Jean Morgan will work as director of the Young Adult Group

Cum Laude Standard Is Raised To 6.75

AGS Minimum Raised To 7.0

Beginning with next year's graduating class, students at Maryville College will have to attain a four-year average of at least 6.75 plus 75 grade points in order to be eligible for the distinction of cum laude, Dean of Students Frank D. McClelland has announced.

New minimum grade average for the scholarship society Alpha Gamma Sigma will be 7.0 beginning next school year, according to society secretary Dr. E. R. Hunter.

Minimum grade achievement for being placed on the college honor roll each semester remains at 6.0, a straight B average. Magna cum laude requirements of an 8.0 average plus A- on comps and 50 grade points remain the same.

For several years and up through this year, college regulations set cum laude standard at 6.0 plus 60 grade points. Dean McClelland said the new steps were being taken because "there were getting to be too many" on the cum laude list. (Approximately 40 per cent of the class of 1954 graduated cum laude.)

"We've been comparing ourselves with some other colleges, and found that we've been slipping a little," the Dean said. "As it is now cum laude doesn't mean anything—it's not much of an honor any more," he said.

This year's class will not be affected by the change, Dean McClelland said.

Miss Ogden Picks Staff Of Chilhowean

Editor-in-chief of the Chilhowean, Louise Ogden, has announced her editorial staff for the coming year. These editors compose the planning, constructing and supervising staff of the yearbook.

Art Editor for next year will be Virginia Marshall, an art major from Maryville. Adlai Boyd, a philosophy major from Dunedin, Florida, will serve as copy editor. The Sports Editor for the coming year will be Bruce Ingles, an English major from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania The Class Editor, a psychology major from Fayetteville, Arkansas, will

Some '05 Alumni To Be Presented At Alumni Dinner

The Maryville College Alumni Association will hold its annual dinner and meeting tonight at 7 o'clock.

Edwin J. Best, president of the Alumni Association, will preside over the program which will be opened with a prayer of thanksgiving and the invocation.

The dinner will then be served during which music will be presented by the String Quartet of the college.

The next happening of the evening will be the presentation and responses of classes. The first class to be presented will be this year's graduaitng class, which will be presented by Dr. Frank D. McClelland. Next, President Ralph Waldo Lloyd will present the class of 1905. Mr. Best, will then present the class of 1930, as well as other class reunions.

Following the presentation and response of the classes, a few musical selections will be rendered by the Scottie Quartet.

The business meeting will be opened by the report of the association's president. Next Dr. Lloyd will give his progress report. The Executive Committee Report will then be given by Miss Winifred L. Painter, recording secretary of the association. The association's business will be considered for the remainder of the meeting.

The evening's program will be closed by a singing of the Alma Mater.

Dr. Lloyd To Speak On 'Church of Air'

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd will speak on the radio program "Church of the Air" on May 22 on CBS.

His subject will be "Why Christian Education?" Check your local paper for the time of the broadcast.

100 Seniors To Graduate

By Abigail Crosby

The 136th annual Commencement activities were launched yesterday morning with the chapel service devoted to the distribution of prizes, and were continued last night when the MC Playhouse presented the final performance of "Pygmalion" in the college theater.

The production starred Nancy Rideout, senior drama major, and H. Robert Lorenz, senior English major. Other seniors in the cast were Jean Morgan, sociology major, and Ruth Orr, French major.

The chapel service this morning was conducted by the seniors, class president Bill Davis, presiding. Janice Clemens was at the piano; Sheila Sutton and Floyd Hickman provided vocal music; and Joan Hershelman, Elizabeth Parrish, and Carolyn Lime, class officers, assisted in the service.

The class report was prepared and read by Carol Moore and Ken Wilkinson, and the seniors passed their class position on to the incoming senior class, represented by incoming president, Jim Cummings.

The Board of Directors are holding their spring meeting this morning in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center; and this afternoon from 3 to 5. President and Mrs. Lloyd will be at home for a reception for the alumni, seniors, parents of students, and other guests of the college.

Tonight at 7 the annual dinner and meeting of the MC Alumni Association will be held in the dining hall, Edwin J. Best, '36, alumni president, presiding. Special presentation and responses will be conducted by the classes of 1955, 1905, and 1930.

Special music during the dinner will be provided by the Maryville College String Quintet, and featured on the program are the Scottie Quartet. Mr. Best will present the alumni president's report, and President Lloyd will give a progress report on MC for the schol year, 1954-55.

Tonight at 9:30 the Highlanders Band, under the direction of Ralph More, will present a concert in the Chapel Court.

Sunday morning at 10:30 in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, Baccalaureate services will be held, President Lloyd presenting the sermon. The choir will provide special music, "O Praise

Some Parting Sentiments

Every retiring editor of the Highland Echo, we suppose, has had a great many goals unfulfilled, as both he and his readers realize. So many things have not been done this year: plans for variety in the paper have not been realized, important stories have been left out, and so many good resolutions for this work have not been kept. This is all only a part of the feeling one has when realizing that the end of the year has come.

Rather than take up space and effort wishfully thinking about things unaccomplished, we wish to express the many debts of appreciation that are due. First of all we wish to thank the small staff of the Echo which has done an unusually good job in helping publish a campus newspaper this year. These people are the real backbone of the paper; without them our achievements could never have been realized. Specifically we wish to thank Abby Crosby for her helpful cooperation as managing editor and for being available as an extra staff writer; Jim Cummings for an excellent job as business and advertising manager and Jim Demer for his work with sports news.

Thanks are also due to the printing and publishing staff at the Maryville Enterprise for their wonderful tolerance and cooperation in helping us over many hardships during the course of the year. Specifically we should mention "Chigger" Haney, Mrs. Elva Best, Andy, and Gene Thompson.

Our readers of course are the final ones to whom we are indebted. Your suggestions and helpful criticisms have really been appreciated; the occasional statements of satisfaction with the Echo have meant a great deal when it seemed that student interest was nil. We have tried to bring to you a campus newspaper which tried to cover all the news of general interest, without trying to resort to sensationalism or trivialities merely for the sake of being talked about.

The Echo in the future and particularly next year is going to need interest and participation strongly. With increased funds due from the raised activity fee, a tentative schedule for 28 issues has been planned for next year; this year there were 19. This is going to mean an issue nearly every week next year, and it is going to need the numerous qualified students to participate in the activities necessary to produce it. Twelve staff members have worked together to bring out each of the more recent issues of the Echo this year, doing so while they had regular classes to keep up with and while they participated in other activities. Few realize what hearty commendation each one of them deserves.

We hope most of our readers will put some thought about the necessity of interest and backing to a paper. Little has been heard this year about the paper unless it is some so-called important person wanting something censored, someone else complaining about an omission, or the general complaint that "there's nothing interesting in it, what with all the news about the faculty and religion." The sports page has suffered acutely because two men have had to carry the job alone. Any of their requests for help have been met with the excuse that "I don't have time." This situation exists for the rest of the paper also.

We have frankly offered no country-club allurements for working on the Echo this year, but we do feel it is invaluable experience for developing writing ability and for meeting and dealing with people. There is a challenge now before the entire student body. It can either get behind the Echo, take an active interest, or can eventually do without a paper altogether.

End Of A Chapter

When all of us reach the end of a school year we survey what we have accomplished and what could have been done better. For those of us who are seniors this review of our college careers is different because we will not be returning here again, and thus must try to see what we have gained by going to Maryville College for four years.

Maryville's three purposes are realized very well in the daily program on the campus. Christian group activity occupies a large portion of the week's program, and students accept as a natural, normal part of things here, strange as it may sound when printed in black and white and read in a situation removed from this unique society.

Of the emphasis of the College on learning and scholarship there can be no question. The members of our faculty are known and respected by authorities in their respective fields, and the quality of the teaching displays their respective fields, and the quality of the teaching displays their diligent attention to a policy which puts academic things first. These factors and many more combine to give Maryville College the reputation and standing it has been given by recognized accrediting bodies.

And while we are often complaining about the school's hesitancy to approve matters which involve additional cost to individuals, we still understand it is part of the policy which emphasizes low expenses to students. With speedily-rising costs, Maryville's costs rise of course; the rate and frequency of college expense hikes here, however, has been far below similar rises in other areas of living.

With all these basic traits, Maryville is far from perfect, as probably it should not be perfect. We tend to think, however, that the greater part of a college career is what one makes out of it. A great deal of the difficulties which we on this newspaper have observed this year has been caused primarily by students: for example time after time Student Council has asked for special treatment in having things "not put in the paper," and one time it even considered having a committee read the Echo's council stories before publication to see that "things that shouldn't go in be left out." Council could not have done this had it passed that motion unanimously. This censorship has not all come from Council, however; much of it has come from higher sources, which has passed down the word that any newspaper publicity about legislation beoing considered creates "pressure." Maybe we have given the wrong impression this year, but the Echo has never embarked on any sensational "crusades" or "exposes." We seriously think it is bad to suppress release of details; it is much better to have things clear than to have rumors distort matters before the powers gleefully announce the new legislation as a big surprise gift.

Another sad situation on this campus this year has been the lack of interest and support of activities by students. Athletics has certainly felt a letdown because spirit seemed to be lacking: it took a road victory by the football team to inspire any noticeable demonstration. As we have mentioned in another piece, the Echo has had little help on the staff this year. The problem is very simple—a newspaper represents people; it doesn't publish itself.

A REAL-LIFE DRAMA
in one ½ acts

(Setting—Chapel Court, 12 midnight, May 15, 1955, moon up above, wispy clouds, thunder in the distance; Maryville Seniors are taking last look at campus before graduating the next day.)

English major I: Hark! What do I behold in yonder distance? Is that the gory edifice where I spent all those precious gems of time?

English major II: Twas brillig when we beset oure footes upon yon doorsteppe. Andersonne Hal it is ycleped.

English major I: Ah, so it is. Mark how yon ivy clings to its walls . . .

English major II: Hearken! Footsteppes are approaching! Most rapide they come!

(They hide behind columns)

(Enter Phys. Ed. major) Puff . . . puff . . . well, that was my last chance to run the loop . . . made it in a half hour that time . . . I was tryin' to beat the moon over the Chilhowees . . . think I'll set here'n rest a spell.

(She sits on steps)

(Enter Psychology major; sees Phys. Ed. major) Why hello! How's your superego tonight?

Phys. Ed major: Fine, I reckon.

Psychology major: You know—I'm glad you're here alone. There's been something I've wanted to to ask you all these four years. I've been admiring your phenomenological self—at a distance, of course—in the dining hall, library and in my General Psych. class. But I've been waiting for the right psychological moment when the environment was conducive to such an undertaking. Also I've waited until I was psychologically mature, and now I think I am—especially since I passed comps . . .

English major I (behind post) Are those the most poetic lines he can use for this romantic occasion?

English mapor II: Full pleasant they muste seeme to the yonge ladye.

Phys. Ed. major: Well, I've noticed you, too, in the student center playing ping pong and out pitchin' horseshoes. I like athletically inclined people.

Psychology major. That's a good criteria; I'm glad I measure up to it. You sure measure up to all my criteria. Of course, I realize it's all just self-enhancement for me to be interested in you.

Phys. Ed. major: Yeah?

English major I: Perchance he is leading up to something.

English major II: We shalle see.

Psychology major: My days here at Maryville have really meant a lot to me, especially since you were here, too.

Phys. Ed. major: I didn't realize all that—guess I've been too busy going out for varsity and running the loop.

Psychology major: Now that's all over. We'll graduate tomorrow.

Phys. Ed. major: (I hope.)

Psychology major: And then we'll go our separate ways . . .

Phys. Ed. major: Yeah, isn't it a shame, and I'm just getting to know you.

Psychology major: Well, I have a proposition to offer so that we can spend more time together in the future.

Phys. Ed. major: Oh?

English major I: He creeps on at such a petty pace! Why cannot he utter what he has to say and be gon!

English major II: The faire ladye is all breathless with excitement.

Psychology major: In fact I think we ought to spend the rest of our lives together, don't you?

Phys. Ed. major: Well, I'll . . . .

Psychology major: There! I knew you'd say "yes." I had all the independent variables controlled. Well, I'll walk you back to the dorm and we'll talk some more tomorrow. I've got to write all this down in my case book. . . .

(They stroll away happily)

English major I: Ah! Look how yon moon smiles down upon yon couple as they wend their way down the walks of Maryville campus!

English major II: And thus endeth the prologue of a realle-lyfe drama.

TALK OF THE WEEK Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Adlai Boyd

It has occurred to this writer that our exceptionally fine library is not being used by enough students. Instead of reporting the values of one book this week we shall harangue the values of the whole Library.

Lamar Memorial Library, as of 1954, has 57,360 volumes in print. Approximately 1,200 volumes are added annually by purchases and gifts. The library contains 267 purchased subscriptions to periodicals and 131 gift subscriptions to total 398 different magazines and papers that arrive periodically. Of these, 82 of the most important are bound.

In 1954, there was a total circulation of 34,561 books and magazines. It seems that 22,799 volumes were not circulated and probably more since it is certain that of the actual circulation many were duplicates.

In Freshman Discussion class we learned quite a bit about our library; it's too bad we don't retain enough of this knowledge to put it to a better use. The library currently has one of its always interesting display bulletin boards upon which we find this biting question, "Good books are the windows of the mind. Have you looked out lately?"

One of the newest additions to the library is a microfilm projector for the film editions of the NEW YORK TIMES. These editions are complete from 1952 to the present. They are stored in a humidified cabinet.

We found great interest, in our search through the library, in a set of books (50) put out by the Brittanica people entitled Great Books of the Western World. This set is now out of print and very valuable but is available for reading in the reading room of the library. We are fortunate to possess the Founders Edition.

Our library is equipped with the three encyclopedia sets that are practically prerequisite in any first class college or university. There is the newest edition (1954) of the Encyclopedia Americana, Collier's Encyclopedia, the Encyclopedia Britannica, and other sets of worth. Along with these the pamphlet file and the picture file contain much information valuable to any scholar.

The library employs 22 people and their duties are many. They Ye God," by Tschaikovsky, and "Soe Wee May Sing in Sion," by Norman Lockwood.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center the seniors will present their music hour, and the regular Commencement Vespers will be held in the Chapel at 7 with the Rev. J. Hayden Laster presenting the sermon. Mr. Laster is a member of the class of '29, and has a son, Jim, in the current junior class. The choir will again provide the music, singing Gretchaninof's "Nunc Dimittus" and "There is a Balm in Gilead," arranged by William Dawson.

Three honorary degrees will be bestowed by the Board of Directors at the Commencement Services Monday morning at 10. They will be given to Robert J. Maclellan, Chairman of the Board, Provident Life and Accident Insurance Co., Chattanooga; LL.D.; the Rev. J. Hayden Laster, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Harriman, D.D.; and the Rev. Wallace C. Merwin, Executive Secretary, Far Eastern Joint Office, National Council of Churches, D.D., who will also present the Commencement address.

Approximately 100 seniors will receive baccalaureate degrees at this service, 47 bachelor of science, 53 bachelor of arts. The Commencement procession will include the graduating seniors, the members of the faculty, the candidates for honorary degrees, the speaker, anyone else taking part in the service, and the Daisy Chain, made up of 14 junior girls: Mary Brasfield, Jo Brooks, Ethelyn Cathey, Sara Min Davis, Margaret Hanna, Esther Lerch, Betty McKenney, Lynn McMillan, Roberta Myers, Faith Nollner, Jackie Speigner, Marcia Williams, and Dee Woods. The special music provided by the Vesper Choir will be Crimond, or the 23rd Psalm set to an old Scottish Folk Tune, arranged by Harry H. Harter, and "Ye Shall Have a Song," the final number of "The Peaceable Kingdom" by Randall Thompson.

Immediately after Commencement Dr. Lloyd will leave for Los Angeles where the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA, will be meeting; and the choir will begin its tour of eastern cities.

Sports Spotlights

By Jim Demer

Looking back at the 1954-55 sports activity one finds that the usual fine winning record of the Highlanders are not present this year. The football team came through with a fair record, the cross-country team won only one meet; the basketball team lost twice as many games as they won; the wrestlers finished a poor season with a fine second place showing in the Southeastern Invitational Wrestling tournament, and both the tennis and the basketball teams were even on the won and lost column.

Actually sports were as good as could be expected at a school which has little or no athletic scholarshiping, and which places emphasis on learning. Many reasons can be given for having a poor season. Dave Numally, acting sports editor at Sewanee (University of the South) wrote a good article about the poor sports season at Sewanee. Since Sewanee is a school noted for good teams, it is interesting to see what reasons he gives for a losing team. These reasons can be just as easily applied to Maryville.

About this time two years ago, the sports page was filled with talk of the successful season just ending—perhaps the best in Sewanee's history. There were comparisons with past years, tributes to outstanding athletes, and various attempts to analyze the mysterious ingredients of success. This year the situation is a little different. Not only did the football team lost all its games, but the records of the other teams have been indifferent; even the tennists, who ordinarily come up with the best won-lost record of any Sewanee team, have already lost three matches.

It's impossible to point out any particular factors as the basic causes of a losing season, although many contributing reasons may be seen, among them not-so-good student support, a few key injuries, and the inevitable series of bad breaks which always plague a losing team. Most important, probably, is the fact that most of Sewanee's opponents have simply been better at whatever particular skills characterize each particular sport—in other words, we've been outmanned. For although a highly spirited team will occasionally beat a team which is better in manpower, but lacking in the intangible of attitude, this is the exception rather than the rule. At Sewanee we have seen this "upsetting" happen so often that we have come to expect it, but unfortunately the string has got to snap sometime. This year, the string snapped.

If Sewanee were like so many colleges today, a bad season in athletics would mean a bad year for the school in general. Perhaps that's the way some of us look at it here, but this is taking an unnecessarily pessimistic—or egocentric—view. After all, this is a liberal arts college, not the holder of various team franchises, upon the success or failure of which hinge the well-being of the whole place. Intercollegiate athletics is an excellent extracurricular activity, and one which should be encouraged as long as it does not interfere with the learning process, whatever that is. It's a little like the quality of mercy in that it blesses those who participate and those who just watch. But to establish it as a criterian of success or failure is to accord it a prominence which is was never intended to have, at least at Sewanee.

What is important about athletics is the pleasure it affords participants and spectators. If the loss of so many games makes the sport less enjoyable, then there's where the real trouble with losing lies, and not in the losing itself.

Coach Lombe S. Honaker's baseball team ended the 1955 season with a 7 won, 7 lost record. The Scots had some tough luck wtih errors, costing them more than a few wins. This was evident at the last UT game when the Scots dropped a 6-3 decision with all six Vol runs unearned.

Bill Evans and Lynn Sexton led the team with a .345 and a .340 average. Bob Ramger won three games, but also had three games on the other side.

Choir Tour Sightseeing To Include Midnight Visit To Times Square

Unless Ike is playing golf that day or is at Gettysburg lookng over the farm or watching after Mamie's health, the Vesper Choir is hoping the President will be present for the choir's concert at National Presbyterian Church in Washingtno.

A few weeks ago the choir members wrote (and they all signed) a letter requesting Mr. Eisenhower's presence at the church when the choir sings there. The concert is scheduled for both Sunday morning services at the church on May 29.

A reply from President Eisenhower this past Saturday said the President was not sure whether he would be in Washington on that date. Sen. Estes Kefauver definitely plans to be there.

The choir's appearance in New York City will begin on Friday, May 20. In addition to singing at West End Presbyterian Church, the choir will go through the big city process known as sightseeing.

On Friday, the first day, they plan to tour Union Seminary School of Sacred Music, Julliard, Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and Riverside Church.

They will eat lunch that day at the International House, within the same area. Taking the subway down Manhattan to the Battery, they will take the ferry to the Statue of Liberty in the harbor, and be back that night for their concert at West End Church.

After the concert, the church has arranged for the choir to have a sightseeing tour of Times Square, lasting until after midnight.

That week end, the choir will be in Trenton, N.J., and in Philadelphia. Saturday afternoon will find the group at Independence Hall. All day Sunday will be spent at Covenant Presbyterian Church, where the choir will participate in Sunday School and church services, afternoon, vesper, and the evening church service.

Monday the choir will be back in New York, with plans for visiting the United Nations building then. That night they will go north of the metropolitan area, giving a concert at Mount Vernon, N.Y.

Tuesday, back in the city, the choir plans to be in the area of Rockefeller Center, seeing a show at Radio City, and getting in as many other places of interest in the area as possible.

The the group will leave New York and proceed to Irvington, New Jersey, where former choir soprano Helen Seay is handling all arrangements for the concert at Sanford Heights Presbyterian Church.

The next visit of general interest is the choir's visit on Thursday to the RCA-Recorded Publication Co. studios in Camden, N. J. By the time this is read, the choir's recording of "The Peaceable Kingdom" will have been completed, so the choir will be in Camden near the time of the processing of that recording.

Officials of the company will show the choristers through and explain recording techniques, procedures, and special effects. The choir will come to the studios after appearing in Philadelphia on WFIL-TV.

Friday, May 27, the choir will "roam around Wanamakers," and spend a few hours at Valley Forge, in the outskirts of Philadelphia.

When the choir is in Washington the next two days, critics from the Washington Star and the Post & Times-Herald are expected to be present at their concerts. Incidentally, the critic who received a well-known letter from Harry S .Truman—Paul Hume of the Post & Times-Herald—is one of the critics who will be present. Sen. Kefauver notified them of the choir's visit.

A day later they will be at the church of choir member Anne Buckley in Falls Church, Va. Then they will go to Hyattsville, Md., another suburb of Washington, the home of former choir member Diana Evans, now Mrs. Marshall England.

Then the choir will proceed north again, to Toms River, N.J. A prospective trip is in view to the Jersey shore, for swimming in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Toms River concert is the final one of the tour. The bus leaves May 31 on a return trip to Maryville, and will arrive here early 1.

This year's tour is the fifth extensive one for the choir. Director Harry Harter will soon be leaving for New York again as he goes to Union Seminary of Sacred Music for advanced study.

Jim Cummings is bus captain for the tour, and Jim Laster is tour manager. Accompanying the choir will be Miss Mary Miles and Dr. F. A. Griffitts.

Here's Every Student's Look At Gossip As Contained In Alumni Magazine

Gossip galore is contained in the 1955 Alumni Bulletin, just issued this wek—gossip which all students with the exception of some professional tale-bearers could not possibly know.

Possible Girls' Dorm Construction

Dr. Lloyd' letter to alumni states in part that 'we are exploring he possibility" of beginning construction on one unit of the new girls' dormitory this fall. His statistics indicate that total funds now on hand for he new dorm equal $171,915. "We need another $150,000 and are seeking it," Dr. Lloyd stated. Meanwhile they might try to begin construction on the new dorm his fall.

As of the printing of the Bulletin, Dr. Lloyd said the money received for the chapel and theatre is $416,448, with estimated final cost of $616,491 (not including the new organ.)

Dr. Lloyd's Diploma Record

The 100 diplomas in the class of 1955 will bring a total of 3034 diplomas which President Lloyd has awarded since he has been head of the College. This number equals 67 per cent of all diplomas awarded in the history of the college, Dr. Lloyd states.

Beginning with the class of 1952, here are excerpts from the vital statistics reports of the Alumni Office:

Review Of Year In Intramurals

By Bob Evans

The powerful Alpha Sig Hammers dominated the picture in intramural touch football by coping the crown in league play with an impressive 10-1-1 record and by smashing the Intramural All-Stars 21-6.

Snowbirds Win Crown

Basketball was led around by the nose by the high-flying Snowbirds, who wound up on top of the heap at the finish of league play with a 13-3 record. The white-feathered clan then proceeded to take first place in the A league Double Elimination Basketball Tournament.

The hard-fighting Muleheads took first in league play in the B league with an amazing 18-0 record, and the Alpha Sig Tackhammers captured the Consolation Tournament.

Sigs Win Stinkin' Shoe Classic

Alpha Sig's Globetrotters downed the Athenian Lakers 51-40 in the annual inter-society basketball battle.

In volleyball the YMC ABarleteers copped first place in league play with a sizzling 9-0 record, and then repeated the performance in the tournament.

Hammers Go Undefeated

The hard-hitting Hammers' softball squad finished the season with an impressive unbeaten record of 7-0.

The Crows, however, turned the tables on them in the Single Elimination Softball Tournament, beating them out in the finals 7-5.

Alpha Sig compleed its domination of intramural sports by trouncing Athenian 13-7 in the annual inter-society softball game.

type, shelve books, mark at the various desks, bookkeep, mend and, plan the bulletin boards, to name only a few.

There is always a table for new books and plenty of information about them in their covers which are left on the table for several weeks before being filed. There is also a list each week, on this table, of all the new books.

Our library is one of the finest in the state. In order for our school to become accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, it had to pass rigid tests and requirements. Other organizations of which M.C. is a member have similar qualifications.

It may have been wondered how boks are chosen for the library. We find that there are several methods. The very reliable and generally acceptable reviews found in the New York Times, The Saturday Review of Literature and the Library Journal are used as guides for good buys. Also, each subject field of the college is allowed to spend so much on books. They are purchased as they are requested. Faculty members often suggest books and are heeded and student suggestions have been taken. Of course some gift books are received and they are arbitrarily given.

All of the major European languages, dead and alive, are represented in some quantity.

All in all, it seems that with such a superior library at our finger-tips (and this opportunity doesn't come with a diploma), we could jolly-well make better use of it. Let's try dusting off a few windows when we return another year. It's surprising how clear the view is!

Highlanders End Tennis Season At State Meet

Climax of the Highlander tennis season came last week-end in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Athletic Conference held at Sewanee.

Last year Southwestern won the tournament, edging Sewanee, but the Tigers came back to cop this year's title. Seven teams participated.

Tournament matches began on Thursday, May 5. The Scots got some unlucky draws and were all defeated in the first round play. Last year John Anderson and Kent Buser won the state doubles crown.

POTRZEBIE BOUNCES

Societies Pick Slate of Officers To Head Rushing This Fall

Marcia Williams, Jim Gardner, Elizabeth Murphey, and Bob Ramger have been elected to act as society presidents for the fall semester, 1955.

Miss Williams, a senior drama major, will head the Bainonian program-year, and will be assisted by Lynn McMillan, vice-president; Elinor Bass, secretary; Ann Yater, treasurer; Jackie Spelgner and Gretchen Hill, program chairmen; and Sadie Davis and Isabel Easley, rush week chairman.

Miss Murphey, a senior physical education major, will direct the Theta Epsilon activities, along with Jo Brooks, vice-president; Nancy Jones, secretary; Ruth Nelson, treasurer; Jane Robinson and Mary Lamb, program chairmen; Jeannie Pavlovsky, chaplain; and Judy Burgos and Doris Glad, rush week chairmen.

Assisting Ramger, senior physical education major, as president of Alpha Sigma, will be Bill Strickland, vice-president; Bill Heird, secretary; Dan Wiley, treasurer; Jim Kennedy, program chairman; and John Borter, rush week chairmen.

Betty McKenney To Attend Confab At Blue Ridge

Betty McKenney, new vice president of YWCA, will be one of the delegates to the Blue Ridge Conference which will be held June 10 through 17 on the Southern YMCA Conference Grounds at Blue Ridge, N. C.

Other delegates from the Y's at Maryville have not yet been announced. This conference, which is interracial, is open to all students and to the Faculty Y advisors from the ten southern states.

The daily program at the conference will be varied and will include daily worship, platform discussions, workshops, various speakers and, of course, recreation.

Dr. Charles Johnson, president of Fisk University will speak the first day. Other speakers will include Dr. Frank Graham, the former president of the University of North Carolina, who is now working with the United Nations, and Maynard Catchings the associate secretary of the National Student YMCA. Mr. Catchings spoks here on Maryville campus at a joint meeting of the Y's on March 27 of this year.

Fall Semester To Open August 30

Dean Frank R. McClelland has announced plans and activities for the opening of school next fall.

Freshmen students will report by 4 p.m. Tuesday the 30th of August. On hand to meet and welcome them will be the welcoming and orientation committees which are organizing this May.

The dormitories open at noon August 30th for new students. Registration of classes and payment of bills begins Wednesday and Thursday the 31st and first of Setpember. Friday is the last day for payment of bills, the Dean said.

Scheduled events include the annual All-College Sing, Wednesday evening; and then the first chapel service at 8 the next morning. Thursday evening the Student mixer will be held. Friday morning Dr. Lloyd will speak at the annual Convocation to be held in the chapel at 8. Regular classes meet beginning Friday, September 2.

The YWCA and YMCA have their annual get-togethers Saturday evening. Monday evening the 5th, the Faculty Reception will be held at the chapel.

Hughes Working With Church In Indianapolis

Former music instructor W. Curtis Hughes is now minister of music at First Presbyterian Church in Indianapolis, Ind. He moved to Indiana in April from Atlanta, where he was directing music at Peachtree Street Christian Church.

Also on the staff of the Indianapolis Church are Janice Marion, '52, and Kent Buser, '54.

Plans Announced For Enlarging Of College Parish

By Abigail Crosby

The Faith Cooperative Parish Program will be greatly enlarged next fall, according to announcement made recently by the administrative committee, Dr. Francis Pritchard, Dr. H. E. Orr, Dr. Ralph T. Case, and the Rev. Donald Barker.

The Parish includes five churches, West Maryville, Mt. Tabor, Cloyd's Creek, Pine Grove, Hayes Memorial; and four Sunday Schols or chapels, Sunnybrook, Home Avenue, Keeble, and East Mountain View.

Assuming his duties around the first of July will be the new director, Dr. Albert H. Cropp, from South Dakota. Dr. Cropp, a Wooster graduate, has been working with Indians for a number of years under the Board of National Missions.

He will have charge of the five churches, plus general administration of cooperative affairs of the parish as a whole. The assistant director, Austin Van Pelt, will have the responsibility of the Sunday School points. An MC graduate, '52, Mr. Van Pelt will complete his seminary training at Louisville this spring; he has been commuting from the seminary on week-ends this year as a Sunday School missionary for the Board of National Missions.

Dr. Cropp and Mr. Van Pelt will have offices in the Office Annex and will each conduct training classes as a part of the enlarged program. The Parish Program carries with it hour per semester credit in the field of Bible and Religious Education.

College students are needed in this program for the school year —Sunday School teachers, preachers, directors of music, pianists, week-day recreational and young peoples' leaders. A number of students were used in the program this past year, but the enlarged project with Dr. Cropp's arrival will provide placement for others. Any interested students should contact Dr. Case as soon as possible after school opens next fall.

Prizes Awarded; Kiefer Wins Two

Officially opening the annual commencement activities Friday morning, Dean McClelland awarded nine established prizes to eight students at the chapel service. Lynn Kiefer, senior English major, was the only double winner of the morning, taking the Barraclough Choir Award and winning third place in the Bible prize established by the Rev. William H. Bates, D.D. First and second place winners of this award were Dick Thompson and Harry Robinson, respectively.

Joe Gilliland, editor of the ECHO, won the Alexander English Prize; Tom Bugenhagen was awarded the George A. Knapp Mathematics Award; and the Elizabeth Hillman Chemistry award went to Lois Speaker. Bob Clark is the recipient of the Bank of Maryville Economics Prize, and the newly established Ross Bisher Prize, to be awarded to the junior pre-ministerial adjudged most worthy, went to Forrest Amidon.

The service was closed by a special musical presentation of four excerpts from the Glee Club's spring operetta, "The Waltz Dream," sung by the mixed chorus under the direction of Dan H. Kinsinger.

Seniors Conduct Annual Chapel

At the annual senior chapel this morning, William F. Davis, Jr., class president, presided. After announcements by Mr. Davis, Joan Herschelman read the scripture and Carolyn Lime led in prayer. Carol Moore and Kenneth Wilkinson gave the class report. Libby Parish gave a prayer for the Alma Mater.

Janice Clemens was pianist for the processional and recessional. Sheila Sutton and Floyd Hickman sang solos, and the College Choir sang the Alma Mater. Closing the service was the passing of the class position to the incoming senior class.

Congratulations Graduates!

Miss Garrison Is Choosen Band Sponsor

Miss Mary Kathryn Garrison, senior sociology major from Lake Wales, Florida, has been chosen as this year's band sponsor. At the Wednesday session of the Maryville band the names of four girls from four campus clubs were put before the band which elected the sponsor. Miss Garrison, nominated by Bainonian, was chosen after a runoff.

Other candidates were Doris Glad nominated by Alpha Sigma; Delores Woods nominated by Kappa Phi; and Elizabeth McKenney nominated by Theta Epsilon. The band sponsor will be added attraction as she wears a colorful uniform and leads the Highlander band at all Maryville parades and football games.

Buck of the Month Nets Over $6000

The Buck-of-the-Month Club, a fund-raising plan sponsored by the Alumni Association of Maryville College has met with "unbelievable sucess," according to James W. Hampton, public relations secretary. Having been in operation alomst five months, the program has resulted in a total income of more than $6000.

Designed to encourage a large number of alumni to give a nominal amount regularly, the club has already gained over 1000 members. The goal is a membership of at least 60 per cent of the living alumni of the college—a percentage which would set a national record for alumni giving.

Every month Alumni President David McArthur sends a letter to each of the more than 400 alumni. This is accompanied by a "Scotty-gram," which contains campus news in capsule form.

Mr. Hampton feels that the response of the alumni has been most enthusiastic, and the interest in the overall Maryville program is being refelcted in such ways as an increased enrollment this year.

A bulletin board outside the Personnel Office contains letters and clippings concerning the Buck-of-the-Month Club.

Paton Leads Prayer Meet

Tom Paton was the leader of the All-Campus Prayer Meeting held in the Y rooms at 9:30 last Thursday night.

Here's A Look Behind The Scenes Of Theta-Alpha Sigma Rush Week

By Ruth Wilson

Due to the circumstances not under Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma's control, we did not print a paper last week. If such a paper had been issued, it would doubtless have carried a story on the theme and programs of these societies' Rush Week.

Of course, Rush Week is not just a hodgepodge of brainstorms that occur in the minds of the Rush Week Chairmen a few days before school opens. All summer, in fact, from their election in the spring, these chairmen and their committees have been forming tight little conspiracies whose purpose is to come up with something original for the next year.

These committees ranged from refreshments, Peggy Fricks and Morgan Biggs; stunts before meals, Ka Leeth and Jim Laster; to budget, Dan Wiley; and publicity, Madlon Travis and Will Roberts. Each program has its chairman. For example, Alice Rowe and Joyce Runyon were for the fashion show; Judy Ross, John Borter and Helen Davis planned the splash party; while Doris Glad and Judy Burgos directed the formal show, and over saw the other programs. The tomahawks, tepees, headdresses, and all the other favors were made by a committee of which Ann Murray and Doris Scott were the co-chairmen.

This isn't even a start. There were casts for the splash party and formal production, models for the fashion show. There were lines and songs to learn and rehearse again and again. Then, too, there were the backstage crews who played records, checked lighting, and in general kept the shows running. Herschal Netherton, Tony Clark and Elizabetr Frei directed the technical phase of the formal show, "Night in Neverland."

All of this and much more went into the planning and producing of Rush Week. We Thetas and Alpha Sigs want the freshmen and new students to know how much we enjoyed presenting our Rush Week to you; we sincerely hope that you will join one of the four societies on campus.

Students OK '55-'56 Town Nite Agreement

Council Is Studying Fee Allocations

The student body ratified the Town Night Agreement for 1955-56 in a meeting called for that purpose Thursday morning by Sonny Shackelford, president of the student body. The student council had ratified it in a previous meeting. The Town Night Agreement is printed in the M Book.

In the senior class meeting held after the student body meeting dress for the senior Chilhowean pictures were discussed. It was decided that the men wear white jackets with dark bow ties and the women's pictures be taken in dark drapes. Jim Cummings, senior class president presided at the meeting.

The junior class also held a meeting to establish the amount for dues each semester. $1.00 per semester was agreed upon. Dick Henderson, class president presided.

The Student Council is now studying a tentative plan for distributing the increased college activity fee as drawn up by Dr. Lloyd and the executive council. The allocations as presented are as follows:

Permanent athletics	$2.50
Current athletics	6.00
Forensics	1.00
Artist series	1.75
YMCA and YWCA	1.00
Echo	1.50
Student center, social com.	3.00
Theatre and chapel equipment	1.00
Student Council	.25
M. Book	.50
Lecture fund	1.50
Total	$20.00

An innovation to the activities fee is the iecture fund which will

CONCERNING THE ECHO . . .

Persons wishing subscriptions to the Echo may see Jim Cummings, business manager, or one of the editors. Extra subscription rates are 50c a semester. Each student already has a subscription provided for in the activities fee.

Attention Clubs

Clubs and organizations on campus are urged to turn in news of their activities to the Echo staff on Tuesday mornings after chapel, if they want articles in Saturday's Echo.

Staff Positions Open

There are still some vacancies on the Echo staff for freshmen, sophomores and juniors. Interested persons may attend the staff meetings at 7:00 on Monday night in the Echo office, east end of Thaw, or contact one of the editors.

Student tryouts writing for this issue include Susan Parkinson, Ira Jo Davis, Jane Murphy, Joanne Causey, Billye Ginaven, Mary Ann Morris, Helen Jansen, Betty Ann Springstead and Joe McNeal.

Echo Schedule

Due to a misunderstanding with the printer concerning the publication dates of the Echo, the paper was not printed last week as originally scheduled. The Echo will appear on the following dates for the remainder of the semester: Sept. 24, Oct. 1, Oct. 8, Oct. 22, Nov. 5, Nov. 19, Dec. 3, Dec. 10, and Dec. 17.

Y-Radio Announces Plans

The first meeting of Y-Radio was held this week in the Fine Arts Center, where interested students looked over the microphones in the soundproof radio room.

Future plans include an interview with Coach Honaker and his boys, a talent show October 1, Homecoming November 2, and a visit to a radio station. This year the members will learn the technical aspects of radio, including writing and producing.

Weddings And Engagements Fill This Summer's Society Columns

By GRACE STINECIPHER

VAWTER-WINTER

Last Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock Miss Dorothy Vawter became the bride of Mr. Dan Winter of Wooster, Ohio in the Little Chapel at Maryville College. Dr. Davies of Maryville officiated. Miss Carolyn Blair served as maid of honor and only attendant, while the groom's father acted as best man. Ushers were Mr. Wayne Shelton of Vienna, Illinois and Mr. James A. Bloy.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Winter plan to reside in Wooster, Ohio where Mr. Winter has a teaching position at Wooster College.

LIME-HYDE

Miss Carolyn Lime, '55, became the bride of Lt. (jg) Olin V. Hyde of Syracuse, N.Y. on August 20 in the Presbyterian Church of Canton, N.C. Her father, Rev. J. Clayton Lime, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. Miss Aleen Williams, ex-'56, was maid of honor while Miss Mary Brasfield, '56, served as organist. Miss Elizabeth Enloe, '56, assisted at the reception held at the manse. Mr. and Mrs. Hyde are at home now at 602 Delashmitt Circle, Falls Church, Va.

NELSON-PHIFER

The father of the bride, the Rev. W. O. Nelson, officiated on August 27 at the wedding of Miss Martha Nelson, ex-'57, and Lt. Homer Craig Phifer, Jr. of Jacksonville, Florida. The vows were spoken in Elise Presbyterian Church in Robbins, N. C. Her twin sister, Miss Mary Nelson served as maid of honor and bridesmaids included Miss Ruth Nelson, '56, and Miss Sue Nelson, '58. The couple is residing in Columbia, S. C., while Mr. Phifer is stationed with the Army at Ft. Jackson.

LLOYD-PALM

On August 20 Miss Margaret Ruth Lloyd became the bride of the Rev. James Edward Palm of White Plains, N. Y. The wedding took place at Morningside, home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd, in Maryville. Dr. Lloyd, the Rev. Hal B. Lloyd, brother of the bride, and Dr. Francis Pritchard performed the ceremony.

A family tradition was repeated at the time, as Miss Lloyd was the sixth person to wear the ivory satin and lace wedding gown of her grandmother. The gown was first worn in 1865.

The newlyweds are making their home in White Plains, N.Y. where the groom is assistant minister of First Baptist Church.

GILMER-CATLIN

Mr. Herb Catlin, '55, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. took Miss Betty Gilmer as his bride on June 18. The wedding rites were performed in the First Presbyterian Church of Hammond, N.Y. This fall Herb plans to enter the Vanderbilt Seminary while Betty teaches in the Nashville High School.

PINKSTON-VANDENBERG

Miss Erma Pinkston, ex-'58, became the bride of Mr. Donald Vandenberg, '58, of Lac du Flambeau, Wisconsin May 19 in the Washington Street Methodist Church of Eufaula, Alabama. The couple are now living in Maryville while Don is continuing his studies at Maryville College.

SPEAKER-STEWART

Miss Lois Speaker, '55, and Mr. Birch Byron Stewart of Belmar, N. J. pledged nuptial vows at the First Presbyterian Church of Belmar. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stewart did graduate work in chemistry at the University of Tennessee this summer and this year they plan to teach school.

Engagements

TINKLEBERG-BOGIA

Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Tinklenberg of Iowa City, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois, '56, to Mr. Preston Bogia, '56, of Wilmington, Delaware. Wedding plans are indefinite.

Freshmen Learn College Ways

The freshman orientation program is now in full swing, the freshmen being taught the whys and why-nots of college in informal discussion classes.

Faculty and student instructors for these classes have been chosen by the deans of Maryville College and have been selected because of outstanding traits in leadership and personality.

This year on the roster are: Miss Blair, Mary Brasfield, Jim Crawford, Toppy Lee, Miss Cartledge, Jo Brooks, Forrest Amidon, Dr. Case, Marcia Williams, Doug Brian, Miss Miles, Ethelyn Cathey, J.B. Adams, Mr. Howell, Martha Jackson, Sonny Shackelford, Miss Massey, Dolly Berry, Charles Rogers, Mr. Moore, Betts McKenney, Bob Ramger, Mrs. Cummings, Virginia Marshall, Gene Spiekerman, Dr. McClelland, Shirley Peterson, Graeme Sieber, Miss Wilkinson, Ka Leeth, Jim Cummings, Dr. Cooper, Elizabeth Enloe, John Graulich, and Tom Bugenhagen.

Dr. Lloyd Receives Honorary Degrees

Since the Maryville commencement last May Dr. Lloyd has been awarded three honorary doctor's degrees.

During his return from the General Assembly in Los Angeles, Dr. Lloyd was awarded the Doctor of Letters degree at Westminister College in Salt Lake City, Utah. He gave the commencement address there.

June fifth he presented the Baccalaureate address at Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tennessee where he was awarded the Doctor of Humanities degree.

The next day he gave the Commencement address at Blackburn College, Carlinville, Ill., where the honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology was conferred upon him.

Dr. Skinner Leads Chapel

Dr. Robert M. Skinner, of Amarillo, Texas, told a student assembly Thursday to "join hands around the world for Christ—forgetting self and serving God." Dr. Skinner, who was guest minister for the New Life Advance at New Providence Presbyterian Church this past week, spoke on "This Curious Thing Called the Self."

He urged students to discipline themselves in order to enjoy the benefits of Christianity —to forget themselves in order to achieve greatest success in life.

Dr. Skinner is a trustee of Pikeville Junior College in Kentucky, and of the Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico. For the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. he has served on the Board of National Missions and the Commission on Evangelism.

Anonymous Donor Gives $20,000

Paul Watson, manager of the Maryville Coca Cola Bottling Works, has transmitted to the college a gift of $20,000 on behalf of an anoymous donor, President Ralph W. Lloyd has announced.

The gift contribution has been divided equally between the chapel fund and the new women's dormitory fund. Each of these funds, according to Dr. Lloyd, is still in need of considerable sums in order to complete payments on the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel and Theater, which has been in use for the past year, and to make possible the construction of a new women's dormitory.

Vespers Sunday Night

Dr. Horace E. Orr, Professor of Religion and Philosophy, will be the speaker at Vespers Sunday night at 7:00 in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

Beaux and Belles Meet Outdoors In Southern Treat

Other committee heads are: Campus Decorations, Lyn McMillan, Kathy Garrison, and John Mollard; Dorm Decorations, Esther Lorch; Door Favors, Barbara Packard and Nita Ann Baylor; Menus, Janet Whitemore. Jean Dildy and Charles McFarland arranged the dates for the formal.

The chairmen for the Square Dance last night were: Eloise Jordan, Pat Hoover, Jim Crawford, and Charles Rogers.

Emmans Attends Concerts, Plays, During Two-Month Tour In Europe

By Bill Deerfield

Henry Emmans, senior organ major from Succassunna, New Jersey, spent the past summer in touring northern Europe and and the British Isles. Being especially interested in music, he attended concerts by such groups as the Concert Gebouw Orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland, the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, and the Imusici Italian String Group. While in London Mr. Emmans acquired many folios of music, some of which dated back to the early eighteenth century. He spent the final part of his vacation in Edinburgh, where he attended the International Music Festival, held there each year.

Emmans left for his vacation on June 24, traveling by the Scandinavian Airlines System to Stavanger, Norway. He spent six days touring the countryside around Bergen and also visited Oslo, the capital city. Spending a few days in Denmark, he attended several concerts at the Tivoli Pleasure Gardens.

In addition to collecting music in London, he visited such historical shrines as Westminster Abby, St. Paul's, and the Tower of London, where he saw the famous crown jewels. After visiting family friends in Bristol, he passed through Wales to Liverpool, and from there he took a day's trip to Dublin by steamship.

After returning to England, he visited Workington, where his his family's ancestral home, which dates back to 1150, is located. In Stratford-on-Avon he attended a performance of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. Among the many other places of interest he visited was Tintagel in Cornwall, the reputed site of King Arthur's castle.

While Emmans was in Edinburgh attending the International Music Festival, he saw the opening of Thornton Wilder's new play, "A Life in the Sun."

Emmans returned to the states from Prestwick, Scotland, on August 24. Concerning his impression of the British, he says, "The English are likeable and friendly, almost patronizing in some instances. It is a misconception that the English are cold and proper to the extent that Americans can't relax in their presence."

Being interested in architecture, he observed that buildings that we would consider to be fifty years old are more than likely over one hundred years old. He also observed that in England buildings, regardless of size or purpose, are built of stone with very few exceptions.

When asked which of the European countries he enjoyed the most, he replied that Scotland was his favorite, especially Edinburgh, which he found to be a thoroughly delightful city.

The Echo . . . Your Paper

It has been said quite truthfully that The Highland Echo is the only newspaper in the world devoted to the happenings on Maryville College campus. This fact is of course so obvious that is seems hardly worth mentioning, yet it indicates that The Echo is really YOUR paper. Again this year the staff will try to collect and present the news as thoroughly and completely as it can. Other students can also help by expressing their views on campus matters in The Echo Forum. Student interest and participation are what it will take to make The Echo a better and more enjoyable publication. One which you will indeed be glad to call YOURS.

The Presidents Speak . . .

BOB RAMGER:

"I would like to express my deepest thanks to all the Sigs who spent many long hours and much labor in the making of one of the best rush weeks Alpha Sig and Theta have had in a long time. I feel Sig is one of the strongest organizations on campus and we showed it through our close cooperation with one another from the very start. We made a lot of noise now and then, which showed we had spirit, but what I want to know is, 'Who is responsible for all this? Come, come, who is responsible for all this?

"If we can follow a well-planned constructive program this coming year, we should be a credit not only to the name of Alpha Sigma but to the school also. (That was the ending for my rush week formal speech!) We have the boys to do it, so let's not waste so much talent.

"Even though we don't have a television set, we should still try to make an effort to attend every meeting. We will supply each member with a book to read when the meeting ends. Remember this was originally a literary society—especially back when Dr. Lloyd was president of Sig in his senior year at Maryville.

"By the way, we will assemble in the Sig's house of highest men for an important, but likely drawn out business meeting tonight. We will try to organize our facilities for the coming year and find out a way to serve girl scout cookies at every meeting without spending any more money. Special attraction will be the panel discussion on the different ways to use up 90 dozen cookies in two nights.

JIM GARDNER

They call it "Rush Week." The work "week" actually means "two-days" and the word "rush" actually means "Confusion." There seem to be a million little details that at last blend into what we tell you is our Rush Week. If it seems organized, we can't help it.

We enjoy doing all that we do to help show you what our societies represent. We hope that you will be better informed about the nature of our organizations in these opening days.

May I advise you briefly on what I feel you should consider before signing up:

Become a member of the society that can help you as an individual. Become a member of an organization where you can be an individual pledged to support the group. Become a member of the society which has as its ideals, those ideals which you hope to realize as a mature individual.

Be sure to join a Society. Be sure to be active. Be certain of your choice.

Men of Kappa Phi wish you well in your decision.

Greetings, all! And how are we? Hummm? Nevermind—

Have You Seen Herman?

There are more new faces—one in particular, I will dwell upon. His (?) name is Herman. There may be other Hermans on the MC campus, but this Herman is not to be confused with any other. Herman is a squirrel. Herman lives in a tree. In fact, Herman lives in the tree, located at the east end ff Thaw, shading THE BENCH! I know everyone is interested in Herman, and Herman knows it, too, and for you—just for you— Herman has his autobiography posted on said tree. Look him up!

Faculty reception — aha! Memorable night, wouldn't you say? And how many wet, clammy little paws did you shake, my dear sir? Actually there were supposed to have been five hundred and forty-two hands in all, but give or take a few and remembering that just one hand per person was shaken (that is the practice, what?) then say two hundred and seventy-one. Nice square figure, to say the least.

College: A Place
Where We All Study

With the wigwams and squalling indians rapidly giving way to the Southern Belle (not telephones) there has been no end of excitement around this college. But don't despair— it's just organized confusion in mass production. Things will settle down, eventually. Cited is instance number X— taken for granted that there has been some studying going on.

INSTANCE NUMBER X. Time- 8:00-10:00 P.M., Tuesday, September 14th. Place-Library (west end). Instance-Light refuses to come on, logical conclusion -bad light bulb, trip to secure new light bulb, take lamp shade off (oops, a little racket—steady now), proved. Next logical conclusion, please. OK, OK. screw light bulb in, no light, logical conclusion disproved. Next logical conclusion, please. OK. OK. Plug unplugged? Correct. Now that the new light bulb isn't needed, it must be changed. Dispatcher after original—lightbulb, lightbulb, who's got the lightbulb?? (More noise along the way!) Who says there was no studying? Sure there was!!

Have You Gotten Yours Yet?

Anyone see the deluge upon the Personnel Office bulletin board, Tuesday morning? Seems as if everyone waited until the last minute to "tell their friends."

And then there's the one about the gal who appeared in the Student Center in Bermudas . . . and, quote, all sixty-six and a half pair of eyes opened wider, unquote! I could say, more power to her, but there might be frowns—so as my last word, Tsk, Tsk.

Tut, Tut

Concerning Societies . . .

This article is to inform the freshmen of the advisability of joining a society. Although there are no large fraternities or sororities on campus, our societies can certainly be as significant, as interesting and as valuable as are fraternities and sororities on larger college campuses.

Our societies will continue to grow and florish as long as the members of every incoming freshmen class are willing to get behind the societies and put something of themselves into them.

So, freshmen, join a society, put forth something of yourself and you will reap the benefits.

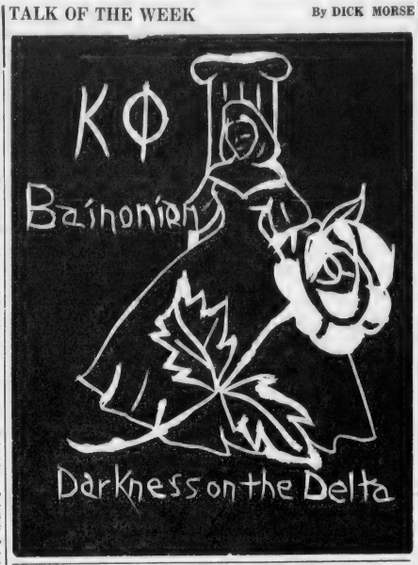
Maryville Merry-Go-Round

Chaucer, in describing one of the characters in his prologue to Canterbury Tales, says,

No-whier so bisy as he ther nas,
And yet he seemed bisier than he was.



--a perfect description of the college student who is always rushing from one thing to another, always appearing busy, and yet really accomplishing very little!

The first two or three weeks of college are full of activities that cry for some of everyone's time. Practicing this show, trying out for that position, attending this function, getting into that organization — these are enough to keep everyone occupied.

The problem for the student, then, lies in choosing the activities which will be of value to him and will tend to round out his college life in a worthwhile way. There is a virtue in staying busy, provided that one has a goal in mind about which to center his activities. When the student knows he has a definite purpose to fulfill in college, he is better equipped to weigh the values various activities hold for him. He is more able (again to borrow a thought from Chaucer) "to garner the grain and let the chaff blow by." By giving a thought to the future, he will save himself from getting into too many activities, useless or otherwise.

Sports Spotlights

Coach Lombe Honaker and close companions pay tribute to Clarence Shepard, who was for four years an outstanding tailback for the Highlander squad and a member of the Little All America squad for two years:

COACH HONAKER WRITES . . . .

"On June 3, 1955 Clarence Shepard was drowned in the back waters of Loudon Lake near Knoxville, only 2 weeks after graduation. This closed the career of one of the greatest athletes turned out by Maryville College during the many years of its participation in intercollegiate athletics.

"Clarence, who was a local boy, entered Maryville College in September 1949 and played football on a team which made better than average record. He then entered armed services of the U. S. and served a period of two years, returning to college in 1952, with two great desires: 1. to be a good football player and athlete - 2. to become a dentist. Both desires required determination and hard work and Clarence won for he was a determined young man.

"Clarence Shepard was one of the greatest runnings backs I have coached at Maryville, in spite of his size. He will long be remembered for his ability to drive off tackle and cut into the open field for long runs. He will long be remembered for his ball carrying against East Tennessee State in the 1953 game, when Maryville scored three touch downs in the final half on running plays with Clarence doing most of the ball carrying. He will long be remembered for his big smile coming up after a hard tackle, and also he will be remembered as a boy who verified the statement of a great coach, a quitter never wins and a winner never quits.

"Yes, Clarence achieved the first of his life's desires — he was a great athlete. The accidental death which prevented the fulfillment of the second desire can never be explained, but in his short span of life he has given to all of us, an example, that, the best of a man is the fight he makes, the grit he daily shares, the way he stands on his feet and takes fate's numerous bumps and blows. A fine young man, a fine athlete and a friend to all has ended his career much too soon and too suddenly."

HIS COMPANIONS JOHN GRAVES, HAROLD JONES, AND GUY SNEED WRITE . . . .

"It is hard to express in words the feeling we have toward a person of Clarence Shepard's caliber. To pay tribute to him is like writing a song about love, in that it has all been said before. But in our humble ways, let us try to capture that intangible something which he possessed that made him Clarence Shepard.

"In writing this tribute one could easily use all the adjectives at his command and still fall short of describing him adequately. The tragic death that cut short his life was a great shock to all who knew him.What Clarence stood for and what he believed in could not be stopped by his death. Of all the people we have ever met we don't believe that there was anyone who got more out of life than he. He could crowd more living into twenty four hours than anyone we have ever known.

"In writing a tribute you have a tendency to leave out the faults of a person and Clarence had a few, which proves that he was human. But when Clarence entered a room the atmosphere seemed to change. He would greet everyone with a smile, a nod, or a slap on the back. Never to my recollection did he shun anyone. To those of you who never knew him personally you might think that his success in sports had gone to his head. This isn't true because he did not play the game for the girls in the stands or for the admiration of the men. He played ball because he loved the game.

May we suggest a test of "Shep's" popularity to those of you who are new here. Ask anyone from the sophomore class on up about Clarence and we are sure that you will find that everyone can tell you something different about him. We think thaat you will find that he will not be remembered for his athletic achievements so much as he will be remembered as a great guy.

"The great men in history who devoted their lives to a cause will be remembered forever. These men believed in freedom, and equality, and will be remembered for their contribution to men until the end of time. Clarence held a combination of this greatness which only his untimely death cut short."

Godfrey, Renfro Are Captains Of This Fall's Highlander Squad

The Scotties this fall will field a team which boasts eighteen returning lettermen. Of these, seventeen are returning from last year's squad and one, Don Alford, is returning after a few years under the tutelage of Uncle Sam.

This year's Highlander squad will be sparked by Captain Ted Godfrey running out of the tackle slot. He will be ably assisted by Jack Renfro, alternate captain, who will play in the quarterback slot.

The lettermen will be backed by the other regulars as well as one of the best looking freshmen prospects in years. All in all there are fifty-six boys out there who look as though they could give most any team a real battle.

Intramurals....

By Harold O'Bannon

In the first game of the season the Rebels defeated the Pre-Mins by a score of 14 to 0. Pat Flynn and Jim Gregory scored the touchdowns. Bill Wallace and Jim Gregory were credited with the extra points. On Thursday the Alpha Sig Hammers dumped Kappa Phi 13 to 9. Mert Hall and Charlie Partee scored the touchdowns for Sig. Bob Ramger pushed across the extra point.

The next three games were ties with Pre-Min and the Warriors tying 0 to 0, and also Kappa Phi and the Warriors staying in the same column with a 0 to 0 tie. Wednesday the scoring was a little different with the Pre-Min downing the Y's Guys 8 to 0. Jack Woodhull scored the only touchdown on a pass play. A safety by the Pre-Mins finished the scoring.

About the Swimming Pool

The Maryville College swimming schedule for this semester is as follows:

Monday	4:30-5:00
Faculty swim	5:00-5:30
Tuesday	4:00-5:00
Wednesday	4:00-5:00
Faculty swim	5:00-5:30
Thursday	4:00-5:30
Friday	3:30-5:30
Saturday	2:00-5:00

Swimmers are requested to obey all posted rules. In addition to regular swimming courses there will be three advanced courses given. Senior Life Saving—October 10 thru 21st; Pre-Instructor's course—February 13 thru the 24th; and the Instructor's course—March 12 thru 16th.

Thinclads Team Seeks Good Record

Since September 1, Coach Johnson's thinclads have been loping around our four-mile course each afternoon, determined to make an improvement over last year's dismal 1-5 record. On last season's team there were but four lettermen. Of these only Don Vandenberg is returning, while three other holdovers, Bill Potter, Bob Finertie, and Bruce Ingles, lend experience to this year's "green" 'squad. Ex-sailor Joe Williams and sophomore Charlie Garrison have looked especially promising in preliminary workouts. A number of freshmen are working out with the team. Any other prospective harriers should contact Coach Johnson for uniform and instructions.

With the possibility of closing the season at an Invitational meet, the schedule is:

Oct. 7—Davidson	There
Oct. 14—Tusculum	There
Oct. 21—Berea	Here
Oct. 28—Sewanee	There
Nov. 4—Open
Nov. 11—Sewanee	Here

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Carolyn Cones

"The time has come, the walrus said, to speak of many things—of shoes and ships and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings."

Now that these halls of ivy are again teeming with all the earnest searchers of knowledge, there are indeed many things to talk of. Topics range from the premature death of some of the campus shrubbery to the latest movie. Speaking of movies—here are the offerings of the local cinema houses:

Today the Park will feature its usual Saturday western. Rounding out the rest of the week will be "Paris Express" on Monday, "Blonde Savage" and "Cave Man," playing on Tuesday and Wednesday, and "Confidence Girl" on Thursday and Friday.

The Capitol's bid for today is 'Relentless," a western starring Robert Young and Marguerite Chaparan. On Monday and Tuesday the feature picture will be "Phfft" with Judy Holiday, Jack Carson, Jack Lemmon, and Kim Novak.

Watch For Artist Series

While movies make for good entertainment, they can't substitute for a live performance; and that is just what Maryville College brings to the campus with the four Artist Series concerts. The year's program will feature some diversified and truly outstanding entertainment— Igor Gorin, baritone; the Zurich Little Symphony; Melvyn Douglas and his wife, Helen Gahagan Douglas; and Ean Roma, pianiet. The sale of season tickets will begin shortly, so watch for it.

In the meantime you might like to go over to the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center and see the current exhibit. These water colors from the Brooklyn Society of Artists will be on display through the month of September and may be seen daily except Sunday from 8:30 to 5:20. Some of the artists included in the group are Rita Leff, Greta Matson, and Helen Gerardia.

Books, Books

If reading is your passion, you might examine the library bulletin board that displays covers of some of the new books. Included in the group are "Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A." by Frank Stoddard Aldrich; "Grandfather Stories" by Samuel Hopkins Adams, an account of life in upstate New York during the 1880's; "Gift of the Sea" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

One that promises to provide a bit of spice ot your spare moments is Stephen Polter's "One-upmanship," which is "some account of the activities and teaching of the lifemanship correspondence college of one-upness and gamelifemastery." Another book, "The Searchers" by Alan Le May, was included in the current issue of the "Reader's Digest Condensed Books." This novel tells of the long and exciting search for a little girl who was carried off by the Indians.

If pictures fascinate you, you ought to enjoy "Sidewalks of America," which is edited by B. A. Bolkin. Of course, a number of new novels have been added to the library—"The Scotswoman" by Inglis Fletcher, "The Escape of Socrates" by Robert Pick, "The Fields of Home" by Ralph Moody, to name just a few.

Incidentally, this ought to be a good year for all theater-goers; the major plays that will be presented will be "The Taming of the Shrew," "Beyond the Horizon,' 'and "The Importance of being Earnest."

It Doesn't Cost to Auvertise —It Pays!

Faculty Members Further Their Studies

Miss Frances Massey, Dean of Women, received a master of science degree with a major in Education and Administration at the University of Tennessee this last August. Miss Massey was on Sabbatical leave from January until July doing graduate work at the University. Miss Massey took her undergraduate degree at Maryville College.

Miss Anna C. McMillan, instructor in music, received the master of music degree at Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York, in August. Miss McMillan graduated from Georgia State College for Women and did graduate work at Eastman before coming to Maryville and during the summers since coming.

Leaves of Absence

Harry H. Harter, assistant professor of music, will be away through the year doing graduate work toward a doctor's degree in the School of Sacred Music of Union Theological Seminary in New York. He will resume teaching at Maryville next September.

Mrs. Harry H. Harter, who was a part time instructor in home economics, will be on leave also. She is serving at present in the offices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in New York City.

Ingeborg Rodemann, instructor in German and Education, will be doing graduate work at the University of Illinois through the year.

Playhouse to Meet,

The three major productions of the year will be: Taming of the Shrew by Shakespeare, in November; Beyond the Horizons by Eugne O'Neill, in March; and The Importance of Being Earnest, by Oscar Wilde, the commencement play in May.

The Experimental Theater, a division of Playhouse, will present shorter plays, and provides an opportunity for students to gain theater experience before beginning work on a major production.

MC Has Eleven Additions To Faculty

The new faces on campus do not all belong to students. Our faculty has several new additions, among them are these:

An assistant professor of physics, Ernest C. Ash, Jr., who comes from the faculty of Tarkio College. He has a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Alabama, and from the University of Washington a master of science degree.

An assistant in the library, Ortha Lee Burris, whose training was at Tusculum College, from which she is a graduate, and at East Tennessee State College. She comes from Rabun Gap Naccochee School in Georgia, where she was a librarian and also a teacher.

Mrs. Fred D. DeLozier a graduate Maryville College and a resident of Maryville will serve as part time instructor in home economics during Mrs. Harry Harter's absence. Mrs. DeLozier is a former full-time member of the faculty.

From Waco, Texas, comes John G. Griffin, an instructor in speech and drama. Mr. Griffin holds a bachelor of arts degree in speech from Louisiana Polytchnic Institute and a master of arts degree from Baylor University in Texas. He has served as assistant in drama and speech both at Baylor University and at Louisiana Tech, and has also served on the staff of the Texas Employment Commission as an interviewer and counselor.

John Hutton, Jr., comes to Maryville from the faculty of Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va. Mr. Hutton is an instructor in music and director of the vesper choir. He holds the bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, Maryland.

Robert A. Lynn, a graduate of Maryville College, who has just completed his work for a master's degree at the University of Tennessee, is an instructor in business administration and economics.

Mrs. Robert A. Lynn (Naomi Burgos of the Class of 1954) is serving as an assistant in the Public Relations and Fine Arts Division offices.

Mrs. Otto Pflanze, of Maryville, is a part time instructor in German. Mrs. Pflanze is a graduate of Wooster College, Ohio. She also has an extensive background acquaintance with the German language.

From Cleveland, Ohio, comes Victor R. Schoen, as an instructoror in music theroy and piano. Mr. Schoen holds a bachelor of arts degree from Miami University, Ohio, and a master's degree from the University of Indiana. Included in his studies at other institutions, is the Mozart Academy, in Salzburg, Austria.

Mrs. Victor R. Schoen, instructor in piano. She has a bachelor of music degree from Oberlin Conservatory, and master's degree from Indiana University, and also studied in Salzburg.

Marion B. Tolar, associate professor of mathematics. Mr. Tolar holds a bachelor of arts and a master of arts degree from Wake Forest College, North Carolina, and a master of arts degree from the University of Kentucky. He comes to Maryville from the faculty of Fenn College, Cleveland, Ohio.

Yes, He's Been Traveling Again

By Don Adams

If the AP had followed Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd this summer, its news release would have spanned half the world in three-months' time and would have datelined through Switzerland, France, England and our west coast.

On Commencement Day last May, Dr. Lloyd departed just ahead of the senior class on his way to Los Angeles and the opening of the 167th Session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. As retiring moderator of the General Assembly, Dr. Lloyd turned his gavel over to the new moderator and shortly thereafter winged his way eastward.

Wednesday, July 13th, the college president traveled for New York and Switzerland on the way to two important church conferences. On the way to a four-day meeting of the Executive Committee of the World Presbyterian Alliance at Cret-Berard, Switzerland, he stopped in Paris on July 17th. That Sunday morning, he was guest preacher at the American Church in Paris.

Over the gleaming Alps to Zurich—then Cret-Berard until the 21st of July—a few days of needed relaxation— then ready for the world meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches at Davos-Platz. . . this is a sample of Dr. Lloyd's schedule.

Upon completion of the conferences, Dr. Lloyd left Zurich, Switzerland August 9, flying KLM to Amsterdam, then Pan American to Idlewild, New York. He arrived at Maryville and home Wednesday, August 10.

Christian Ed Major Offered

Upon recommendation by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, the Council on Theological Education, and Presbyterian College Union, Maryville is offering a new major.

Since churches urgently need Directors or Assistants in Christian Education and professional schools cannot meet the quota set before them, a course in Christian Education has been arranged for liberal arts colleges.

In the past, churches have been forced to accept college graduates who have not had substantial training in this field. It is hoped that those persons who do not wish to continue their training in professional schools for graduate degrees will prepare themselves for this Christian service field through the Christian Education major now offered at Maryville.

The Four Societies Pledge New Members

Initiation Days End Tonight

There was a big turnover in the results of balloting for the societies this year. The number of new students casting ballots was in low proportion to the number of new students enrolled in school. Nevertheless, this is the outcome, arranged according to the societies. The societies wish their new members well in their decisions.

Enrollment Reaches 713

According to enrollment figures, there is a total of 713 students attending classes at Maryville College this semester. Of this total 112 are seniors, 139 are juniors, 194 are sophomores, 264 are freshmen, and there are 4 part time students.

The enrollment this fall tops that of last year by 52. There are 16 more seniors, 19 more juniors, 2 more sophomores and 14 more freshmen than last year. There is also one more part-time student than last year.

MC Marching Band Is Ready for Action

This season after many tryouts the band has a complement of fifty-two members, five substitutes and two permanent bagpipers. This represents an increase over last year's membership. The girl pipers will be Sandy McNeal and Mary Clover, both freshmen.

The first half-time show at next Saturday's football game will be in honor of the students returning to Maryville. A record turn-out of spectators is expected.

French Club Is Seeking New Members

By Ira Jo Davis

"Parlez-vous Francais?" Then attention: there will be a representative visiting each of the French classes this week wanting to find those interested in belonging to the French Club. In the past years only upper classmen have been eligible for membership. This year the club is raising its membership to forty members in order to take in some freshmen. The ones that have had French in high school will be considered first. The old members elect the new members each year.

The club will meet every first and third Thursday in the month. It will have varied programs. At the next meeting the club will elect new members for this year, having room for ten new members.

Glee Club Announces New Members

Tryouts for the Glee Club were held Monday, September 12, by Mr. Kinsinger, director, in the Fine Arts Center.

The Girl's Choir is now full with 50 members. There are still openings in the Men's Glee Club for tenors and anyone interested should see Mr. Kinsinger. There is a possibility of an opening or two in the Girl's Choir for next semester for those who couldn't join this time.

The following people are to be the new members of the Girl's Choir for the 1955-56 year: first soprano— Liz Bixler, Peggy Davis, Carol Griffitts, Joyce Hierhager, Nancy McGeorge, Emily Trotter, and Ruth Wilson; second soprano— Barbara Blackburn, Anne Castrodale, Barbara Coates, Ira Jo Davis, Joann De Groot, Barbara Felts, Jane Mitchell, Georgene Rohlander, Ruth Terhune, Betsy Watson, and Wendy Wood; first alto— Betty Brown, Marjorie Hunter, Arlene Jones, Hillis McKamey, Sandy MacNeill, Lydia Munson, Millie Volbeda and Nancy Campbell; second alto—Pat Fahl, Cynthia Golding, Linda Hayes, Alice McCombe, Janet Rath, Mary Guerin and Joann Antes.

The new additions to the Men's Glee Club will be Hugh Davis, Bob Kayser, Tom Evans, Robert Wyman, Claude Smith, Joe Williams, Charles Stanbery, Herman Dykes, Dick Dows, Paul Bergmueller, Jim Calquhoun, Mitchell Van Metre, Dave Pierce, Stan Timblin, Bob Moses, and Clark Hayes.

The Girl's Choir gives college credit for participation, while the Men's Glee Club does not.

Student Council Studies NSGA, Civil Defense

Sportsmanship Pact Is Again Publicized

By Ted McDaniels

Wed., Sept. 21—Since there were no outstanding issues—and no old business to be brought before the council, the meeting began with the discussion on Freshman elections. The freshmen met last Thursday with the purpose to either nominate their officers from the floor or to appoint a nominating committee to present a slate to them at their next class meeting which will be Thursday, Sept. 29. The Freshmen Class will have their final vote Friday, Sept. 30.

Civil Defense, a program carry-over from last year, was brought up and Shackelford stated that he had been thinking of this and had asked Dick Jensen, a member of the committee last year, to look into the matter and make some definite recommendations before the council in the near future. The Council voted to approve this step and to send a recommendation of this to the Student-Faculty Senate Friday, September 25.

Nancy Jones gave a report on National Student Government Association. After a discussion and a reviewing of last year's Council's recommendations on the subject it was decided that

In observance of Citizenship Day Mr. Ainsworth of the Political Science Department led chapel service Saturday, September 17. Since the week of September 17 to 23 was Constitution Week, the library featured a patriotic exhibit.

Student Vols To Have Fall Retreat

The Rev. Scott McClure of the North Hills Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, will be the guest of the Maryville College Student Volunteers Organization at its new fall retreat. Leaving from Bartlett Hall this afternoon at 2:15, the group will hike to Peck's Memorial Church, which will serve as the site of the retreat.

The afternoon's activities will begin with a brief but challenging address by the Rev. McClure on the theme, "Christ to the world through me," which is also this year's Vols motto. The address will be designed to stimulate ideas to be brought out in discussion groups that will be lead by Dr. Hunter, Mrs. Cummings, and Mr. and Mrs. Fisher. Each group will discuss one aspect of the theme—the why, where, and how of bringing Christ to the world.

After having aired their ideas individually, the groups will unite and share their thoughts and discoveries and will then adjourn for supper which will be prepared and served by Miss Wilkinson's Sunday School class. Supper will be followed by a hymn sing.

The retreat will end with an inspirational address by the Rev. McClure and a consecration service.

Dr. Proffitt Speaks

Dr. Proffitt, a prominent Maryville surgeon, was the guest speaker at the first meeting of the Pre-Med club held on September 16 in 204 Fayerweather Hall.

In his talk to the members and guests of the club Dr. Proffitt discussed the qualifications and requirements for the MD degree and gave practical advice to students planning to enter medical college. He related many of his own experiences as a student to illustrate some of the difficulties which medical students are likely to encounter.

Dr. Proffitt did his pre-medical work at Maryville and received his MD from Vanderbilt University in Nashville; he then did extensive studies in general surgery.

Pre-Med club membership is open to all students interested in medical science. Its membership is not limited to pre-medical students only but also to those interested in other fields of medical science such as nursing, medical technology, and dentistry.

News concerning the club and its activities may be found on the bulletin board on the first floor of Fayerweather Hall.

Playhouse Meets Plans for Future

On Monday evening, September 19, the first meeting of the 1955-1956 playhouse was held. President Marcia Williams, assisted by Miss Craven, the director of the playhouse and head of the drama department, and Mr. Griffin, the technical assistant, explained the organization's functions and plans for the future. The only requirement for membership in the playhouse is a willingness to participate in any phase of theater work. The playhouse is an open organization, and new members will be accepted at any time.

This year the playhouse will present three major productions: "Taming of the Shrew" by Shakespeare, in November; "Beyond the Horizons" by Eugene O'Neill, in March; and "The Importance of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde as the commencement play.

Any student is eligible to try out for these plays whether he is a Playhouse member or not. Many people especially will be needed to work backstage on properties, costumes, lighting, carpentry, painting, etc.

There is a branch of playhouse known as the experimental theater. Its function is to experiment with different kinds and types of plays. This year there will be four productions. They will include: a very early comedy, a group of short melodramas and a play or plays for children. In these plays, which are also open to the whole student body, there will be a great need for people to work not only on the stage but behind the scenes.

Theta to Have Initiation

Theta Epsilon will hold its formal initiation tonight at 6:15 in the Y Rooms. New members will be welcomed into the society at this time.

Dormitories Elect Officers

The house chairmen of the women's dormitories announce the newly elected officers and WSGA representatives for the fall semester. They are as follows:

Baldwin: June Keeney, vice-chairman; Amelia Maples, secretary; Paula Kronenberg, treasurer; Ann Wiley, fire captain; and Hillis McKamey, WSGA representative.

Memorial: Betty Zimmerman, vice-chairman; Jane Bradfield, secretary-treasurer; Corita Erwin, fire captain; and Lydia Munson, WSGA representative.

Pearsons: Margallen Hanna, vice-chairman; Martha Brogden, secretary-treasurer; Pat Hoover, fire captain; and Izzy Easley and Ann Kelton, WSGA representatives.

The house chairmen, Carol Williams, Willa Duvall and Liz Enloe of Baldwin, Memorial and Pearsons, respectively, were elected near the close of the spring semester.

Large Group Turns Out For Debate

"Resolved: That the non-agricultural industries of the United States should guarantee their employees an annual wage" is the year's Pi Kappa Delta question for debate.

A large class of nine freshmen, five sophomores, five juniors and three seniors is doing research on and analysis of this year's proposition with Miss Arda Walker as advisor.

Returning debaters of last year's squad are: Jo Brooks, Margallen Hanna, Lavinia Lee, Graeme Sieber and Tom Paton. New debaters are: Joanne Causey, Marveyne Rise, Linda Walker, George Brown, Robert Vogel, Libby Turner, Wendy Wood, Keith Ham, Sandy Dorsett, Janet Smith, Mary Clover, Margaret Patterson, Nancy Wilson, Eleanor Koster, Corita Erwin, Robert Goodlin, and Carrie Freemantle.

This class meets at 2:30 every Tuesday in Miss Walker's class room.

Edris to Speak at Vespers

The Reverend Paul Edris, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Daytona Beach, Florida, will be the Vespers speaker tomorrow night.

Highlanders Go To Jacksonville

By Bob Evans

Tonight the Scotties will encounter the Jacksonville Gamecocks in Jacksonville, Florida. The Highlanders will be fighting to avenge the 14-0 defeat suffered at the hands of the Gamecocks last year.

Tonight's game will be the opening game of the season for the Highlanders. The Gamecocks, on the other hand, have high hopes of making it two in a row after trouncing Chattanooga 12-0 last week. However, when Jacksonville runs into M.C. tonight, they will find them to be as hard-fighting and determined as any team Coach Honaker has yet fielded.

A POWERFUL LINE

Maryville boasts a strong line which should be able to spring the Scottie backs free for long sprints. At left end will be Chuck Dunn, assisted by Marvin Boring and Ted Wilson. The left tackle slot will be filled by Captain Ted Godfrey. Ted will be aided by tackler Bob Clemens and LeRoy "Squire" Gooden. Roy Hayes will be first string left guard backed by John Anderson and several promising freshmen.

CENTER SHOT

The center of the line will be filled by Bob Bivens. The reserves in this position include Jack McCarter and Chuck Wagner.

RIGHT SIDE

Don Moore will start at right end tonight with help from Jim Saunders if necessary. The right tackle slot will be filled by Bill "Ape" Strickland. The reservists at this spot include John Hawkins and Tom "Sonny" Axley. Bill Wheatley will be first choice for right guard, assisted by Bob Hutsell.

CARRYING THE BACON

Our top tailback is Jim McCall who is also the Scotties' number one punter and passer. Jim will be assisted by Gordan Sparks and Lynn Sexton.

Earl Smith, the only freshman in the starting line-up will be aided by Gene Cross and Ernie Raulerson in his duties as wingback.

Alternate Captain Jack "Crow" Renfro leads the candidates for blocking back. He will receive assistance from Buddy Gilbert and Don Alford.

The backfield is rounded out by Buddy White. The leading fullback of the squad, Bud will be backed by several promising underclassmen.

Students Enjoy Laurel Lake Picnic

By Joanne Causey

Laurel Lake was the scene of the annual picnic sponsored by New Providence Presbyterian Church for the college students. A large number were present to enjoy the beautiful scenery, excellent food, square dancing and singing.

Groups leaving Maryville at 3:30 had an opportunity to participate in softball games and to hike, while those who preferred to study up to the last minute and depart with a book under each arm at 5:30 had only a short while before the dinner bell rang to admire the mountain setting.

Although the lake water was a little cold, several hardy souls ventured in for a refreshing dip. That mountain water looked so good to Mary Ellen and she was so eager to get in it, that she dove right in from the moving car. This daring lass amazed everyone with her aquatic prowness by swimming around the lake sixty times. She was still going around when the picnic ended and everyone headed back to the college. People are predicting that Mary will break Florence Chadwick's record if she can ever be persuaded to leave Laurel Lake.

That wonderful food drew forth numerous approving comments. Several Yankees said they loved those round things but didn't know what they were. Well, honey chile, those were Southern hushpuppies.

After supper, the square dancing got under way. People are still talking about Bob's crazy mixed up dosie doe. There were other attractions, too. That raccoon had Jane completely fascinated, while lemonade appealed to Dick.

The latter part of the evening consisted of singing around the campfire led by Liz Murphy, a very scientfic lecture on medicine men by Mr. Edwin Best, and a devotional under the direction of Margallen Hanna, Ethelyn Cathey, Jim Gardner, and Marcia Williams.

As the fire flickered low and the group formed a friendship circle, Liz Murphy's lovely rendition of "I Lay Me Down" faded away in the distance and brought the day to a perfect close.

All of those attending wish to thank Mr. Elliott, Dr. Pritchard, and the many others who did so much to make such a wonderful evening possible.

Picnickers Find Yellow Jackets As Well As Food In Cade's Cove

By Betty Ann Springstead

One of the several picnics enjoyed by Maryville College students on Tuesday was the Highland Presbyterian Sunday School picnic, held at Cades Cove.

It was rather a stinging experience for those brave souls who chose to hike a path which led them straight to a yellow jackets' nest. Miss Dee Woods was "elected" president of the "I Been Stung" club, being the hardest hit by the episode, but Miss Virginia Kates also had one yellow jacket on a very prominent place, which had to be smacked (the yellow jacket, of course). This happening did not seem to affet anyone's appetite, though, as several people were noted going back for 'fifths'.

Songs, Tales

After supper, singing around the campfire was lead by Liz Frei. Bob Ramger (after finally being located) narrated an old literary classic. Dr. Douglas Elwood, minister of Highland Church, welcomed everyone on behalf of the church and also pronounced the benediction.

Southern Synods' Planning Group To Meet In FAC

The campus of Maryville College will be the scene of a meeting of the Regional Committee for the Summer School of the South next Wednesday, September 28. Representatives from each of the synods of the South in the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., convene in the Fine Arts Center at 10 a.m. and at noon will eat lunch in our dining hall. They will make plans for the leadership-school session which meets annually in June.

Bainonian Plans Initiation

The formal initiation of all new Bainonian members will take place in the ampitheatre of the Fine Arts Center Saturday evening at 6:30. Black skirts and white blouses will be in order.

Entered as a second-class matter at the Post Office at Maryville, Tennessee, under the Act of Congress of March 8, 1870.

Does It Matter?

Policy . . . policy. "It has been the policy of this paper in the past . . . " and et cetra. You know all that. Maybe that's one of the reasons why, if you've been like most of the rest of us, you haven't given an et cetra about the paper, or about anything that was printed in it — such as — editorials.

Well, we could run a screaming banner saying "This is YOUR paper," run it in big red letters, if we could afford it, and we'd probably still be screaming for something interesting for you, for you to read in YOUR paper, before the end of the week. So we'll tell you who appeared in prayer meeting and at what time on Friday evening the Root-tooters will meet et al. And you will accept the paper almost grudgingly and glance to see who wrote Scots and Sodas and if it is by-lined by anyone you know, then the campus crew will have paper enough to keep them busy enough until the next issue.

Do you want to do something about it? Does it matter to you that you will have walked the campus of Maryville College for four years without having contributed even a line to its history? Some folks would like to be able to change a few things with the same rapidity that things are changed FOR them. Would you? Do you have anything on your mind? If not — forget it.

This week the Echo Forum, YOUR forum, is carrying the only comments which were turned in this week. You might read them . . . see what you think. Sure - - - it's all been said before by a few malajects. BUT . . . How would YOU have said it?

—J. H.

Let's Enlarge Our Circle...

If letters from home and occasional reading of the newspapers in the library seem to form the extent of your contact with the "outside world," perhaps you should think about widening your horizons a bit.

There is often a tendency for Maryville College students to become isolated from the Maryville community as a whole. The campus seems to form an almost self-sufficient community of its own. Trips to the grill and up town to shop or see a movie may be the only outside activities a student indulges in during the week. He actually sees very little of the community this way.

Probably the best means of becoming acquainted with the people of Maryville is through the churches. They are generally quite interested in college students and offer a variety of things to do. The church picnics in the mountains this past week represent one of the activities especially planned for students. Indeed, the churches of Maryville are to be commended for their active student program.

Another way for the student to gain contact with the community is through work in the parish program and the service committees of the YMCA and YWCA. Many students take advantage of these opportunities every year with satisfying results. They learn interesting facts about the Maryville community and achieve a true sense of service as well.

A third way of getting acquainted with townspeople lies closer at hand. There is always a large number of Blount County students on campus. Since quite a few of the activities are mainly the concern of students living in the dormitories, the town students may feel that they aren't as much a part of campus life as they could be. There should really be no noticeable division between town and dormitory students. Both groups make up the student body and should strive to work together as a unit.

We as students can do a lot about widening our horizons when we realize that Maryville College is only a small part of the larger community of Maryville. The gates of the campus should not be considered as boundaries limiting our experiences and friendships to a small area. Our circle of acquaintances should extend beyond these gates.

Scots & Soda

by Carolyn Cones

If you like movies, this just might be your week. Today the two local theaters are featuring — oh dear, wrong column! Let's start again.

Did you know that in a recently conducted student survey, neither one of the persons asked could correctly answer these three very simple questions: Where is Herndon, Virginia? Who is Mert, the Squirt? Who wrote "The Saga of the Girl Who Practiced the Drums and Let Her Trombone Slide?"

What is our modern educational system coming to? Must people be satisfied with just a little bit of knowledge when there are so many facts that are itching for someone to absorb them? It needn't be so; in fact, The Echo has graciously decided to devote this week's column to the furtherance of knowledge of vital and universal interest. You think you're learning enough this semester from classes? You think you can't get anything more in that cranium of yours? Then read on, and learn how truly simple it is to be educated.

GEOGRAPHY LESSON

You really can't be classified as a learned person without a knowledge of the country in which you are living, so let's work on that for awhile. Chicago, of course, is the home of the famous loop. This loop is rather long and therefore is a regular tourist haven for all enthusiastic but foot-sore hikers. It claims the record of having been traveled by more people with blistered feet than any other road within a radius of 1.491 miles.

New York City is rather special because it covers quite a bit of territory — even more than Chicago's loop. It is the site of the reknowned Stork Club, which has been dubbed by students of the surrounding institutions of higher learning as "the student center." Here the hard-working scholars gather during their extremely rare free minutes to imbide strong soft drink, eat dainty pastries, and knock small balls across a long table (probably to get the waitress' attention).

New York City is also famous for the Brooklyn Dodgers, which has often been called the Maryville College team of the North. Another interesting feature of this great city is Broadway, which borrows heavily from a certain Presbyterian college in Tennessee for its talent. One of the most popular plays of the season, incidentally, is an original by Jim Hopkins.

Washington, D. C., is known for its hot, humid weather that lasts all too long for its long-suffering citizens. It is rumored that the hot air all comes from Capitol Hill, but this is not so. It really comes from the excess energy of all the freshmen who attend the local brain factories.

WHO'S WHO IN HISTORY

Of course, as a well-educated person, you should know the names of important people as well as important places. For your convenience, here are a few, a very few, of the more prominent members of our college family. (After all, something must fill this space.)

Corita Edwin is the fire captain of Memorial. Contrary to popular belief, she does not accept bribes from the boys in Carnegie to stage fire drills at their convenience.

Barbara Wilkie is editor of The Echo. She is the one who can take the blame for all this nonsense, since she made the assignment.

Another budding writer ought to be named, too. It is rumored that one S. James, when he isn't displaying his tennis ability for the benefit of the girls of Memorial, is writing a revised version of The Memoirs of Casanova. Well!

Echo Forum

An open Letter to Band Supporters

Next Saturday you will see the Maryville band in action. It has colorful kilts, a fine leader and a most enthusiastic bunch of band members. Drills are being held, and two bagpipers and a charming sponsor have been chosen. But this in itself is not enough to make a real band. It must have the undivided loyalty of the school behind it to make it feel its proudest and to do a top-notch job. For the past few years the band has tried to do its job and has done a very good one conisdering the jeers from the sidelines.

The band, it is true, must begin to take itself more seriously but it is also true that no freshman is going to enjoy being in the band just to be laughed at for trying to do his or her job There would be a big gap in the life and tradition of Maryville College if there were no band. That is the real reason why the band should be both improved and encouraged. So when you next see the band, show your appreciation for fifty-two people who are doing their best to give the college some wholesome publicity.

A Band Member

By a Freshman

Rush weeks are over here at Scottie Hill, and the hustling and bustling activity has slowed to a more sedate pace. We freshmen will all declare though, that we loved every hectic minute of the four busy days. We liked the Indians whooping at us from behind every tree, and we enjoyed the brief period of the old South, with its gracious hospitality. Now that we've joined one of the societies, we hope to be able to make next year's frosh feel just as welcome!

As freshmen, we like the friendliness of Maryville college. We like the dorms and meals and the campus, and we like Herman. We like the Christian atmosphere of the whole school, and we like "Y", and all the other student organizations. But most of all we like the rest of the kids and the teachers, who are never too busy to stop and help us with our problems. And though we do wait impatiently twice a day for mail from home, we love Maryville!

An Open Letter to New students:

Now that we are settled firmly in the seat of knowledge and are anticipating another successful semester at M. C., it is time to explain to you the facts of life—as carried on at M. C.

This institution requires the whole-hearted cooperation of its students in policies of discipline. These policies have been in effect for many, many years and are as rich in tradition as Anderson Hall itself.

You may have noticed the newer buildings on campus—beautiful aren't they? This form of architecture is called progressive and is very popular among the thinkers of our time. It seems to this writer that some of the ivy-colored concepts of th social side of life at M.C. could be altered to keep our social life on the same high plane as are our other aspects of life.

You will find many of the rules strange at first. Nonetheless, they all have a purpose. Sometimes the purpose of these rules is a bit obscure, but we have been assured that there is a purpose behind every rule—and behind every tree.

Respectfully,
Anthony T. Clark.

A certain psychology professor remarked to a class taking a quiz in rather cramped quarters, "try not to see more than two or three papers beside your own."

TALK OF THE WEEK Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Janet Whitmore

Well, now that you upper classmen are resting up from the effects of the Rush Weeks and you freshmen from the effects of being rushed, perhaps y'all would be interested in some of the less strenuous, less demanding activities offered on campus and in town.

Tonight one of the inevitable westerns is shooting it out on the Park movie screen in town. It is "Hell Town" starring John Wayne. Next week's movie schedule at the Park was unobtainable.

Today through Wednesday the Capitol is offering "The Lady and The Tramp," Walt Disney's cartoon feature . Also showing those nights will be Disney's movie "Switzerland," a film of the people, customs and the scenes of Switzerland.

If you haven't been down to the Fine Arts Center to study and pass your opinions on the water colors at the art exhibit, I suggest you take a stroll there. The exhibit is from the Brooklyn Society of Artists. This is the last week it will be on display.

UT Concert Series

Of course you are all saving your student-help pennies for the Maryville College Artist series: This promises to be a very interesting selection of programs. If you have any of those pennies left over, remember that U. T. offers a series of concerts. The prices are $6, $8, $10, and $12 for a season's ticket. The programs this year are: Wagner Opera, Ballet Espangnole, Myra Hess (pianist), Ballet Russe, George London (bass-baritone), Philadelphia Orchestra.

In accordance with Constitution Week the library has devoted its show case and one of its bulletin boards to information pertaining to the American constitution and the events related to its formation.

Like To Read?

Many new books have been added to the library shelves since last May. "Blizzard" by Phil Strong certainly has a tempting setting for these hot days. An entertaining novel, it deals with several "guests" driven into a house by the storm. The people—a Korean vet, state senator, newspaper man and others—invite many interesting, amusing situations. Another book, "Run Silent, Run Deep" by Commander Edward L. Beach, USN is a World War II story. Dealing with war from the perspective of command. Through his main character, Commander Richardson, Beach shows "the anguish, agony and triumphs of command decisions."

"The Cradle of the Penitentiary" by Negley K. Teeters of Temple University is another new book. This is the account of America's first penitentiary, The Walnut Street Jail in Philadelphia. It was designated a penitentiary by the law of 1790 after it had served as a common jail from 1773. It was here that a regime of progressive prison administration was introduced.

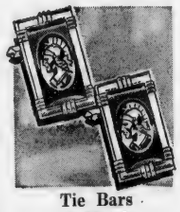
Cooper Elected Moderator

Vernon Cooper, a sophomore at Maryville College, was elected moderator of the Westminster Fellowship of the Synod of Mid-South at its meeting here on campus earlier in the summer. Miss Barbara Ann Felts, Greeneville, Tennessee, who has entered Maryville this year as a freshman home economics major, was elected secretary.

Cooper also attended the Westminster Fellowship National Council of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., which met in Jacksonville, Illinois in June.

A biology major, Cooper is from Rockwood, Tennessee, and is a member of the vesper choir and Alpha Sigma society.

Spanish Club Meets, Elects New Officers



Newly elected officers of the Spanish club are president, Ann Murray, sophomore from Loudon, Tennessee; vice-president and program chairman, Don Hughes, junior from New Brunswick, N. J.; secretary, Hazel Engle, sophomore from Bloomingsburg, Ohio; and treasurer, Gretchen Hill, sophomore from Defiance, Ohio.

At the first club meeting last week, to which all new students interested in Spanish were invited, the program consisted of Spanish songs and games.

Honaker's 35th Season

Coach Lombe S. Honaker, second oldest coach in the nation in the point of continuous service, opens his 35th season tonight when the Scotties clash with the Jacksonville Gamecocks.

This year the Honakermen have high hopes of ending the season with an even better record than last season when they defeated Hiwassee, Centre, Howard and Concord State. Also, they tied Emory and Henry and Carson-Newman and lost to Jacksonville, East Tennessee State and Newbury.

Looking Over the Team

The 1955 Highlander squad boasts a backfield average of 167 pounds, which is identical to the backfield average of last year's starting team. Tonight the M. C. line, averaging 201 pounds, will have a slight edge of two pounds over the Scottie line of last season. The squad also has many line reserves who are as heavy as, if not heavier than the regulars.

Injuries Plague Team

Although the regular season has not as yet begun, the team has suffered several injuries. Jim McCall lost the tip of a finger in an accident off the playing field. However, Jim has said that he should be in shape to play in tonight's game.

Bob Clemens is suffering from a dislocated shoulder but should be back in the line-up very shortly.

Bob DeLozier, the first-string wingback, is also on the injured list. Consequently, Earl Smith, a freshman from Everett High, will probably start at this position. Let's hope that the Scotties have had their quota of injuries for the year.

Rebels Outnumber Yankees

It is interesting to note that of the 51 members of this year's squad 48 are "rebels" and three are "yankees." The starting line-up consists of seven Blount Countians (four from Maryville, two from Alcoa and one Townsendite), three Floridians and one Loudon Countian.

Weak Spot

In this writer's opinion, the weakest spot in this year's Highlander squad at the present time is the wingback slot. As I said previously, Earl Smith is starting at wingback because Bob DeLozier, the first-string wingback, is on the injured list. Coach Honaker is starting a freshman at this slot is making a rather unprecedented move. However, Earl is shaping up very well and with time this position might become one of the strong points of the team. He also has the backing of Gene Cross, Ernest Raulerson and Everett Wilson — and, of course, Bob DeLozier, when he gets back in shape again.

Football Ratings

Final Post-Bowl rankings of the top 10 teams in the country for 1955 as indicated by the "Board Ranking System" are as follows:

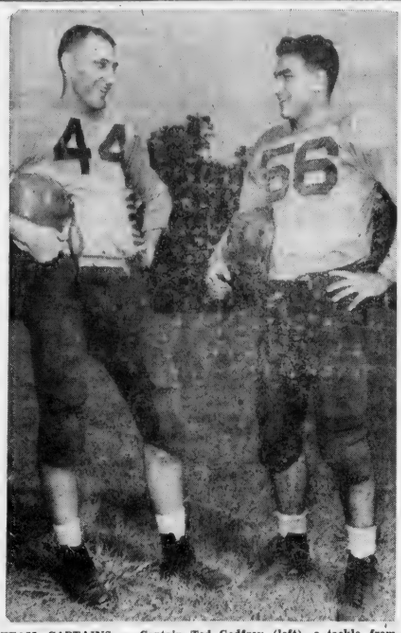
1. Ohio State
2. U. C. L. A.
3. Notre Dame
4. Oklahoma
5. Wisconsin
6. Navy
7. Miami, Florida
8. Georgia Tech
9. Auburn
10. Maryland

We Begin a New Feature

In this issue I am attempting to inaugurate something that I hope the student body will find to be new and interesting. I am attempting to give the players themselves a chance to express their opinions and feelings toward the game. Ted Godfrey, captain of the football team, has obligingly consented to write the first in this series of articles....

AS I SEE IT . . . . .

By Captain Ted Godfrey



Each year at this time as the baseball season is drawing to a close and the cool nights indicate that autumn is just around the corner, the thud of a football being kicked may be heard from vacant lots to the mighty stadiums across the country. Football fans, young and old alike, take up unshakeable sentiments for their favorite, whether it be a small rural high school team or a powerful college team of national recognition.

If football was once the game for brawn and no brains, it is a far cry from that today (while "beef" is still an asset, it is by no means the most important factor). Gone are the days when a coach could drill his team on what defense they might expect come Saturday. Today an offensive team may be confronted with a different type defense for several downs in succession. The defensive signal caller may call for a four, five, six, seven, or even an eight man line with a penetrating, angling, or slide charge. Speed and deception have been emphasized to such an extent that most teams on the defense operate on the principle of yielding a yard or two on each play in order to stop the potential threat of an explosive touchdown play. It is not an uncommon event for a team to compile all the statistics in their favor yet loose the game by a lopsided score.

Most college football fans realize that teams of today are better balanced than at any time in the past. Only a few teams each season go through their schedule without a defeat, and the most rabid followers will admit you can't win them all.

Here at Maryville as the season is just getting under way, the question often arises, "What kind of team are we going to have this year?" No one can answer that with an authoritative voice. The team will be stronger in some points than last year and weaker in some, however, the same will hold true of every team on the schedule.

Much is often said in thiscolumn in regard to school spirit, the backing of the team and such. The best example, I believe, is the final game of last season where the school spirit was 100% and as everyone well remembers, the results showed on the scoreboard.

Women's Athletic Association Schedules Variety of Sports

This semester the Women's Athletic Association (formerly Women's Varsity) plans to schedule soccer, tennis, aerial darts, stunts, and volleyball in team and individual sports. At the present time there is a soccer tournament between the two teams, the Chillies and Howies. A tennis tournament is also being run off outside of meeting times.

W.A.A. meets twice a week, with th Chillies meeting at 3:30 and the Howies at 4:30. The activities are for all girls, whether they are good, fair, or poor in athletics. To have fun; to meet new friends; to learn new skills; to promote good health; and to encourage exercising are the purposes of the club.

When a score of 400 or more points is reached by a girl; she is entitled to a membership in the Women's M Club.

During the meeting, girls majoring in physical education are in charge and do the teaching. Mrs. Queener is the advisor to W.A.A. New girls are still invited to join.

Waters Heads Wrestling Squad

Jerry Waters, a junior psychology major from Maryville, was recently elected captain of the 1955-56 Highlander wrestling squad by his teammates. He wrestles in the 123-pound division and ranked first in this class in the Southeastern Conference meet last year.

This will be Water's third season under the tutelage of J. D. Davis, coach of the wrestling team. Before entering Maryville he attended Everett High School.

In a recent interview Waters said, "We have a very good team this year and hope to be first in the Southeastern Conference."

Intramurals....

By Harold O'Bannon

Thursday afternoon the Rebels walloped Kappa Phi 25 to 0. This is the highest scoring game in the league so far. David Mills scored two of the touchdowns on passes. Bill Wallace and Pat Flynn scored the other two—Wallace on a pass and Flynn on an intereception. Wallace ran the only extra point.

The Alpha Sig Hammers coasted past the Y's Guys 9 to 2. Bob Ramger scored the touchdown and the extra point. Their best game of the season so far came at the beginning of the week. With just seconds to go in the final half, Pat Flynn caught a pass in the end zone for the only T.D. of the game. Bill Wallace, scored the extra point to make it 7 to 0 over the Warriors. Both teams played a fine defensive game. Pre-Mins beat Kappa Phi 6 to 0.

BG Club Adds Members

Four new members have been taken into the B G Club, Lynn McMillan, president, has announced. They are Isabel Easley, Nancy Jones, Ann Kelton, and Sharon Rise.

Miss Carolyn Blair has been chosen faculty sponsor to replace Mrs. Archie Pieper, who was last year's advisor.

Eleanor Bass, Mary Brasfield and Liz Enloe are the other members of the club.

M Club Plans Hike

The members of the Women's M Club will hold their hike to Montvale today and tomorrow. They plan to rise at 5 a.m. tomorrow and hike to the top of the mountain for a sunrise worship service. Their trip will also include swimming in a nearby lake, and a campfire program.

Dr. Elwood Speaks To Pre-Ministerials

Dr. Douglas Elwood, pastor of Highland Presbyterian Church, spoke on the subject "Edinburgh" at the pre-mins' meeting last Thursday in the Y-Rooms. The song leader for the week was Lyle Talbot. The pre-mins regularly meet every second and fourth weeks.

The next meeting will include a tape recording of Harry Emerson Fosdick's sermon "The Importance of Doubting Our Doubts."

At a consecration meeting there were thirty-seven members present. Edwin Grigsby gave the address, and special music was offered by Ben Hahn.

Faith Parish Provides Opportunity For Service In Blount County

By Joe McNeal

Among the many important links between the Maryville College campus and the Blount County community is the Faith Cooperative Parish. Through wokr in this association, students are given an opportunity to enrich their lives and to help others through Christian service to the community.

The parish is a cooperative organization of the Presbyterian Church, the college, five community churches, four chapels, and two Blount County elementary schools. Students who hold positions in the parish are given opportunity to teach or preach in one of the five churches or four chapels or to teach Bibie one hour a week in one of the two Blount County schools.

Dr. Albert Cropp is the new director of the parish; Mr. Austin Van Pelt is associate director. This is Mr. Van Pelt's second year of work in the parish. About 100 students from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes are now engaged in the various types of parish work.

The five churches connected with the parish organization are West Maryville, Mount Tabor, Clody's Creek, and Pine Grove in Blount County, and Hays Memorial in Monroe County. The four chapels include Sunnybrook, Home Avenue, Keeble, and East Mountain View. The two participating Blount County schools are Forest Hill and Chilhowee View.

Interest in parish work this year is high and many applications for positions in the parish have been received. Mr. Cropp says, however, that there are still opportunities available for various types of parish work, and all who are interested in the rewards of true Christian service are welcome to apply. Students interested in ministerial work, Christian Education, or other church services will find parish work truly enriching and rewarding.

Offices for the parish are in the office annex building near Anderson Hall. A schedule of office hours is posted on the office doors.

affiliation with the body might be a good idea for the present council to work on. Shackelford appointed a committee to look into the matter in further detail and to make a recommendation to Council and the Senate.

Printed in text is the Sportsmanship Agreement for 1954-55-56 with Carson-Newman College. This agreement has existed since some minor incident had happened on both campuses just prior to and after the Carson-Newman game here in 1954.

SPORTSMANSHIP AGREEMENT
Carson-Newman and Maryville Colleges 1954-1956
October 17, 1954

We ,the representatives from Maryville College and Carson-Newman College in conference agree to the following:

1. The student body of each college will make sincere effort to maintain a friendly spirit of cooperation and fair play toward the other college.

2. When each college visits the other, cooperative arrangements will be made for welcoming, parade, band program, seating, etc.

3. We agree to carry out friendly rivalry such as cheering, parades, etc. on either campus. In carrying this out we agree not to participate in any activity that would permanently or temporarily damage or disfigure the campus or commit any act which would be detrimental to the good feeling between the two colleges. We students agree to uphold the this agreement ,but in the event that an individual or student body violates this agreement, the student body will make full and complete restitution.

4. This agreement shall be in effect for a period of two years and will be subject to renewal with the ratification of the student body.

This agreement is to be signed by the presidents of the respective schools, the deans and the president of the student body.

Did You Have Any News?

Tuesday mornings after chapel is the time for presidents of clubs and organizations on campus to turn in their news to the Echo. The editor or a member of the staff will be waiting to receive information and will appreciate the cooperation of the clubs.

This arrangement should insure proper publicity and complete coverage of club news.

AAUW Convention Meets In Oak Ridge

Maryville College is a corporate member of the American Association of University Women which held its annual state convention in Oak Ridge yesterday and today. The purpose of this association is primarily to uphold the standards of college education with strong emphasis on the liberal arts.

Maryville College is well represented in the State Division, as the following members of the Maryville faculty are state officers: Miss Katharine Davies, president; Miss Kathryn Martin, secretary; Miss Nancy Hunter, membership chairman; and Miss Katherine Crews, publicity chairman.

Pre Ministerials To Hear Fosdick

The Pre-Ministerial Association will meet on Thursday, October 13th, at 6:45 p.m. in the Y Rooms. The speaker, by recording, will be The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick. His sermon is to be "The Importance of Doubting our Doubts."

A GHOUL is a scoring line in sports.

Schoens To Give Duo-Piano Recital Next Friday In FAC Music Hall

The Maryville College Fine Arts Department will present Victor and Sallie Schoen, duo-pianists, in a concert which will be given Friday, October 7 at 8:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

The program will include "Suite" by Kachaturian, "Concerto for Two Pianos in C Major" by Bach, "En Blanc et Noir" by Debussy, and "Scaramouche" by Milhaud.

Sallie Schoen is a graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, while her husband was graduated from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. Each holds a Master of Music degree from Indiana University. They studied duo pianism with Heinz Scholz in Salzburg, Austria, where they received Performer's Certificates from the 1954 Summer Academy of the Mozarteum. Mr. and Mrs. Schoen have taught at Montreat College, Montreat, North Carolina for the past three years and are now members of the music faculty at Maryville College.

The ushers for the concert will be members of Tau Kappa Chi.

Y Cabinets Hold Joint Meeting

A report of this past summer's Southern Regional Conference in Blue Ridge, North Carolina, was given Monday night at the joint cabinet meeting of YMCA and YWCA. The purposes and plans for Y this year were reported by Janie Wall, Maryville's representative to the conference.

At the separate cabinet meeting of YWCA two members were appointed to fill the vacated positions in the cabinet: Lila Crane, who is to replace Shirley Scott as a co-chairmen of the Y-Rooms Committee and Elizabeth Powell, who is to replace Carol Hutton as Pi Gamma chairman. A report of the proceeds from last year's Barnwarming fund was given. The Hopi Indian girl, who was to have been given a partial scholarship to Maryville through this fund, was unable to come, so the money will be held over and added on to this year's Barnwarming fund.

Playhouse Cast Is Announced

Cast for "Taming of the Shrew" was posted September 26, and although it is still tentative, is as follows: Baptista, Ronald Lind; Vincenlio, Larry Gibbs; Lucenlio, Bill Lynch; Petruchio, Herschel Netherton; Gremio, Tony Clark; Hortensio, Don Thiel; Biandello, Bob McKean; Grumio, John Mollard; Pedant, Vester Chance; Curtis, Jeanie Ginavin; Widow, Carol Lee Lacy; Kate, Ruth Wilson, and Bianco, Ann Wiley.

Miss Craven reserves the right to recast or switch roles at any time.

"Taming of the Shrew," a Shakesperian comedy to be done in the style of a farce, will be presented around the middle of November. Scripts have not yet been received, but an announcement will be made as to the practice schedule.

Committees for the play were formed at a playhouse meeting Thursday evening.

Freshmen Make Nominations

On Thursday morning after chapel ,the freshman class held its second meeting for the purpose of voting on a slate for yesterday's class elections.

Prior to this meeting, the nominating committee — Bob Muir, Carl Boyer, Norma Laubert, Barbara Thomas, and Don Hill had drawn up a tentative slate.

This is the final slate as it was voted upon by the class: President, Butch Christie, and Don Hill; vice president, Bill Lynch, and Joe McNeal; secretary-treasurer, Mary Pakosh, and Sue Tourtellotte.

It was pointed out that the representaitves to Student Council are the most important officers next to the president. Those on the ballot for class representatives were:

Mary Murphy, Tom Evans, Helen McDonald, Ted Frauman, Gray Clark, Jack Emory, Dick Jones, and Barbara Thomas.

Scots Play Colonels In First Home Game

Pearson's Girls Throw Wild Party, Masquerade Through Dormitory

By Janet Whitmore

The social event of the semester was held last Saturday night at 10:30 at the abode of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas. Now let's clear up all confusion and questions—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas alias Marcia Williams and Jackie Speigner threw a peace-shattering mascarade party for Pearsons' third floor girls.

The guests included a hula dancer, a 1910 bathing beauty, a 1955 bathing beauty, two Indonisian misses, and a yellow rose of Texas and several characters unmentionable in this column. The assembled caused such commotion that a crowd of spectators soon gathered. A parade, probably the first of its kind in the history of Pearsons, wound, saggered, shuffled, and swung its way along the floors of the dom past crowds of flabbergasted by-standers.

The Siamese twins, Mary Brasfield and Nancy Jones, surmounted their obstacles bravely—the primary one being the navigation of the stairs.

Special guests for the evening were: The Maharaja of Megador, Gussie Moran, and the Devil (at Maryville? ? ? ?) complete with tail, horns and a pitch fork.

Refreshments of many varied kinds were served buffet style by the "Douglases". Later the party was entertained with movies of the 1955 graduation shown by Lois Tinkleburg.

Theta Epsilon To Meet

Theta Epsilon will meet tonight at 6:15 to discuss plans for the year and enjoy a short program. All members are urged to attend.

McNaughton, Gowans Named "Chips" Editors

At a recent meeting of Writer's Workshop Clara Gowans was elected editor of "Chips," the annual workshop publication, and Joan McNaughton was chosen assistant editor.

Three new members have been accepted into workshop. They are San Roberts, junior English major from Lebanon, Tennessee; Bruce Ingles, junior English major from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Cary Valentine, senior art major from West Long Branch, New Jersey.

Members who will read Monday before the group are Liz Frei, criticized by Faith Nollner and Barbara Wilkie, criticized by Bill Deerfield. Others who have presented selections this semester include Bill Deerfild, John Graulich, Joan McNaughton, Clara Gowans and Miss Jessie Heron. Those giving criticisms of the writings include Jim Hopkins, Margaret Blackburn, Arthur Bushing, Pate Boyd, and Sadie Davis.

Writer's Workshop meets every Monday in one of the English classrooms. Members of the governing board are Ethelyn Cathey, John Graulich, and Jim Hopkins.

Experimental Productions Announced

The first Experimental Theatre productions of the year will be presented October 29 at 8:00 in the theater of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. Three student directors will be participating in the productions. Miss Betty Messer, senior drama major from White Pine, will direct scenes from "The Barratts of Wimpole Street" by Rudolf Besier. Mr. Herschel Netherton, junior drama major, from Madisonville, will direct a scene from "Cavalcade" by Noel Coward. Mrs. Helen essup, junior ,drama major from Maryville, will direct a scene from "The Four Poster" by Jau De Hartog.

Auditions For Soloists In "Messiah" To Be Soon

Mr. John Hutton, instructor in music has announced that auditions for soloists for the "Messiah" will be held on October 15th in the chapel. The time will be announced later.

This is not limited to vesper choir members only. Anyone interested in singing may try for a solo part. Any student desiring to try out for the solos should see the bulletin board in the Fine Arts Center for further information.

There will be, it is hoped, four soprano soloists, three altos, three tenors and three bass soloists.

Homecoming Events Planned in Alumni Council Meeting

The Executive Council of the Alumni Association met Tuesday, September 20. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss plans for this year's Homecoming celebration.

At the meeting it was reported that the Buck of the Month Club had reached the $7,000 mark. The goal for the club is $12,000 to $15,000.

Teams Meet At 8 On Honaker Field

The Highlanders, hungry for a victory and confident that they can down Centre after their showing in the Jacksonville game, will face Coach Briscoe Inman's Praying Colonels tonight at 8:00 on Honaker Field in the first home game of the season.

Coach Honaker's Scotties are a confident and determined crew and will take the field tonight with high hopes of making the Praying Colonels bow before them in submission. The Scotties are aspiring to make tonight a repetition of last year's game when they defeated the Colonels 12-7.

Pre-Game Activities

Last night there was an all-campus pep rally around the big bonfire near Honaker Field. As this was the first appearance of the cheerleaders since they were chosen by the student body, they were individually introduced.

They include Sharon Rise, captain; Gretchen Hill, Marianne Richmon, Lydia Munson, Tom Morris, Jim Kennedy, John Borter, and Doug Brian.

The cheerleaders led the students in several new cheers as wll as some of the familiar ones. School spirit was at a high peak and will probably carry over into tonight's game.

For the purpose of creating added student enthusiasm the pep committee, under the co-chairmanship of Doug Brian and Jim Cummings, has organized a snake dance into town. The snake will form on campus at 1:30 this afternoon and will then proceed down College Street into town.

The Highlander band will lead the "parade" decked out in its kilts. The five majorettes will also make an appearance. They are Esther Lerch, head majorette, June Keeney, Faith Nollner, Pat Bogart and Sue Short.

Before the game tonight Kathy Garrison, the 1955-56 Highland band sponsor, will be introduced to the student body. Then she will take her place with the band for the festivities of the evening.

IRC To Give Radio Program

"Tenth Year Perespective on the United Nations" is to be the topic of a radio panel presented by the International Relations Club on station WGAP, Wednesday, October 5, at 9 o'clock. This will be one of the events leading up to United Nations Week, later in October.

The panel members are Marvelyne Rise, Bob Bogle, George Podgorney, and Margallen Hanna, moderator. This program is one in a series produced by the Radio Workshop under the direction of Mr. Griffin, Instructor in Speech.

The first meeting of the International Relations Club will be held at 6:45 this Monday evening in the Y Rooms. All new students are particularly invited, as are old students, whether members or not, to this meeting, which will be moderated by George Podgorney.

The meeting will provide an opportunity for becoming acquainted with all of the foreign students on campus. Iranian refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

The International Relations Club affords an opportunity for students to keep in touch with some of the most important current world affairs.

Mademoiselle Opens Contest For College Board, 1956 Guest Editors

Mademoiselle magazine is now accepting applications from undergraduate women for membership in its 1955-56 College Board.

Mademoiselle's College Board Contest offers a chance (for the freshman as well as the senior) at winning one of the twenty Guest Editorships—a month on the staff of Mademoiselle—or placing as one of the fifty runners-up. All seventy of these top girls in the Contest get a head start on their careers.

Those who are accepted on the College Board do two assignments during the college year. Assignments give College Board Members a chance to write features about life on their campus; to submit art work, fashion, fiction or promotion ideas for possible use in Mademoiselle; to develop their critical and creative talents; to discover their own abilities and job interests.

College Board Members who come out among the top twenty on the assignments win a Mademoiselle Guest Editorship and will be brought to New York next June to help write, edit and illustrate the August College issue. They will be paid a regular salary for their month's work, plus round-trip transportation to New York City.

While in New York each Guest Editor takes part in a full calendar of activities. She interviews a celebrity in her chosen field, visits fashion workrooms, newspaper offices, stores and advertising agencies, besides working daily with the Editor to whom she is assigned. The twenty Guest Editors get help in finding positions in their special fields, and many join Mademoiselle's own staff. In addition, the fifty runners-up find their work in the contest a good recommendation to magazines, newspapers, book publishers, advertising agencies, stores, top employers in fashion and art. All seventy may receive personal letters to use when applying for jobs.

November 30 is the deadline for applying for College Board membership. Choose one of these four ways to apply. (A) Write a brief critique of August or September or October or November Mademoiselle; (B) Draw a cartoon series on any phase of of campus life or illustrate at least one article or story published in Mademoiseele during the past year; (C) Describe and illustrate an ideal week-end wardrobe for a girl at your own college; (D) Do layout or copy or both for at least one promotional piece encouraging students to enter the College Board Contest.

Successful candidates will be notified of acceptance on the College Board before Christmas; the first College Board assignment will appear in Mademoiselle's January issue.

For further information see your Dean of Women or the August, September, October or November issue of Mademoiselle.

October Exhibit To Be Water Colors

Mr. Beard, Instructor of Art at Maryville College, has announced plans for a new water color exhibit for October.

Leon Mead, noted water colorist and demonstrator for the American Crayon Company, will open the galleries for the month with an exhibition and commentary of his paintings Tuesday.

The Fine Art Center Galleries has extended an invitation for all to attend the opening ceremonies this Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Miss Ware's Mother Dies

Mrs. Anna Lou Ware, mother of Miss Suzanna Ware, the College dietitian, died Tuesday, September 27, at her home in Forest City, North Carolina. Mrs. Ware had been ill since a stroke which she suffered last April. Miss Ware is expected back at Maryville today.

Members Of Faculty Enjoy Vacation Trips

Turrentine, Kramer, Griffitts See Country

By Helen Jansen

Our president's habit of traveling has inspired various others of our faculty to do some sightseeing this summer. But that is only one of the many types of diversions experienced by our instructors during the summer months.

Miss Turrentine and members of her family, during the month of June, went from the East coast to the West coast by car. They started from Maryville, passed through the cities of Mobile, Biloxi, and Pensacola, and traveling along the Gulf in Florida. The next high point was Baton Rouge, Louisana, then on to Carlsbad Caverns, Grand Canyon, and the Painted Desert. In California they spent two weeks at Los Gatos. They also saw San Francisco and one of the most beautiful towns on the coast, Carmel by the Sea, home of some of the most celebrated movie stars.

Coming back through Nevada and Utah, they went to Salt Lake City where they took a conducted tour through the Mormon Temple. In Denver, Colorado, they enjoyed the three-dimensional displays in the Museum of Natural History. Other high points of their trip were Colorado Springs, the Garden of the Gods, a Kansas dust storm (which is inevitable) and the Ozarks. Al in all they traveled a total of 7,280 miles through fourteen states.

Mrs. Kramer's summer activities consisted of summer camping at St. Simon's Island in Georgia, traveling to New Orleans, Louisiana, and "going to parties and weddings". Mrs. Kramer led the Junior Workers Conference which composed a group of approximately twelve ycung people out of sixty young people who were attending the South Georgia Methodist Conference. Mrs. Kramer remarked that it was a most enjoyable week, for St. Simon's is well known as a beauty spot. It is located near Sea Island. The camp was formerly a large plantation and has in the past played an important role in the life of the Indians and the state of Georgia as well.

Her trip to New Orleans took her through Vicksburg, Jackson, Gulfport, and Baton Rouge. In New Orleans, Mrs. Kramer, with several of her relatives, went on a boat trip in the harbor and a day's tour through the city. The high point was dining at Antoine's in the French quarters When asked about the waiters Miss Kramer replied, "The waiters not only speak French, but they are required to know several other languages. Each waiter has ten years of training before he begins working." The menu is entirely in French and Antoine's has used the same menu for fifty years. The contrast between the new and old seemed to be the most striking element of the atmosphere of the city.

Dr. Proffitts couldn't stay home either. For two weeks he accompanied the Vesper Choir on USNSA . . . To Join Or Not To Join?

What is USNSA? The United States National Student Association is a confederation of college student bodies represented through their student governments. It is an organization of some 300 member schools representing some 600,000 students. USNSA is an enthusiastic group that can be an unlimited source of information and help in any one for more than 150 campus problems that may come up. Information ranging from the problems involved in setting up an honor system (which many thought of on this campus) two methods of elections may be obtained by members of this association.

This association also provides ample opportunity for the exchange of ideas, operations and campus programs between member schools. Through this particular service M. C. may be able to gain some valuable ideas to further the cause of the student government. Particular means of providing for the exchange of this information are the CLINICS AND WORKSHOPS on specialized subjects, the PERIODICALS AND SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS, such as the "Student Government Bulletin," a monthly journal for student leaders and administrators, plus the STUDENT GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SERVICE which is a vast library on the many problems confronted by government bodies.

How much will this cost? A yearly sum of $25.00. This seems a small price to pay for the possible gains that we could receive.

I personally think this is a worthwhile institution and I urge you to contact your student council representative and get the scoop from him (or her) and then give him your opinion on the matter . . .

YMCA . . Important To You

The Young Men's Christian Association of Maryville College through the years has become an honored and integrated part not only of college life but of the community as well.

Part of a quotation from the constitution of Y is as follows:

"The purpose of the YMCA is to unite all men . . . to promote growth in christian character and work." . . . The rest of this is contained in the green booklets concerning our YMCA, which have been distributed, but the important thing is that the Y is a very fundamental part of our college life here.

The Y has many aspects of service on Maryville Campus and to the community at large in which every member can and should participate. The only duty actually is to one's self and that is improvement of self by service to others. Part of the plan and basic concept of Y is the development of spirit, mind and body, and only in all of these, is the sum total of personality and character developed. The Y belongs to us because we are its only means of Christian service and furtherance of the ideals we hold to be good.

It has many available opportunities. These include athletics; the Artist Series, Christian Fellowship, Publicity, Radio, Worship, Y Store and then greatly needed activities outside the campus such as the interracial program, work in the mission field and other community work such as scouting, boys' clubs and Hi-Y. Become an active directed part of Y and find out what "Onward Still and Upwards" really mean by "doing" for others and for God.

Scots & Soda

Impressions of a newcomer . . .

You old-timers may be used to the idiosyncrasies of Anderson but a lot of the new students aren't. Gee, what a crazy, mixed-up building! Take the case of Pheobe McPhee. This poor kid has a class in room number 20 after one in room 300. Question: how does she get from 300 to 20 after her professor keeps her overtime and she can't cut through that certain class room because the bell has already rung?

Now Phoebe has two alternatives. First, she can let herself down the side of the building by tying sheets together. This has a couple of drawbacks. You make a lot of noise when you crawl in the window and your professor might become annoyed if it happens very often. Then, too, if the window is closed you may have to bang on it to get someone to come let you in. Since this creates a real classroom disturbance, your professor will probably be thinking with a great deal of pleasure about how an "F" would look by your name at the end of the semester. Besides, those old brick walls can get sheets mighty dirty. Without a doubt, the other plan is better - go up the secret stairway. This is the only legitimate way to reach the annex. No, don't ask anyone where it is - this is one of those things you just don't ask. You have to find it for yourself by exploration and once you succeed, you jealously guard your knowledge. Don't be discouraged if you don't discover the hidden passage your first year here, - many students have graduated from Maryville without ever finding the stairway to the annex. What a sheet bill they must have had! P. S. Poor Phoebe is still looking for room 20 - haven't you seen her?

Everyone is proud of our Vesper Choir. It adds immeasurably to the beauty of our worship services and does a magnificent job all year long. We admire these students for the long hours they spend practicing and wonder that classmates of ours can possess such heavenly voices. Really, we look upon them with awe as they march regally down the aisle, resplendant in their blue and white robes. But oh brother, have you ever sat down front and watched these supreme beings march down the stairs at the end of the service? The college could build a new woman's dormitory in no time if they would charge admission for those front seats at Vespers. In all fairness to them, it really is a ticklish situation. There they are in those long flowing robes, having to keep in step with a partner, sing the hymn, and look straight ahead all at the same time. When they approach those dread stairs, you have the opportunity for a real study in human nature. You see, each person re-acts in a different manner. Some merely turn pale as death. Others keep moving their mouths as they go down but it is perfectly obvious to all onlookers that no words or music are coming out. One will sing bravely on while his face betrays him by looking absolutely horrified. Another will just give up all pretence of singing and devote his entire attention to reaching the foot of the stairs in a vertical position. Big strapping boys daintily raise their skirts and point their toes, and some crewcuts have been known to stand on end. Several freshmen were seen with snow white hair the day after their trial flight. Considering the hazardous task before them, however, they do remarkably well. I must admit that there are members who march straight down quite serenely without batting an eyelash and without missing a word of the hymn. Blessings on their equilibrium!

Let's ask the alumnae for an escalator to eliminate "operation stairs," after the women's dormitory is finished. Anyway, we can give them purple hearts for meritorious conduct on the field of battle or courage beyond the call of duty, or perhaps a week with all expenses paid in the infirmary.

Just as there are varied expressions on the faces of descending choir members, so there are different types of tables iln the dining hall. First, there is the scholarship table. Here everyone reads Dostoievsky while partaking of beans, or discusses Einstein's theory of relativity. They are also fond of analyzing the molecular structure of beans. Naturally, visiting scientists are seated at this table. They always go away amazed that such scintillating and illuminating conversation can be carried on by college students.

Then there is the table of meditation. Here you have eight students masticating in complete silence. The only words spoken are "pass the ——," and "see if you can get any more ——." These students are obviously supporters of the theory that conversation interferes with digestion. Goodness! What an alarming thought!

Those of you who have sat at an athletic table have really had fun - notice that I said "fun," not "food." No one begrudges it to these fine young specimens of American manhood, however. We don't want our football players fainting on the field from hunger, and a cross-country man with rickets doesn't make a very good impression on other schools.

There are many other varieties of tables, too, such as the Future Chemists of America (" pass the creamed spiragyra on toast, please"), and the English majors ("art thou finished with thy plates?") Everyone to his own table, of course, but I think ours is the greatest - a mixture of them all.

Echo Forum

An open Letter to Band Supporters

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Joe McNeal, a freshman from Blount County, was asked to investigate the situation of town students on Maryville campus. After talking with several town students, dorm students and faculty members, he has made the following observations. If you would like to make comments on this subject, we invite you to send them in to the Echo Forum.)

ABOUT TOWN STUDENTS . . .

There are on the Maryville College campus about 160 students grouped under the general classification. "town students". Actually, they come not only from Maryville and Alcoa but from outside of town in Blount County, Knox County, the city of Knoxville ,and from other points within convenient commuting distance of the campus.

Because the students live in their homes rather than in the dorms, there might be an unconscious tendency to set them apart as a distinct group whose enjoyment of the full college program is somewhat limited. A few town students feel that the social life of the college is not of great concern to them since they live in their own homes. Actually, there is no reason for such a feeling.

Men and women who have had a great deal of experience in working with college people say that development is one of the most important goals of college life. The student who works hard in his studies is still missing something if he fails to learn how to live and work with others somewhere along the way. The ideal, so the educators say, is to work for balance.

The varied activities of a college campus provide an excellent opportunity for gaining and keeping balance. In talking with town students, I find that those who take an active part in the social life of the campus feel that they are getting much more from their college experience than those who attend classes and then go home.

Of course, many town students are forced by circumstances to limit their extra-curricular activities to a small degree, but there are very few who absolutely cannot take part in any.

So, fellow town students, let's make it our goal to work with the reisdent students; let's make Maryville College grow each year. After all, we can feel an extra degree of pride in Maryville as a community institution which has been a part of our environment for years.

There is no organization on campus, except those pertaining to life in the dorms, which does not welcome all students with genuine interest and ability regardless of whether they live on campus or off. So, the division between town students and resident students is largely imaginary and only as great as the two groups choose to make it. Let's close whatever gap there may be.

Joe McNeal.

TALK OF THE WEEK Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Betty Anne Springstead

If, in the midst of a gay round of Parish, band, societies, and sports, not to mention studies, you have time to go to a movie, good. For the benefit of those flighty few who periodically throw Sophomore Lit. to the winds and "have to go somewhere, anywhere", I would give advice, but I don't dare. However, my second word of advice (which is the first advice of the theatre managers)—go see either "Belle Starr's Daughter" at the Capitol or a "rootin' tootin'" western at the Park. Or, if you can hold off 'til next week, you can see a different picture almost every night at the Park; Monday— "Hell's Half Acre," Tuesday and Wednesday—"Las Vegas Shakedown," Thursday and Friday—"New York Confidential."

But, if you are too "tight" for such extravagance, you can watch the Maryville College Band tonight, along with a side-attraction, the game. The precision and eye appeal of the band will be well worth your trouble—besides, its free.

If you are interested in a higher form of free education, and you no doubt are, pick up a free copy of "Baby Post" at the J&P market. In one issue, references are made to Greek Mythology, Washington Irving, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Oliver Wendall Holmes and Elsie Dinsmore, all in the same article!

For Your Listening Enjoyment

Also in our search for free entertainment we turn on our radio. (This may be dangerous for those who have not paid their $2.50 extra current fee). Some programs offered by our own WGAP are very informative, such as "Swap and Shop." Others, like "Jive 'til Five" are purely for entertainment and relaxation. If you want to know "who chased whom how many times around what" this morning in Blount County, tune in on one of the frequent news programs.

If you have noticed people standing rapt and alert outside of Memorial, it may be that they are enjoying one of the many voice recitals which are so graciously rendered from time to time. This is a diversion, free of charge.

Book Lore

At last in our search for a change without charge, we turn to the library. Among the less known of the great literary masterpieces, we may discover Conversations on Natural Philosophy "in which the elements of that science are familiarly explained and adopted to the comprehension of young pupils. . . Improved by appropriate question for the examination of scholars; also by Illustrative Notes and a dictionary of philosophical terms", written by Rev. J. L. Blake and published in 1833. Another worthwhile volume is Thomas Morell's abridgement of Ainsworth's Latin Dictionary, which, although published in 1841, contains all the modern Latin words. Fr- (oops) George B. McClellan has written an enlightening book that every Maryville College student should read, called McClellen's Own Story. This book is most revealing.

I'll close with the words of the immortal Scotsman who said, "Don't wear your glasses when you're not looking at anything."

Or, if you didn't like that ending, in the words of his contemporary, while talking to his son, "Hoot, Mon, you must learn to take bigger steps so your shoes last longer."

Meanwhile, back at the ranch. ranch. . .

Bill Deerfield

Dear fellow students,
As morning prayers and hymns arise,
Angelic hosts in Paradise
Must joy at all the praise we bring
To Christ our blessed Lord and King;
Yet long before the last hymn's ended
Those angel hosts must be offended,
For most of us (to our disgrace)
Have closed our books in heaven's face!

Now there's one thing you know I ain't
And that's a conscientious saint.
On Thursday nights I seldom pray
(Rehearsals for a sinful play.)
So let it not be said of me,
"He's just a griping Pharisee!"

Dr. Lloyd Attends Church Meetings

This year Dr. Lloyd is still very active in church affairs. On October 2 he will fly to Pittsburgh for a meeting on Monday and Tuesday with representatives of the Presbyterian U. S. A. Church and The United Presbyterian Church. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss possible union of the two Churches.

Maryville's Merriwell Finish

Tonight the frisky Scotties growl at the Centre Colonels. It promises to be quite a battle. Even the beardless sophomores haven't forgotten last year's Frank Merriwell finish, when we scored in the last fleeting seconds to win 12-7. Let's hope Lynn Sexton is feeling his oats again tonight!

For many years we have scheduled a "practice" game with Hiwassee College. This year we opened with our toughest foe and dropped a close one. In fact, we came within a foot of victory! Our rough, experienced line time and again opened gaping holes to shake McCall, Smith and and White loose for sizeable gains. But as I pulled my ear away from my trusty crystal set last Saturday, I pondered, "Do we have a pass offense?"

Scotties Four Points Behind Auburn

By comparative scores, Maryville should be one of the powerhouses of the nation. After all, Chattanooga was beaten by Jacksonville State by 12 points and by Auburn by only 9. That makes Jacksonville 3 points better than Auburn, and since the Gamecocks beat us by 7 points, Auburn is but 4 points better than we are. Think so ???

Oh, Yeah!

The Highlanders looked good last week, but they made my predictions look bad. I felt Jacksonville would subdue us by four touchdowns. I expected it to be like the football game between the elephants and the ants. Late in the last quarter, a swivel-hipped ant was streaking for paydirt when an over-eager elephant stepped on him and killed him. The red-faced referee rushed over to the elephant and chastised him, saying, "What kind of sportmanship is that?"

The poor elephant sobbed convulsively as he explained, "I didn't want to kill him, I just tried to trip him!"

One of the Y's Guys sizes 'em up

After a week of upsets, trembling prophets rub their crystal balls more firmly. So here goes:

Army 20	Penn State 14
West Virginia 34	Wake Forest 13
Yale 27	Brown 19
Princeton 21	Columbia 6
Maryland 14	Baylor 9
Tennessee 21	Duke 20
Maryville 26	Centre 20
Auburn 14	Florida 7
TCU 27	Arkansas 13
Oklahoma 13	Pitt 7
Georgia Tech 7	SMU 6

Baseball

While football is in the limelight, New York City is throbbing with excitement over a few baseball games for the city championship . . . it's the Dodgers' turn to crow this year!

Boxing

The recent victory of K. O. Kink Rocky brought this one to mind: The proud pugilist: "The last guy I fought is still in the hospital!"

"Yeah? What happened?"

"He broke his hand when he knocked me out."

That poor guy has been knocked out so many times that he sells advertising space on the soles of his shoes.

AS I SEE IT . . . . .

by Alternate Captain Jack Renfro

As I was thinking of what I was going to write in this article, I read the one which Ted Godfrey wrote last week and decided he had very good ideas. I decided to follow up on what he said. When Ted wrote his article, he knew only by the way we practiced what kind of a team we would have. But since we have played Jacksonville I think we can look forward to a very good season this year.

As everyone knows by now Jacksonville beat Maryville by a score of 7-0, but the score doesn't always tell the whole story. I think our team looked outstanding on defense with the exception of the one drive in which Jacksonville scored. Even then we held them for eight downs inside our fifteen yard line. However, I am not trying to give excuse for our loss Saturday night. I am going to try to show how, with a few breaks, Maryville could easily win the other seven ball games this season.

To begin with our line play was superb with the exception of a few plays. Jacksonville had played the University of Chattanooga the week before and beat them 12-0. We held Jacksonville to one touchdown. The line, which has letter men from end to end, is two deep with one team almost as good as the other. With these two strong lines we should be able to wear down any team our size.

In the backfield we have the very able Bud White, who kept smashing the Jacksonville line for good yardage. He is an explosive runner capable of breaking away at any time. At the all important tailback position, Jim McCall came through like a pro. This spot, left vacant by Little All American Clarence Shepard, was considered one of our weak spots. But since the game Saturday night I think it will be very well held intact. At wingback the only boy who had any experience was Bob Delozier but a week before our opening game he got his shoulder dislocated. This left his position without anyone with experience. But Saturday night, Earl Smith, took over at wingback and held it down as though he owned it. Our reverse worked for the first time since Ken Shepard, who now assists in coaching duties, graduated.

These things lead me to believe we will have a very fine season. We are hoping the stands will be filled with students and faculty alike. See you at the ball game tonight.

Highlanders Defeated By Jacksonville 7-0

By Bob Evans

The Highlanders came within one yard of tying powerful Jacksonville State College (of Alabama and not Florida as was erroneously reported by the Echo last week) last Saturday night, but fell 7-0, in the fourth quarter.

The Gamecocks certainly did not show the Scotties the form and ball-handling which carsied them to a 12-0 win over the Chattanooga Moccasins the previous week. The Scotties definitely played much better ball than was expected of them by the experts who had rated them a four-touchdown underdog. This was especially true in the middle of the second period when we came within one yard of drawing first blood. If we had scored in the first half, it also would have meant, of course, that the game would have ended in a 7 to 7 deadlock.

Strong Points

Undoubtedly the line play of both squads was an outstanding feature of the highly contested battle. Both lines were holding like brick walls and it was a rarity indeed to see the backs gain more than a yard or two when they crashed into the forward wall.

Biggest Asset

Undisputedly, the biggest asset to the team last Saturday night was Jim McCall, the first string tailback. His long sprints as well as his punting really made him the spark plug of the team. Bud White offered Jim plenty of help in the running department. Bud, the hard-charging fullback, could always be counted on for that yardage through the line.

The live play of the Highlanders was sparked by driving force of Bill Strickland, the bone-crushing blocking of John Hawkins and Bill Wheatly's tremendous tackling.

Freshman Whizz

Earl Smith, the freshman whizz from Maryville, certainly turned in an amazing performance against the Gamecocks. His speed, power and agility helped him to spin loose for a 15-yard scamper, the longer run of the evening for the Scotties. Earl will undoubtedly be a real asset to the team.

Gamecocks Score

The Gamecocks scored their touchdown as a climax to a 60 yard sustained drive as right half back Phil Smith barrelled over from the three on a hand-off from quarterback Gene Hanson in the middle of the third quarter. Hanson converted for the Gamecocks to make it 7-0 and end the scoring for the evening.

The Highlander's only scoring opportunity was in the middle of the second period when John Hawkins recovered a Jax fumble. Jim McCall, Earl Smith and Bud White launched a drive which, unfortunately for the Scotties, was stopped abruptly on the one-yard line.

M Club President's Interests Vary

By Ottilie Feddern

Liz Murphy, that girl with personality plus, is president of "M" Club this year. Among her varied activities are vesper choir and the presidency of Theta Epsilon Society.

In her junior year she was elected vice-president of Student Council and in her sophomore year was elected vice-president of her class.

Liz, a Physical Education major, played basketball in high school, but she is not partial to any sport. Also in high school, she was the editor of her high school's first annual.

She loves to sing and can be found at any college sing. She loves to whittle although she never carves anything and can always be found with her knife and stick of wood.

One of Liz's ambitions is to learn to ski. She says that she would like to learn in Vermont or New Hampshire.

In her years at Maryville she has developed the Senior Send-Off which takes place at the end of the second semester on the football field. Each class presents a skit which usually describes certain members of the Senior Class. There is also a faculty skit and a square dance on the field plus many other events.

Liz has given freely of her time, talents, and spirit to the Maryville College campus, for which she will always be remembered.

The Rebels dumped the Y's Guys by the biggest score of the year, 31-0. Pat Flynn scored three touchdowns and Dave Mills came across with two more. Jim Gregory added the only extra point. The Alpha Sig Hammers kept their slate clean by wolloping the Pre-Mins 20 to 6. Bill Dent, Bob Ramger and Jim Cummings pushed across the three touchdowns for Alpha Sig. Dent and Cummings also scored the two extra points. Dave Kratchko scored for the Pre-Mins.

Hammers Beat Warriors

The Hammers and the Warriors tangled on Thursday and the Hammers came out on top by a score of 20 to 6. Bill Dent, Bob Ramger, and Charlie Partee scored for the Hammers. The points after touchdown were added by Cummings and Ramger.

Friday the Y's Guys and Warriors battled to a 0 to 0 tie. Kappa Phi won their first game by beating the Y's Guys 19 to 0. Jim Marsh, Joe Quinn, and Joe Williams scored and the touchdowns on intercepted passes. Joe Quinn added the extra point.

Rebels Lose First

The Rebels lost their first game to the Pre-Mins by a score of 12-9. Scoring for the Pre-Mins were Dave Krotchko and Doug Brian. Pat Flynn scored for the Rebels and also kicked the extra point. On Wednesday the Hammers met the Warriors for the second time of the season and slipped past them 6 to 0. Dick Henderson caught a pass for the only score.

Socially Speaking

By Grace Stinecipher and Jeanne Ginaven

Maryville students are really "on the ball" this year when it comes to social events! Who is it that says, "Nothing ever happens at M.C." If you are one of these persons, just take a gander at these social items:

Weddings and Engagements
(yes, there are still some more)

MASON-RODERICK

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mason of Madisonville, Tennessee, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Helena '58, to Mr. J. C. Roderick also of Madisonville. Plans for the wedding are indefinite.

KEYES-MILLER

A summer wedding is being planned by Miss Marion Keyes '58 and Mr. Buford Miller '56 whose engagement is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Keyes of Fanwoor, New Jersey. Mr. Miller is from Maryville.

AXLEY-YOUNG

On May 19 Mr. Bill Young '56, took as his bride Miss Shirley Axley '55, of Maryville. Mr. Young is also from Maryville. The wedding took place at the home of the groom's parents and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Wylie from Kingsport.

Shirley is now teaching at Everett High School while Bill is continuing his studies in Pre-Med at Maryville College.

PETERSON-KUNEN

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Peterson of Greenback, Tennessee have recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Iantha Jean '56, to Mr. Adolph W. Kunen '54 of Blackwood, N.J. Adolph is now attending Princeton Theological Seminary.

Plans are being made for a summer wedding.

Parties
(we're really "living it up")

Hallowe'en came early this year for the girls on third floor Pearsons with a costume party held in Jackie Speigner's and Marcia Williams' room the other night. Each costume displayed was truly a work of art and showed real ingenuity. Among tiese clever costumes were. . . the Rye Crisp Twins as depicted by Jean Boyd and Nancy Marshall dressed in cardboard boxes. . . a rose trellis portrayed by Pat Hoover. . . Mary Ellen Phipps and Jane Hussey came dressed as Ike and Mamie Eisenhower. . . Marvelyne Rise was first seen as a ghost and then as an angel. . . Mary Brasfield and Nancy Jones were Siamese twins and sang the song that the cats sang in "Lady and the Tramp". . . Dressed as each other were Lois Tinklinberg and Margallen Hanna who had even make up appropriate poems to recite. . . Nancy Lou Dodge came in mourning. . . the devil was there in the person of Betsy Hoaster. . . and of course a Theta and a Bainonian initiate were depicted by Lee Fowler and Kathy Kerns.

Dressed as a high society couple, Jackie and Marcia ushered these and many other weird looking characters into their spacious drawing room where a parade was begun that wandered throughout the dorm. Following this extravaganza, the guests returned to the mansion of Williams and Speigner and enjoyed movies of graduation, Easter, and the choir tour shown by Lois Tinklinberg. Refreshments were then served to all persons (?) attending.

A beautiful devil's food cake with white icing was enjoyed Wednesday night by the members of Anna Allcroft's table who gave a combination Birthday-Wedding party for Carolyn Fuller. Following the singing of "Here Comes the Bride—Happy Birthday!" gifts were presented to Carolyn. These gifts included: "something old"—an old used candle, "something new"—a pencil and a penny, "something borrowed" — a library book "Marriage for Moderns", "something blue (blew) a balloon that had been blown up and burst.

M. C. Girls "Create Atmosphere"

Acting as hostesses this past week for the 1956 Ford showing at Costner-Eagleton Motors were Ka Leeth, Martha Jackson, and Dolly Berry. They greeted and showed around the guests, told them about the cars, and in general—"created atmosphere".

Recent Visitors

Seen on campus recently have been. . . Mary Ann Thompson and Emma Curtis who are now taking graduate work in Physical Education at UT. . . Nancy Dunn, who has now entered the Vanderbilt Medical School . . . David Ramsey and Jim Fisher who are now at the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. . . and Grace Harrison of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Fashion Flashes

At last! Bermuda shorts and knee socks have arrived at Maryville! Currently the cotton ones are seen in abundance with or without knee socks. As winter approaches, wool and wool plaid Bermudas with wool knee socks will be dotting old Maryville campus. A few brave boys have ventured to wear them to campus gatherings and Yours Truly hopes that more will follow suit. For as many people as there are who do not like the Bermuda influence, there are many more who do like it. Come on fellas!

Marching down the sidelines of the football field tonight will be a colorful parade of sweaters and skirts. This seems to be a year for so many different colors in sweaters—blues and browns and greens holding sway over all. Many have dyed-to-match skirts to make a complete outfit.

Be thinking about those Bermudas, boys—we like them on you, too.

FACULTY HAPPENINGS

its tour in the northeastern states. Then from June 16-25, he attended a conference on the teaching of chemistry at Fisk University. This meeting, sponsored by the American Chemical Society, was the sixth annual one to be held and was attended by approximately two hundred people from the eastern states. Two very well known men were among those who addressed the conference—Nobel Prize winner, Linus Pauling from California Tech., who won the prize in chemistry last winter in Sweden, and Joel H. Hildebrand, a retired chemist who was a professor for forty years at California Tech. He was also former president of the American Chemical Society.

Chilhowean News

Anyone interested in having snapshots put in the Chilhowean, give them to Louise Ogden, Pate Boyd, Marvelyn Rise, Virginia Marshall, or Bruce Ingles. Put them in an envelope with your name and room number on the envelope. The pictures must be clear and sharp. If they cannot be used, they will be returned to the owner.

Individual photographs were taken during the past two weeks. Proofs will be shown Tuesday afternoon, October 4, but not on Monday.

Ruminations From The Ruins

A Mood Story . . . By Don Adams

Oh, its six o'clock in the morning of a cool-starting day, or as far as it ever gets and who should we find at the Ruins but Gussie all bundled up in blankets studying—cigarettes, chips and sleepy eyes. Around seven or seven thirty some of the boys drift staggeringly in to exchange inanities and sniff the fragrant smoky pine air. Well, so its chapel but they'll be back to the place of old Southern Comfort and relaxing talk, by nine thirty.

Time of day is unimportant at the little green shack behind the vines. Morning talk consists of grunts and yawns intermixed with gripes and groans. Hey, wake up you! That morning after the night before smell lingers in the air—tobacco I mean.

Anyway the noon group assumes caste, thoughtfulness and languid gesturing mixed with a dash of sophisticated bitters and colorful skirts. Some earnest faces—discussion of what tests—schoolwork in general, morals, manners, football, hard benches. Now listen the team this year should have. . . think this place will never let us go to the mountains—But how? Flagstones lined with white, black, red, orange (?) shoes, loafers and butts. Smoking can smoking. How witty can you get. Look if Ralph ever. . . I'd fix that. . .

Long hair, short hair brown, splinters in the wood. Ouch! Shove over willya!

Night. Gathering dusk as the red sky fades, matching then outlining glowing, red eyes. Waiting for the bell. Better go now. The men take over. Meditation, radio maybe. The can is full—coke bottles glint in the yellow glare down the path. Gaunt sleeveless forms slouch in the shadows. Quiet introspective faces. A feeling of nameless waiting for something—the will to do, power from some where. Just a short one. So and so was caught last night. yeah, three this time. Well, starting out too early, what do you expect?

11:00 p.m. Shadows, quiet. Green lattice eyes peer blankly over a scrubby tree-over the red-as blood earth bank. Rusty nails flinch a little as a heavy form, smoke trailing crushes down mumbling about fool drivers. and Sudden sharp squeal of tires—see! ! Somebody'll get it. Two hours later. Rabbit hops up on the sandstone ledge in front of the light lit cave—smells tentatively at coke stain, flinches at the rattling cock roach that scurries about its timeless business, then disappears into the darkness. Quiet.

M Club Girls Survive Hike

By Ottilie Feddern

Last Saturday and Sunday the "M" Club went on a hike to Montvale. Those who went were Mary K. Allison, Jane Byrne, Sue Burton, Bev Cooper, Lila Crane, Junior Davis, Bettye Harrell, Roberta Myers, Liz Murphy, Sam McNeil, Helen Franklin, Joan Gray, Lottie Jerkins, Joan Jefferson, Mrs. Largen, Mrs. Queener, Miss Heron, and Mary Ann Thompson.

Saturday several of the girls took walks, while some of the more energetic ones slept. Some of the privileged few listened to the football game from Jacksonville Saturday night.

Liz Murphy, the president of "M" Club, climbed one of the mountains and found Herman's cousin; Liz said that they stared at each other, then he ran away.

The traditional council fire, a square dance, and snack time were also held Saturday night. Bettye Harrell and Joan Gray kept the group alive with their story telling and the group hopes Bettye learns some new jokes by next spring. Afterwards members of the Vesper Choir sang cabin three to sleep.

Sunday School was led by Lottie Jerkins in a chapel overlooking the swimming pool. Joan Jefferson and Sue Burton assisted her in the service.

Unanimously, the girls decided to do away with the Sunrise Service. There was also to have been a hike to the top of the mountain for the Sunday School services, but was also given up due to the rain.

A meeting was held after dinner on Sunday to have reports given about the project for the year—the ampitheater. In the early spring a clean-up meeting to work on the ampitheater will be held. A party or cook-out was also discussed which will include the W.A.A. group. The girls also talked about a sleep-out.

Maryville Now Has International Flavor

Eleven Students Are Here From Six Countries

By Joe McNeal

Each year students come from all sections of the United States to study here at Maryville College, but there are eleven students, in particular, on our campus who have traveled across a considerable portion of the globe, so that they might enjoy the privileges of studing at Maryville. These students come from outside the continental United States --from Korea, Iran, Scotland, Indonesia, Hungary, and Puerto Rico.

Three of these students-Bae Ho Han, Jang Hyun Lee, and Ye-Byung (Dick) Yun--are from Korea. George Podgorny, Leon Gabrielian, and Armen Ashot Saginian come here from Iran. James Colquhoun and Robert Marshal are from Scotland; and Winifred Lian Joa Kie, Frank Csapo, and Elnor Nayario Negroni are here from Indonesia, Hungary, and Puerto Rico respectively.
onesia, Hungary, and Puerto Rico respectively.

Most of these first heard of Maryville College in much the same manner as these of us who were born and reared in the United States heard about it. Church groups, alumni, traveling students and faculty, and the other sources have spread Maryville's name and reputation far and wide, so we have these students on campus who come from these six distant countries to study here.

It might be interesting for those of us who have lived in the United States to hear what these students think of this country, its customs, and its people. I talked to two of them--Leon Gabrielian and Armen Saginian. Here in concentrated form are their impressions:

Both commented on the friendliness with which both students and faculty have greeted them; they feel that the American people are among the friendliest they've met on their travels. Each of them said that mastering understanding of the many different accents and idioms of the language was among their greatest problems.

They said, incidentally, that American girls are quite a bit friendlier and easier to get acquainted with than girls in their own and other countries.

Mr. Saginian summed up his impressions by saying, "I'm very happy here, I like Maryville College, and I am enjoying everything here." We hope that all these students have similar impressions.

(Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of articles about foreign students on Maryville pus.)

IRC Features Foreign Students

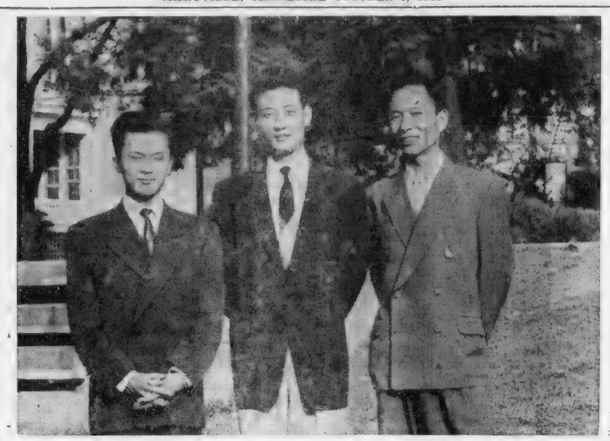
The first meeting of the International Relations Club was held in the Y rooms on Monday night. The president of the club, Miss Martha Jackson, opened the meeting with a short address stating the purposes of the Club. She urged that everyone take part in the increased activities of the Club, after which she turned the meeting over to George Podgorny, who introduced the nine new international students at Maryville College this semester.

There were five different countries represented with a total of fifteen different languages spoken between them. Several of these studnts gave an interesting account of the costumes they wore or of their national flags. Refreshments served were of Iranian orgin. Mr. Commodore Fisher, club advisor, gave an interesting account of how the Iranians drink their tea, either in city or country manner.

The next meeting will be on the seventeenth of October, to be held again in the Y rooms at 6:45 P. M. The meeting will be in charge of Ben Han, who will introduce the topic: "A New Idea of New Asia."

Radio Workshop To Have Varied Broadcasts

Last Wednesday evening at 9:00 over station W.G.A.P., the International Relations Club presented a panel discussion under the auspices of the Maryville College Radio Workshop, headed by John G. Griffin, instructor of speech and drama.



This program by the I. R. C. was the second in the Workshop's series of interesting and informative presentations by various campus organizations.

Classes in Radio Workshop are held each Tuesday evening from 7:15 to 9:15 in the radio studios of the Fine Arts Center. The course is designed to develop talent in radio acting and also to give students a technical knowledge of radio broadcasting.

In the next two weeks, Workshop will offer musical programs. On Oct. 15, the faculty will be presented and on the following week, students. On Oct. 26, the combined Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. will present a dramatic play.

Ecumenical Student Conference To Be Held In Ohio In December

"Revolution and Reconciliation" is the theme for the 1955-56 Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission to be held at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, December 27 to January 1. 3000 college and university students – half of them overseas students now studing in the United States—are expected to attend the conference, which is being held under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement for Christian Missions and sponsored by the World's Student Christian Federation and the United Student Christian Council.

Many campuses are forming ecumenical mission study groups to read and discuss three preconference study books. The Maryville College Student Volunteers Organization is sponsoring a study group which meets every Friday afternoon at 4:30 in the chapel. Additional groups may be formed later. The study books include "Encounter with Revolution" by Richard Shaull, "Revolution and Redemption" by M. M. Thomas and Paul Converse, and "Shock and Renewal" compiled by Keith Bridston

The general planning chairman for the conference is Miss Margaret Flory, secretary for Student Work for the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. There are scholarships available for all overseas students.

Those interested in attending this conference, which is perhaps "one of the most significant ecumenical encounters of students that has ever taken place in Christian history," should contact Gene Spickerman, Shirley Peterson, Dickie Coker, or Winifred Kie.

Hampton's Article Appears In "Good Housekeeping"

James W. Hampton, Maryville's Public Relations Secretary, has written an article of current interest entitled, "How to Finance a College Education."

In it he states the various opportunities for work or financial assistance which are available for college students. He writes that it is possible for all those except freshman (who should not have to depend upon self-financing) to earn most of their way through school.

Mr. Hampton sent his article in to the staff in June, because it had to be "battled over," proof read, etc., before it could appear in the October issue.

Another article of Mr. Hampton's which was written recently for the same magazine was 'warning! Do Your College Shopping Early.'

Morman Religion Is Topic For Christian Ed.

Amelia Maples will lead a discussion on the principles of the Morman religion at a meeting of the Christian Education club Monday evening at 6:45 in the Y Rooms. All those interested in any phase of Christian Education are invited to attend.

Officers of the organization are Margaret Connelly, president; Amelia Maples, program chairman; and Mary Anne Worley, secretary-treasurer. Miss Matilda Cartledge, instructor in Christian Education, is faculty sponsor.

YWCA And YMCA Plan Hikes Next Weekend

New Providence Church To Honor College Students

Maryville College students will receive a special welcome at New Providence Church tomorrow as it observes its "hospitality Sunday."

Those participating in the service besides Dr. Pritchard, who will deliver the sermon, are: Mr. Joe Gamble, chairman of the Maryville College board of directors, who will read the scripture; and Charles Rogers and Bob Finertie, presidents of the college Sunday school classes, who will, respectively, read the responsive reading and lead prayer. Chris Ward and Harold O'Bannon are co-chairmen of the committee of college students who will be ushering and receiving the offering.

After the morning service the college students will be invited to the homes of members of the congregation for Sunday dinner.

Fellowships Are For Mexican Study

November 1, 1955, is the closing date for application for graduate fellowships for study in Mexico during 1956, it was announced today by Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City. One month remains in which to apply for the fellowships which are offered to American students by the Mexican Government.

The awards, which are given through the Mexico-United States Commission on Cultural Cooperation, are for the academic year beginning March 1, 1956.

Eligibility requirements for the Mexican Government awards are U.S. citizenship, knowledge of Spanish, a good academic record, a valid project or purpose, and good health. Preference will be given to graduate students, but undergraduates (juniors and seniors) are also eligible for awards.

Fields of study especially recommended for graduate candidates are architecture, Indian and physical anthropology, ethnology, archaeology, museography, art (painting—for advanced students), biological sciences, Mexican history. Candidates with an M.D. degree may receive training at the National Institute of Cardiology and the Institute of Tropical Medicine, Mexico City.

Applicants may write for information to the U. S. Student Department of the Institute of International Education, the agency which administers the Mexican Government awards.

Newfound Gap, Montvale Are Campsites

The Y hikes will be held on Saturday, October 15 and Sunday, October 16.

The YWCA is leaving Saturday afternoon and will be back on Sunday morning. Their destination is Montvale Springs. The cost for those who wish to go will be $1.75. Sign up sheets are in the dormitories.

Mary Brasfield and Nancy Jones, chairmen of the YWCA social committee, are in charge of arrangements.

The YMCA is having Newfound Gap as its camp site. On Saturday there will be a hike to Charlie's Bunyon and on Sunday a hike to Mount Le Conte. The hike will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, and end at 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

There are approximately 45 men going on the hike, and it will cost $1.75 a piece. Co-chairmen are John Borter and Bill Potter.

Playhouse Names Committees For Its First Play

A meeting of the various committees of the forthcoming Playhouse productions, "The Taming of the Shrew" was held last Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 in the theatre. They are as follows:

Properties: Wendy Wood, chairman, Joan Johnston, Fred Kay, Elaine Bowman, Tommy Moose, Nancy Campbell, Paula Jean Shaffer, Carol Morgan, Sylvia Sue Tourtellotte, and Judy Trnavsky.

Marcia Williams will act as stage manager, and Morris Netherton will assist Mr. John Griffin as technical director.

Rehearsals for the production have already begun, under the direction of Miss Kathleen Craven, and the various committees will begin work almost immediately.

Monday afternoon, at 3:00, the set crew will meet on the stage of the theatre for preliminary instruction on th operation of the counter-weight system; and the costume committee will meet at 4:00 the same afternoon.

Dr. Lloyd Attends Church Conference

President Ralph W. Lloyd was in Pittsburgh for a preliminary conference on union by representatives of the Presbyterian Church in the USA and the United Presbyterian Church of North America.

Last year the Presbyterian Church in the U S (Southern) voted not to enter such a union. The two churches conferring in Pittsburgh will revise the plan with a view to voting on the question of going forward with a union without the Southern church. Dr. Lloyd remained in Pittsburgh through Thursday for a meeting of the General Board of the National Council of Churches of which he is a member.

Dodgers Beat Yanks In Series

The Brooklyn Dodgers won their first World Series title this past week when they defeated the New York Yankeees four games to three.

Johnny Podres pitched the Brooks to victory over the Yankees 2-0 in the seventh and deciding game of the series. Gil Hodges, the Brooks' first baseman, scored the first run for the Dodgers when he singled in Roy Campanelle in the bottom of the fourth. The second Dodger run was an unearned run scored in the bottom of the sixth.

It was an uphill battle for the Dodgers, as they were playing at Yankee Stadium rather than at Ebbetts Field.

Walter Alston, first of 20 managers to pilot the Brooks into a World Championship position, modestly predicted his team would be even stronger next year than the one which whipped the Yankees.

Roland Timothy Moore Starts Early Toward Musical Career

By Sue Tourtellotte

"The Duet is now a Trio"

Roland Timothy Moore weighed in at eight pounds, three ounces, and was 20½ inches tall when he put in his appearance at Worcester, Ohio. on August 22. He timed his arrival just right, for the 22nd is also Mr. Ralph Moore's birthday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore are with the music department at Maryville. Mr. Moore is our band director and is responsible for the rousing marches heard at the football games.

Perhaps you are wondering if Roland Timothy has inherited any of his parents' musical ability. Well, you might recall that Roland was the hero of many romantic tales of the Charlemagne cycle, including the famous "Song of Roland." Mr. Moore says that young Roland has a song all of his own. When he feeds, he hums a little song–in the key of C, and when he inhales, he can even go an octave lower.

An Experienced Traveler

At the age of two weeks, Tim, as his parents call him, was a seasoned traveler, having come over 500 miles to Maryville from Ohio. The Moore's now like to call themselves "The Three R's, and as it says on Tim's birth announcements– "The Duet is Now a Trio."

Echo Schedule

The Echo will not appear next week. The next regularly-scheduled issue will come out October 22. Publication dates for the remainder of the semester are as follows: November 5 (Homecoming), November 19, December 3, December 10, and December 17.

Don't Miss Your Chance To See The Smokies In Their Fall Colors

By Jim Hopkins and Mary Morrell

..... Hiking, one of the favorite leisure-time sport features at Maryville, affords the opportunity for week-end hikes to the nearby Smokies .... ("Going-to-College Handbook," Vol. 10, page 43.)

Have you been hiking in the Smokies yet? If so, you are probably a local or town student, or else one of your best friends (or a favorite faculty member) is.

The annual, once-a-year Y Hike is the only real College-wide opportunity for legal hiking in the mountains, aside from the Sunday School picnics.

But, you students who chose to come here, a great distance from your homes, did any such artical as the one quoted above influence your choice? That's what THIS article is about.

Now that you are here, you can observe for yourself why students cannot visit the Smokies frequently..... No available transportation, not even buses ..... Classes half the day on Saturdays, and ..... rules.

Anyhow, the presence of the mountains cannot be ignored. They're real — believe it or not. And, if you ever get there, the experiences, the sounds, the sights, smells, the very solitude and strength of them will become as much a part of you as their volume has become a part of the surface of the earth. They'll be inside you to stay. You'll never lose them.

— all your memories may not be pleasant, you may get rained on, or sunburned, or have a few sore muscles, but the price is a small one. In fact, it adds to the overall memory. And if this hasn't been persuasive enough — just think — Davy Crockett went hiking in the Smokies.

But now, let's look more seriously at the mountains. The Park

Time's A'wasting. . .

Do you realize that over a month of this semester has already become a part of history? If the calendar seems to lie, look at the signs of the times: we have had our second football game—Messiah try-outs will be next week—and the schedule for final examinatiions has been posted. If that isn't enough to make you realize the passof time, look at all the material you have covered in classes thus far.

You have now had time to adjust to your schedule of classes and extra-curricular activities, so it would seem, then, that now is the time for a personal evaluation of your progress this semester: what is your goal? how are you going about reaching it? and most important of all, will you reach it? The answer depends upon you and your attitude.

Not enough of the semester has elapsed that you still do not have time to correct past mistakes; on the other hand, enough time has passed that you cannot afford to slack up on your work. If you have not developed a serious attitude toward your objectives and a respect for the study time of others, now is the time to change.

College is mixture of many experiences that contribute to the development of character and desirable habits. Are you getting the most out of your college education?

Artist Series . . . Don't Miss This Opportunity

If you already have your Artist Series tickets for the season, then the following thoughts are not directed to you. Instead, these thoughts are directed to those students who have decided not to spend he breath-taking amount of seventy-five cents, and I have heard some voice just such an opinion. Where else in this country is one given the opportunity to hear such worthwhile and famous entertainers at such a price? Have you really stopped to consider that each program is actually costing you a little less than nineteen cents and an activity card? People in town are paying two dollars per program to hear these same entertainers.

An education cannot be gleaned entirely from books, a good percentage of it comes from other sources which the individual himself must recognize. This is one of those sources. Stop and think again if you really want to miss the opportunities afforded by these series.

What Are We Doing About Civil Defense!

In beginning of this editoriial I assume two things: One, that you all know what Civil Defense is—and two, that you know the purpose of it.

Now, I'd like to ask you two questions. One, do you know what a priority target is? And two, did you know that this area, with the Oak Ridge, McGhee-Tyson air base and Alcoa, constitutes priority target number five. This means that if an invader decides to attack the U. S., that this area would be the fifth target. In other words, We would have as much chance of coming through an air attack on this country without damage, as does the proverbial snow ball in the summertime.

This is a serious problem and to find the answer the Student Council has put an efficient committee into action. The present plans, although not definite are, first, to have Col. Paine, the commander of the Knoxville filter center, present a program here in chapel to give you a first-hand account of the need for such a program and to tell you just how the college students will fit in with his plans. Another factor in the planning of the Council is to hold training sessions among groups of the student body to prepare them in case of an emergency.

This is a serious thing and it must not be laughed at. Civil Defense is a program of self preservation. Think of Civil Defense seriously; think of it actively, not passively; if you are asked to take part in a demonstration, then do so the practice may save a life. . . YOURS.

Scots & Soda

By Joanne Causey

So often you hear people making fun of professors. They say they're absent minded, all wrapped up in their books—that nothing romantic ever happens to them. Well, I'm here to prove all these statements false. Once the bell rings and classes are over, that prof you call an old fuddy-duddy may undergo a complete metamorphosis. Once he lays aside his textbooks and locks his office up for the day, he may become an entirely different person. To prove my point, I'd like to relate to you the thrilling true love-stories of two scholars and show you that romance can came to Ph.D.'s.

Homeloving Humphrey

Let's begin with the tender tale of Humphrey Annelida of the biology department. We join him as he winds his way homeward after a long day of explaining the differences between cilia and flagella to some sixty inquiring young souls. Yes, our Humphrey is tired; his pseudopods are aching with fatigue, but one thought cheers him as he motors home—his beloved Esmerelda will be there at the back door waiting to greet him when he arrives. You see, without a microscope, Humphrey's vision is considerably less than 20-20, and thus he always stumbles over the garbage can as he comes up the back walk. When Esmerelda hears the familiar crash she always knows her Humphrey is home and goes to the door.

On this day, Humphrey enters and says, 'Esme, I brought you a little surprise." His loving wife says, "Oh, darling, you shouldn't have—you know you're saving for those new osmosis charts." With eager fingers she tears open the wrappings and there it lies in all its glory—that rare amoeba slide that she had been wishing for. With tears of gratitude in her multicolored eyes, she whispers, "Oh, Hump, just what I wanted. By the way, I've got a surprise for you, too—your favorite dinner of spiragyra casserole."

"Esme," said Humphrey, "It grieves me to think that you've been bending over that hot incubator all afternoon for me." They smile at each other tenderly and she leaves the room to put the finishing touches on the dinner. Shortly thereafter, they sit down to a cozy dinner for two by the romantic light of a Bunsen Burner.

Then There's The English Department . . .

Reluctant as we are, let's tiptoe away from this beautiful scene of marital bliss and glance in on Dr. Henry Cloudwalker of the English department. On this glorious sunny day, we find Cloudwalker on his way home from his 3:30 class. He enters his rose-covered cottage and calls softly, "Mabel, Mabel, wherefore art thou?" And the object of his affections answers in her sweet voice that sounds so much like a yodel, "In the kitchen filing my nails and listening to the World Series."

Cloudwalker rushes to her side and whispers, "Mabel, I brought thee a token from yon village." His love replies, "Well, what did you lug home this time, Henry?" When Henry murmurs, "Light of my life"——Mabel interrupts gently, "Drat it, dem Bums just hit a home run!" Henry continues, "Light of my life, I've brought thee the complete works of Wordsworth." At this point, Mabel is so overcome with emotion that she goes back to her comic book and chews her gum faster than ever.

Mabel Sets The Table

A little later, Mabel calls poetically, "Come and git it." And the two sit down to a delicious repast of hamburgers and cokes. The radio is playing romantic music in the background. Suddenly, that gentle, melodious tune, "Dance with me, Henry," comes on and Mabel, with tears in her eyes from drinking her coke too fast, says haltingly, with her mouth full of hamburger, "Henry, they're playing our song."

Ah, these are love stories that the poets will sing of in ages to come. How prosaic the movies seem in comparison! Yes, Ph.D.'s can find romance and those briefcases may be full of love letters.

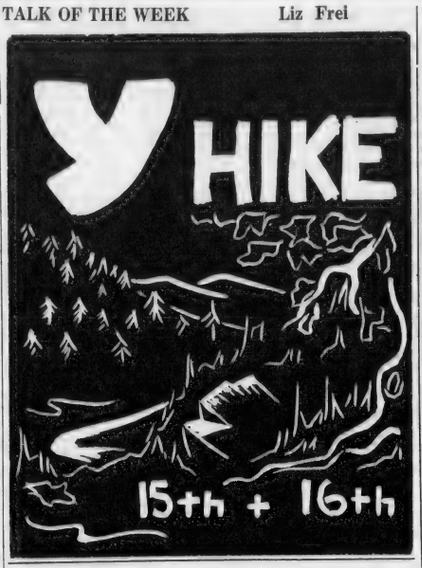
Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By SUSAN PARKINSON

This column is dedicated this week to those students (?) who never have anything to do and would like to find something to occupy their time. So here goes... Tonight is positively the last chance to see "Wyoming Renegade" at the Captiol.

Of course anyone that wouldn't be cheering at the game tonight well..... everybody just better be there and that's all there is to it. The Navy will entertain you in "Crest of the Wave," showing Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol.

Watercolor Exhibit



Or you can trot right over to see the new exhibit in the Fine Arts Center. It's free. The art department is presenting Leon Mead's watercolor collection in the art gallery every day except Sunday. Pay special attention to his interpretation of Jack and the Beanstalk. It's "modernistic" to say the least.

Of Course There Are Books

The library is just full of books (new ones) waiting to be read. An interesting new book is "Why Johnny Can't Read" by Rudolf Flesch, an aroused parent who went to the trouble of finding out. "Johnny can't read," Dr. Flesch concludes, "for the simple reason that nobody ever showed him how." The book contains step-by-step instructions for teaching children to read at home. It might be useful.

For those who can read, "Run Silent, Run Deep" by Commander Edward L. Beach, U.S.N. is a dramatic war novel which tells the story of the silent service of the submarine crews which destroyed the Japanese merchant marine in World War II. This book will take its place along with "Ballte Cry" and "The Naked and The Dead."

Other Books

On the lighter side we have another delightful story by Paul Gallice. "Snowflake," is a simple allegory on the meaning of life.

For all you loyal Scotties the library offers "The Scotswoman" by Inglis Fletcher, an enjoyable novel of adventure and romance during the American Revolution.

Don't Forget

We hope you have all gotten your tickets for the Artist Series so you won't have to sit in your room and (horrors) study while everyone else is getting cultured.

DAVID AND GOLIATH

Centre College of Danville, Kentucky, looking more like Goliath than David, nevertheless, played David's role last Saturday night. It had a modern type sling-shot known in football terminology as the spit-T. For ammunition it used a heads-up draw play (delayed buck). Against this the Scotties drew their mighty but slow sword known as the single wing. You know the story, David won by a landslide.

—SCOTTIES FORGET—

The Scotties forgot that football must be played with the mind as well as with the body. It must be stated, however, that Centre was a very under-rated team. They were fast, good, and clever players and a group of nice guys.

—QUESTION OF THE WEEK—

When does a team add a passing attack to its excellent ground game? Answer—No one seems to know around here. If a team does not use an effective air attack, then the fans can expect to see plenty of the eight and nine man defensive lines with which Jacksonville State and Centre College stopped us. Let's take to the air this week!

—TONIGHT'S GAME—

Tonight's game will undoubtedly be a highly interesting one. East Tennessee State has not gotten off to a very good start either, so "Hello, you might just as well figure on playing a fast, hard game, boys." They want this one, but so do we. It looks like a game which will be decided by whichever team wants it the most. Let's have everybody out to see our boys stop State's split T.

——Bow Wow

—THE BUMS WIN—

Brooklyn's still celebrating the upset World Series win of their Dodgers. Them Bums certainly took their time winning their first Series. The victory was even sweeter, of course, because it was over the Yankees. In true Mrriwell fashion they came back after losing the first two games to sweep three before blowing the sixth, then Podres put the lights out for the Yankees with a beautifully pitched shut out. The Dodgers joined the Yankees of 1921 as the only teams to win a World Series after dropping the first two games. Congrats to the Dodgers for a gerat season and a wonderful Series.

AS I SEE IT....

By Jim McCall

The game isn't over until the last man is out. This seems such a simple phrase, yet it is full of truth and can teach us all a lesson—players and fans alike. One of the greatest pastimes of sports men, active or passive, is second-guessing. Even the players review the action of the game thinking what could have been done that would have brought victory or a rout of the opponent.

The Drug-Store Quarterback also reviews the game and expounds his priceless piece of philosophy like a politician on a stump in early November on election year. Don't get me wrong, it's such rights and privileges that make these United States the greatest country in the world, and I mean no slander toward the multitude of Drug Store Quarterbacks; I'd much rather have them rant and rave than stay away on Saturday nights entirely. Lionel Hampton couldn't do much rockin' and rollin' to an empty dance floor. A great deal of inspiration comes from the spectators themselves, and Saturday night from the noise of the cheering section it seemed there must have been thousands of rooters in those stands—great job, folks, keep it up.

The alibi is another great weapon of defense in face of hard times, and nowadays you hear them all; it's hard to find a new excuse for failure.

That part of the framework of the sports would be what it may—I am neither second-guessing nor alibiing for Saturday night's loss. We lost 17 to 0, if you have forgotten (I have been trying to for a week), in what was probably the worst exhibition of Maryville College football seen here in years, and I do mean years. After our fine showing against Jacksonville one week prior, it tastes about three times worse, if that is possible. Centre had a fine ball club that played with determination and finesse, but face facts, we were terribly flat. Dig that for an alibi! 'Nuff said.

All this rambling has been for one purpose: we have six games left and that last man is a long way from being out. We have had a bad inning, and one early slip—event two—doesn't always mean losing the Series—look at the Dodgers!

Stick with us fans, as you did Saturday night, and we will show you some football as football has been well taught here for the past 35 years.

Right, team?

Buccaneers And Scots Meet on Honaker Field

Centre Defeats Scotties 17-0

Colorful Highlander Band Makes Appearance

Last Saturday night Coach Lombe Honaker's hard-fighting Highlander eleven fell before the onslaught of the powerful Praying Colonels of Centre College, 17-0. Coach Briscoe Inman's amazing squad baffled the Scotties with its varied and deceptive plays into the line as well as its long end sprints.

Split Tee

The Scotties were once again downed by the split tee as the Colonels time and again spun into the line on the "belly play." The Centre backs had weight as well as speed as many of our linemen can testify.

Pre Game Activities

The Highlander Marching Band decked out in their authentic Scottish Kilts started the proceedings of the evening as they formed a capitol rotunda and played "In the Gloamin," as Miss Kathy Garrison, this year's band sponsor, was presented to the student body. Miss Garrison was driven onto the field in a 1956 Ford convertible by Jim Cummings, co-chairman of the pep committee. Miss Mary Brasfield drum majorette, presented Miss Garrison with an enormous bouquet of flowers. Miss Garrison was then driven off the field to the applause of the entire student body.

First Half

There was no scoring in the first half. The Praying Colonels dominated play and there was no chance for the Scotties to score.

Half Time Activities

The Scottie Marching Band took the field once again for their half time performance. For their first maneuver the band formed the letter "C" within an "O" while playing "My Old Kentucky Home." honoring Centre's home state.

Next, they formed a cap and feather and played "Yankee Doodle," for the benefit of the yankees present. Then to satisfy the rebels in attendance they formed a cotton bale and played "Dixie."

Lastly, they formed the familiar initials MC and played our Alma Mater.

Second Half

In the middle of the third period H. G. Reed set up the first scoring threat on a 46-yard dash. Gene Scott then scampered through right guard for the first tally of the game for the Colonels. Steele Harman converted to make it 7-0.

At the end of this same quarter Steele Harmon's educated toe added three more points to Centre's endeavor when he kicked a 24-yard field goal In the fourth period H. G. Reed added insult to injury when he added another six points to the Colonels mounting score. Steele Harmon once again successfully converted for Centre.

Blocked Kicks

Certainly Ted Wilson deserves mention for his "heads up" ballplaying in that he blocked and partially blocked two of Centre's kicks.

Summary:

Centre	0	0	10	7

Centre scoring – Touchdowns: Scott 1 (6 yards, run). Reed 1 (2 yards, plunge). Field goals: Harmon 1 (24 yards). Conversions: Harmon 2.

Scotties After First Victory

By Bob Evans

At 8 p. m. tonight the Highlanders will clash with Coach Star Wood's highly -ranked Buccaneers of East Tennessee State. Coach Honaker's Scotties will step on to the field tonight with a two game losing streak and with high expectations of breaking that streak.

The Buccaneers will undoubtedly be aiming to duplicate last year's performance when they dumped the Scotties 20-14. The Highlanders, on the other hand, WORE A GLOVE will be out to upset State as they did in 1953.

Let's get out there, support our team and help them break into the win column.

Parties

A delicious look of astonishment was on the face of Aline Stevenson last Tuesday night when she was surprised with a birthday party in her room. A lighted cake was brought in by twelve of her friends who sang "Happy Birthday." Following all formalities, the cake was devoured immediately.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of "Doc (Griffitts?) Jocko" to the group. In case you don't know who Doc Jocko is, he is a stuffed baby monkey that Aline received from her parents.

Boys, I wonder if y'all have noticed us gals have taken to stealing your fashion of khakis? Khakis, expecially when teamed with the color red, are the rage for college gals this year. We shore do like 'em and we hope that y'all don't mind.

Gals did y'all know that it is now permissible to wear your shirts out? A new style of blouse now in the stores is the over-blouse - it's made to fit neatly about the hips. They look casual, but not sloppy.

A semiretired classic now coming into the fashion picture is the blazer. They are very good-looking with a straight skirt, and with Bermuda shorts or a Bermuda walking -skirt, they reeeeeeeeally look sharp.

Some night when your fashion reporter isn't so sleepy, she promises to write to a big huge article on fashions in style at Maryville and in the good old U.S. But before she goes to sleep, just one word in parting--Boys! Go buy some Bermudas and knee socks for yourselves ya just gotta be in style and keep up with the times

SIG Personalities - Bill Strickland

By Bob Hassall

No stranger to students at Maryville College is smiling, congenial Bill Strickland. Playing his third year of varsity football this season Bill packs such a wallop in the line that few opposing players care to tangle with him. Standing six feet six inches tall and weighing 225 lbs., Bill has definitely proved an asset to the Highlanders and will continue to do so this year.

Football has always been Bill's favorite sport. In high school in St. Petersburg, Florida, he received the coveted award for the outstanding athlete on his team. This was certainly quite an honor for Bill. When he was asked what his outstanding sports thrill was, Bill thought for a while and then replied that it was his interception in the ETSC game last year. A look into the records reveals that this pass interception not only netted Maryville a touchdown and Bill forty-five yards, but it was also an incident to be remembered in the annals of Maryville football.

Taking part in many extra-curricular activities requires quite a bit of time, and Bill sometimes finds it hard to find time to study. (?) Besides being vice-president of Alpha Sigma he belongs to Student Council and is a member of the Student Faculty Senate.

Rounding out his personality we find that Bill really goes for steak and French fries in the food department and rhythm and blues in the music department. Bill frequents the movies quite often and, like most other male movie-goers, admits Grace Kelly is his favorite actress.

Best wishes, Bill Strickland, in your final year at Maryville College and in the following years in your career after graduation. You're a real friend, and we like you!

The highlight of the faculty club meeting, which was held last Monday night, was the presentation by Miss Carolyn Louis Blair, assistant professor of English, of a paper entitled "Shakespeare and the Victorians."

Plans Are Underway For Homecoming Nov. 5

Services, Parade, Game Featured In Day's Events

This year at Homecoming students and alumni everywhere are remembering Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd's 25 years at Maryville.

The speaker at the Annual Founder's Day service will be of national renown and will speak about the Lloyd's 25 years here, and about small colleges in general.

The parade and floats will represent highlights of their stay here. The Pep committee under the direction of Doug Brian and Jim Cummings is in charge of the floats.

Homecoming Queen

At the Student Body meeting Thursday morning Miss Marcia Williams and Miss Betty McKenney were chosen as candidates for Homecoming Queen. Miss Williams is a Drama major from Peeskill, New York. Miss McKenney is a Home Ec. Major from Beaver, Pennsylvania. The girl who wins the title will choose her attendants, who will also be from the senior class.

Alumni Barbecue

The annual Barbecue will be be given by the Alumni Association on the football field. Alumni in charge are Ernest Coldwell and Ernest Lowe, barbecue; Mrs. Lester Olin and Mrs. James Cornett, serving; Mrs. W. C. Frische and Albert Dockter, reception committee.

Die Deutsche Gesellschafft Elects New Officers

The following slate of officers were elected in Die Deutsche Gesellschafft for the 1955 semester.

Der Prasident: Don Adams; Der Vizeprasident: Richard Crowder; Die Schreiberstelle: Carol Lee Williams; Der Zahlmeister: Robert Krogh.

Program Committee Chairman Richard Crowder and his committee have indicated a varied program for the semester. Through the cooperation of Herr Reber, Der Facultat Ratgeber, Die Deutsche Gessellschafft has obtained films dealing with Germany, including the classic Wilhelm Tell. Membership in this cultural organization consists of 20 at present.

Those interested lin joining are asked to contact club officers.

The next meeting is Monday, October 24th at 6:45 p.m. in Herr Reber's classroom, Anderson Hall.

Messiah Soloists Are Announced

The soloists in Handel's Messiah to be presented on December 11 have been chosen. The following are to sing the soprano solos: Mary H. McEver, who will sing four recitatives, "There were shepherds abiding in the field," "And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them," "And the angel said unto them," and "And suddenly there was with the angel"; Ginny Ginavan, who will sing the Air, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion"; Mary Ann Pakosh, who will sing "Come unto Him" and Zona Gogel, who will sing "I Know that my Redeemer liveth."

The following will be singing the Alto solos: Carol Lee Lacey—Recitative "Behold, a virgin shall conceive" and Air "O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion"; Bobbye Carson—Air "He shall feed His flock like a shepherd" and Recitative "Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened," and Liz Murphy—Air "He was Despised."

The tenors and their solos are: Robert Moses, Recitative "Comfort ye my people"; Harold Mays, "Every valley shall be exalted"; Perry Fuller, Recitative "Thy rebuke hath broken His heart" and Air "Behold, and see if there be any sorrow"; and Sidney Tedford, Recitative "He was cut off out of the land of living." Air "But Thou didst not leave His soul in hell", Recitative "He that dwelleth in heaven," and Air "Thou shalt break them."

Dick Morse, Recitative "Thus saith the Lord" and Air "But who may abide the day of His coming?"; and Howard Bell, Recitative "For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth" and Air "The people that walked in barkness" are the two bass soloists and solos.

The choir is composed of about 200 students and townspeople.

Theta To Have Cookout Tonight In College Woods

Theta Epsilon will meet in the College Woods this evening at 5:00 for a cookout and a campfire program. The Freshmen are in charge of the fun; sophomores are taking care of the finances; juniors are preparing the food; and the seniors are taking a much needed break from the routine of special studies.

FAC Music Library Open To Students

By WEBB GENTRY

The students of Maryville College are invited to visit the Fine Arts Center music library and to play any records they wish. The library is open from 6:30 to 7:30 P.M. on any evening except Saturday and Sunday. There is a wide collection of modern, impressionistic, and classical music in the library which would make interesting listening for anyone. Students are urged to come by and try a record suited to their own individual taste.

Recital Presented Tuesday

The college music department presented its regular Tuesday afternoon recital on October 18th at 4:30 p.m. The following students performed: Louise Ogden, pianist playing "Intermezzo," Opus 19, by Brahms; Richard Morse, bass, accompanied by Myrna Ginaven, singing "Der Doppelganger," by Schubert; Myrna Ginaven, pianist, playing "Intermezzo," and "Badllade," both by Brahms; and Maryel Vogel, organist, playing "Carillion," by Vierne. The next recital will be held in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall November 1 at 4:30. All interested students are invited to attend.

Elnora Negroni And Winifred Kie Tell Impression To Echo Reporter

By Joanne Causey

I found Elnora Negroni with a delighted smile on her face listening to rhumba music. "Remind you of someone?" I asked, feeling certain that Xavier Cugat's band alone couldn't produce such a rapturous expression. "Ah, yes," she told me, "It reminds me of a boy back home who just graduated from the University of Puerto Rico. He likes to dance, especially the bolero. The bolero? It's, oh . . . . well, the rhythm. . . . . You see, in the mambo or rhumba, the couple is separated, but in the bolero, not too close. . . . but then not too far apart either."

We turned from this fascinating subject to Elnora's arrival in this country. "My father went to Cornell and always said that if he ever had a daughter, he wanted her to have the same opportunity. His dream came true and here I am. I love it just as much as he did, too. The people here are so nice, so patient when I make a mistake with their language." She added that when she goes home, all the boys say they "want to date Elnora, because she goes to the States to school." It seems that it is considered quite an honor to attend college in the U.S.

Elnora's first two years in this country were spent attending Warren Wilson College, near Asheville, North Carolina. That first Christmas she went home only for five days, but "it was worth the trip. When I landed at San Juan, I was so thrilled to hear all the porters shouting and and talking in Spanish. I wasn't lonely any longer, even though no one was there to meet me yet."

"Christmas at home is so different—Church on Christmas eve, singing in the plaza, a big dinner at midnight. What kind of food? Ah, pasteles. They are like your pie only with meat filling and green bananas. You ought to taste the ones my mother makes."

Elnora's home is a five minute walk from the beach. "You can see the ocean from my front door. It is always warm enough there for swimming. We don't have furnaces or any winter clothes like you wear here. We also like to hike—especially up to an old Spanish fortress high in the mountains. It is so beautiful there—you can see many mountains lin the distance, little towns with red-roofed houses, and far, far below, the ocean, shimmering in the sun."

Elnora put on another rhumba record and I departed, wondering when the next plane left for Puerto Rico.

Another of our foreign students is Winifred Kie.

One day Winifred was telling her high school teacher in Indonesia how much she would like to go to college in the United States, "I'll never get there, though, because it costs so much," she added. "Well, why don't you apply for a scholarship at the U.S. Information Bureau?" her teacher asked. Winifred applied immediately, but months passed, and she received no answer. "Finally, she told me, "I gave up hope and made plans to attend night school in my home

BASIN RATHBONE will appear here next Thursday night in the first Artist Series program of the year. He will star with Helen Gahagan Douglas in "One Plus One."

Students Form New Camera Club

The organizational meeting of the newly-formed Camera Club was held at 7:30 P.M. this past Thursday. At that time a constitution was drawn up and voted upon.

Jim Smith, who did most of the work in organizing the club, will serve as temporary chairman until officers have been elected.

Mr. Dan Kinsinger and Mr. Richard Beard, both avid lens snappers, will fill the capacity of faculty advisors of the new club.

Any one interested in joining the club should see Mr. Beard, Mr. Kinsinger or Jim Smith, or come to the meetings which will be held on the first and third Thursdays of every month at 7:30 to 9:30 in the band room of the FAC. The only requirement for membership in the club is a sincere interest in photography.

Students Hear Jackman In Recent Chapel Service

On Wednesday, October 12, Rev. J. Earl Jackman spoke at the chapel service. He is the Secretary of Sunday School Extension Work for the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Social Committee Announces Plans For Fall Semester

The social committee of Maryville College has made its plans for the first semester of this school year. Tonight the Highlanders will play the U.T. Freshmen in football. Other dates and activities include October 29 — the Experimental Theatre play and the Alpha Sigma hike; October 31—the class parties given by the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, with the seniors invited to visit; also a square dance sponsored by the junior class with everyone invited;

November 5—Homecoming, the game with Carson-Newman, and a dance afterward sponsored by the M Club; November 12—a soccer game, the all-star (intramural) football game under the lights on Honaker Field, and later that evening a swim-meet between the four societies; November 19—the play "Taming of the Shrew"; November 26—a movie purchased by the social committee to be shown in the theater of the chapel. December 3—the Fall Dance sponsored by Bainonian and Kappa Phi; December 10—probably a basketball game and wrestling match.

The purpose of the social committee is to provide an adequate and varied social program for the student body of Maryville College. Faculty members of the committee are: Dr. Hunter, Dean McClelland, Dean Massey, Miss Strick, and Miss Johnson. Student members are: Bill Dent, Jim Conklin, Bruce Ingles, Ruth Nelson, Jo Brooks, and chairman Dick Henderson.

Dr. Copeland To Lead Vespers

Doctor Joseph J. Copeland of the Second Presbyterian Church of Knoxville will speak at vespers tomorrow evening at 7:00 in the chapel. Doctor Copeland led the February Meetings in 1954.

Reverend William Yost of the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Knoxville was the guest speaker at the vesper service on October 16.

Y Hikers Have Chilly Time In The Mountains

YWCA Goes To Montvale

By Carolyn Cones

The theme song for this year's Y.W.C.A. hike at Montvale was "Brrr, It's a Cold Day". Actually the title of this tender melody is a bit misleading, since the night was somewhat on the cold side too; however, the girls did not let the weather chill (or dampen) their enthusiasm, as they responded to the call of the great-out-of-doors.

Almost everyone came prepared for the cool(ed) mountain air. In fact, an informal contest revealed that four of the hardy pioneers showed up with six layers of clothing, no less. Our own Miss Massey again demonstrated her far-sightedness when she admitted being a member of this quartet.

A few brave souls spent the night under the stars; a few more than this slept out in tents and, exhibiting their girl scout skills, even baked apples in tin foil. The rest of the group slept in those nice warm cabins that are open on one side.

Three White Star bus loads of girls were greeted by a reception committee of one — a friendly black puppy that everyone loved immediately.

All during the first day the sky was overcast, and it even drizzled just before the hike to the top of the mountain. This discouraged some of the outdoor enthusiasts, but a number showed the true pioneer spirit and went anyhow. A worship service was held at the top on some huge rocks which afforded a view of the valley and surrounding mountains.

YMCA Hikes To Smokies

By Ed Drum

The men of the Y. M. C. A., some thirty strong, left the campus last Saturday afternoon with light hearts and cumbersome packs. The reason for such doings? The men of "Y" were going out into the Smokies to find cold. (Cold—a biting, snowy, swirling thing—was said to be somewhere in these mountains.)

The jolly Y's Guys left campus at 1:30 p.m. in various and assorted vehicles and were in such manner transported to Newfound Gap, a good many miles from Maryville and a good many degrees cooler.

Upon arriving at the Gap, the hikers left their automobiles and trucks, divided up the food and packs, and after a brief look at the breathtaking view from the Gap, began their long climb to Ice-water Springs.

The Y's Guys arrived at the Springs at about 5:45 p.m. The darkness was upon them before the evening meal was prepared. This was a big help to the cooks, as the hikers could not see what they were eating.

By 7:00 all the Y's Guys were tucked into their cold bed (rolls), trying to keep warm and at the same time, listening to portable radios, their only link with civilization. All they could get, however, were weather reports saying that it would get colder as the night went on.

It was about this time that Cold came boldly into camp bringing ice and snow.

Several men were rather chill-

A Trio Of Duets Will Be Presented Saturday At Experimental Theatre

By BILL DEERFIELD

The Experimental Theatre, a division of the Maryville College Playhouse, will present as its fall production, "A Trio of Duets" on Oct. 29, at 7:30 in the Theatre.

As the title suggests, the performance will consist of three scenes, taken from three plays, each scene involving a man and a woman.

Betty Messer wil direct the meeting scene from Rudolph Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" the love story of Elizabeth and Robert Browning. Tom Paton and Silvia Smith will enact the scene which will be done in Victorian costume and setting.

Mrs. Helen Murphy will direct a scene from the domestic comedy "The Four Poster" by Jau de Hartog. Dave Gilliland as Michael and Marcia Williams as Agnes will recreate the roles originally portrayed by Hume Cronin and Jessica Tandy on the Broadway stage and on television.

This scene, played, as all others in the play, in the shadow of the four poster, concerns the suspicion of a middle aged couple tha their adolescent son has been "hitting the bottle."

Morris Netherton will direct a scene from "Private Lives," a sophisticated comedy by Noel Coward. The play involves an hilarious marital mix-up between two couples. The particular scene to be presented will feature Judy Trenavsky as Amanda and Jim Hopkins as Eliot.

There will be no admission fee charged or seats reserved for the performance.

Douglas and Rathbone To Appear Next Week

New Committee Is In Charge Of Organizations

The Student Organization Committee is a new committee which has been set up on campus this year. It takes the place of the old Interclub Council. This new organization is more compact than the old; in it all organizations are combined into groups. It is composed of a Student Council Chairman (Jo Brooks), and one representaitve from each of the four groups of clubs on campus: religious, social, honorary, and special interest. Other members may be appointed from the student body at large.

The Student Organization Committee is in charge of all initiation activities, and it also collects and files the financial reports and constitutions of all societies on campus. pplication for the formation of a new club must be made through this organization.

Discussion is underway now for an improvement in the methods used for signing up for organizations at the beginning of each year.

The Student Organization Committee is open for suggestions for improvement from any student. These may be made through their own organizations or may be made directly to the Student Organization Committee chairman.

Prof. Williams Beautifies Paths In College Woods

By Nancy McGeorge

Have you been to the college woods lately? If you have, then you have probably noticed the well-kept paths which run between the picnic grounds. These well-kept trails are the handiwork of Dr. Lyle Lyndon Williams, professor of biology.

This past summer, noticing the sad condition of our paths, Dr. Williams decided to beautify them once again. Having a great love for nature and for our woods in particular, he spent many enjoyable hours there trimming up the trails. When asked about his work, Dr. Williams stated that his only desire is that we, the students, frequent these paths more often and enjoy the beautiful sights of our college woods.

Other FAC Activities

The orchestra for the "Messiah" performance promises to be one of the best the college has seen in recent years. In last week's rehearsal were sixteen strings, nine brasses, nine woodwinds and one percussion. Still needed are one or two more cellos. It is encouraging to see a renewed interest in orchestra playing on our campus.

"One Plus One" Is First Program In Artist Series

By BOB EVANS

'One Plus One", the first in this year's Artist Series presentations, will be given at 8:15 P.M., Thursday, October 27.

Melvin Douglas, again faithful to show-business tradition, has taken time from his crowded rehearsal and performance schedule for the Broadway production of "Inherit the Wind", in which he replaced Paul Muni, to direct and supervise the entire production of "One Plus One" starring Basil Rathbone and Helen Gahagan Douglas. The production originally starred Mr. and Mrs. Douglas. However, Mr. Rathbone stepped in at the last minute to replace Mr. Douglas.

As there are three persons involved in the rehearsals for "One Plus One," so will there be three in the production. Mr. Rathbone and the Douglases have taken the liberty of borrowing from the Chinese theatre tradition, and there will appear on stage with them a mysterious character clad in dark clothes, who will assist the stars in making the production the excellent evening in the theatre that is anticipated.

Helen Gahagan Douglas was born in Boontown, New Jersey. A graduate of Barnard College she embarked upon her theatrical career immediately upon graduation. Her first professional appearance was in a play by Ferenc Molnar titled "Fashions For Men." In subequent years under the banners of William Brady, George Tyler, and David Belasco she appeared on Broadway in such plays as "Trelawney of the Wells," "Diplomacy," "Enchanted April," "Tonight or Never," "Moor Born," and the West Coast run of "Mary, Queen of Scotland." In more recent years she has appeared in revivals of T.S. Eliot's "Family Reunion" and at the New York City Center in "First Lady."

Also active in the field of opera she has appeared with the San Francisco and other opera companies singing such operas as "Tosca." "Aida," "Cavelieria Rusticana," "Man on Lescdut," and "Sister Angelica."

Mrs. Douglas was elected to the House of Representatives in 1944 and served in the 70th, 80th, and 81st sessions of the United States Congress.

She met and married Melvyn Douglas while they were both appearing on Broadway in "Tonight or Never." The Douglases have two children, Peter and Mary Helen.

One of the theatre's most distinguished actors, Basil Rathbone,

Business Club Has Battle With Nature

By a drenched member

The members of the Business Club along with their dates engaged in a joyful though somewhat damp picnic supper at Cades Cove on Friday evening the 7th of October.

The menu consisted of hot dogs on somewhat soggy buns, cole slaw, baked beans and soda pop.

If you have never enjoyed the sport of trying to roast a hot dog over an open fire in the driving rain with the said hot dog protruding from one end of a stick and you from the other and with the remaining hand gripping the handle of an umbrella, which is covering partly you and partly the fire, you may ask some of the members that were present to explain just how the feat is accomplished. Believe me it isn't easy.

After the dishes and silverware were properly burned and the fire put out by taking the umbrellas away from it, the members and their lucky ladies returned to the immortal, though dry halls of Maryville College campus.

Our Great American Mania

Americans have an uncanny knack for congregating and organizing into clubs. They love to attend monthly meetings, adopt platforms for reforming society and pay dues to the cause. And, when at the end of the year, they find an extra amount of money in their coffers, they will inevitably gather together and celebrate. A few souls may protest this extravagance, but when they consider that only $2.57 was spent all year for correspondence reminding members to attend meetings, they see that having a party is really the best way to use up the remaining $17.43.

Club members generally adopt some noble purpose toward which to direct their energies. Often, however, this goal changes in practice through the years until one day a worthy lady, upon looking into the constitution of her Wednesday afternoon bridge club, discovers that it was originally formed "To collect and send clothes to the pagan women in the darkest regions of Africa." She is faced with the dilemma of amending either the constitution or the customs of the club or else burning the document and forgetting about it.

This latter way out of the difficulty often proves the better for all concerned. If the club were to attempt amending its purpose, a lengthy and elaborate discussion would ensue. The liberals would want it changed to read: "This society shall meet every Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of discussing events of current interest and also playing bridge." The conservatives would fight for a more dignified statement of purpose: "This group, composed of respectable ladies, shall meet weekly to engage in profitable leisure-time activities." Then there would always be those few earnest and well-meaning socially-conscious souls who would propose something that would benefit not only themselves but the rest of humanity as well, such as "This club shall meet for the purpose of collecting and sending clothes to the pagan women in the darkest regions of Africa."

And so on and on. Sometimes a few enlightened club members will discern that the real purpose behind their club is not sound in the constitution at all. They discover that the reason a purpose is stated there is that it seems to provide an acceptable excuse for regular meetings (and the collection of dues). These people will render a tremendous service to their organization if they will throw the constitution to the winds and go ahead having a good time just as they were doing before they found out they should have a purpose for doing it. The other members are never any the wiser, and besides, they will continue paying their dues as before and will keep on having annual parties to celebrate. Thus they perpetuate a great American custom.

In Case Of Fire . . . .

The danger of fire is not to be overlooked at any time and any place on Maryville College campus.

Dormitories are considered most susceptible to fire because of the constant and varied use of electrical appliances at all hours of the day and night. Certain practices by the students themselves, especially in Carnegie Hall, have not reflected either good judgment or common sense.

The buildings have been protected as much as possible against a rapid spread of fire if one should start. Electrical fires and spontaneous combustion in the dormitories are unforeseen factors. Students, on the other hand, are the totally unknown quantity where a fire is concerned. It is not enough to say that Carnegie Hall has no fire drills, or that there iis no training in the use of fire-fighting equipment by specially selected men on each floor, but the greatest danger is not that of burning to death—it is the danger of dying as the result of mass panic.

The fire escapes on Carnegie Hall will hold about ten men at a time. However, in case of fire, students are directed to use only the stairways beginning with the top floor first, then third floor, and so on until the building is vacated.

All dormitories have the soda-acid type fire extinguishers good for most fires except those electrical in origin. These extinguishers are "rated" as to distance and position from each other according to the greatest hazard of fire.

The girl's dormitory fire escapes are usable but only as a last resort and with a certain number on at any one time. The window screens on entry ways to fire escapes in Pearson's Hall are fastened at the top, thus preventing exit in case of extreme emergency.

The elevator doors on each floor of Pearsons' is accessible by students. These doors should be secured and all litter removed from the basement.

The watchword is Caution—caution in plugging in too much heavy electrical equipment at one time—caution in using open flame of any kind near plastic curtains, cleaning fluid or any inflammable materials—caution in leaving irons plugged in on ironing boards.

The first Carnegie Hall blaze in 1916 and the Voorhees Chapel fire a few years ago became uncontrollable in the time it took to call the fire department. Students are reminded that personal possessions are not covered by fire insurance here at school. It is not up to the proctors and house mothers to keep continual watch on students' activities; rather, it is up to the students themselves to develop the responsibility and the judgment of how to live together safely. Think for yourself, not as part of a mob, and always be cautious. Fires are killing affairs.

THE SAGA OF HORTENSE HOSENPHEFFER

(Moonlight and Roses)

Hortense was born, one of fifteen kittens, in January. She grew up feeling neglected as both she and her mother were orphans. This tiny, closely-knit family had their residence in a picturesque setting, overlooking the city dump.

(Home, Sweet Home)

Life was hard for our heroine in those first harrowing months, as the modest family income did not provide for such necessities as television, Cadillac and furs.

Consequently, Hortense was a wall flower.

(Yellow Rose of Texas)

Deprived of television, Hortense was forced to seek an education elsewhere. Her high school career was very successful, as she was a real hepcat and graduated with highest honors, magna cum katnip.

(School days)

To complete her education, she naturally attended that world famous college for cool cats, Purrr-dew. She progressed rapidly until the day of comps, when, because she had been on the Y-hike and was catching cold, she sneezed. The prof. mistook it for the conjugation of a Russian verb and she was promptly and unceremoniously ousted.

Such ignominious disgrace! !

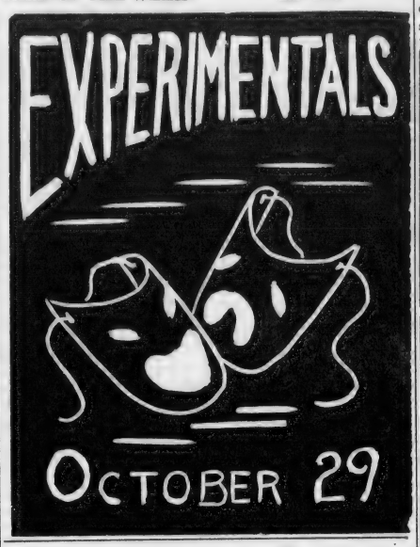
(I'm in the Doghouse, Now)

Poor dejected frustrated, disillusioned, unhappy Hortense limped back to the cosy warmth of her kittenhood home. Her mother, crushed by her educational blunder, slammed the door in her face so quickly that she caught one of Hortense's whiskers in it and dislocated it. Turned out by her mother, shunned by her boy-friend, Pierre, Hortense was forced to find refuge and inspiration elsewhere.

Hortense came to Maryville!

(Once to Every Man and Nation)

On the morning of October 18, she attended chapel. Dean McClelland, realizing her distinguished presence, announced her to the assembled multitude and she joined in the singing with Gusto (who's he?).



She, more than any other cat in the audience, received inspiration from the service. She left chapel resolved to lead a better life. Unfortunately, she had to leave campus suddenly, under threat of the paring knife. But, undaunted, she is now lecturing for Mice Anonymous.

(Pomp and Circumstance)

Ode to H.O.H.

Here's to thee, our little Hortense,
So fair of face, with so much sense.
Ophelia is your middle name.
Your one and only bid to fame.
From the city dump you came,
And that is where you got that name.
Pierre, your boy friend, Dutch, of course,
Of your grief, he was the source.
To Maryville you wend'd your way,
Such a shame you couldn't stay.
We'd rather have you say, "Adieu,"
Than see you get into a stew.
So here's to you, and may your life
Be scattered with mice and free from strife.

TALK OF THE WEEK Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joe McNeal

Of course, everyone knows that college students resent anything which takes them away from concentration on their studies; however, at the risk of being stoned and hissed off the campus, I have investigated the current means of forgetting studies for awhile and getting back down to earth for a little enjoyment.

Care For a Movie?

If you are among the faithful folk who each week make at least one pilgrimage to Maryville's two main-street movie houses, then you'll be interested to know that the Capitol is showing "The Lonesome Trail" and "Wakamba" this evening. The Park is answering with "Buffalo Stampede" and "Phantom of the Jungle." Through the week the Park will present "Gun Fury" (Monday), "Mobs Inc." (Tuesday and Wednesday), and "The Raid" (Thursday and Friday). The schedule for the Capitol was not available.

If you're not in the mood for cowboys and gangsters next week, then you can always go down to the Fine Arts Center and stroll through the art gallery. If you don't care for the paintings, stroll around outside and marvel for awhile at the extraordinary imagination architects have these days.

What About Books?

Perhaps none of these alternatives will suit you. If not, then you can always stop by that large section of Thaw Hall known as the library. In the final analysis you couldn't find a better way to spend your spare time than reading. Here you find education coupled with enjoyment. If you prefer some modern-day reading to the classics, the library is adding new books almost every day. Here are a few of the recent ones:

"Marjorie Morningstar" by Herman Wouk is the long awaited new novel by the author of "The Caine Mutiny." Wouk's newest effort is quite different from that last big hit. "Marjorie Morningstar" is the long story of a stage-struck girl growing into maturity and of the people she meets along the way. Wouk pauses frequently in his story to investigate Marjorie's character and that of Noel Airman, the brilliant tin-pan alley composer with whom she falls in love. You may or may not like this new book, but it has excited enough controversy to become number-one fiction best seller. Why not try it?

If you would like non-fiction and are at all interested in science, then don't miss "Apes, Angels, and Victorians" by William Irvine. This is the story of Charles Darwin, the introverted genius, who gave the world the controversial theory of evolution, and Thomas Huxley, the extroverted scientist and orator who became Darwin's chief defender. This will provide interesting general information reading for all who would like to know more about the controversy which shook the world of science to its foundations and resulted in the famous "monkey trial" at Dayton, Tennessee.

I could go on indefinitely about the books in the library, but I won't, partly because of laziness and partly becaus the editor is already beginning to look for places to cut this article so it can be printed. So I'll close by suggesting that you go over to Thaw and see for yourself. Believe it or not, it's an interesting experience.

Two Violin Students Will Appear At UT Next Week

Two pre-college violin students of Miss Crews will perform in the All-East Tennessee High School Orchestra at the East Tennessee Education Association meetings at U-T next week. They are Bevins Householder and Paul Schroeder, both of whom have been members of the "Messiah" Orchestra for the past two years. These students were selected by an audition committee which met in Knoxville and Chattanooga to hear the young string players perform.

Miss Crews will be in Knoxville Thursday and Friday to help with sectional rehearsals of this orchestra. Mr. Edwin Schneider, of the U. T. Music Education Department, will be the conductor. Included in the orchestra will be approximately one hundred of the best high school musicians in East Tennessee.

HERMAN SAYS:

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Evans

—TRYING TIMES IN THE CAMPUS SPORTSWORLD—

During the last week I have asked many students, both seriously and jokingly the following question: "What can one put in the sports editorial when the school football squad has just lost four straight games?" Now, please understand that I do NOT mean "What can be written when I have lost hope and the entire student body has lost hope in the squad?" Certainly I do NOT mean nor feel anything of the sort.

—LET'S HAVE SOME COOPERATION—

What I mean is this; it seems that almost anything I could say would be of harm. I shall not attempt to state everything that is wrong on campus which is even remotely responsible for the present condition even though I feel qualified or well enough informed to do so. Certainly there has been plenty of censoring and fault finding as of late, but a little CONSTRUCTIVE criticism and cooperation would be very helpful to all concerned at this stage of the game.

—LAST WEEK'S GAME—

Last week we lost a game to a very good and a very fast ball club. Certainly nothing should be taken away from their tremendous ball-playing, however there are other factors that should be considered. First of all, there have been considerable changes in our starting line-up since the opening game. Ted Godfrey has been replaced by John Hawkins and Bill Wheatley has also left the starting line-up. Another thing, within the first few minutes of play the entire starting backfield had been replaced due largely to injuries. By the third string backs, however, these boys turned in a much better performance than was expected of them.

—COACH USES EVERY PLAYER—

It is interesting to note that Coach Honaker used every player on the bench. In a way this is a disadvantage, because as I implied above, there was a certain amount of confusion among the backs who had little experience. On the other hand, it was commendable that Coach Honaker gave all the players an opportunity to gain experience and to stem the tide of onrushing Wasps.

—SUPPORT THE TEAM—

We are now, more or less, at the mid-semester break. Is it not time that we "reaffirm our faith" in our team, as it were. Let's show them that we are still behind them. I have been personally assured by members of the team that there have been some changes made and they have a new lease on life.

—LET'S WIN THE REST—

On Saturday night we may win and we may lose, but in any event we shall have a new and revitalized team. Let's be equal to this team and have a revitalized student body. All right so we've lost four in a row—now let's WIN four in a row!

See You At The Game Tonight!

Bainonians To See Fashions

Bainonian program chairman, Jackie Speigner, has announced that a Fashion Show will be the program for this Saturday night at 6:20. The show will be held in Baldwin Parlor. Mrs. Carringer from McArthur's Store will introduce the models and tell about the styles which they are wearing. The models will be twelve girls from Bainonian Society.

Scotties To Vie With U-T Freshman Squad

Tonight at eight on Honaker Field the Highlanders will clash with the freshman squad of the University of Tennessee.

The Scots, remembering how they downed the U-T "B" team two years ago, are aspiring to pull a repeat performance on the Vols freshman team tonight. Tailback Jim McCall, who played on the Vols "B" team of two years ago, will lead the Scotties' attack.

Next week the Scotties will encounter Earl Gartman's Bulldogs of Howard College on their home field at Birmingham, Alabama.

Howies Take Honors In Soccer

This year's soccer tournament was won by the Howies with a score of 6-2. Betts Worcester, Betty Cutler, Helen Franklin, Lottie Jerkins Margie Hunter, Joan Marston, Bev Cooper, Jane Murphy, Jane Byrne, Ruth Dean, and Mary Polhemus were the starting team for the Howies. Nancy Wilson, Kay Henry, and Mary Kirklin were the substitutes for the team.

On the starting line-up for the Chillies were Carol Griffiths, Betye Harrell, Lorna Eagle, Joan Givin, Sue Trotter, Georgene Rohlander, Kathie Briggs, Joan Jefferson, Barbara Coates, Ruth Terhune, and Joan Schultz. The team's substitutes were June Renner, Joan Gray, and Mary K. Alison.

The squad game was also won by the Chillies with a score of 3-2.

The Warriors and Kappa Phi battled to a 0-0 tie. Thursday the Alpha Sig Hammers made it two wins in a row over the Y's Guys by wholloping them 44 to 0. The individual touchdowns were made by Bill Dent 2, Mert Hall 2, Bob Ramger, Jim Cummings and Jim Conklin. The Warriors fought the Pre-Mins to another 0 to 0 tie.

Tuesday the Rebels made it two in a row over Kappa Phi dumping them 20 to 0. Scoring touchdowns for the Rebels were Pat Flynn 2 and Jack Helton. John West and Bill Wallace scored the extra points. The Hammers kept their high scoring games by galloping over the Pre-Mins 41 to 0. Jim Conklin, Bob Ramger, Jim Cummings, Mert Hall and Bill Dent scored for the Hammers.

Kappa Phi defeated the Y's Guys 13 to 7. Sam Buffat and Jim Gardner scored on passes. Jim Gardner booted the extra point. Monday the Rebels got a bigger hold on second place by whipping the Y's Guys 12 to 0. Pat Flynn and Bill Wallace passed and ran for the points. Wednesday Kappa Phi took third place by downing the Pre-Mins 6 to 0. Joe Quinn scored for Kappa Phi.

MC Loses To ETSC, Emory And Henry

By Bob Evans

The Highlanders broke into the scoring column, but failed to break into the winning division as they fell before the Buccaneers of East Tennessee State 28-18 and the Emory and Henry Wasps 44-0.

ETS GAME

Two weeks ago the Scotties dropped the third game of the season to Coach Star Wood's Buccaneers. After the Scotties had opened scoring in the first period with a 13-yard run by tailback Jim McCall to take a 6-0 advantage in the first four minutes of play, the ETS team roared back with two touchdowns in the second quarter and one each in the third and fourth quarters.

BUCCANEERS SCORE TWICE

In the second quarter the Johnson City squad scored their first TD on an eighteen yard pass play from Howard Tippett to Dick Warren. Warren also scored the Buccaneers' second tally in this same period on a three yard plunge.

McCALL'S 95 YARD RUN

Also in the second period Jim McCall scored the Scotties' second touchdown on the most outstanding play of the game as he took a Buccaneer punt on his own five-yard line and went the 95 yards to score. Jim galloped the length of the field almost untouched but did receive a key block to make the TD possible. At the half the Buccaneers were in the lead 14-12.

STATE SCORES TWO MORE

Jim Krause, the State fullback, went over from the one yard marker to score the third tally of the evening for the Bucs. Another Tippett to Warren pass in the fourth quarter completed the State scoring.

THE SCOTS' FINAL TD

The Scots added their final TD late in the last period as fullback Bud White crashed over from the two.

Tom Rock, the ETS guard, kicked all four of the Buccaneer's extra points. One of the Scots' extra points was blocked and the other two were wide of the mark.

EMORY AND HENRY GAME

Last week the Emory and Henry Wasps, led by unbelievable Cokie Kitts, trounced the Highlanders 44-0. The Wasps were held scoreless through the first quarter but tallied in each and all of the other three periods. Cokie Kitts, the leading college football scorer in Virginia, led the Wasps to victory as he scored two of their touchdowns and took to the air to score a third.

KITTS SCORES TWICE

Kitts started the scoring for Emory and Henry early in the second period when he returned a punt 76 yards for the Wasps' first touchdown. Tom Rasnick followed with a six-yard scoring run, Kitts scored from the three and then tossed a 17-yard pass to Bob Sprankle for the fourth score of the second quarter.

In the third period Bob Sprankle blocked a kick enabling Irv Culine to scoop up the ball and race 19 yards to paydirt.

EMORY ADDS TWO MORE

Emory added two more in the fourth period when Carlos Phillips galloped 45 yards to score and another when Jerry Shipp picked up a blocked punt and chalked up the Wasps' seventh tally of the evening.

Poor Miss Blair thought she was going to freeze to death while she was at the mountain top.

The hike, itself, was not without mishap: some got lost; one got charley-horses; one even tore the seat out of her dungarees.

Supper, which was served in the newly constructed pavilion, consisted of hamburgers, baked beans, and ice cold cokes. Afterwards, Liz Murphey and Barbara Belmore did the calling for a number of square dances.

The girls then divided into four groups, and each group presented a skit. Group 1, obviously inspired by having been "on a mountain top in Tennessee," was adjudged the best with their take-off on "The Ballad of Davy Crockett." Judging was done by the chaperons: Miss Blair, Mrs. Cummings, Miss Jackson, Miss Massey.

Marshmallows and s'mores were tasted then camp-fire singing was led by Liz Murphey, Virginia Hine, and George. Incidentally, no boys were present — George is Virginia's guitar.

Breakfast was held in the lodge. There the girls ate real honest-to-goodness scrambled eggs (with cheese), breakfast rolls, coffee, cocoa, and pure, unadulterated orange juice. As the day was pleasantly sunny, a number went out on the porch to bask in the sun.

Thanks to the hard work of Mary Brasfield and Nancy Jones, joint chairmen of the social committee, the Y-hike turned out to be a memorable experience for those who participated in it. 'Til next year!

town. Then one night, my uncle came in and said, 'Lian, you have a letter waiting for you at the Information Bureau.' Unable to keep the secret, however, he soon told me that I was to leave for United States on July 9. I'll never forget that night."

Incidentally, Winifred's Chinese name, Lian Hoa, means Lotus Flower. Each of the six children in her family have two names: a Chinese and a western one.

Her trip over sounds like an advertisement for a travel bureau. Her stops included Singapore, ("one of the most beautiful harbors I've ever seen. So colorful—they even had rickshaws"); Malaya; Cochin, Africa; Suez; Port Said, Egypt; Nova Scotia, and finally Boston and New York.

"I didn't have any clothes problem because most of the middle-class people in Indonesia wear western dress. I brought along my other clothes, too, though—both sarongs and Chinese dresses."

"Most of the movies in Indonesia are American," she said, "and Bing Crosby is just as well known as the President of our country. They are strictly censored, however, and most of the love scenes are either cut out or shortened."

She told me that she has had to make several adjustments since she came to America, the chief one being her diet. "At home we eat rice three times a day and everyone drinks ice water rather than milk. I'm practically American now, though. I'm a big meat-and potatoes girl with a big glass of milk on the side."

I didn't say this to Win, but I still can't understand how Bing Crosby, of all people, can be as well known as the president of Indonesia. Marlon Brando, yes, but not Crosby.

served his apprenticeship in England's repertory companies, appearing in twenty-two plays of Shakespeare, playing a grand total of fifty-one different roles. He scored his first major success in London in "Peter Ibbetson" by George Du Maurier. In 1922, he came to the United States to play in "The Czarina" and was an instantaneous success. His long list of credits since then include such memorable plays as "The Swan." "The Captive," "The Command to Love," "The Winslow Boy," and "The Heiress." In the course of his motion picture career he has starred in such outstanding vehicles as "David Copperfield." "Tovarich," "Tale of Two Cities." "Captain Blood," and of course, is world-famous for his unique portrayal of "Sherlock Holmes."

He will shortly be seen in "The Court Jester" with Danny Kaye, and is currently being viewed on the nation's screens in "We're No Angels," with Humphrey Bogart.

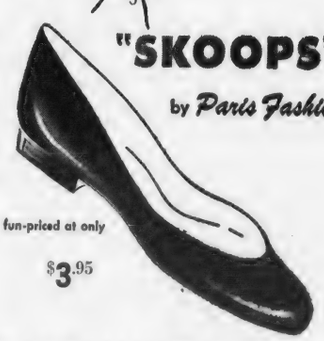
ed. (I think at this time a definition of "several" is in order). Several means thirty! The Y's Guys huddled together and slept until dawn, awakened only occasionally by cries of misery from those who slept with their shoes on.

Meanwhile Cold was walking all around camp lowering the temperature, and blowing up a good stiff wind.

By 6:00 a.m. the men of Y weer up and about, rising, shining, and shivering. The hardy souls ate a hot breakfast of eggs and bacon. The breakfast was hot in theory anyhow. You see, the frying pans kept freezing up and made cooking rather difficult.

After they had wept and the smoke cleared away, a short and rather chilly devotional service was held.

The service was brought to a close with a prayer and then the Y's Guys left the camp site at Ice-water Springs and began hiking off in several different directions. Some men chose to hike to Mt. Le Conte, others went to Clingman's Dome, and still others wandered about aimlessly, just seeing what there was to see and enjoying the great outdoors. Incidentally, these men were no longer searching for Cold. Cold had become our constant companion and just wouldn't be brushed off.



At 2:30 all hikers returned to camp where they filled their cold hungry selves with good hot stew. After cleaning up the camp site, the Y's Guys packed their dirty dishes, wet socks, bumpy bedrolls, and prepared to leave Ice-water Springs.

Dabbing their smoke-filled eyes, and wiping their freely-flowing noses, they took one long last look at the beautiful snow-flecked mountains, said a shuddering good bye to Cold, and the thirty weak men began the hike back to Newfound Gap and Home.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Edition

Volume 41 — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 5, 1955 — Number 6

Fred A. Seaton Is Founders Day Speaker

Deputy Assistant To Eisenhower Visits MC Campus

The Honorable Fred A. Seaton, a deputy assistant to President Eisenhower, was the principal speaker at the Founder's Day convocation service this morning at 10:30 here in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

Mr. Seaton, a former US Senator from Nebraska, was a member of the personal advisory staff of President Eisenhower during the campaign of 1952, and has been closely associated with him since that time.

Mr. Seaton, 46, has numerous newspaper interests in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, and South Dakota, and is president of several radio broadcasting companies in the middle west. He began his career while in Kansas State College, where he served as director of sports publicity. He has served as president of the Associated Press Newspapers of Nebraska, and is past chairman of the Board of Directors of the Inland Daily Press Association.

Mr. Seaton served two terms in the Nebraska Legislature and was a member of the Nebraska Judicial Council and chairman of the Nebraska Legislative Council. In 1949 he became executive secretary to Harold E. Stassen and in 1951 was appointed interim Senator from Nebraska after the death of Senator Wherry.

In 1953 he was nominated by President Eisenhower as assistant secretary of defense. He served in that office until 1955 when he was appointed an administrative assistant. In June of this year he became deputy assistant.

Mr. Seaton holds the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and is a trustee of Hastings College, Nebraska.

Tickets To Go On Sale November 9 For Play

Tickets for The Taming of the Shrew will go on sale on Nov. 9. Seats will be seventy-five cents for faculty members and their families and all grade-school, high-school, and college students.

Seats may be reserved at the box office, located in the theatre lobby, from two until five each afternoon or by calling 3945.

The play, starring Ruth Wilson as Kate and Morris Netherton as Petruchio, will be presented on Nov. 18 and 19 at 8:00 in the Theatre.

Aluminum Bowl May Be Played Here Nov. 25

The Aluminum Bowl will be inaugurated this year by the Maryville Lions Club pending the approval of the authorities at Maryville College.

This game will be played on Honaker Field on Thanksgiving Day, November 25, and will feature the Maryville College Highlanders and Slippery Rock College of Pennsylvania.

Slippery Rock is a small college with an enrollment of almost 800 students which, like Maryville, does not grant athletic scholarships to its athletes. The "Rockets" play football simply for the enjoyment of the game and for the physical development of the gridders. Technically the name of the school is Pennsylvania State Teachers College located at Slippery Rock, Pa. However, football fans all over the country have tagged it with the name Slippery Rock College.

The proceeds of the game will go to the Lions Club's sight conservation program.

This is the first bowl in which the Scots have played since 1946, when they played in the Fruit Bowl against Orlando, Fla, and lost 39-0.

241 Have Jobs In Student Help Plan

Interested in "working your way through college"—Maryville College in particular? Two hundred and forty-one of your MC comrades evidently are, for that many are holding down student-help jobs this semester. Approximately ten of the "go-getters" have more than one job.

Of the 251, 75 are employed in the dining hall, 11 in the Maid Shop, and 90 in offices, the bookstore, and as readers. Fifty-six serve as janitors, custodians, and bellringers, and 19 act as student assistants in laboratory classes.

When asked about the salaries received for the services rendered, several students commented: "Adequate." . . . "Who couldn't use more?" . . . "Every little bit helps." . . . "Maybe it's all I'm worth!"

At any rate, all agreed that money (what there was of it) is not the only benefit derived from the student-help program. One girl said, "It's not the money that counts—it's the people you work with and get to know." As a whole, those taking advantage of the self-help program nod to the fact that a student-help job offers experience and fellowship as well as that "extra something" each month.

Symphony To Give First Concert Nov. 12

The Little Symphony will give its first concert of the year on Saturday November the 12th, at 8 p. m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Its program will include: Overture from Don Giovanni by Mozart; Waltz from the Ballet, Sleeping Beauty, by Tschaikovsky; Garvotte, by Bach; Overture, Der Frieschutz, by Weber; and The Great Gate, from Pictures at an Exhibition.

The personnel of the Little Symphony are as follows: Miss Katherine Crews, Concertmistress; Edward Simpson; Bevins Householder; Mary Elliott; Nancy Campbell; Perses Ellen Neff; Susan Brown; Charles Bruner; Stanley Carpenter; and Nancy Willson.

Camera Club Names Officers

The newly organized Camera Club has chosen Jim Smith, senior art major from Maryville, as president. Stan Timblin was elected vice president and Lavinia Lee was elected secretary-treasurer.

The club meets the first and third Thursdays of each month in the band room.

Mr. Kinsinger and Mr. Beard are the faculty advisors.

Miss Flory Speaks In Fred Hope Drive

By Don Adams

Climaxing a spirited and informative address by Miss Margaret Flory last Tuesday in the chapel, the annual Fred Hope Fund has reported pledges of eighteen hundred dollars with more than three hundred participaitng and more pledging every day.

Msis Flory, Scretary for Student Work of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church USA, discussed conditions and the need of medical care from on-the-spot observations at the Frances Newton Hospital, Fe-rozopore, India, which is under the ministry of Dr. Dorothy Ferris, a Maryville graduate.

A new nurse's dormitory is planned for the hospital with this year's realization of the Fred Hope Fund.

Dr. Elson Is On Campus

Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the National Presbyterian Church of Washington, D.C. and one of the directors of Maryville College, will be on campus this week-end. Dr. Elson is the pastor and a personal friend of President Eisenhower. While he is at Maryville, Dr. Elson will attend the Founder's Day convocation service. Last night he attended the testimonial dinner given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd.

Dr. Elson is featured in the current issue of "Colliers" in the article "The President and His Pastor."

MC Artist Series To Feature Gorin

Maryville College is indeed fortunate in having Igor Gorin, perhaps the country's most highly-booked concert artist, as the next Artist Series presentation. This outstanding baritone is to appear in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel at 8:15 p.m. on Monday, November 14.

Gorin's concert repertoire ranges from Handel, Haydn, and Mozart through to such contemporates as Rachmaninoff, Celius Cougherty, and Roland Parry. He also sings art songs, Negro spirituals, and cowboy songs. He was one of the first concert singers to program American western" Ballads because he believes that they have serious claim to both melodic and lyric beauty.

English Department Will Present "Leaves Of Grass" Centennial

The English department, under the direction of Dr. E. R. Hunter, will present a centennial celebration in honor of Walt Whitman's book of poetry, "Leaves of Grass," at 8 p.m. on November 11 in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center. The book, which was published in 1855 is important in the realm of literature and the Fine Arts because it was written in free verse, and marked a new era of poetic style.

The celebration will include a talk by Miss Nathalia Wright, who is a resident of Maryville and is a member of the faculty of the University of Tennessee. Miss Wright graduated from Maryville and received her doctorate at Yale University. Her address, which might be called a biography of a book, will be centered around a paper on the one hundred years' history of the book. Miss Jessie K. Johnson, of our own faculty, will discuss the contents of "Leaves of Grass."

Four students—Joan McNaughton, Mary Lee, Jim Hopkins, and Bill Deerfield—will read some selections from the book. Following this, John Graulich will direct a selection of choral reading, which will be set against a background of organ music. Lavinia and Mary Ellen Lee, will interpret the poems through dance.

This will be the first English Department program in many years and the first time that a particular book has been honored.

Students Honor College Dietitian

A dinner to show the student body's appreciation for Miss Ware's years of service as dietitian, was given Thursday night, October 27. Joan McNaughton was in charge of the arrangements. Arrangement of the menu was done by Miss Agnes, the cook. Also helping with the plans were Dr. Lloyd and Dean McClelland.

The tables were decorated by the students with white tablecloths and leaves.

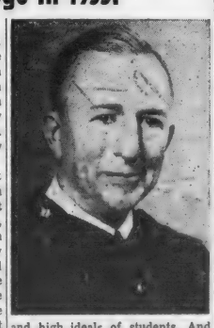
The entertainment consisted of the quartet—Joe Quinn, John Ribble, Joe Gilliland, and Dick Preston. Bill Deerfield read an original poem which he had composed for Miss Ware. The climax of the dinner was the presentation by the students of a new toaster for Miss Ware.

String Ensemble To Perform

The String Ensemble will present the following program at Maryville High School Thursday mornig, November the 10th. Overture to "Messiah," by Handel; Romance from "Eine Kliline Nachtmusic," by Mozart; Military March, by Schubert; Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," by Richard Strauss; and Plink, Plank, Plunk, by Anderson.

Members of the organization are Violins: John Graulich, Ed Sempson, Margaret Jones, Jeanne Ginaven, Bevins Householder, and Paul Schroeder; Viola, Syvia Swith; Piano, Jane Robinson; and the Conducter, Miss Katherine Crews.

A certain junior transfer student was heard to remark to her beau in Pearsons' parlor, "Have you seen that movie downtown 'Alabama and the Forty Thieves'?"



To All Students and Faculty Of Maryville College In 1955:

By Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd

This opportunity to write an anniversary message to the Maryville College "family" is a special privilege. As we approach our twenty-fifth anniversary as a member of that "family" many words have been coming to mind. Let me share just a very few of them.

(1) Appreciation was the first and is the most insistent. When Mrs. Lloyd and I were told last summer that, unknown to us, plans had been inaugurated for a sort of twenty-fifth "birthday party" at the Founders Day and Homecoming season, we were deeply grateful to all who were responsible. We replied that while a celebration of antiquity might not be too interesting to a youthful family like that on a college campus, yet we would come to the party.

Now that the time is at hand, we find ourselves more than ever appreciative of the friendships of the years, the character and the loyalty of collegues, the good will and high ideals of students. And with this appreciation of the people of Maryville there is larger and larger appreciation of the intangible but distinctive character and the ongoing program of the College itself.

(2) Partnership is the second word. While it is our coming to

Maryville Celebrates Homecoming Weekend

Band To Present Show Tonight

The Maryville College Band will be out to give its best performance of the year tonight in a pre-game and half time show honoring Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd in his twenty-five years as Maryville College president.

In the pre-game show the band will salute Carson-Newman College with a C-N formation. The senior girl chosen by the student body will then be crowned as homecoming queen.

In the half-time show the band will execute the following formations: a number formation, 1930 which will change to 1955, the number of years Dr. Lloyd has served as President; a toch symbolizing Dr. Lloyd as a promoter of learning. The appropriate tune to go with this will be "All Through the Night," as almost any night the lights can be seen burning late in Dr. Lloyd's office. Next will be a gavel formation symboliziing the role of Dr. Lloyd as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church and his role as President of the College. The band will next play "Hail to the Chief." An open Bible will next be formed signifying Dr. Lloyd's Christian background. The final formation will be the letters M. C. while the band plays the Alma Mater.

Two important new features of the band will be the base drums new paint job with Maryville College Band on it done by a college art major, Miss Gail Harrison and the two bagpipers, Misses Clover and MacNiel who will play a solo before the last band formation.

Betty McKenney Is Chosen Queen

The student body has chosen Miss Betty McKenney, senior Home Ec. major from Beaver, Pennsylvania, as 1955 Homecoming Queen. Miss McKenney will ride in the parade this afternoon in a convertible driven by Cary Valentine.

Her attendants will be Miss Marcia Williams, drama major from Peekskill, New York, and Miss Elizabeth Enloe, sociology major from Atlanta, Georgia.

Honor attendant will be Miss Patsy Manning, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Manning of Maryville. Miss Manning is an 18-year old senior at Everett High school.

Dr. Paul Wright Is Vesper Speaker

The speaker at the Vesper service Sunday evening will be Dr. Paul S. Wright of the First Presbyterian Church of Portland, Oregon. Dr. Wright is moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA.

The Vesper Service this week will be held at New Providence Presbyterian Church at 7:30, as a part of the Maryville College Founder's Day Program. The Vesper Choir will sing at the service. Buses will leave the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel between 7:00 and 7:15 to transport the students who wish to attend. It is expected that several hundred students will attend, therefore, it is urged that everyone be on time.

Following the service there will be a reception for Dr. Wright and Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd in the Westminster Room. Everyone is invited.

Bainonian Tells Plans For Banquet, Fall Dance

The Bainonian banquet will be held on Friday, November 11, at the College Hill Grill. The time is 6 o'clock; the price is $1.25; and the main culinary attraction is baked chicken.

Janet Whitmore is in charge of the banquet, and she will be assisted by Carol Lee Lacy and Shirley Mayfield, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Pat Etherly, decorations committee chairman. Joan McNaughton will emcee.

Says the society president, Marcia Williams, "We are hoping to see all Bainonians there."

Dance Plans Underway

In the meantime, plans are progressing on the fall dance. The chairman, Bezy Zimmerman, has announced the following committees:

Invitations— Charles McFarland, Jean Dildy; decorations— Bob Gardner; Dick Preston, Barbara Mueller; clean-up— Harold Kelly, Sam Buffat, Bezy Zimmerman, Barbara Gilmore.

Dance tickets—Jim Crawford, Eloise Jorden; music—Henry Emmans, Jackie Speigner; publicity—Church Frizzell, Katrina Wells, Natalie Wells; tables, chairs— Perry Fuller, Georgejean Rohlander; refreshments— Lottie Jerkins; programs——Cathy Garrison.

The theme of the dance has been decided upon but will not be announced until a later date.

President Lloyd's 25 Years' Service Is General Theme

This week-end marks the 23rd annual observance of Homecoming and Founders Day. Activities are already underway, with alumni arriving from all parts of the country. The annual fall meeting of the board of directors was held in the Fine Arts Center yesterday. The Founders Day service has just taken place with The Hon. Fred A. Seaton, deputy assistant to President Eisenhower, as the special speaker.

The general theme of this year's Homecoming celebration is "The Lloyds at Maryville College—Twenty-Five Years of Dedication and Decision." At the testimonial dinner held in Pearsons Hall last night the Directors, faculty and staff, civic leaders and representatives of alumni and students gathered to pay tribute to the Lloyds. Other dinners were held throughout the country for the same purpose by friends of the college. They heard tape recordings of greetings from Dr. Lloyd and music by the Vesepr Choir.

Big Parade Planned

The parade downtown, scheduled for 3:30 this afternoon, will feature 14 floats, at least three bands, and nine convertibles. The floats will depict various aspects of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd's 25 years at Maryville. The sponsoring organizations and their floats are as follows:

Group one: Bainonian society, trip to Alaska; Alpha Sigma society, Dr. Lloyd—World Traveller; Baldwin Hall, trip to India; FTA, Business and Music Education clubs, trip to China; IRC and the language clubs, international students.

Group two: Pre-Ministerial, Dr. Lloyd— Moderator; Kappa Phi society, Dr. Lloyd— Maryville Athlete; Memorial Hall, his history; Student Volunteers and Christian Education club, his present-day family.

Group three: Vesper Choir, the new Chapel; Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, the Fine Arts Center; Carnegie Hall, soldiers on campus and World War II.

Group four: Pearsons Hall, the new girl's dormitory; Theta Epsilon society, Dr. Lloyd's future.

Also taking part in the parade will be the Homecoming queen and her attendants, the football captains, the badn sponsor, the cheerleaders, the mayor of Alcoa, two commissioners from the City of Maryville, an alumni association representative and representatives of the administration.

Alumni Activities

During the day, a lounge will be at the disposal of Alumni in the lobby of the Chapel, where registration will take place. There will be interesting displays of pictures and pamphlets designed to evoke memories of college days.

At 5:45 this afternoon alumni will congregate on the athletic field for their annual barbecue. The Homecoming Queen and her attendants will also be present at the barbecue.

The coronation of the queen will precede the football game game with Carson Newman College scheduled for eight o'clock tonight. The Maryville band is planning special half-time activities.

Homecoming Dance

The Women's M Club, of which Liz Murphy is the president, is sponsoring the dance in the alumni gym tonight after the game. Lasting until 11:45, the dance will have decorations from the parade floats. Betty Cutler is chairman of the dance committee.

Dr. Hunter Speaks For The Faculty At Anniversary Dinner Last Night:

By Dr. E. R. Hunter

There is a respect in which twenty-five years is a long time. To a man, if it comes on top of close to forty other years, it is the best part of his life. To an institution, even an American institution, it may seem shorter, but still it is not unimportant. Of course, it depends on which twenty-five years it is as how important it is. To us the twenty-five years since November, 1930, seems most important for this institution, not alone because they are the nearest years and because some of us have lived through them, but because they have been years of growth and positive emphasis and because they are projected against the backdrop of great movements and great changes in the world outside.

It is my privilege, Mrs. Lloyd and President Lloyd, to salute you tonight at this mile post of time and to felicitate you on behalf of the faculty upon your distinctive leadership to this college in the quarter of a century since November, 1930.

I want to speak not only for the faculty but a little about the faculty - that group of odd characters who must seem oftimes most refractory to a president and all the time so unnecessary and obstructionist to a student body, and yet without them no institution of learning could long maintain itself.

Of the faculty and staf who were here in November, 1930, there are still eighteen actively on the job, eleven of them teachers and the remainder faithful and useful members of the staff. But of the faculty of 1930 a strong and honored contingent have gone on to the fuller life beyond this. When I mention some of them: Dean Jasper C. Barnes, Miss Anna Jones, Mrs. Jane B. S. Alexander, Dr. George Alan Knapp, Dr. James H. McMurray, Coach Robert C. Thrower, Dean Mary E. Caldwell, Treasurer Fred Lowry Proffitt, and College Pas-

The Echo Recalls Maryville As It Was Way Back When . . .

Sixth President Is Inaugurated Here

Alumni Return For Ceremony

October 24, 1931—

The two day program in connection with the installation of Ralph Waldo Lloyd, D.D., as the sixth president of Maryville College, came to a close Friday afternoon with the Inaugural Exercises held in Voorhees Chapel.

During this program many noted men appeared before the Maryville audience, among who were Dr. Guy Everett Snavely, Preisdent of Birmingham-Southern College; Dr. John Huston Finley, associate editor of the New York times; Dr. William Chalmers Covert, General Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, and Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr, President of the Board of Christian Education.

The program was designed to furnish one continuous discussion. The theme on the first day was "The Story of World Progress During the Lifetime of Maryville College," and on the second was "The Christian Liberal Arts College in Present Day Thought and Life."

A dinner was given the alumni and visitors Thursday evening in the college dining hall. Speakers for the alumni, the faculty, and the undergraduates were heard. Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson, President Emeritus of Maryville College spoke on "The Output of Maryville College." At noon Friday a Fellowship Luncheon was given.

In his inaugural address Dr. Lloyd mentioned two possible levels of education for the future; one for superior students, the other for students of lesser ability. To secure the best characters, rigid and stern scholastic requirements would be needed, he added.

"The future college's curriculum should contain exact and social sciences; vocational methods; finer arts; and religion and literature. A balanced curriculum must represent those avenues over which life will be traveled."

In the speaker's mind there was no doubt as to the importance of religion in the development of character.

The two-day inaugural exercises were closed with the conferring upon Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson, President Emeritus of Maryville College, the degree of Doctor of Letters. This was done by President Lloyd.

Dr. Lloyd's Accident

October 3, 1931—

Dr. Lloyd unsuccessfully attempted to demolish his Chevrolet while on his way home from the U-T game last Friday afternoon. No one was injured, however, and neither car was seriously damaged. Dr. Lloyd was traveling through the outskirts of Knoxville accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd, their two sons, and some friends, when another car suddenly came out of a cross road. Dr. Lloyd swerved to the left in an effort to avoid the oncoming machine and ran into a ditch, but the other car failed to stop in time and ran into the President's motor. The Chevrolet received a bent fender and a cracked hub cap. It is not known what damage the other machine suffered.

Genius is one per cent inspiration and ninty-nine per cent perspiration.—Edison.

Rug Presentation

October 24, 1931—After chapel Tuesday morning Dr. Lloyd received two rugs for use in his offices. One was a large rug for the private office and was presented by Miss Mildred MacKenzie on behalf of the student body. The other was a smaller rug for the outer office and was presented by Dr. Stevenson on behalf of the faculty.

In her presentation Miss MacKenzie explained how the rug will lessen the discomfort of such unfortunate students as are called in to meet the presidential displeasure.

The presentation came as a complete surprise to Dr. Lloyd.

Moonshining Made Lawful At Vespers

Record Crowd Attends After Announcement Of Late Social Advance

April 28, 1929—Tonight moonshining was allowed at Vespers for the first time since Vesper services have been conducted at Maryville. Thirty-five couples took advantage of the new liberty and many non-'shiners came especially to witness the innovation.

Here is evidence of progress! For many years there has been talk of moonshining privileges at Vesper, and now the time has arrived when this much-longed for privilege will be permitted. But, as usual, there are conditions attached which Miss Molly stated in her talk to the girls last week.

First, there must be no talking orwriting of notes during the service. Recently at a program in the chapel, there was undue confusion and inattention on this account. Second, the young men must leave the dormitories promptly after walking home with the girls.

If these two conditions are not met, moonshining privileges on Monday afternoons will be prohibited, which, of course, would be a calamity to all concerned. So it is up to us to show our gratitude by putting on our best behavior from now until the end of school.

Dr. Lloyd's Humor

October 24, 1931—The Echo is thinking of instituting a series of interviews with the faculty members in an effort to determine the most popular comic sheet among Maryville's funny paper readers. This comes about as a result of Dr. Lloyd's revelation of his "comic interests." Now I think we know where he gets so many of his stories and illustrations. At any rate, it seems very obvious that Dr. Lloyd has a decided knack of saying the right thing at the right time.

Barn Finally Falls

June 2, 1929—The college barn, which has been an eyesore to the college, will probably be replaced by a more modern and we hope more substantial edifice. Today the roof caved in and two men working in the barn narrowly escaped injury. One of the men was pinned beneath two of the animals, but was gotten out safely.

Don't count your demerits before you get them.

Dr. Lloyd Is Welcomed To MC In Voorhees Chapel Ceremony

November 29, 1930—

This morning at 9:30, Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd was welcomed as the new president of Maryville College at the morning chapel service.

Figures present at the welcoming ceremony included Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd, Dr. Stevenson, college pastor, Dr. E. R. Hunter, Dr. Wm. R. Dawson speaker and president of the Board of Directors.

Richard Strain, representing the student body, promised Dr. Lloyd full cooperation from the students and referred to the popular and former February Meetings leader as a wise and sympathetic advisor.

Dr. Lloyd that morning closed his address to all present by saying "Let forward be our watchword, ever forward."

Mrs. Lloyd was presented with flowers by Mabel Dickerson as a tribute from the four college classes.

The remainder of the program was under the new administration headed by Dr. Lloyd, sixth preisdent of Maryville College.

PRES. RALPH WALDO LLOYD

The Lloyds Come To Maryville

November 29, 1930—Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd are now settled at Their House in the Woods after their arrival from Edgewood Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Pa. Dr. Lloyd graduated 1915 cum laude from Maryville. He was a professor in Westminster College in Salt Lake City for two years. He served in World War I as a first lieutenant of Field Artillery and later graduated from McCormack Theological Seminary in 1924 with honors. Before becoming pastor of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church he was pastor of Murphysboro Presbyterian Church in Illinois.

ODDS And ENDS

tor William Patton Stevenson, many of you will recall their strength and their lasting contributions.

Still living but no longer in active service are a number of others, such ones as Dr. Edmund Wayne Davis, Mrs. Susan Black, Miss Mary Keller, Mrs. Nita Eccles West, Miss Almira Bassett, Miss Clemmie J. Henry, Mrs. Celia Wrinkle, Mrs. Emma C. Worley, and Proffessor Edgar Roy Walker who were in service in 1930 and whose contribution is in line of the finest loyalty and devotion.

Add to these another group, some of whom were here in 1930 and others who came soon or late after 1930 and gave likewise of their high training and effective service to the college and then moved on to other colleges or to other fields of endeaver.

And, of course, there are besides the eighteen whom I mentioned in the beginning, the other members of the present faculty and staff, - a present faculty and staff of sixty-eight in contrast to the forty-three who made up the personnel of 1930, some of whom have been here nearly the whole twenty-five years and some, mere infants, who have not been here even one year. These, too, by their effective work and dedicated acceptance of responsibility make up our present strength.

So I am proposing that it is in these four groups that there is to be found the seeret of the depth and consecration and strength that is this college. We go from tonight in increased devotion to an undertaking that is great largely because of such personalities as these who have built their lives and service into the structure of the Maryville tradition and who all together have given this college what ih has of momentum and of power.

Tonight, Sir and Madam, we have delighted in focussing the beams of honor upon you and your contribution to an on-going Maryville. Your contributions of spirit and of wisdom and kindliness have been poured out here in great measure and we honor you for it all, but I am equally sure you would be foremost among us in paying tribute to the lengthening roll of these others who have with such high dedication given their best for this college. If it is great in the future, I think it will be in large measure because of this gathering and continuing stream of devoted personalities.

Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us run with patience-and courage - and hope the race that is set before us.

To All Students . . .

Maryville which this generous observance names, Mrs. Lloyd and I are in reality only representatives of many others. A college is a special kind of paartnership. It is a partnership of college directors, officers, teachers, staff, students, alumni, church, and a multitude of others. In the very nature of college life the most sustained personal partnership of a college president is with the directors, officers, teachers, and staff, for they stay longer than students and are nearer at hand than are the other partners.

The names of the Directors who have served at some time in these twenty-five years come up before me, especially of those who were Directors when I came and those who are Directors now. While the Maryville tradition is one of long service, yet twenty-five years make a great difference. I am startled by the realization that of the 35 Directors who called me to the Presidency in 1930, only six are today on the Board. You might to know which ones they are: Judge Samuel O. Houston, Knoxville; Judge A. E. Mitchell, Knoxville; Rev. Dr. John Grant Newman, Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. Roy Ewing Vale, Indianapolis; Rev. Dr. William W. Brown, Cincinnati; President Clifford E. Barbour, Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh. To these and the others who have served or now serve, I wish to pay tribute.

Then there is the partnership with our faculty and staff. There are eighteen who have been my collegues throughout the twenty-five years, and hence have been here longer than have I. Mr. "Brownie". Brown, our College Engineer, has been here longest—now 45 years. Dean Hunter is the senior among the teachers, he now being in his thirty-eighth year on the faculty. There are sixteen others whom space will not allow me to name here. But to all of these I am especially grateful for their unfailing loyalty and cooperation. In the same way I am thinking of my other present colleagues who have not been here so long, and of the 28 who have retired and the eleven who hav died in service during my years at Maryville, and of yet others who have been members of the "family."

Yes, the College must be a partnership if it is to fulfill its mission.

(3) History is the third word that keeps demanding attention. We inherited a noble history of more than a century, and these twenty-five years have made Maryville College history. I have been jotting down the origins of some of the familiar features of the College today and am amazed at how many of these origins are in this past quarter of a century. Here are just a few of them: Founders Day, rendition of Messiah, the Easter Sunrise Service, inclusion of Fine Arts in the degree offerings of the College, Special Studies, most of the testing and orientation program, the student government organization, the scholarship honor society, accreditation by the Association of American Universities, National Association of Schools of Music, American Association of University Women, etc., election of women to the Board of Directors, the present integration policy of enrolment, and many others. An anniversary is a time to review history.

(4) Prophecy is the fourth word. It has a religious connatation and perhaps that is good. But it is a meaningful general word too. A look at the next years are tremendously important for each individual and for the College.

Students progress year by year in college and then join the alumni. We have had a part in the graduating of twenty-five senior classes, and now some of their children are enrolling.

Three fourths of all the living alumni of Maryville College have received their diplomas at my hand more than 3,000 of them, and in my memory I see their faces again and again. Thus I prize their friendship and take pride and satisfaction in their progress. Watching them has made me want to persuade every student to be not only the right kind of a Christian but also the right kind of a loyal Maryville College alumnus or alumna. Continued interest in and support of the College will give the individual added joy and the College added strength.

I have many hopes and plans for the Maryville College of the future, and ask your interest and support and prayers that Maryville's Christian purpose, scholarly ideals, and unselfish service may be used of God increasingly for the good of mankind.

Sports Spotlights

By Robert Bruce

Stand Up Fans and Take a Bow.

A recent article in the East Tennessee State "Collegian", which was bemoaning the lack of spectator support being accorded the Bulldogs had this to say:

"Last Saturday night those of us who went to Maryville witnessed a school with less than a third of our campus population yelling their heads off for the boys on the field. From the opening kickoff the Maryville students kept up the chatter, and the organized cheering even through their team was being defeated."

Such a statement surely speaks well for the local cheerleading squad, but more important it is a well deserved pat on the back to Mr. and Miss "Scottie Rooter" for an excellent display of school spirit.

It should be remembered that the locals were having a tough time making the win column at the time the above was written. Defeats, however, seem to be an antiquity, so let's really give out and aid the Honaker men take their third straight.

Who's Got a Coin?

Sure was glad to see that the Intramural football championship will be decided on genuine athlete ability rather than a drown out game of "odd man."

Congratulations Hobroy!

Ever since Roy Hayes, body beautiful and stellar guard of the locals, who by the way almost had himself convicted of post-game pigskin larceny last Saturday evening, became engaged to pretty Miss Charlotte M. Smith the big fellow really has been feeling his Wheaties.

This past Sabbath eve he was responisible for the Scots' third touchdown, when he knocked a Howard punt which Don Moore snagged out of the air and quickly turned into a local TD.

Two weeks ago against the UT Frosh it was the same Mr. Hayes who set the second Orange and Garnet score with a like display of gridiron guts.

Our sincere congratulations to Roy on his standout grid performance and on his decisive step towards matrimony.

After thought: If Roy's recent work on the football field is a direct result from his other activity, may we respectfully suggest to the rest of the squad that they grab their lass and hustle on down to Royal Jewelers.

Watch That Pass!

FLAWS

In my poor opinion the standout flaw in the Maryville grid machine this past season has been the lack of an adequate pass defense. At last six TD's hav been recorded by our opponents by means of the air route. Both Howard scores came on fourth down desperation passes after three futile cracks at the ironclad Scot line. Likewise one of the two scores racked up by the Vol Frosh squad two weeks ago resulted from a similar fourth down aerial.

We sincerely hope that the coaching staff has been able to remedy their situation and that any C-N hopes for a successful aerial attack will be doomed to disappointment.

Thanks and Good Luck

This evening will mark the final regular season appearance of some twelve local griddrs, who will have departed these "hallowed halls" come next fall. We just like to extend to each a big thankyou for a job well done and a sincere wish for t he days ahead. Captain Ted Godfrey and Alt. Captain Jack Renfro head the list that includes Bob DeLozier, Chuck Dunn, Roy Hayes, Bud Gilbert, Roy Gooden, Don Moore, Ernie Raulerson, Jim Saunders, Lynn Sexton, Bill Strickland, and Bill Wheatley.

AS I SEE IT....

By Bill Strickland

To say the least, this has been an interesting football season. This satement may draw criticism from the spectator viewpoint, but speaking from my vantage point as a player, I can honestly say this has been one of the most interesting seasons of my pigskin career. True enough, the season certainly looked as though it would be dark and dismal after we lost our first four games in a row and in doing so managed to score only eighteen points while allowing our opponents to ring the bell to the tune of ninety-six. At the midpoint of the season and with no victories yet registered by this team which was supposed to be Maryville's best in ten years, excuses for our failure were a dime a dozen, ranging all the way from poor coaching to the openly expressed idea that some members of the team were deliberately "throwing" games.

It is easy to put the blame for personal failure on someone's else's shoulders, and it is something of which every member of the team was guilty, myself included. However, amid all of the scapegoating and alibing and through some fortunate quirk of fate, we all, coaches and players alike, came to the blunt realization that we had no one but ourselves to blame for our shortcomings. We had become the victims of a defeated attitude, and nothing can lead a good football team into the depths of disaster more quickly than a poor mental attitude. We had been fighting ourselves on the football field just as hard as we were fighting our opponents, and it was a losing battle all the way. However, through the leadership of our capable captain, Ted Godfrey, we all began to analyze our problem, and when our meeting at the summit was concluded, every member of the team had pledged to begin with a clean slate and give everything possible toward the winning of the remainder of our games. The coaches also realized that they were responsible to a degree for some of the trouble, and they declared that everything that had happened in the first four games was to be forgotten; every man was given a new chance to prove himself.

This, to me, is where the most interesting point of the season comes into view. To watch a team come back from the darkest depths is as much of a thrill to me as being on any undefeated team ever could be. I admire all of those guys who wouldn't quit and the coaches who stood behind them when they were down. It doesn't take nearly as much guts to stay on top as it does to get up there from the bottom.

Another thing which has made this season an interesting one is the way the student body has stood behind the team even in their losing efforts. This, without a doubt, is the most spirited student body Maryville has seen in a long while. Much praise for this fact is due the pep committee, the band, the social organizations, and last but not least you—the student body! The enthusiasm and loyalty of the fans has not only impressed the Maryville team, but news of it has spread elsewhere also. Three weeks ago the ETSC "Buccaneer" carried a very extensive article on school spirit, over half of which was devoted to the praise of the Maryville student body for its untiring support of the team even though they were being beaten by State. That, in itself, is something of which you may be proud, and it is something which has made the team want to win for you more than ever!

Yes, this has been an interesting season, and even though we haven't won them all, there's not a man on the squad who hasn't profited by the early mistakes we all made. Also there's not a man who isn't proud that he's a member of Maryville's football team!

LET'S BEAT THE EAGLES TONIGHT!

Football Rivalry Is Renewed Tonight

Carson Newman Meets Scotties Tonight At Eight

By Bob Evans

Tonight at 8 p.m. the Highlanders will clash with their age-old rivals from Jefferson City, the Orange and Blue of Carson Newman College in its annual Homecoming Game. Coach Roy Harman's Fighting Eagles will be out to spoil our Homecoming as theirs was ruined by the Emory and Henry Wasps 22-7. The Scotties, on the other hand, want to continue their winning streak and chalk up a third straight victory. Tonight's game will be the last home game of the year for the Scotties.

Next week the Scotties will journey to Athens, West Virginia to meet Coach Josepah Friedl's Mountain Lions of Concord State in the last game of the season for both teams.

Previous Games

Bouncing back to win two in a row, the enlivened Highlanders routed the U-T Frosh 20-12 and the Bulldogs of Howard College 21-12. The Scotties, getting a late start this year, showed new life as they captured their first two of the season.

Frosh's First Game

Playing on their home field the Scotties downed the Baby Vols 20-12, in the Frosh's first game of the season. The Scotties hit their peak, coaches Honaker and Davis agreed, to stop Buzzy O'Neal's hardhitting freshman from Knoxville. We played football tonight," remarked Coach Davis. "I said at the first of the season that these boys would get to rolling after four or five games and were ready tonight. Those Vols were tough, too. They can move that ball and they really hit."

Sparks Scores Twice

Gordon Sparks, MC tailback, led the Scotties to victory by scoring two touchdowns, one on a nine-yard run and another good for six yards. Jim McCall, who played at U-T as a freshman made the other after "Hob-Roy" Hayes blocked George Wright's punt out of bounds on the Vols' one-yard line.

Vols Chalk Up Two

Sparked by power-packed Carl Smith, the Baby Vols marched 80 yards for their first touchdown in the third period. Carl Smith, the Vols' hard-fighting fullback, accounted for the TD on a 22 yard run.

Tom Potts, the U-T left end, scored the other Vols' touchdown in the fourth period on a five yard pass from George Wright, climaxing a 33-yard drive.

Standouts for Scotties

Bud White, Bill Strickland, John Hawkins, Ted Godfrey and Bob Bivens played an outstanding game for the Scotties. Carl Smith, Jim Grubb, George Wright and Bob Pine were Tennessee's main offensive threats, while Charley Stokes, from Oak Ridge, led U-T's defensive play.

Hawkins Is Injured

John Hawkins, a Knoxville boy who played at the University of Chattanooga before entering Maryville suffered a broken leg in the fourth quarter.

Scotties Down Bulldogs

Coming from behind late in the second quarter, the Highlanders trounced the Howard College Bulldogs 21-12. The Scotties, playing on Howard's home field in Homewood, Alabama, gained a lead late in the second period which they never relinguished.

Howard grabbed a 6-0 lead midway in the second quarter after a previous 52-yard touchdown run by Maryville's Jim McCall was nullified by a backfield motion penalty. The Howard TD followed a Scottie fumble on the Howard 30 yard line. Charlie Anderson passed to Jim Cleman in the end zone for six points. Gerald Tuck's conversion kick was not good.

Scots Tally Twice

That ended scoring for Howard in the first half, but the Scots surged ahead in the second quarter on a drive from the MC 46 to pay dirt. Jim McCall and Bud White sparked the drive. Fullback White went over from the one yard marker with two minutes left in the half. White then kicked the extra point, putting the Scots ahead 7-6 at half-time.

White's 74 Yard Run

Early in the third period, the Highlanders scored again with the McCall-White duo performing the ground-gaining chores. White, a Maryville boy, broke loose on a 74 yard run for a TD just after a 15 yard penalty against us had moved the ball back to the MC 26 yard line. White again converted for the Scotties.

Hayes Blocks Kick

The next score in the game came when Howard tried to kick out of its own territory. Roy Hayes blocked the punt on the Howard five, and Don Moore picked up the ball and scored from the three yard line. Bob Beam, a freshman, split the uprights for Maryville.

Gerald Tuck set up the last Howard TD as he returned the kickoff from the MC five to the 30. He later pushed the ball to the Scottie 42. The TD was scored on another Anderson to Coleman pass play. The conversion kick was blocked.

Intramurals....

By Harold O'Bannon

On Friday, for the third time in a row the Alpha Sig Warriors and Kappa Phi battled to a 6-6 tie. Will Roberts scored for the Warriors and Joe Quinn scored for Kappa Phi.

Saturday, Kappa Phi and Alpha Sigma played the Stinking Shoe game, with Alpha Sig coming out on top by a score of 13-0. Bob Ramger scored both touchdowns on long passes thrown by Charlie Partee. Partee ran for the extra point.

The Warriors and Y's Guys played to another 0-0 tie. The Rebels dumped the Pre-Mins 9-0. Bill Wallac and Pat Flynn scored for the Rebels. The Hammers edged the Pre-Mins 14-12. Bill Dent and Jim Cummings scored the TDs for the Hammers and Jack Woodhall scored two for the pre-Mins. The Hammers and Rebels battled it out Friday. The Hammers won by a score of 7-0. This win gave the Hammers undisputed possession of first place.

Kappa Phi ended the season play by tieing the Y's Guys 0-0.

Monday was the first game of the tournament with the Y's Guys meeting the Pre-Mins. They tied up 0-0. On Tuesday the Pre-Mins won 7-0 in their second encounter with the Y's Guys. In the second game of the tournament the Warriors beat Kappa Phi 13-0. Dan Wiley and Jim Heddon scored for the Warriors. In the third game the Rebels whipped the Warriors 4-0. Two safeties were enough to beat the Warriors.

Socially Speaking

Sig Personalities Bill Heird

By Bob Hassall

Very active in Alpha Sig this year is longlegged, fun-loving Bill Heird. Hailing from Friendsville, Bill can be instantly recognized on the campus by his smiling face and his unique sense of humor. Many of us remember his first successful public appearance as the 'hick' in last year's freshman tallent show, while one of his latest successes was his role of emcee at the recent Sophomore class party. His readings of Dorothy Dix's love letters proved enjoyable to all.

Bill is a chemistry major and plans to go to Med school after graduating from Maryville. Although he doesn't spend much time studying, he manages to keep his marks up and has maintained a B average over three semesters' work.

His various interests include playing football for the Warriors, where he is a main-stay in the line; working in the lab, and translaitng French.

One appreciates Bill the most, however, for his ability to make good popcorn—popcorn that only the "basement boys" know how to make. Doubtless many a boy has been enticed by the delightful fragrance of the popping kernels, and after approaching Room 1 and finding Bill in a generous mood, has gone to bed with a full stomach and a contented feeling.

Alpha Sig saluates a 'chap' well-worthy of praise. . . BILL HEIRD!

Memories Of A '49er Revealed Or, Why 'It's Great To Be Back'

By Joanne Causey

Well, here I am, back on the old campus again. Been some changes made, I see. Wow, that building fund was really a success—four new water fountains and they're placed in such strategic positions: one on the roof of Pearsons, one out in the college woods, one on the third floor of Willard House, and one in Dean McClelland's back yard. So inviting, so accessible to careworn students in need of refreshment!

Oh, me, so many improvements! Three new benches, a squirrel, red lights in Baldwin, two new trees—one in the middle of the street and one in the middle of the chapel—and they've even monogrammed the steam plant's towers! Yes, the old place has really progressed. It certainly is a gratifying feeling to be a part of such an advancing institution.

Ah, looking at these old ivy-covered walls brings back so many memories. Those were four marvellous—uh, glorious— well, those were four years. People always say that college years are the best yars of your life. I always thought so, too, until I came to college and then I thought so again the minute I graduated. Guess I expected something different—you know, all that Joe College business: students standing around singing songs from the "Student Prince", serious conversations on such topics of vital concern as, "Something's got to be done about the price of cashmere sweaters," or "Which dress shall I wear to the football game tonight?" and the nights were to be busy with bridge games and cokes or riding around in some guy's convertible.

Well, 'tweren't quite that way. We stood around, all right—waiting for the dining hall to open. Serious conversations, too—"Is it possible to pass English with a 20, a 40, and a 70? Maybe I ought to change my major to embalming." And it wasn't which dress to wear to the game, but—"You say you want me to go to the football game with you, Jim? Well, just a minute, let me run see if there's anything in the mission box that will fit me."

And our nights were busy—trying to read a thousand-page novel and then write a 500word paper on it—and all in eight hours. (No—doz work better than cokes after 2 a.m.) And then there were those nights when I was washing my hair or taking a shower when that gentle, tinkling little bell was heard announcing a fire drill. And those rooms with no place to plug things in!

What did you say, Son? Did I like it here? Why, Son, the happiest years of my life were spent at Maryville!

Taming of the Shrew Offers Fun for Cast

Anecdotes And Antics Are Told

By Marian Drotar

If you have been wondering why all the crazy hair styles around campus have come to be, it is not because all of our thespians can not afford haircuts, it is simply that they have been growing their own Shakespearian wigs. If you thought they looked peculiar around the campus, you should see them on the stage after they have had a head full of pin-curls all day. Vester Chance (The Pedant) is the spitting image of a blonde Marlon Brando, at least that is what struck Miss Craven's fancy the first time she combed his hair.

Herchal Netherton also has a fine crop of home grown hair. Isn't it amazing how those new Toni spin curls just spring back into place? Herchal is the dashing young Patruchio, (that is pronounced "Pa troo she oh") who tries and successfully tames Ruth Wilson, (Kate) the shrew. He posses great power thrusting around that fifteen pound cape of his.

Then we have the "precious" Gemio, who is none other than Tony Clark. He trips off and on the stage and keeps a smile on the audience's face the whole time he is in view. Actually, he is in love with Kate's younger sister, Biancca (known to her fans as Ann Wiley) who appears just as sweet and demure as Kate is the opposite. However, his efforts are in vain. This just goes to show, that money isn't everything.

Bob McKean is another character His delightful appearances as Biondello almost coincide with Gaemio.

Everyone connected with Taming of the Shrew has worked very hard to present this show as superbly as they have.

The costume department should have a special vote of confidence for their endless (as it seemed) efforts at cutting, sewing, fitting, hemming, pressing and what have you, the over thirty different costumes! They have been spending many wee hours in the sewing room preparing their masterpieces. Wednesday they took a few minutes out of their busy schedules of sewing to celebrate the first birthday of the sewing room mascot, little Richard Griffin. Mrs Griffin makes as fine a cake as she does a cape. Mmm, good.

The costumes are very pretty o nthe outside, but you should see what has to go on the inside! Ann Wiley found particular amusement in flipping her padded bustle back stage.

Bill Deerfield asked me to please mention how attractive he is in those sleek, black "B.V.D.'s" he wears. Well, I mentioned it.

The play is presented in the authentic Shakespearian manner. The scenery is not elaborate, but very effective. In other words, you see the play as people at that time would have seen it.

Ann Yater was chairman of the set committee; Ann Fulton, tickets; Carol Schade, lighting; Kathy Kerns, costumes; Marion Drotar publicity; and Susie Schaffer, properties.

Characters which have not already been mentioned are Vincentio—Bill Deerfield; Franio—Don Theil; Sugar Sop (which is very appropriate for such a sweet little girl) Ruth Wagner; Curtis—Sandra Dorset; Widow—Joan McNaughton; Baptiscio—Ronald Lynn; Grumio—Howard Myer; Lucintio—Bill Lynch; Hortensio—Dave Pierce; and last but not least ,the servant—Bill Bolger.

So, if you missed the play last night, by all means, go tonight even if you have to stand. It is really worth seeing—and it might help your English grade.

Ten MC Debaters To Go To Boone For Tournament

Ten Maryville College debaters will participate in the fifteenth annual Appalachian Mountain Forensic Tournament, December first through the third at Boone, North Carolina.

The two affirmative teams are: Wendy Wood and Margaret Patterson; Keith Ham and Graeme Sieber. For the negative: Bill Goodlin and Bob Vogel; Eleanor Koster and Corita Erkin. Mary Clover and Lavinia Lee will enter oratory and extemporaneous speaking. Miss Arada Walker, debate coach, and Mr.Robert Lynn will accompany the squad and serve as judges for some of the events.

At the close of the tournament recognition will be given to the winners in all events. Awards will be presented to both men and women. The debate will be decision debates, with the best affirmative and negative teams selected by the judges.

This tournament is designed primarily to give debaters in this area an opportunity to secure experience and to better prepare the teams for the debate question and for other forensic events in the spring state, regional, and national tournaments.

Annual Danforth Scholarships Are Offered To Seniors

The Danforth Foundation, an educational trust fund in St. Louis, Missouri, invites applications for the fifth class (1956) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1956, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd has named Dean Frank McClelland as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these fellowships.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including faith and commitment within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by February 15, 1956. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with Dean McClelland, Liaison Officer.

SISK MEMORIAL SERVICE IS HELD

Dedicatory Services were held in honor and memory of Dr. Augustus Sisk last Wednesday, November 16, 1955. Led by his colleagues of many years, President Lloyd, Dr. Edwin Hunter and Dr Horace Orr, the chapel service was dedicated to him. Mrs. Sisk was persent for the simple and dignified service. Following the service, a plaque to his memory, a gift from his' students, was dedicated in his classroom.

Dr. Sisk, head of the mathematics department, taught here for 17 years and was a respected and beloved leader by his students and the faculty.

Y To Feature Choral Reading

The joint program of the Y's this Sunday in the Fine Arts Center will be a 12-voice choral reading directed by John Graulich, which will present 'The Answers,' by the Negro author Darrius L. Swann. This story gives a poetic and striking picture of our world institutions today. It is about a young man looking for the answers that might settle the spiritual and economic problems of mankind; he finds the opposing forces of Communism and the church trying to win the people. This is the story of the church with its "new won urgency" and how it begins to meet the needs of the people.

The author, Mr. Swann, is a native of Virginia and a graduate of Johnson C. Smith University in North Carolina, where he also completed his theological training. After experience in pastorial work in the South and in New York City, Mr. Swann went to China, in 1948, where he lived and worked under Communist regime and totalitarian government until February of 1951. After further study, he joined the faculty of Ewing Christian College in Allahabad, India.

Herman Dies

Herman, Maryville's pet squirrel, died unexpectedly Wednesday morning, November 16, at about 11:00 in Baldwin Hall.

Herman was a common sight to students. He was brought to Maryville campus this fall by Mr. and Mrs. Sperry who had raised him over the summer months. During the early fall days he lived in the trees around the campus and often scampered down to play with passers-by. Lately he had been living in Baldwin.

Funeral services were held the morning of his death. He was buried under the bushes beside Baldwin.

Kinsinger To Give Recital Friday

On Friday evening, November 25, the Musical Department of the Division of Fine Arts will present Dan H. Council Proposes Constitution Revision

Reports Business At Meeting

By Ted McDaniels

The following revision to the student council constitiution has been proposed and is printed here for the consideration of the student body before a meeting is called to act upon it. The article is designed to make the legislative function of the council clearer.

Article IG–Amendment and Revision, and Article X–Ratification shall be re-numbered to read Article X–Amendment and Revision, and Article XI–Ratification. Article IK shall be the following:

Article IX–Legislation

Sec. 1. By-Laws shall be recommended by the Student-Faculty Senate and shall become effective after approval by the Student Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty. All By-Laws shall conform with the constitution.

Sec. 2. Rules of Procedure for the various committees set up by the By-Laws shall be formulated by the committee concerned and shall be filed for record with the Student Council and the Student-Faculty Senate. The Rules of Procedure for a particular committee shall conform with the By-Law establishing that committee.

The Student Council opened last Wednesday night on a note of discipline. There had been four town night violations all, however, rather minor All four violations were of the same statute, that is, the girls failed to sign in after returning from a town night. It was pointed out that in every case the girl had been in before 8:30 p.m. and had just forgotten to sign in. A motion was approved that the girls be punished by being deprived of their town night privleges for one week.

President Shackelford extended a word of thanks to the Pep-Committee for the fine job they did in organizing and supervising the homecoming weekend. It was pointed out that some finicial difficulty had risen, one of the floats in the parade ran out of gas and in stopping to refuel became sepe-rated from the rest. In trying to catch up with the group it encountered some difficulty in stopping, due to a lack of brakes, and bumped the automobile in front of it. Of course, the damages are to be paid by the college. The bill was received totaling $17.93.

Murphy - West Company, In charge of repairs, deducted $5.00, as a courtesy to the college.

It was approved the council voted to pay half the remaining $12.93, and the Pep committee is to pay the other half, subect, of course, to the approval of the Pep committee.

Echo Position Open

Any person interested in being business manager of The Highland Echo will please leave his or her name with one of the staff or in the Echo office in Thaw. The present business manager is retiring at the end of the semester. This job is open to all persons classed juniors or below. The pay is good if you are willing to work at it.

The leads in the cast are Coleen Crawford, Bill Deerfield, Mary Pakosh, Lyle Talbot, Dick Preston, John Ribble, Esther Lerch, Nancy Dodge, Bob Ramger, Gail Schiffer, and Don Thiel.

In charge of the choreography are Lavinia and Mary Ellen Lee. Sadie Davis and Charges Rogers are in charge of publicity and tickets. The admission is 40c.

Ann Yater is designing the set and booths. Ron Morley is directing the production, which was written by Faith Nollner.

Ben Stabley will be the pianist.

Trip To Paris Proves Interesting To Maryville Student Colwell

(Ellen (Ginger) Colwell, who attended Maryville for two years, is now studying during her junior year at the Sorbonne in Paris. She is majoring in psychology. She has sent the following account of her trip to Paris for the ECHO.)

"INNOCENCE ABROAD"

By Ellen Caldwell

It was with much hesitation that I boarded the boat in New York which was to be my home for seven days as I crossed from a new land into an old one and from an old life into a new one. I chose the French line so that I could start becoming accustomed to the French and their ways. This was not the case, since the French aboard are as different from the average Frenchman as the Americans on board are different from Mr. Average Citizen —main-street style.

Life on board is as sumptuous as the ads would have you to believe. We had eight-course meals and 12-piece place settings. On deck in the morning we had broth and crackers and in the afternoon tea and cookies. Every slightest wish was anticipated and promptly attended to. We had dancing, horse-races, swimming, professional enertainment, movies, and any of the dozen various games on board.

One of the interesting phases of life on board was getting acquainted with my fellow passengers—for instance, at our dining table we had a French fellow returning home after a year's study of business in America at Kansas University. (He was sporting his K. U. sweater), another Frenchman returning after study at Temple University, Philadelphia, a Swiss skiing instructor returning home after three months of sightseeing in America, an English Oxford student who planned to set up an airway in Norway, and four Americans going abroad to study.

My first view of Europe was of the beautiful, idyllic city of Plymouth, England. The rolling English countryside was very green, very peaceful, and nestled here and there in the hills were little English hamlets and delicate country houses peeking over the tops of wooded sections. After several passengers disembarked here, we went back across the channel to Le Havre.

We first sighted vague lights far out across the water at two a.m. one morning. Some Frenchmen nearby kept exclaiming that it was "the most beautiful view in the world"—though in reality everything was pitch black. I later discovered that the lights belonged o the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, a fact which, I'm sure, would have instantly deflated the egos of the misinformed Frenchmen.

We arrived in Paris by way of the "Bois de Boulogne." We passed the charming "palais de Chaillot" and almost ran into the overpowering "Tour Eiffel," finally stopping at the "Invalides". But these more usual tourist attractions did not make as big an impression as did the fact that Paris, for all its claimed beauty, would only make a second-rate city in the United States.

Movie To Be Shown As Saturday Event

The Social Committee is sponsoring a full-length movie, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," starring James Stewart, on Saturday, November 26, at 7:30 p.m. The movie will be held in the theatre and there will be no admission charge. Everyone is invited.

Whitman Exhibit Now In Library

The Maryville College Library is currently featuring the Feinberg Travelling Ehibit in connection with the Centennial observance this year of the publication of Walt Whitman's "Loaves of Grass." The Centennial is being celebrated throughout the country all year.

The exhibit is composed of 50 lucite bound photostats of famous Whitman holographs and related materials. Some include such items as the first manuscript page of 'Leaves of Grass," Emerson's famous "Greeting" letter of 1885 and various letters and poem manuscripts.

The English department last week presented a commemoration pragram as part of Maryville's Centennial observance. Under the direction of Dr. E. R. Hunter, various aspects of the volume, "Leaves of Grass," through it's 100-year history was presented as well as highlights of Whitman's life. Readings of his poetry and choral group under the direction of John Graulich made Whitman's poetry "Come to Life."

Miss Virginia Turrentine, Maryville College librarian, announced that 97 copies of the "Conservator" have been shipped as a gift to Maryville College. A letter received from Mr. Feinberg, President of the Feinberg foundation and collector of Whitman material, contained information relating to articles written during Whitman's time.

The gift of the "Conservator" is made in memory of Horace and Anne Montgomeries Traubel. As Whitman material becomes available, the college shall become the recipient of more gifts from tice to time.

Amateur Ornithologist John Barrows Traps and Bands Birds As A Hobby

By Carolyn Cones

If you have ever turned your eyes skyward to watch the great flocks of migrating birds and wondered where they came from and where they were going, then you share a common interest with John Barrows, senior philosophy major from Maitland, Florida.

John, however, takes more than a passive interest in the migration of birds, for he is one of the approximately two thousand authorized bird banders in the United States. The program of which he is a part is under the auspices of the Fish and Wild Life Service of the Department of the Interior and has proved invaluable in tracing the routes of migrating birds and also in determining their life span.

Carnegie Bird Trap

Perhaps you have seen one of John's three bird traps behind Carnegie. When he catches a bird there—he usually catches three or four a day—he places an aluminum band on its leg and then releases it. The band bears a serial number and instructions requesting return to the Fish and Wild Life Service if found. Recovery of a banded bird involves the filling out of a form stating date, place, and manner of recovery, and the complete serial number of the band. This, of course, aids in tracking down flight. The bands, themselves, are durable and light-weight and in no way hamper movements of the bird.

A complete record is kept of each banding, and it includes species, sex, date, location, and age (if determinable). Once a year a record of all banding is sent to the Fish and Wild Life Service—each species being reported separately.

and is attended mainly by teachers. While there he became acquainted with Allan Cruickshalk, naturalist; Joseph Cadbury; and Carl Bushhicher, vice president of the National Audubon Society—who furnished him with the needed recommendations.

John now holds a license for Tennessee and Florida and has been actively participating in the

A License Necessary

Obviously, it is imperative that the person undertaking such a project be thoroughly familiar with the various species of birds; hence, the Government requires recommendation from three recognized ornithologists, naturalists, or banders before it will grant a license. John, who has always been fascinated by ornithology, met this requirement during the summer while working on the maintenance staff of the Audubon Camp in Maine. This camp is devoted to the study of conservation banding program since September. Since that time he has banded about sixty birds, including nine or ten species.

He has two small traps which are suitable for catching sparrows and a larger trap which is approximately six feet long. This longer trap is made of hardware cloth (galvanized square mesh wire), and its two entrances are so arranged that once the bird enters the trap, it is unable to find is way out. Bait consists of scratch feed, bread, raisins, and the like.

Method of Banding

John bands the birds by holding it with the palm of the hand over the back with fingers over the neck and turns the bird upside down. He then takes the band, which has been previously flattened out, and clamps it together with a pair of pliers on the right leg. The only trouble he has had thus far in the actual process of banding has been with cardinals, which tend to scratch and claw.

John is proud of the program of which he is a part, and well he might be. An idea of its extensiveness may be gained from 1950's statistics—753,303 birds banded and 17,000 reports of recoveries.

John takes part in this fascinating and useful acctivity as a hobby, for after graduation he plans to do advanced work in psychology.

Rescue The Perishing

And the rains came and the leaves descended and the seniors were still busily absorbed in their special studies. . . . .

We underclassmen never fail to marvel at the dogged determination with which those epitomes of all that's scholarly undertake THE project. Carrying little black boxes around (which they guard as though they contained the relics of some saint.), they take notes prodigiously. Then, if their advisors don't disapprove too strongly of their subject for research, they begin to set their discoveries down in readable form on long, yellow pads.

Meanwhile they go around in a scholarly daze. They become the admiratio of the freshmen, the scorn of the sophomores, and a horrible example of what's to come to the juniors. They really have to be humored as the DEADLINE looms nearer. And, fellow underclassmen, that fatal date is now upon them!

We can do our best to cooperate and help them get their special studies in on time. If we play our cards right, we can even profit from their plight. For a reasonable price we can offer to type some senior's precious manuscript. However, we can manage it so that we won't have to work too hard. We'll just distribute the chapters around (paying our hired typists, of course), and after a couple of days collect them and present them triumphantly to our surprised senior. He will be so overjoyed that he will give us double the price we asked so that we will come out way ahead even after we've paid our proletariat.

So let's all rescue our discouraged scholars—really doesn't matter too much if we accidentally send a few innocentlooking chapters away with the trash collectors—just so we aren't seniors.

Think To Be Thankful

Thanksgiving time is here again. More particularly Thanksgiving Day has almost arrived. November 24 is that day especially set aside for our benefit, so that we may take the time to gratefully remember our blessings and give thanks for them.

Most of us will be spending the day here on the campus where we have been for nearly three months now. In fact our life has largely revolved in this small area of East Tennessee. It is so easy to forget the rest of the world—to become completely separated from its turmoil—while living here on the Hill.

This Thursday let us take time to give thanks. Thanks for the opportunities afforded at a Christian college: for the Church, the friends, the classes, the programs. Thanks for living in a land of freedom and plenty, and remembrance of those people less fortunate than ourselves. We who approach the winter knowing we will have enough to wear, enough to eat, and a warm place to stay, may we not forget the countless people who have none of these things which we take so for granted.

In this country as well as in others, many are giving heartfelt thanks—for the privilege of mere existance.

Let us think this Thanksgiving as well as thank, and let us realize that we have ahead of us many more such Thanksgiving Days on which we may be able to help others to really have something to be thankful for.

Memories of a Fire Drill at 3 A.M.

'Twas the night before Special Studies were due,
when all through the house,
Not a girlie was stirring, not even a louse.
The alarm clocks were set by the with great care,
Though all hoped that morning would not soon be there.
Yes, the girlies were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of completed Special Studies danced in their heads.
And I with my typewriter and my roomate with hers,
Had just settled down for a few hours of sleep,
When out in the hall there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the door, I flew like a flash,
Bumped into the desk and fell with a crash.
Then, what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But our good old fire captain and her eight monitors dear.
And all running around so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be——a fire drill!
More rapid than eagles these monitors came,
And they whistled and shouted and called us by name:
"Up, Sally! Doors open! Get a towel! Faster, Mary!"
"You—Janet, check the windows! Get a move on! Now, hurry!"
Down the stairs with a bound, to the end of the hall,
Now dash away, dash away, dash away, all;
Sing girls with Special Studies, for a little sleep, sigh,
When they meet with a fire drill, to avoid it, try,
So, in every room those dear monitors flew,
With an Ever-ready flashlight—and Mrs Lemasters, too.
And then, in a twinkling, we were under the trees,
"Count off!". . "Won't you let us go, aw, please?"
As I answered with "here" and was turning around,
Out the doorway our fire captain came with a bound.
Her eyes, how they twinkled: her dimples, how merry!
Her cheeks were like roses, her nose like a cherry.
A wink of her eye and a twist of her head.
Soon gave me to know I had plenty to dread.
She spoke not a word, but checked on her workers,
She glanced at us all to catch any shirkers.
She turned to the door, to her monitors whistled,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard her exclaim, ere she vanished from sight,
"Happy fire drill to all and I'll see you another night."

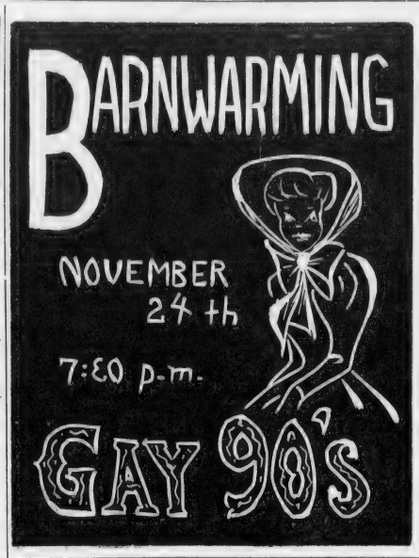
Echo Forum- Your YMCA

By John Borter

Yes, it is your YMCA and therein lies two implications. Since it is your organization it would only seem natural that you participate in its activities. If you do not want to serve in town projects there are and will be activities on campus such as intramurals, hikes, and evening swimming. If there are activities which you would like to participate in make suggestions and arrangements will be made. Secondly, since it is your YMCA you have a responsibility to help in its effective functioning. If there are activities which you would like, don't stand idly by and make some half heard disgruntal remark. Speak up! Share with everyone your ideas and the satisfaction you will receive for your efforts will alone make it worth your while.

At the most recent meeting of the YMCA Cabinet definite plans were begun to make the YMCA a strong campus organization. The YMCA is not to be considered another Pre-Ministerial Association—it is a Christian Association organized for the purpose primarily of providing Christian Fellowship. The twenty-five men on the cabinet can not make the YMCA a success without your help. Become active in your YMCA.

Vespers Tomorrow Night



Reverend James Wallace Willoughby will be the Vesper speaker tomorrow evening in the chapel. The men's and women's choirs combined will sing for the service The two anthems selected are "Lost in the Night" by Christiansen and "The Singers" by Noble Cain.

Mr. Willoughby has been a missionary in the New East under the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. since 1922.

He is now secretary for the Mission's Literature Department.

Mr. Willoughby was born in Albany, Alabama, and is a graduate of Wabash College and Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He also attended the prepatory department of Maryville College for one year.

The hangar deck of the huge Navy aircraft carrier USS Forrestal is the length of 3½ full size football fields.

National Art Gallery Prints Now On Exhibit

The Art Department now has a display of prints, post cards, and Christmas cards in the gallery of the Fine Arts Center. These prints were obtained from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C., and are by various painters, the best known being Cezanne, Renoir, Monet, Van Gogh, Whistler, Degas, Corot, Inness, Van Dyck, Rembrandt, El Greco, Raphael, Jan Van Eyck, and Botticelli.

The cards are miniature reprints of famous paintings, etchings, and woodcuts.

Orders were taken for the prints and cards until the deadline last Wednesday.

Students Appear In FAC Recital

The College Music Department presented a student recital last Tuesday in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Performing in the recital were: Ann Kelton, organist, playing "Fugue in G Minor," by Bach, and "Cantabile," by Franck; Louise Ogden, pianist, playing "Toccata in G Major," by Bach; Howard Bell, baritone, singing "Arm Arm Ye Brave," from "Judas Maccabeus," by Handel, accompanied by Zona Gogel;

Mary Ellen Phipps, soprano, singing "Lungi dal caro bene," by Secchi, accompanied by Dorothy Miles; Sidney Tedford, tenor, singing "I Know Where I'm Going," arr. by Hughes and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Quilter, accompanied by Lynn Mitchell; Martha Jackson, soprano, singing "In the Silence of Night," by Rachmaninoff, accompanied by Mary Brasfield; Fred Wyman, alto saxophone, playing "Rapsodies," by Vellones, accompanied by Louise Ogden.

FTA Meets With Music Ed. Club

FTA met with the Music Education Club last Thursday night for its bi-monthly meeting. Since the Children's Home is the project of FTA this year, it was decided that a Christmas party be given for them during the month of December.

The program included the reviewing of several film strips which tell the stories of various musical compostions, "Peter and the Wolf," "Hansel and Gretel," "The Nutcracker," "Peer Gynt," "The Firebird," and "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" were used. Jackie Speigner demonstrated the use of the film strip and the recording of "Peter and the Wolf" by Prokofiev. She spoke briefly of her experience in using these audio-visual aids in her practice teaching.

FAC Announces Course Offerings

The Music Appreciation course will be offered again next semester. The course is planned both for those who have had no acquaintance with music and those who have some knowledge of music. After a brief survey of the basic materials of music a study is made of the masterpieces of the literature from Palestrina to the present day. Period and background of the periods of the arts are studied. Bernstein's "Introduction to Music" is used as a basic text with recorded music as illustration in class and for individual listening. This class will be open to non-music majoring juniors and seniors.

The Art appreciation course, Art 313, will be offered next semester as usual. The course is open to all juniors and seniors who are not art majors and is designed to help those who have had little contact with art to come to a better undersanding and appreciaion of the great works of art both of the past and of today.

Choirs Are Working On Christmas Music

The mens and women's choirs have selected their Christmas music, which is to be presented at a special service. The date will be announced later. There are two soloists for the women's anthems. The anthems and the soloists are "In Bethlehem's Lowly Manger," Liz Bixler; and "When Jesus Lived in Galilee," Nancy McGeorge.

The men will sing "Angels Over the Fields" and "Noel-Noel." In one of the selections Howard Bell and Bob Moses will sing special parts.

Sports Spotlights

By Tom Paton

The 1955 football season has drawn to a close with the Highlanders posting a 3-5 record for the year. This is the time for many second-guessers to get out their crystal balls and tell us what was wrong with our team. Many recriminations will be poured on the heads of the players and coaches, and in return perhaps we will hear many excuses. Surely if certain factors had been different the season might have been better; or worse. But after having watched our 1955 squad in action I feel that an attitude of optimism is appropriate. I saw some exciting plays and spotted some outstanding players. I feel that, with the end of the season, it is fitting and proper to express my delight at these high points, rather than my disgust at some disappointments.

Our Two Assisants

First, I should like to praise two men who, because of their duties, are seldom in the spotlight. These two men, Ken Shepard and Tom Cragan, worked with the head coaches throughout the year. They applied themselves to the task of teaching football, and they did it well. This added instruction is a great help to both our players and our coaches. Their personal encouragement and tutelage received from these two assistants has been invaluable in keeping team spirit up, and in development of fundamental techniques of football. On the sidelines during a ballgame, both Kenny and "Prof." maintain a stream of chatter; encouraging, advising or just keeping the players spirits high. To a football player this type of thing is invaluable. These two men spend their time to help merely because they want to. They volunteer their service, and then give their utmost to it. And so, at this time I exend my "thank you" to Ken Shepard and Tom Cragan. Their spirit is admirable. I hope it is contagious.

Some New Faces

The second group I would like to congratulate consists of all the new players who saw action for the Highlanders this fall. These men ably abetted our veterans, and served the team well. They all did a good job; they worked hard, they learned and they improved. Without trying to discriminate against the others, I would like to particularly cite a few whom I felt were outstanding.

At the beginning of the season it was felt the wingback slot was to be one of the Scottie weak points. To quote this column, Sept. 24, 1955, Bob Evans wrote: ". . . the weakest spot in this year's Highlander squad . . . is the wingback slot. . . Coach Honaker, in starting a freshman. . . is making a rather unprecedented move."

At the same time, this remark seemed appropriate. But the freshman is question, Earl Smith, proved to be one of Coach Honaker's outstanding assets. In running the reverse, Smith moved the ball well; but his outstanding contributions were in blocking, and his defensive play. With perfect timing he blocked many an end, and made jarring tackles coming up from defensive halfback. His play was hard and heads-up, and he may prove to be even better with one season under his belt. Another back who did good service was Roy Myers. Filling in for White at full-back Myers proved he has the speed and power to run over or around the opposition or offense; and on defense he can tackle like a linebacker should, HARD. Alongside these two new men in the backfield was Gordon Sparks, at tailback. Not exactly a new figure on campus, Sparks got his first opportunity to cut loose this season. And cut loose he did. Using sheer power most of the time, he bulled his way for many valuable yards. All three of these boys will be returning, and with the added experience they promise to provide a potent backfield punch.

Up front in the line the names Beam, Cole, and Hawkins attracted much attention. All three are worthy of comment, but in my opinion Hawkins was the standout. Up to the time of his injury, Hawkins had proved hat he could play tackle, and play it well. His spirit was always good, and he backed it up with hard play. Barring any complications, Hawkins should prove to be a mainstay of future Highlander lines.

To me the contributions of these men, players, and coaches, make an optimistic view of the 1955 season appropriate. The spirit and talent of these men proves that something worthwhile was accomplished on the gridiron this fall. These players will be back, the coaches may be back too; but that is not the important thing. The important hing is that they tried; they gave themselves to the game and gave their best. It is this spirit that makes football a great game. It is this spirit that makes Maryville football worthy of our continued support.

AS I SEE IT

By Chuck Wagner

This football season is over, leaving us with only memories and plans for next year. This was not the best season ever recorded by a Maryville College football team. It was a season marked by great tension, little spirit, and much criticism. We really had to get on the ball to manage to win three games. This whole season was an uphill battle for the team and the coaches. We were becoming more and more disorganized all the time until we snapped back and beat the UT Frosh. After that game we played much better football, although we never approached the realization of our great potential.

Despite the inferior quality of this season there were many thrills in it. It will be a long time before Jim McCall's 95 yard touchdown runback of a kick-off, or Bud White's 74 yard touchdown run straight up the middle will be forgotten. Along with thrills of the spectacular sort such as these, there were also those of the more common type. Very seldom will any team come up with two such consistently outstanding defensive guards as Bill Wheatley and Roy (Hob-Roy) Hayes; or defensive ends such as Chuck Dunn and Ted Wilson. Otis Morgan's fine line-backing is equally a thrill. This season produced a great many of both the spectacular and the more common thrills. I agree completely with Bill Strickland, when he says that this was an interesting season.

This season's end means farewell to the gridiron for some fine ball-players. Some of those who are leaving us are captains Ted Godfrey and Jack Renfro, peppery Buddy Gilbert, Don Moore, Jim Saunders, Marvin Boring, Leroy Gooden, Bill Strickland, Bill Wheatley, Chuck Dunn, Roy Hayes, Ernie Raulerson, and Lynn Sexton. There is no doubt as to the fact that everyone of these fellows is going to be missed. It has been a pleasure to play ball with them.

Next season looks good at this point. There are quite a few lettermen returning and we should be fairly strong at all positions. On the line Ted Wilson and Jack French are the returning ends, Bob Clemens, Tom Axley, and Jack Emory are back at tackles, starters John Anderson and Bob (Cheeks) Hutsell along with Bud Beam and Jim Cole are the guards, and Bob Bivens is back at center. In the backfield tailbacks Jim McCall and Gordon Sparks will be back. Bud White, Roy Myers, and Tom Moore are all back at the fullback spot, Don Alfred and Otis Morgan are the quarterback returnees, and Earl Smith and Bill Evans are back at wingback. Add to this list the returning servicemen and the freshmen and transfer students and we should have a great team.

We are going to be in better shape next year than we were this year. Thus, eliminating many of the injuries which we had this year as a result of lack of conditioning. We are also going to give it all we have in the matter of team spirit under our new captains. There is still a big job which must be done by all of the members of the student body. You must support us to the hilt. There was plenty of good school spirit this year, but there is still room for improvement.

Let's all work together to make next season the greatest one in our school's history!

Intramurals....

By Jim Conklin

Although the Intramural football season was officially ended last Saturday night, the fellows playing intramural basketball seem to have plenty of the rough and tumble spirit left and it is carrying over into the basketball games. The Intramural basketball season officially opened on Monday the 14th, with a full slate of games in the "B" League.

The Local Yokels outplayed the A. S. Tackhammers by the score of 44-16. The A. S. Warriors blasted the PreMin Cyclones 38-8 and in the final game of the afternoon the Pre-Min Hurricanes out hooped the Kappa Phi B's 31-26.

On Wednesday afternoon the Kappa Phi Dukes started off the "A" League by defeating the Kappa Phi Diaper Daddies 27-17. In the second game of the afternoon the Y Flyers outscored the A.S. Piledrivers 48-26. The Wheels squeeked by the A. S. Sledgehammers in the closest game of the campaign thus far by the score of 28-27.

With all the teams now having played one game apiece, working out the kinks and getting situated on the court, it looks as if the season is going to settle down into a good, fast moving race.

Aluminum Bowl Is Cancelled

Because of general disfavor expressed by the players and because of the ruling of college authorities, there will be no Aluminum Bowl Game played on Thanksgiving Day, November 24, as was tentatively planned and previously announced This decision was reached largely because of lateness of proposal.

Women's Physical Ed. Dept. Plans Program

The woman's physical education department is presenting three programs which will be given by the folk dance, modern dance, and tumbling classes. The tumbling program will be given fourth period on December 1. Its theme is "World Tour" and will consist of stunts and pyramids. The folk dance program, which will consist of dances learned in class this semester, and will be drawn from folk dances of several countries, will be presented fifth period on December 2. The modern dance program will be given second period on December 3. Based on different themes four groups will present different interpretations all using the same music.

Highlanders Conclude 1955 Football Season

Carson-Newman Spoils Homecoming

Carson Newman spoiled an other wise perfect homecoming celebration for the Highlanders as they downed the Scots 13-7.

EAGLES SCORE

The Eagles of Jefferson City scored late in the second period after taking over the ball on their own 46 yeard line and driving downfield to the eighth. Kendall Morgan then skirted end for Carson Newman's first TD. of the evening. Charlie Bryant's attempt for the extra point was no good and the score at the half was Eagles 6, Scotties 0.

SCOTS GAIN LEAD

Midway in the third period, tailback Jim McCall uncorked a 30-yard pass to left end Chuck Dunn who raced 54 yards to score. Fullback Bud White booted the extra point and the Highlanders led 7-6.

EAGLES SCORE AGAIN

Maryville's joy was short lived as the Jefferson City boys gained a lead they never relinquished late in the same period. Kendall Morgan figured in this scoring drive also as he threw passes to Bill Bacon and Charlie Bryant, the latter of whom scored the TD. The Eagles did not miss point-after-touchdown attempt and went in the lead to stay 13-7.

MC WINS LAST GAME

The Highlanders finished the season in good form winning over Coach Joseph Friedl's Mountain Lions of Concord State 13-6. The game was played in the Mountain Lion's home field at Athens, West Virginia.

LIONS SCORE FIRST

Concord, playing out of the wing used also by the Highlanders, drew first blood midway in the second quarter after recovering a Scottie fumble on the visitor's 20-yard marker. Quarter-back Mike Jupin, tossed a nine-yard pass to end Bill Owens for the tally and State led 6 0 at half time.

SCOTS SCORE TWICE

MC came back strongly in the second half, clearly outplaying the Concordians and limiting the team to two first downs in the final two quarters.

At the same time, the Scotties were able to score twice, the first touchdown coming late in the fourth quarter as tailback Jim McCall scored on a 25 yard run White missed the extra point kick but the Scots went on to victory 13-6.

BROWN IS FASHION COLOR

Has anyone noticed that brown is the color for this fall? No more does brown have to be considered a drab color, because it is showing up everywhere now – in coats, suits, dresses, sweaters, skirts, shoes, hats, and Bermudas. It's lighter counterpart, khaki, is already well on its way to fashion fame, appearing mostly in slacks and Bermudas. Brown goes with a multitude of colors – yellow, beige, brown, pink, mint green, lavender, and white, to mention the prettiest ones.

Actually, the popularity of a certain color differs from year to year, but it really doesn't matter that you get everything in that color. Any well-matched outfit is always in good style. To be in good style, you don't have to be up on all the very latest fashion trends – just make sure that your clothes are neat and well-matched, above all. One of the most striking outfits that a girl can wear is a sweater and skirt of the same shade with a belt or scarf to break the long line of color.

In parting, this - you don't have to own ten trunkfuls of clothes, as long as you have a few basic clothes that wear well and go with the other clothes in your wardrobe. Remember that old saying – quality, not quanity, is what counts.

Choir To Perform Buxtehude Cantata

The Vesper Choir under the direction of Mr. John Hutton, Instructor in Music, will perform the cantata "Rejoice, Beloved Christians' by Dietrich Bpxtehude on Sunday, November 27, at 7:00 p.m. in the chapel. Mr. James Bloy, Instructor in Music, will accompany the choir at the piano.

In 1673, while he was organist-choirmaster at the Marienkirche in Lubeck, Buxtehude orginated a series of cantatas for the four Sundays in Advent. These cantatas were written for choir and orchestra, and were designed to be performed at the evening service of the church.

Alpha Sigma Defeat All-Stars

Last Saturday night the Alpha Sig Hammers crushed the Intramural All-Stars 14-0 in the second annual contest between the winners of the championship tournament and the All Stars. It was the Hammer's second consecutive participation and victory of this game.

Both of Sig's TDs were scored on passes, a long one to Jim Cummings and a short heave to Jim Conklin. Bill Dent converted successfully on both attempts for the Hammers.

The Hammers downed the Rebels in the finals of the touch football tournament to gain the right to play in this game.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

Head weary
Eyes all bleary
from too much. . . .
A sure cure:
Diversion.

The play's the thing—and tonight's the last night! Be sure to watch for the little girl with approximately three lines.

If you're not out of that green stuff (and we dont mean lettuce) and if you haven't anything to do—then a multitude of magnificent movies is yours for the seeing. The Capitol offers "Ten Tall Men", starring Clark Gable, from tonight through Wednesday. This could very well be Maryville's Movie of the Week, but if Clark doesn't "send you", maybe Rod Cameron in "San Antone", Alan Ladd in "The Black Night", or Judy Cannova (how did she get in?) in "Lay That Rifle Down", will. These may be viewed at the Park tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Thursday and Friday respectively.

If these choice flickers don't suit you—well, there are always the Knoxville theaters. Lack of space prevents us, however, from viewing the coming attractions there.

Count 'Em—58,842

If your financial condition isn't too good, then MC's 58,842 volume library is the place for you. There library is the place for you. There one may find the best books with which to better one's brain. For example:

"Enameling: Principles and Practice" by K. F. Bates which gives a step by step explanation of the methods and techniques of making enamels—useful for beginners and craftsmen alike.

"Scientific Principles of Coaching" by John Bunn, which is neither a new nor a very well read book. To quote the author: "Competition in all fields of sport has developed to such a high degree that no coach or player can afford to neglect the application of scientific principles that can give him an advantage over, or at least keep him apace with, his opponent."

"The Escape of Socrates" by Robert Pick, which only those in English 205 classes will be able to appreciate. (Be patient freshmen—your time will come.)

Just one word about books—and that a word of caution: All books late in returning home are placed on the black list, so please get them signed in on time.

. . . . Dedicated to those who need diversion by one who wishes that there were more time for it. . . .

Dr. Sweazey Is Leader Of February Meetings

Was Here Before For 1952 Meetings

The leader of the February Meetings this year will be Dr. George E. Sweazey, Ph.D., D.D., Pastor of the Huguenot Memorial Presbyterian Church of Pelham, New York, and former Secretary for Evangelism in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Dr. Sweazey led the February Meetings at Maryville College with outstanding success in 1952. It was during his Secretaryship in the Department of Evangelism that the successful and famous New Life Movement was carried through and that the present New Life Advance was started.

Dr. Sweazey will be assisted by Rev. John Magill, D.D., as song leader and Dr. Henry Barraclough as accompanist. Dr. Magill, who graduated at Maryville College in 1939, is Pastor of the Abington Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Dr. Barraclough first came to America from England as accompanist for the evangelistic team of Chapman and Alexander who were famous forty years ago. He is now the Assistant Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. Both Dr. Magill and Dr. Barraclough took part in the February Meetings last year and the year before.

Dr. Sweazey is a graduate of Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri, where he was an outstanding athlete in football and track, and of Princeton Theological Seminary. He holds a Master's degree from Princeton University, a Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Berlin, and honorary degrees from several institutions.

This year's Meetings will be held February 1-9.

DR. GEORGE E. SWEAZEY

Dr. George E. Sweazey, Ph. D., D.D., will be the leader of February Meetings, which will be held February 1-9.

Dulles Urges Concentration On Foreign Policy

Washington, Nov. 29 — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles urged today that American politicians keep their foreign policy quarrels on a constructive level, steering away from fights that would hurt the country. "Those hostile to the U.S. and its ideals are not going to take a vacation so that we here can safely concentrate on a domestic political battle," he told a news conference. "We should not encourage them to become bolder," he added, "calculating that the months ahead, because they are an election period for us, will provide opportunities for them."

Seniors, Juniors Celebrate End Of Long Ordeal

By Janet Whitmore

Thursday evening the Senior Class celebrated. At last came the end of the long ordeal—Special Studies, and another class donated a shelfful of black volumes to the library.

The party, which was attended by seniors and their junior guests, was entertained first of all by Bill Dent and Ann Kelton who read an original poem written on one of the all-famous yellow pads. Dee Woods, Liz Enloe and Nita Baylor then rendered their adapted version of "Faith, Hope, and Charity."

Doug Brian presented his serious" dedication speech to the seated juniors. At its conclusion the seniors, although it was hard, parted with their notecards. (Juniors next year it's your turn to throw them! Oh happy day!) Next Carol Lee Lacy and Shirley Mayfield sang "When, When, When". Refreshments were served to all, including "Lightnin'" who showed up for the event.

Juniors, we wish you luck with your masterpieces. We've much advice to pass on to you; however, few of you will believe us when we complain about how nerve-racking an experience is this course called Special Studies, but you'll soon learn. Happy note-taking!

Mr. Grant Is Recovering

Word has come that Mr. Donald Grant is well on the way to recovery after becoming ill on October 1. Mr. Grant, traveller and lecturer from England, has visited Maryville campus several times, the last trip here being in the spring of 1953. He is now in the National Hospital, Queen Square, London, where he was flown after he was stricken while in California.

YMCA Announces Christmas Plans

YMCA—sponsored activities for the rest of the semester include three main programs of interest to all.

Under the direction of the Inter-racial Committee, a Christmas program takes place December 9th at 7:30 p.m., at the Hale school auditorium. In cooperation with the parents and teachers of Hale school students, a Christmas manger-scene play is being developed. Students are engaged in learning scripts, building sets and scene painting while parents will provide refreshments. All are invited.

Doug Brian has announced a Christmas party will be held at Home Avenue Mission at 7:30 p.m. Friday, December 9th. Santa Claus will arrive in town for the party.

The last meeting of the year will be the occasion of M. C.'s annual Christmas reading. Mr. Bushing occupies the place of honor this season, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Student Center, December 11. After the reading, there will be singing of Christmas carols plus some special entertainment. Everyone is urged to bring a blanket.

Students To Present Recital In FAC Tuesday

The regular student recital will be given December 6, 1955, 4:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Numbers to be performed are:

Chopin's "Ballade, Opus 47", Lynn Mitchell, pianist; Duparc's "Chanson triste," Bobbye Carson, contralto, with Maryel Vogel, accompanist;

An Old Provencial Noel—"La belle table est mise" and Debussy's "Romance," Jack Shafer, tenor, with Peggy Davis, accompanist;

Bernstein's " Hate Music" (A Cycle of Five Kid's Songs), Mary Brasfield, soprano, with Myrna Ginaven, accompanist; and Bach's "Concerto in D minor for Piano and String Orchestra," Myrna Ginaven, pianist, with Louise Ogden at a second piano.

Miss Davies Attends Meeting In St. Louis

Katherine C. Davies, Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, represented the college at the thirty-third annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music. The sessions this year were held at the Jefferson Hotel in St. Louis, Missouri on Friday and Saturday following Thanksgiving Day. Maryville College has been a member of this association since 1942.

This organization was founded in 1924 by a small group of leading schools for the purpose of establishing higher objectives in music education and has now grown until it includes 225 of the leading universities, colleges and conservatories in this country.

Both morning and afternoon topics were devoted to the study of such topic as: "Trends in the Opera Workshop Methods," "Curriculum for the Private Music Teacher," and the professional and liberal arts approach to music training. Each talk was followed by open discussion.

Since the National Commission on Accreditation has designated the NASM as the Association responsible for the approval of music standards on a national basis, the outcome of these deliberations will have a significant bearing on the trend of music education in this country.

Newly elected officers of the NASM are: President, E. William Doty, University of Texas, Austin; Treasurer, Frank B. Jordan; and Secretary, Burnet C. Tuthill.

Writer's Workshop To Have Party In FAC

Members of Writer's Workshop will hold their annual Christmas party Monday at 4:30 in the Fine Arts Center lounge. Cary Valentine will read and San Roberts will criticize. Contributions to "Chips", the workshop booklet, will be voted upon.

Carol Sleight and Toppy Lee are in charge of refreshments.

Dance Committee Is Working Toward The Big Event

By Helen Jansen

The plans for the annual Fall Dance, sponsored by Bainonian and Kappa Phi, which is to be held in the Alumni Gymnasium on December 10, at 8:00, are stepping along at a vigorous rate. The two societies began preparations during the summer and committees are now hard at work.

Its time—As Time Goes By—will be carried out in the decorations on the basis of the twelve months of the year. An organ will provide music for dancing, and a program (which is a surprise) will furnish entertainment.

Tickets on sale before and after meals in Pearsons are $1.25 a couple. The chairman and others working on the dance are hoping to have a large crowd in attendance.

Experimental Theatre Presents "Gammer Gurton's Needle"

Experimental Theater last night presented "Gammer Gurton's Needle" in the theater of the chapel at 8 o'clock. The members of the cast of this comedy were: Diccon, Robert Bowman; Modge, Tony Clark; Tib, Paula Shaffer; Grammer, Ruth Wagner; Dame Chat, Joan McNaughten; Cock, Larry Gibbs; Doctor Rat, Vester Chance; Master Bailey, Bob Evans; Doll, Sylvia Smith.

Maryville Ministers On Protestant Hour

The Presbyterian Church U.S.A. is in charge of the December series of the "Protestant Hour", a nation-wide radio program held on Sunday mornings. Dr. Lloyd will speak on the program December 18, and Dr. Francis W. Pritchard will speak on December 25.

10 Seniors Complete College Requirements

Miss Stokes Will Be Here Dec. 8-16

Miss Margaret Stokes, an English educator from St. Christopher's Training College in India, will visit Maryville College Campus December 8-16. She is one of eight prominent women educators from union Christian colleges in Asia who are visiting the United States until early January, 1956.

These leaders in Christian education and training for women in Asia are coming at the invitation of the women's committee of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches. This committee, responsible for the allocation of World Day of Prayer funds overseas, has voted money from the 1955 World Day of Prayer offerings to cover the expenses

Miss Stokes, a professor of mathematics, was among those attending the Assembly of United Church Women in Cleveland, Ohio, and the Assembly of Division of Foreign Missions in Dayton, Ohio. She will also attend the Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission in Athens, Ohio.

YMCA Student Secretary Will Speak At Vespers

The speaker at the Sunday evening Vesper Service will be Mr. Al Payne of Atlanta, Georgia, who is Student Secretary of the National Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Payne will remain at Maryville until Tuesday morning and will observe the operation of a non-staffed Y. He will also be available for consultation concerning the Y. and other types of social work.

Will Graduate This Semester

Ten members of the senior class will have completed their requirements for graduation at the end of this semester. These December graduates will be honored at a special chapel service on December 17.

The group includes:

Barbara Belmore, philosophy major from Harvey, Illinois. Miss Belmore, a Bainonian, is a transfer from Baptist Missionary Training School.

George Berrong, business administration major from Maryville.

Margaaret Blackburn, English major from Knoxville. Miss Blackburn is a member of writer's workshop, vesper choir, and Bainonian.

William Brickley, business administration major from Townsend, a transfer from the University of Tennessee.

Carolyn Carter, elementary education major from Nashville, a member of Theta Epsilon.

Harrell Coulter, business administration major from Walland, Tennessee.

Bob Cruze, political science major from Lenoir City, a transfer from Hiwassee College. His activities this year include Alpha Sigma and Spanish Club.

Doris Glad, art major from Brooklyn, New York. Miss Glad is a member of Art Club and was rush-week chairman for Theta Epsilon this semester.

Lynn Sexton, physical education major from Friendsville. His activities include "M" Club, football, basketball, baseball and Alpha Sigma.

Grace Webb, biology major from Clifton, Virginia, a transfer from Johns Hopkins. Mrs. Webb is in vesper choir and Theta Epsilon.

Kilts And Heather Idea Is False, Calquhoun Tells Downcast Reporter

By Joanne Causey

"But we don't wear kilts!"—Jim Calquhoun was having a hard time convincing me that one of my life-long convictions was not based on fact. It seems that "Brigadoon" and "Rob Roy" gave me the wrong impression of Scotland. "Kilts," Jim explained to me, "are worn only on special occasions—and besides they cost more than a regular suit. And another thing, heather is pretty and all that, but you don't go out and gather an armload of it and then come in and put it in a vase." Jim and his mother went to see "Brigadoon" and got a big laugh out of seeing Cyd Charisse lightly pluck huge bunches of this flower while dancing gaily over the Scottish hills sides. "Why, it would take a Mack truck to pull up a clump of that stuff," Jim told me. Well, another one of my cherished beliefs just bit the dust—no heather picking for me when I go to Scotland.

But He Had Some Wrong Ones, Too

Evidently, both of us got some wrong ideas from the movies. Jim's ideas of America, drawn from the "cinema", of course, were slightly, well, "off." "I pictured everyone's owning his own home—a large white frame house with green shutters; shady streets; the shouts of kids playing ball in a vacant lot. I imagined all the women would be immaculately dressed, with every hair in place—even when they were scrubbing floors. Everyone would have a flashy sports car and no one would worry about money." Sound familiar? Didn't think so.

Jim and his mother came over on the Queen Mary and the trip which 14-year-old Jim had dreamed of, turned out to be something less than a dream. They were caught in the middle of the worst storm in sixteen years. "All the portholes had to be closed because of the sixty-foot-high waves. No one was allowed on the open deck because of the high wind. . . Well, few of the passengers had very hearty appetites."

Didn't Get To See Statue of Liberty

The trip was a series of disappointments for Jim. After sitting up all night to see the Statue of Liberty, Jim went down to the ball room to sit down for a while. "Just as I got down there, they announced over the intercom, 'Ladies and gentlemen, we are now passing the Statue of Liber-

Students Abroad Census Is Taken

Over 9,000 U.S. students studied abroad during 1954-55, according to the preliminary returns, released recently, of a survey taken by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

Initial returns from this first statistical report on American students abroad indicate that 9,262 U.S. citizens studied in 47 foreign countries and political areas during the past academic year. The survey was limited to students having both U.S. citizenship and permanent residence in the United States.

The Institute's survey, first undertaken as a pilot project in 1953, was conducted by means of a questionnaire sent to 1,000 institutions of higher education in 74 foreign countries and political areas. Replies have been received from a total of 836 institutions or 83.6 per cent of those polled; 779 institutions reported 9,262 U. S. Students enrolled; 457 reported no U.S. students. A final report on U.S. students abroad will be included in the 1956 Open Doors, the Institute's annual census report on foreign students, scholars and doctors in the U.S.

Where did the American students study? Almost [illegible] (or 5,461) of those reported were enrolled in European schools. 15 per cent were in Mexico and 14.8 per cent in Canada. Four countries reported over 1,000 U. S. citizens in their institutions of higher education: Mexico, 1,045; Canada, 1,374; [illegible] and the United Kingdom, 1,369.

European countries, in addition to Italy and the United Kingdom, where over 100 U.S. students enrolled were: Germany, 834; France 805; Switzerland, 759; the Netherlands, 200; Spain, [illegible]; Austria, 158; and Belgium, [illegible].

There were [illegible] in the Far East, 491 [illegible] in the Philippines and 112 in [illegible].

Hat Checkers In Thaw?

Winter has come. An icy cold wave brought it in with all its force this week. People are now wearing coats. And therein lies a problem: What shall they do with their coats while they attend classes? Why, hang them on hooks, of course, you say.

But in this case the early bird gets the worm, because only the lucky can find an empty hook. To be more specific: suppose you have a class in Thaw—in the history wing; you may have a choice of nine hooks if you are ten minutes early and none of your 30 classmates has arrived. (Other classes will be meeting too.) However, if you should happen to have only a minute to spare, you had better wear your coat to class. All nine hooks will be piled high with coats (with some in the floor) and nothing can occupy the five empty places where hooks used to be.

You will be more fortunate if you have a class in the psychology wing, because here there are 16 hooks to choose from with only three missing.

There is probably a solution to this problem (as there is to most problems). We could suggest that the student help office supply hat-check girls to keep track of our coats. Perhaps they could run a pressing service as well. But then comes the problem of money. Who will pay these girls?

That solution would have all sorts of complications. Probably the simplest alternative would be to ask the maintenance department to install more hooks. (We will overlook the possibility that should ample hooks be provided there would be no more incentive to come early to class. There would be an increase in tardiness—but, then that is a problem of the personnel office). —B.W.

You CAN Do Something

Mark Twain said something to the effect that everybody complains about the weather, but no one does anything about it. That statement, even though it may sound like nothing more than trite humor, bears much truth. No one does anything about the weather ; no one can; but if you change just a few words of this statement, you will get a very pertinent fact. Many people complain about this college but no one tries to do any thing about it.

Look, this is your college, you are paying for it, so if you have an idea that might make it a bit better, then tell someone! Write to the Echo, or tell your student council representatives, or better yet—come to council yourself.

If you have an idea or a plan, be sensible about it. Think it through, be able to present it intelligently and be ready to answer questions on it.

If you have something bothering you, then it may be important enough to bother someone else. If it bothers enough people, then perhaps something can be done.

Remember the honor system proposal last year? That was an idea brought before Council. It was not pigeon-holed and forgotten, but investigated and really dug into for more than a semester. Then the idea was presented to the student body in the form of an opinion poll. The idea was dropped on the spot because the students did not think it would work. This does not mean that it was not a good idea; it just shows that the students had a voice in their government. Perhaps you have an idea to better our college situation. If you have then make it known, it might be valuable and it will be given consideration.

Revolution; be it an active uprising or a passive, grumbling, discontent will achieve nothing more than confusion, but good ideas plus intelligent and careful consideration plus sincere desire and cooperation can result in unbelieveable improvement. —T. Mc. D.

Scots & Soda

Dear Miss Millicent,

I am generally shy about this sort of thing, but you are my only hope. I go to a small school in the South which has many more girls than boys which in itself is a problem.

First I will give you an idea of how I look. I am 4 feet 5 inches tall and weigh 493 pounds in my sneakers. I wear my hair in a poodle cut and sometimes like a cocker spaniel. I have a receding forehead and a protruding chin, and my teeth are fine, all three of them.

Last week I met the man of my dreams. His name is P King Mann. He is 10 feet tall and weighs 103 pounds.

My problem is this: can a woman over 400 pounds find happiness with a man who looks down on her?

Your'n,
Nancy Neanderthall

Dear Miss Neanderthall;

As you describe yourself I can see that you are not at all unattractive. I really think that your worries about Mr Mann's height are unfounded. It is the general rule that the man is taller than the woman. If, however, this great difference in height should worry you I would suggest that you try high heels. Shall we say 3 foot platform soles with 4 feet heels

Your'n too—
Miss Millicent

Dear Miss Millicent,

I am a teen-age girl of medium height and built. Last week I was introduced to a college man of fair appearance. We fell madly in love at first sight, and of course I accepted his ring with the utmost gratitude and adoration. We had our first date and this was my destrucion. I have completely lost faith in the human race and wish to leave it forever. We spent the early part of the evening dining, dancing and talking. Then under the mooolight and stars, horror of horrors, we talked some more.

Woe is me, what hath this fair maid

An Empty Heart

Dear Miss Empty Heart,

Your problem is one that is not at all unique in today's society, however, don't let this indirect approach fool you. I'm sure that you will find that as you see more and more of your "lover" that his interests turn more and more away from the intellectual . . .

All is not lost. . .yet.
Sincerely,
Miss Millicent

Daydreams are odd things, and the thoughts of a wandering mind are sometimes amusing and peculiar. What things are on the minds of MC students at this time of the year? Let's pry into the mind of a likely speciment to see. . .

. . . .too cold outside for human beings—wonder why Yankees think this arctic weather is invigorating?. . . where's my English book. . . got to read about our friend Hamlet. . tests, tests, tests! don't teachers ever get tired of grading papers?. . . finals start pretty soon—too soon!. . . can this be December 2 already!—how time does fly. . . vacation comin' up. . . boy, will it ever be good to sleep until noon (ha! who are you kidding?) and just relax—no books, no tests, no. . . no wonder it's cold in here. The window's all the way up. . . so much to do and not enough time. . .well, it could be worse—how? . . .good question!. . . you could have S.S.—guess it's safe to mention S.S. around seniors now. . . poor juniors. . .

. . . wonder if machine two is in working order? got to wash one of these days—or else. . . hope Pat gets a date for the dance. . .why worry about her? wouldn't you do better to worry about yourself? . . .h-m-m-m-m. . . got to see Barbaara about my paper assignment. . . paper comes out Saturday and it's already Thursday . . wonder what that "Needle" play is all about. . . find out Friday night. . .these phys. ed. exhibitions—a safari to Arfica, no less. . . intramural basketball games. . . sure wish we could go to them. . . love basketball. . . hey! first varsity game Saturday against Milligan. . . wonder how the team will do this year?. . . chemistry unknowns (cheer). . . will any of us get out of qual. alive? . . . wonder what's on at the Park. . . who has time to go to movies?. . . that clanky old radiator—makes more noise than a—. . . there goes the bell. . . time for math class . . where's my notebook?. . . better hurry almost time for last bell. . .

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bill Deerfield

As students at a Christian college, all of us would have done well to see "The Prodigal" this past week, if not for inspiration then for some very entertaining and spicy goings-on that the writers of the New Testament failed to include when they recorded the parable spoken by Christ. M. G. M. has seen fit to correct this unfortunate oversight on the part of the Gospel writers and in its extravagant and colorful embroidery has come up with the latest (and positively the greatest) of the current flood of Biblical spectacles.

The film boasts a budget of $5,000,000, the usual "cast of thousands", pagan priests and priestesses, assorted slave girls (and pursuers), a riotous banquet scene, the destruction of a super duper pagan temple — in short all the ingredients of the Bible epic. One can even detect the semblance of a Biblical theme, but of course this is not nearly so important to the picture as is movie queen Lana Turner, who plays the vamp that "prodigates" the Prodigal.

M.G.M. Fails

However, with all the impressive frills and Turner too, M.G.M. has failed to produce a good picture. One has the feeling after seeing the film that the studio was using the Bible as a front for a glorified burlesque show with Miss Turner as the main attraction, for there is certainly nothing of interest in the contrived elaboration of the parable or the stilted diologue.

Actress Turner struts through the magnificent sets mouthing her limp lines with little effort at sincerity (she can hardly be blamed for this) and looking even more like an undressed wooden mannikin than does the image of Astarte that she worships.

Rising And Falling Action

The climax of the film comes when prodigal Purdom forces priestess Turner to choose between Jehovah and Astarte. She refuses, and an argument ensues the gist of which is: "My God can beat up your God!"

Near the close of the film pagan Lana is stone by an angry mob as she stands poised like a bathing beauty high above a sacrificial fire. She falls to her death and the audience is left to wonder why they didn't hit her in the head with a rock in the beginning of the picture and avoid all that expense.

MISCELLANEOUS

"Craccum", the newspaper of Auckland University students, New Zealand, complains about the task of getting out a student newspaper: "If we print jokes, people say we are silly. If we don't, they say we are too serious. If we clip from other magazines, we are too lazy to write ourselves. If we don't we are too fond of our own stuff. If we don't use suggestions or contributions, we don't appreciate genius. If we do use them, the page is filled with junk. . ." (Student press, "Graccum").

Debaters Are In Boone For Forensic Tourney

The Maryville College Debate Team is now participating in the fifteenth annual Appalachian Mountain Forensic Tournament at Boone, North Carolina.

Miss Arda Walker, debate coach, and Mr. Robert Lynn are accompanying the squad and are serving as judges in some of the events.

The debaters will return tonight.

Dr. Lloyd Meets With Educational Group

On November 28, Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd went to Miami Beach, Fla., to a meeting of the Southern Association oof Colleges and Secondary Schools, of which Maryville College is a member. His special responsibility at this meeting was to lead a discussion entitled "What is Being Done Among Educational Institutions of the South With Reference to the Supreme Court's Decision of Segregation." He returned on December 1.

Next week, on December 7-8, Dr. Lloyd will journey to Pittsburgh, Pa., for a joint meeting of Committees of the United Presbyterian Church and Presbyterian Church U.S.A. These committees are working on a plan of union of the two churches.

Theta Will Meet Tonight

Theta Epsilon will hold its last meeting of the semester tonight in Theta Hall. Officers for next semester will be nominated.

Looking Over The Hoopsters

In looking over our basketball squad, it seems to me that they lack two things—the tall man and experience. On last year's squad there were two men who were 6'6". On this year's team there is but a single man as tall as 6'4". Eleven members of this year's squad are underclassmen, whereas only six are upperclassmen.

Experience Is Important, But—

I would not be such an idiot as to say that height and experience are the most important assets which a basketball team can possess. Certainly ability, ball-handling and speed are more important assets. Only time will tell whether or not our team possesses these qualities.

As an example of the above statement, might I refer to my hasty generalization that the wingback slot would be the weak point of the football team. Although he was but a freshman, Earl Smith turned in an amazing performance. What he lacked in experience he made up in ability and soon he had also gained the experience. Consequently, I'm going to wait until I see our team in action in a game or two before I make any hasty generalizations or predictions.

Let's Support The Team

The scheduling of the games is certainly conducive to good support of the team by the student body, for five of the eight home games are on Saturday nights, and two of the remaining three games are to be played on Friday nights. So fans, LET'S SUPPORT OUR BASKETBALL TEAM. There is no excuse for not doing so, but even because of studies, especially during those Saturday night games.

Wrestling Practice Underway

Any of you who have wandered by Bartlett Hall during the afternoon in the last few weeks undoubtedly have heard the grunts, groans and dull thuds of the wrestling team as they limber up and get in shape for their first match next Friday.

The squad is really shaping up,as they have some very good material out there in both their seasoned veterans and some promising newcomers.

Coach Davis Is Optimistic

In a recent interview Coach Davis said, "This year we should have the best team we've had in years, as we have more returning lettermen than ever before." As a matter of fact the squad has a returning letterman in every one of the eight weight divisions with the sole exception of the 157 pound division.

Seven Lettermen On Squad

The returning lettermen on the squad are Captain Jerry Waters, Buford "Booty" Miller, Jim Cummings, Don Nabors, Tom Bugenhagen, John Anderson and Don Moore.

Support Our Matmen

Why don't you wander over to the Alumni Gym next Friday night and cheer the squad on to a victory and to an S.E.C. Championship. We've got a good team, but they need your whole-hearted support.

AS I SEE IT

By Lynn Sexton

I think what is wanted from me is an analysis of the basketball team and season for 1955-56. It's hard to say what we will have in the way of basketball at Maryville this year. Gone from last year's squad are Jack Keny, Bob Shelton, and Bill Blair. Of the four returning lettermen only three will be around after Christmas. This all adds up to a squad that will lack experience, and to further this inadequacy there will be a lack of height. Because of this lack of height the Highlanders will have to rely on speed and defensive ability as their main weapons. You may remember that defense was probably the Scotties' chief weakness last year. On offense last year we averaged close to eighty points per game and had a losing series. In a few games we scored in the nineties but lost, while in one game over a hundred and still lost.

This is the situation with which we are faced. Our offense will probably depend upon how well Bill Wallace does on the boards. Bill is a junior and a two-year letterman, who will probably move from his forward post to the pivot position this yeaar. Our "other" tall man, Jim Gregory, has possibilities but needs experience. The guards have the most depth with lettermen Bob DeLozier and John West heading the list. Freshman Earl Smith, wingback in football, will probably be seen in action quite a bit as will Chuck Dunn, who may be used at more than one position. Rounding out the guards is Ted Engle who has B team experience.

The forwards who will be seeing action this year are, as a whole, small but good shots with a fair amount of speed. Jack Crouch, who has varsity experience, and is one of the best shots on the squad will be seeing action along with Gayle Ferguson, Jack French and aforementioned Chuck Dunn. Gayle is a freshman who has shown a lot of promise in workouts so far. He has a very good eye and more polish than the usual freshman. Jack French has had some varsity experience and is a good rebounder.

That is the situation and the personnel. What happens is dependent upon how well some of the boys come through. One thing that is in our favor is that, from what I have heard, not much is expected of us. This always gives a coach and players a comfortable feeling. Also it gives a team a feeling that just maybe we will show somebody something. One thing that is worth keeping in mind is the team that won't be whipped, can't be whipped. I hope that this will be the attitude the team will take this year. Don't judge this team too quickly because we play a pretty rough schedule; many of the schools we play don't play football and have several games under their belt when they play us. After this team gets a few games under its belt it may shape up to be better than expected. This is what is hoped.

After Christmas yours truly will not be with the team. Because I started my college career a semester late I will graduate at the end of the current semester. May I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to all concerned with Athletic Department for having enjoyed the happiest four years of my life. The coaches, the players, and all concerned, have helped to make these years enjoyable and if I had it all to do over again I'm sure I wouldn't change it. To the boys I've played with I wish all the luck in the world, you won't find a nicer bunch of guys. May this season be successful and all the ones that follow.

It has been my privilege.

MC Basketball Season Opens Tonight In Gym

Matmen Will Start Season Dec. 9

The 1955-56 M. C. Wrestling Squad will encounter the Knoxville YMCA in its first meet of the season on Friday, December 9. The season's opener will be a home match for the Scottie matmen. Coach J. D. Davis' charges will be struggling to down a team they defeated only once last year in two tries.

Wrestling in the 123 pound class are Captain Jerry Waters and Dick Jones. In the 130 pound division are Buford Miller and Bill Wilkie.

Jim Cummings and Gene Garren will grapple in the 137 pound division. In the 147 pound class are Don Nabors, Bruce Lundberg and Max Williamson.

Harold "Turkey" Templin and Don Hill will be our entrants in the 157 pound class. Tom "Tiger" Bughenhagen and Roy Myers are in the 167 pound class.

John Anderson and Jack Emery will battle in the 177 pound class. Don Moore and Tom Axley will be our representatives in the heavyweight division.

Former Maryville Star Athlete Dies Suddenly At Home Near Here

John Stone, '28, one of the greatest athletes to have graduated from Maryville College, died suddenly this week at his home in Shelbyville, Tennessee. Mr. Stone was the captain of both the baseball and the basketball teams in his senior year at M.C. as well as being voted the best all around athlete of that year.

Mr. Stone played out of the center slot for the Highlander eleven and was voted as the best center in the South in his senior year. He and the two guards that played on either side of him were called "the unholy three" as no team was ever able to open a hole in the middle of the line. He also played on the team which held the University of Kentucky to a 6-6 tie and defeated the University of Tennessee 7-0.

Many members of the faculty who were friends; acquaintances and schoolmates of Mr. Stone went to his funeral which was held in Shelbyville on Wednesday.

Powder Puff Game Ends In 0-0 Tie

Theta and Bainonian played to a scoreless deadlock last Saturday afternoon. Theta's head coach was Bob Ramger who was ably assisted by Bill Strickland, Bill Dent, and Dick Henderson. Bainonian was coached by Ted McDaniels, Chuck Wagner and Jim McCall.

The girls practiced for a month to get in shape for the game. Practices consisted of drill plays, chalk talks and skull practices.

The girls showed good sportsman ship and keen competition. Bainonian's chief assets were her hard charging line and her fast and deceptive backfield. Theta's outstanding points were her ends, her pass offense and her defense.

The outstanding player of the game was Bainonian's sophomore quarterback Jane Byrne. She was the sparkplug of the team.

Welch Hopes For Good Tennessee March Of Dimes Campaign In January

Nashiville—The future of the continuing fight against polio will depend in large degree on the success of next January's March of Dimes, James M. Welch, State March of Dimes Chairman declared recently.

Mr. Welch called on leaders of 18 state organizations and agencies to help Tennessee's volunteers raise by ten cents the state's per capita contribution to the March of Dimes in he forthcoming January campaign. He stated that Tennessee ranks forty-second in the nation in per capita giving to the March of Dimes. Only six states give less per person to the fight against polio than we do. The National average per capita for the 1955 March of Dimes was $3485. In Tennessee last year it was .2614—or almost nine cents per person less than the average throughout the United States.

Dr. Randolph Batson, Director of the Vanderbilt Respiratory Center, pand Dr. H. D. Riley, Jr., Assistant Director of the Center, told the group about the operations of he southeast's only March of Dimes Regional Respiratory Center; and answered questions about the Salk vaccine.

The one day session of the March of Dimes State Campaign Committee was attneded by representaitves of the American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Council of Catholic Women, Jaycees, Jaycettes, Lions International, Outdoor Advertising Association, Rebecca Assembly, State Personnel Director, Tennessee Association of Broadcasters, Tennessee Congress of Parents and Teachers, Tennessee Department of Education, Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation, Tennessee Federation of Business & Professional Women, Tennessee Federation of Garden Clubs, Tennessee Moose Association, Tennessee Press Association and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In addition to the State Chairmen, the National Foundation was represented b y volunteer State Advisors Mrs. Barbara Kesterson of Gatlinburg, Mrs. Brooks Stockton of Jamestown, Mrs. Robert G. Threadgill of Milan; and Mrs. Louise M. Phillips, Davidson County Campaign Chairman for 1956.

In further explaining the urgent need to raise Tennessee's per capita contribution Welch said that he knows Tennesseans want to carry their share of the cost of eliminating polio and caring for every victom who needs assistance.

Over half the money raised in January will be used for direct patient care for the state's polio victims. Welch pointed out that through December 31, 1954 approximately $3,078,000 had been spent by Tennessee's 96 National Foundation Chapters to pay for care and treatment of local polio patients. Also, the State Chairman continued, since the beginning of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in 1938, March of Dimes grants to Tennessee institutions have amounted to $736,130.

LITERATURE and FINE ART

Betty Springstead and Libby Turner, the two prides of the English department, have consented to contribute a bit more culture to this cultural column by submitting the following piece of original poetry. It doesn't have a name yet, but that doesn't substract from the sheer beauty of its meaning.

* * *

Once upon an evening dreary, while I pondered weak and weary
Over many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore,
While I nodded nearly snoring,
Suddenly there came a roaring,
As of someone gently crashing,
Breaking down my chamber door.
"Tis a freshman there," I muttered,
"Breaking down my chamber door—
Only that and nothing more."

* * *

Ah, distinctly I remember,
it was in the bleak September,
And each slowly dying bush
cast a gloom upon the house.
Eagerly I wished a coke,
but the coke machine was broke.
Thus my looks of bitter sorrow —
sorrow for the coke machine;
For the rare and refreshing drink which the dealers had named coke,
Nameless here for evermore.

* * *

Open here I flung the door, when,
with many a boney knee,
Past there stepped a kilted band of the saintly college here.
Not the least mistake made it;
not a minute stopped or stayed it,
But with noise of flutes or trumpet
lurched into a noisy roar,
Lurched into a march of Sousa's,
just beside my shell-like ear –
This I heard and nothing more.

After such eloquence, any further remark would be inappropriate.

Student Body Approves Legislation Article

At a student body meeting Thursday, the following amendment to the student council constitution was approved:

Article IX—Legislation

Sec. 1. By-Laws shall be recommended by the Student-Faculty Senate and shall become effective after approval by the Student Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty. All By-Laws shall conform with the constitution.

Sec. 2. Rules of Procedure for the various committees set up by the By-Laws shall be formulated by the committee concerned and shall be filed for record with the Student Council and the Student-Faculty Senate. The Rules of Procedure for a particular committee shall conform with the By-Law establishing that committee.

This article is designed to make the legislative function of the council clearer. President Sonny Shackelford presided at the meeting.

ty.' By the time I got up on the deck again, there was nothing to be seen but a tiny light in the distance."

His first sight of America was the dirty New York wharves on a cold grey day in December. Things looked rather bleak to him then, but once he started high school in Hyattsville, Maryland, and made new friends, everything looked better to him.

When I asked Jim what was different about the United States, he said that there really wasn't so much difference. "The countryside looks the same to me," he said and the people dress the same, for the most part." Accent? "I've never had a bit of trouble understanding what Americans say, but they have an awful loot of trouble with me, especially when I first came over." Jim was amazed at the discipline in the high schools. "At home, we can't talk at all except when called on. If we do, we get belted over the hand. . . or elsewhere." Dating? "Oh, but you see there isn't any," Jim told me. It seems that until a person is out of high school, he participates in country dances (the highland fling and that sort of thing), leaving the slower and, well, "Stardust" type of thing 'til later.

Jim loves Maryville. "The kids are just wonderful. I like the atmosphere here, the general spirit. I went to University of Maryland before I came here and there is just no comparison. I just wish I had known about Maryville in the first place."

After graduation, Jim plans to go on to ministerial school—where he is just not sure. Of one thing he is sure, though, and that is he plans to stay in America.

"But Jim, are you sure they don't wear kilts."

Band Presents Concert

The Maryville College Band gave its first-semester band concert Thursday night. Directed by Mr. Ralph Moore, Instructor in Music, the band played "Overture, Italian in Algiers," by Rossini; "Nimrod," by Elgar; "Two Marches," by Milhaud; "An Outdoor Overture," by Copland; "Grandma's Rumba," by Cowell; "La Sorella," by Borel-Clerc.

Solos on the marimba were also featured.

Near East received 141 — 81 in Israel and 54 in Lebanon. In the Western Hemisphere, in addition to Mexico and Canada, there were 51 students enrolled in Caribbean countries and 100 in South America. Of this last number, 85 went to Peru.

There were 31 students in Africa — 18 in Egypt and 9 in the Union of South Africa. Oceania received 85 students — 66 in Australia and 19 in New Zealand.

What subjects did the U. S. students study abroad? Of the first 8,219 students reported, 74.2 per cent pursued studies in six academic fields: liberal arts, 1,973; medicine, 1,718; theology, 764; social sciences, 753; creative arts, 477; and natural and physical sciences, 415. There was no answer as to field for 1,735 students, or 20.9 per cent of the first 8,219 reported.

Other subjects studied abroad were: business administration, 151; engineering, 105; education, 56; and agriculture, 21. There were 48 students in all other fields.

Data on the academic status, age and sponsorship of the U.S. students abroad was too incomplete to warrant statistical tabulation.

Men, Males, And Boys—What They'll Wear For The Winter Season

By Jeanne Ginaven

The Christmas season is a casual season — and this is invariably reflected in men's holiday fashions. The average American male has more leisure time (what's that, you say?!) than ever before —which opens up a new and colorful area for clothing gifts.

The blue blazer is being taken down from the attic, dusted off, and modernized. A new popular version is the blazer in navy wool flannel with lighter blue piping.

Other popular short outer coats are the "utility" and the mackinaw. Both are made in lightweight warm wool and are especially suited for driving or spectator sports.

Sport shirts also reflect this year's casual moods. The new shirt-jacket, for example, is perfect for skiing gatherings (skiing, in Maryville?), television watching, or just plain loafing (we do have that at Maryville!). This model looks like a shirt, feels like a shirt, but is warm like a jacket.

Sweaters feature unique patterns this Christmas. The aim is usually a broad-shouldered effect. One of the newest sweaters is made of white wool with a charcoal grey Scandinavian design.

Theme For Fall Dance Is "As Time Goes By"

The Setting Is Tonight At Eight In Alumni Gym

By Carolyn Cones

Tonight is the night when you can relax and forget, at least for a little while, the rapidly approaching examination week and all that goes with it. It's the night of the annual Fall Dance, which is being sponsored this semester by Bainonian and Kappa Phi. The ballroom will be effected by a transformation of the Alumni Gymnasium, and the hours for the Cinderellas and their Prince Charmings will be from 8 to 11.

Surprise Program

The theme for the dance will be "As Time Goes By" with decorations based on some phase of each of the twelve months of the year. Organ music will be used for dancing. Special entertainment has been planned, but the only comment that program chairman, Bezy Zimmerman, had regarding it was "It's a secret!"

Hardworking Committees

The various committees which had worked so hard to make this dance a success include publicity: Chuck Frizzell, Katrina Wells, Natalie Wells; dance tickets: Jim Crawford, Eloise Jorden; tables, chairs.: Perry Fuller, Georgejean Rohlander; invitations: Charles McFarland, Jean Dildy; programs: Cathy Garrison; Decorations: Bob Gardner, Dick Preston, Barbara Mueller; refreshments: Lottie Jerkins; music: Henry Emmans, Jackie Speigner; clean-up: Harold Kelly, Sam Buffat, Bezy Zimmerman, Barbara Gilmore.

Helpful Hints For Exam Studying

By Betty Springstead

Exams? Oh yes, Exams. . . Give you my own private formula, sure fire, really .First, it's always important to have books, the more pictures the better, but a book always gives a good impression. You know, I know a student—I won't mention any names—but she doesn't even know which book goes with which subject, yet. Well, like I say, you've got to have books, and if you can get a book for a subject, you've got it made. If you have taken notes you can always use them, too. But if not, don't worry; it's "just a tad" too late.

Well, have you noticed the beautiful Christmas music on the radio lately? And do you know that it's only a week and four days until we go home? Really, it would be a pity to miss those Christmas carols and they won't disturb the study much. Might as well leave the radio on while you study—Christmas music you know.

And you might get hungry, so if you can possibly get a coke out of the coke machine, better get a few. And if your private horde of food is getting low, you had better make a trip downtown to replenish it right now. YOU CANNOT STUDY ON AN EMPTY STOMACH.

And you need plenty of friends in the room, of course, because they can supply you with very helpful information, and a dictionary is such a nuisance. Of course, you will have to take your turn in their rooms, too.

Let's see—Have I forgotten anything? Oh yes, the no-doze and coffee for that night-before-exam cram. This is not advisable, but after all, exams are coming—but so is Christmas.

Good Luck.

Council Has Last Meeting Of Year

By Ted McDaniels

The last regular meeting of Council for the fall semester 1955 was a rather uneventful one. There really wasn't any business on the docket.

There was one town night violation. A girl went to town to see a movie, and not liking what was on, returned to the dorm by 7:30 P.M. and forgot to sign in. The violation was reported to Council and the motion was made to suspend the town night privilege for one week.

Council Has Party

After the meeting Council had a party and all the members stepped out to the bar for a "cool one." A round of pop and cookies completed the activities of the Council for the year.

Always be true to your teeth or they'll be false to you.

Dormitories Elect Semester Officers

The house chairmen of Memorial and Baldwin announce the newly elected officers for the Spring semester. They are as follows:

Memorial: Louise Pratt, vice-house chairman; Iris Abbott, secretary-treasurer; Cora Bowman, fire captain; and Georgene Rohlander, town night checker.

Baldwin: Joan Neckerman, vice-house chairman; Ruth Wagner, secretary; Bev Tillman, treasurer; Nancy Potter, assistant fire captain, and Sue Trotter and Kay Henry, town night checkers.

The house chairmen, Willa Duvall and Carol Williams, were elected at the close of last semester for a year's term.

Radio Workshop Has Eventful Fall Semester

The Radio Workshop will conclude a very busy and successful semester of programs next week with their broadcast of portions of the Christmas Vespers.

Beginning on September 21, the Workshop has produced a thirty-minute program every Wednesday night at nine. The Tuesday night periods have been devoted to the recording of the programs scheduled for the next evening, as well as helpful discussions on microphone technique, lectures on the problems of radio productions, and other related subjects.

Some of the interesting productions have been a program of vocal and instrumental selections by the music faculty; a panel dealing with the accomplishments of the United Nations, the members of the International Relations Club taking part; a dramatic program by YM and YW called "I Take Off My Shoes," written by Ethelyn Cathey; an interview of the football team and Coach Honaker; an interview of Miss Margaret Flory; recordings of the rehearsals of The Taming of the Shrew; the activities of the library; excerpts from the opera Faust with students providing the commentary; and next week's program which will feature foreign students describing Christmas in their countries.

The Radio Workshop, under the direction of Mr. John Griffin, looks forward to another equally rewarding and successful series of programs next semester.

Bushing To Give Christmas Reading Tomorrow Night

The last meeting of the Y for this semester will be the annual Christmas reading to be presented this year by Mr. Bushing. It will be at 7 p.m. on Sunday, December 11, in the student center. After the reading, which will be Christmas poetry, everyone will sing Christmas carols, and there will be surprise entertainment.

Everyone is advised to bring a blanket.

Treasurers Must Turn In Reports

Treasurers of Student Organizations are Requested to turn in final reports to their sponsors or to Dr. Williams' Office before examinations begin. Where books are kept they should be submitted to sponsors for the purpose of auditing and safe keeping over the holidays.

Vesper Choir Has Christmas Party

The annual Vesper Choir Christmas party was held in the Fine Arts Center lounge Friday night, beinning at 7:15. One hundred Vesper Choir members and guests attended; also present were Mr. Hutton and Dr. and Mrs. Griffitts. The lounge was adorned with a Christmas tree and other appropriate decorations.

Each person brought a small gift which was exchanged later. Instead of keeping the gift after the exchange, each one donated his gift to the mission gift box. These gifts are distributed among the various missions for Christmas

A program was presented, and later everyone had refreshments.

Of special significance was the awarding of the Senior Choir pins to about twenty members. To be eligible for the pin, the member must be in Vesper Choir for two years—one of which is his senior year. As a surprise for Doc Griffitts, the choir awarded him a Senior Choir pin in appreciation for his fine work as business manager for the organization.

After their party, the Vesper Chooir joined the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs to go caroling, after which they all had refreshments together.

Bobbye Carson, Ruth Nelson, and Jim Laster were in charge of the party; Sue Burton was in charge of decorations; and Zona Gogel and Butch Christie were program chairmen.

Pre-Med Club Meets

Last Thursday night, the pre-med club discussed the medical aptitude tests, taken by Seniors at the beginning of this semester.

The officers for the next semester are: president, Don Ford, vice-president, Dick Henderson, and secretary-treasurer, Guy Selander.

Handel's "Messiah" Will Be Given Here Sunday

Workshop Elects New Member, Votes On "Chips"

Writers' workshop elected Nancy Kotz, junior English major, to membership at its last meeting of the semester Monday in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center. She will replace Margaret Blackburn, who is graduating at the end of the semester.

Contributions to "Chips," the annual workshop publication were voted upon also. Those selected were Joan McNaughton's poetry, including "A Hades Christmas Party;" Ethelyn Cathey's essay "On Death"; Jim Hopkins' "Excerpts," Mr. Bushing's short story "The Phoenix' Nest;" Dr. Hunter's poem "Eagle in a cage;" and Faith Nollner's short stories "Mater Duet." "Chips" will be printed next semester.

Other authors and their writings of this semester include the following: John Graulich-poetry "Around This Circle." Bill Deerfield-short story, "In All the Circle;" Clara Gowans-essay "Why the Difference?;" Miss Heron-short story "Lonely Redhead;" Lia Friepoetry "A Quarter a Copy" and "Dialogue;" Barbara Wilkie-poetry "Mountain Sketches;" Sara Min Davis-educational satire in epistelary style; Mary Lee-criticism "Gerad Manley Hopkins."

Dave Williams-essay "A Rational Basis for Ethics;" Jim Laster-musical drama, "Festival at Hopkins Hollow;" Marcia Williams-a children's story; Margaret Blackburn-essay "Dramatic Dilemma;" Lavinia Lee-"Sterotypes;" Carol Sleight-description, "Morning in the Everglades;" Adlai Boyd-story, "Pas de Deux;" San Roberts-selection-"Its All in What You're Used To;" Bruce Ingles-short story, "To Them the Cross;" and Cary Valentine-sketches and poetry, "Scrapbook."

Cary Valentine read his selection at the meeting and was criticized by San Roberts. Co-chairman of the refreshment committee for the meeting which was in the form of a party, were Carol Sleight and Mary Lee. Marcia Williams assisted in serving.

Writer's Workshop regularly meets each Monday at 4:30 in one of the English classrooms.

New York, Dec. 5 —At 9:30 Monday morning, the A.F.L. and C.I.O. merged, creating the biggest labor federation in the free world.

News Dispatches, Dec. 5—At least 69 were killed in Algeria and Morocco during another uprising. French security troops were called to quell the riot.

Gettysburg, Dec. 5,—British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden will come to Washington, Jan. 30 for talks with President Eisenhower. The President extended the invitation, but the purpose was not announced.

Atlanta, Dec. 5,—The State Board of Regents adopted a policy that would permit Georgia Tech. to play in the Jan. 2, Sugar Bowl game. This same rule forbids Georgia Universities to play mixed teams in the future.

The current cold wave, which began Sunday night, reached a low of 15 above Tuesday morning. This has broken a five year record for the East Tennessee area.

Debaters Win Honors In Tournament

The Maryville College debating team travelled to Applachian State Teachers' College for the Applachian Practice Tournament held December 1, through the third. Ten students left Thursday morning in cars driven by the chaperons, Mr. Lynn and Miss Arda Walker. The teams were: Wendy Wood and Margaaret Paterson, affirmative; Elinor Koster and Corita Erwin, negative; Keith Ham and Graeme Sieber, affirmative; Bob Bogel and Bob Goodlin, negative; and Lavinia Lee and Mary Clover, oratory.

Competing against such schools as the University of North Carolina, Emory and Henry, Carson-Newman, Lenoir Rhyne, and Tennessee Tech in the seven-round tournament, Maryville's delegation returned with several laurels. Margaret Paterson and her partner Wendy Wood received third place in the women's affirmative division; Mary Clover won first place in oratory, speaking on "Mind Erosion," Elinor Koster was second in both poetry reading and impromptu; and Graeme Sieber placed third in the men's impromptu. All speeches had Safe Driving Day as their subject.

The Debating Group anticipates a successful season next semester when they will participate in a series of tournaments.

23rd Presentation Is Tomorrow

By Janet Whitmore

Tomorrow, December 11, will mark the 23rd presentation of Handel's Messiah at Maryville College. The program will be held at 3:00 in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. The chorus composed of 225 voices is under the direction of Mr. John Hutton and includes members of the Vesper Choir, Men's Glee Club, and Girls' Choir and some of the townspeople. Mr. Ralph Moore is directing the orchestra, and Miss Garnet Manges is the pianist, as she has been for the last 20 presentations of the Messiah here at Maryville.

The soprano soloists in this year's Messiah are Mary H. McEver, who will sing four recitatives, "There were shepherds abiding in the field," "And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, "And the angel said unto them," and "And suddenly there was with the angel"; Ginny Ginavan, who will sing the air, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion"; Mary Ann Pakosh, who will sing "Come unto Him" and Zona Gogel, who will sing "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

The following will sing the alto solos: Carol Lee Lacey—Recitative "Behold a virgin shall conceive" and Air "O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion"; Bobby Carson — Air "He shall feed His flock like a shepherd" and Recitative "Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened," and Liz Murphy — Air "He was Despised."

The tenors and their solos are: Robert Moses, Recitative "Comfort ye my people"; Harold Mays, "Every valley shall be exalted"; Perry Fuller, Recitative "Thy rebuke hath broken His heart" and Air "Behold, and see if there be any sorrow"; and Sidney Tedford, Recitative "He was cut off out of the land of living", Air "But Thou didst not leave His soul in hell", Recitative "He that dwelleth in heaven," and Air "Thou shalt break them"

Bass soloists and their solos are as follows: Dick Morse, Recitative "Thus saith the Lord" and Air "But who may abide the day of His coming?"; and Howard Bell, Recitative "For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth" and Air "The people that walked in darkness."

There will be a carol sing immediately after the presentation.

Nancy Peters and Howard Myer, representing YW and YMCA, are in charge of the decorations for the Chapel. The ushering was also under their supervision.

Nineteen Maryville Students Will Attend Ecumenical Conference

One of the most significant ecumenical encounters of students in Christian history will take place December 27 to noon January 1, when 3000 college and university students convene at Athens, Ohio, for the Ecumenical Conference on the Christian World Mission. The event is being held on the campus of the Ohio University at Athens. The conference is under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement for Christian Federation and the United Student Christian Council.

Maryville College will be represented by nineteen delegates, four of whom are overseas students. Attending are Gene Spiekerman, Gavin Douglas, Isabel Easley, Shirley Peterson, Jay Bollman, Lorna Eagle, Gene Marlow, Carrie Freemantle, Barbara Davis, Mert Hall, Margaret Wilkinson, George Hardy, Cathy Richtmyer, Sylvia Smith and Shirley Mayfield from the USA; Ben Hahn, Yeb Yun, and Jang Hyun Lee from Korea; and Winifred Kei from Indonesia.

"Revolution and Reconciliation" is the general theme for the conference, which will include a searching examination of the present state of the world and of the mission and message of the Christian Church in today's world. The conference is international in character-about half the delegates being overseas students studying in this country. Outstanding ministers and administrators will lead the conference.

Christian Education Club Elects Officers

At a recent meeting of the Christian Education Club, new officers for next semester were elected. These officers are: President, Beverly Tillman; Secretary-Treasurer, Lorna Eagle; and Program Chairmen, Amelia Maples and Barbara Coates.

Miss Speigner Helps With Christmas Operetta At Elementary School

It's not every day that a practice teacher gets a chance to put on a school operetta! However, Jackie Speigner is helping with the music in "Red Candles," the operetta to be presented by the children of Fairview Elementary School on Thursday, December 15.

Jackie has been doing practice teaching under the direction of Miss Crews this semester at Fairview School. She goes to each class, grades one through eight, for twenty-minutes each Tuesday and Friday. This work, along with what the classroom teachers do on the other days, constitutes the Fairview music program.

The operetta is being staged as a cooperative effort of all teachers and students at the school, each teacher being in charge of some phase of the production, such as costumes, lines, lighting, etc. It will be presented to the parents, relatives, and friends of the children as their annual Christmas program.

Music Ed. Club Members To Go Carson-Newman

Eleven students and their faculty advisor represented Maryville College at a combined meeting of Student Members' Chapters of Music Educators National Conference at Carson-Newman College on Thursday, December 8. Those attending were: Helena Mason, Ruth Terhune, June Keeney, Jack Shafer, Jerry Overall, Pennie Neff, Jackie Speigner, Margaret Potts, Louise Ogden, Fred Wyman, Dodie Waters, and Miss Crews.

A panel discussion was held in which the local president, Helena Mason, took part.

Student Council Achievements For Semester

The overall picture of what your Council has done in this quickly passing semester is a rather extensive picture.

To begin with, the Council ratified the Town Night Agreement at its first meeting. This meant that all you good little boys and girls could go out and enjoy the sights of the big city in the company of your favorite member of the opposite sex. (oops dirty word). Then President Shackelford appointed the various committees that kept things moving throughout the semester, as well as keeping a few things from moving at all. Then a secretary for the Council was elected so that the events of the year could be recorded for all M.C. posterity.

The next job that Council tackled was that of legislation, and after much consideration and deliberation, By-Laws 5, 6, and 7 were approved — not to mention 8, 9, and 10. These numbers may not mean much to you now, but they will, believe me.

Then came the allocation of the Student Activity Fee. At first it was proposed a fifty-fifty split; half for President Lloyd and half for President Shackelford, but that did not work so they put the money to good use.

Then there was the Civil Defense proposition — that is still being worked on.

How about N.S.A., well, the idea was a good one and felt to be quite sound, soooo . . . all we need is the money.

Also the Social Committee planned many things for us all to do and they were for the most part good ideas and much fun, but I'll leave them for you to think about.

Then came the crash of October 26 — and prohibition was once the order of the day. It seems that some of the men in Carnegie had been playing chug-a-lug and the idea didn't go over too well. So Council took steps to alleviate the situation and members of Council (male) were appointed to look into the matter and to take steps to enforce prohibition on the Campus once more. It was a job well done — thanks a lot.

And then Homecoming — Council had a lot to do and they did a fine job. Once more thanks a lot, Council.

This is a very brief summary of a semester of Council, it did a lot for us and we owe them a vote of thanks so the next time you see a member of the Council, Thank him or her — they did a good job.

T. Mc D.

Don't Forget Your Pledge

Remember your Fred Hope Fund pledge today. The collection table is set up the 16th of every month in Anderson for those who wish to give. Four hundred persons pledged approximately $2000.00 this year. $500.00 of this amount has already been collected to send to Dr. Dorothy Ferris at the Frances Newton Hospital in Ferozepore, India.

Thoughts At The End Of The Semester

Time is growing short for many things as this semester draws to a close. There is always too much to do and not enough time to do what has to be done. Final papers, tests before tests, book reports, strained nerves and short tempers are climaxed by final exams. Cheer up! Gird up and plow through because there are only 14 shopping days before Christmas. We know we have to be home!

What else can be said except that it has been a good semester with lots of fun had by all. There have been more improvements—small but important—this semester than last. It is gratifying to note the preponderance of better chapel speakers this year. It is difficult for the faculty to stand there in the pill-box and Rx to a bunch of sleepy-heads every morning, but it has to be done. One bit of inspiration is worth many words. It is good to get out on time too.

On looking back, we wonder where the semester has gone. We have been busy every day doing something—learning to live together, getting acquainted with different groups, joining ethnocentric organizations, studying (that's what we're here for), and being engaged in all the facets of that which we call college life; now it is Christmas.

A little boy asked his daddy: "Daddy, why isn't it Christmas every day?" His father answered him saying: "Son, it is Christmas every day in a special way. Our special gifts are ourselves to other, expressed in a smile from the heart, and giving what's yours as freely as you take from—say, the little boy you play with." There is more, books more, but the main thing, is making somebody else feel good. That is Christmas.

We have that spirit here at school; we have that spirit everywhere—only here it comes out easier lots of times. Home for Christmas We wish you all the best and safest and fullest and happiest and—well! Merry Christmas!

Now We Have Hooks

We wish to express our appreciation to whoever is responsible for the new hooks in Thaw. We will avoid using puns on the work "hook" and say simply that there is now no excuse for coats falling in the floor after being piled on overworked hooks.

Scots & Soda

By Sue Tourtellotte

And Nancy McGeorge

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas,
Everywhere you go.
There's a tree in each parlor here,
Shining with Christmas cheer,
Happy hearts and faces all aglow.

Yes, it is beginning to look a lot like Christmas . . . thoughts of your home sweet home . . . gifts for your family and friends . . . thoughts of the Fall Dance . . . I'm out of clothes . . . I'm out of money . . . I don't like those decorations . . . the Messiah is yet to be performed . . . Christmas Vespers . . . Christmas parties . . . I forgot to buy brother's gift . . . Just think! two more weeks 'till Christmas . . . two more weeks 'till we go home!!!

EXAMS!!!

We knew we forgot something! Why didn't you tell us? We'll try once again.
It's beginning to look like exam time,
Everywhere you go.
Each one is beginning to fear,
That he'll no longer be here,
But will be thrown out on his ear,
When the final results are made clear.
Twas the night before exams,
And in every room
The students were studying,
Mist the cold and the gloom
The wise ones were sleeping,
All snug in their beds,
Proving to us
That they'd used their heads.
While visions of holidays danced in their heads,
Ours were filled only with millions of dreads.
Then and there we resolved,
We'd Ne'er again be forestalled,
But prepare for the future,
Before finals again called.

What is the thing students most desire when they go home for Christmas? In sheer desperation we took a poll, and these were the results: SLEEP one shouted after another — SLEEP is what I really want . . . ten hours . . . a week . . . as much as I can get . . . just plain ole SLEEP.

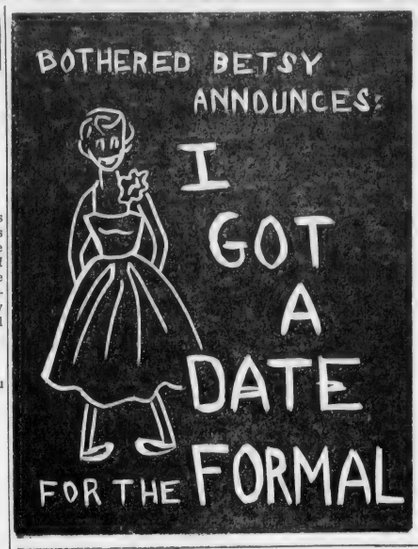
Now all you kids remember to be good, and never play mean tricks on dear ole Santa. Don't short sheet his bed, or put salt in it either, no water on top of his door nor alarm clocks hidden under his bed. For if you do you may regret it, and . . . Old Saint Nick will never forget it. The good ones will get only the best . . . the bad ones will ge the rest. So be good . . . Merry Christmas to all . . . and to all farewell . . . see you next semester at the ring of the bell.

Dear Miss Millicent,

As an avid reader of your nationally syndicated column, and a follower of your advice, I feel that you are the only one to whom I can turn for such a delicate problem. It's about a specimen of manhood who has reached the depths of degradation. His name is Moe B. Dick and is a veteran of the war. He lost a leg and had it replaced by the honest-to-goodness shinbone of St. Ahab. He has several pets. One is his little dog Quickquick and a goldfish by the name of Bill Dadd, who is incased in a tank in Anders' Slum area which is open to the public except on weekdays and weak-ends.

Well, one night as we were reading Systematic Recourse (a book of poems compiled by A. C. DeWhitman, formerly titled Salks of Garlic), we were inspired to great things. Being thus enlightened, we decided to visit the famed red-light district and Belle Dwin's equally famous nite spot. The show for the evening was entitled "Mirror, Mirror On The Wall" or "I Can See Everything Better Than You Can."

After this whirl-wind tour we then hit upon the problem for which this letter is written. Was it impolite for Moe to belch when he said good-night? I'm smeared for life.



Sincerely,
Hazel B. Shupp

Dear Miss Shupp,

This specimen of male integrity that you name as Moe B. Dick seems to be a charming and altogether compatable companion. From the tone of the first part of your letter it is impossible for me to think anything other than you had a most pleasant and charming evening. I know the area that you visited and would like to point that you missed a few of the more interesting sights in that part of the country. I would like to suggest that on your next excursion that you be sure to see the Aztec Ruins, a monument erected to a cult of fire worshipers. If you are fortunate enough to arrive early in the morning or late in the afternoon you may hear the Ruination Choir rehearsing for the services held by Dr. Tume Stonesmille, D. E. (doctor of everything) and the author of the well known book Pearson Pallor.

Getting back to your problem, I would like to remind you that Mr. Dick is only human and I certainly wouldn't expect chimes if he were to belch in my company. As for the smear try the new wet tested Yes tissues. The soft variety for your complexion will do fine.

Sincerely,
Miss Millicent

Society Officers Are Elected

In elections held December 6, the following people were chosen to head their societies for the Spring semester.

Theta Epsilon

Jo Brooks, president; Ka Leeth, vice-president; Sue Nelson, secretary; Virginia Marshall, treasurer; Margaret Connolly, chaplain; Mary Pakosh and Dodie Waters, program chairmen; Nancy Potter, publicity chairman; and Marion Drotar and Paula Kronenberg, skit night chairmen.

Alpha Sigma

Bill Strickland, president; Guy Selander, vice-president; Bob Finertie, secretary; Dan Wiley, treasurer, and Ben Stabley, program chairman.

Kappa Phi

J. B. Adams, president; Joe Quinn, first vice-president; John Ribble, second vice-president; James Marsh, secretary; James Colquhoun, treasurer, and Lewis Shearer, athletics chairman.

The formal initiation for new Theta officers was held Thursday night in Theta Hall. Liz Murphey, retiring president, was presented a silver necklace.

Art Exhibit Is Now In Fine Arts Center

The art department of FAC is presenting its last exhibit of this semester. The exhibit is a composite of the semester's work of the pre-school, college, and three adult classes of Mr. and Mrs. Beard.

There are oil works done by the snior art majors and adult classes. The projects of the education classes are also on display, as are the pottery and sketches of some of the children. Other works at the exhibit include: water colors, pen and ink sketches, charcoal sketches, and pastel work.

Buck-of-the Month Club Is Successful

The Alumni Buck-of-the-Month is going over very well. It will go over the $9,000 within the next two or three days. It is hoped that it will go over $10,000 by Jan. 1, 1956. That will be only eight months that the club has been organized.

More than one third of the alumni have joined the club. By the end of this year a record will be set for alumni participation in the South. Already the club has passed the record held by Agnes Scott College.

One of the aims of the club it to cultivate the habit of giving among the younger alumni. It has succeeded in this so well that two or three of the classes which have been graduated in the past five years have reached a total of more than 50 per cent participation.

James W. Hampton, college public relations officer, returned last week from a public relations conference in Chicago which was attended by representatives of most of the 41 Presbyterian Church -related colleges. Many or three of the classes which have terested in the story of the amazing success of the Buck-of-the-Month plan.

TIPS ON THE DANCE

FOR GIRLS

By Jeanne Ginaven

"What shall I wear to the dance? Do I have to wear a formal, or can I wear a short formal or dressy dress?"

You may wear a short formal or dressy dress to just about any kind of dance except the cotillion. A cotillion is for debutantes or is an extremely dressy formal dance where nothing but ball gowns and tie and tails are permitted. Since one is not likely to encounter a cotillion around Maryville, we will discuss the short formal and dressy dress.

Net is an old standby that is pretty and becoming to the wearer. Brocade, heavy satin, chiffon, and velvet come in gorgeous styles and can make any girl the "belle of the ball." Buy a princess style velvet sheath dress and just see what it does for you.

If you're tired of "the ordinary," get a jeweled scoopneck sweater, wear it with a full satin skirt, and go to the dance feeling and looking like a queen.

As for what hairdo to wear to the dance, wear it simply and add a gold, decorated headband. Sprinkle gold dust in your hair to complete your queenly costume.

Only thirteen more shopping days till Christmas.

BURGOS—PATTERSON

By Grace Stinecipher

Mr. and Mrs. Carmelo Burgos are announcing the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Judith '55, to Mr. Robert Lynn Patterson.

The wedding will take place in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel on December 21 at 4:00 p.m. A reception will be held immediately afterwards in the Y Social Hall. All friends of the couple are invited to attend both the wedding and the reception.

SMITH—HAYES

Miss Charlotte Smith of Knoxville became the bride of Mr. Roy Hayes '56 of Maryville on November 25. The wedding took place at the Second Methodist Church in Knoxville. A great many Maryville students attended the wedding.

OTHERS

The Christmas holidays will create the time element for many weddings of those whose engagements have already been announced. Those who are beginning to get the wedding jitters are Joan Frei and Joe Gilliland, whose wedding will take place in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel on December 27—Carolyn Carter and Harry Hassell who will be married on December 27 in Nashville—Carolyn Fuller, who is to be married to Charles Spencer on December 23 in Miami, Florida— Margaret Blackburn and Herb White who will be married on December 28 in Knoxville.

Happenings In The Y Rooms

A delicious breakfast of waffles, pancakes, juice, and coffee was enjoyed by the Nu Gamma groups of Jeanie Pavlovsky and Ann Murray early this morning —Janie Wall's table will enjoy a breakfast tomorrow morning—A spaghetti supper was held by Susie Shaffer's table on Thursday night.

Opportunities For Study In France Are Announced

Opportunities to study or teach in France during 1956-57 are available to American graduate students, it was announced today by Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

The French Government is offering approximately thirty university fellowships through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and forty teaching assistantships through the Ministry of Education. The fellowship awards are for students with definite academic projects or study plans. The assistantships afford language teaching experience and an opportunity to become better acquainted with France.

Nomination of candidates for fellowships and assistantships will be made by a joint committee of French and American educators working in cooperation with the French Cultural Services and the Institute of International Education.

Closing date for application is Febraury 1, 1956.

The French Government awards are open to men and women preferably under 30 years of age. Applicants must be U. S. citizens. Other eligibility requirements are: a bachelor's degree from an American college or university by the time of departure; good academic record; good knowledge of French; correct usage of English; good moral character, personality and adaptability; and good health.

Recipients of French teaching assistantships will teach conversational English in secondary schools and teacher training institutions in France. These posts are intended for future teachers of French. A few applicants with special training in American literature and some experience in college teaching may be selected for postes de lecteurs, teaching assignments in French universities. Stipends cover maintainence.

Graduate fellowships are open to students in all fields of study In the field of medicine, candidates must have the M. D. degree. Fellows study in French universities and other state institutions. These awards provide tuition and a modest maintainence.

Since the number of supplementary travel grants is limited, applicants should be prepared to pay their own travel.

Applicants for the French Government awards should apply to the United States Student Department of the Institute of International Education.

Students Can Help Increase Enrollment

Last year between 50 and 60 Maryville College students served as representatives of the college during the Christmas vacation in an effort to interest their friends in attending Maryville College. There is no doubt that much of the credit for the present increase of nearly 10 per cent in our enrollment belongs to the students. The cooperation of Maryville students is again earnestly requested during the forth coming holiday. If you will stop in the public relations office and leave your name with Mr. Hampton or Mrs. Lynn or Mrs. Griffitts copies of our view book and catalogue will be furnished.

Mr. Staples Is On Campus

Mr. Joseph Staples of the Dudley Parsons Company, a New York City public relations organization, has been on the campus during the past few days making a study for his company, which is coordinating the public relations program of the many colleges under the control of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Mr. Staples comes to Maryville from Chicago where representatives of the colleges met last week in a public relations conference arranged by the Parsons Campany for all Presbyteries (USA) colleges.

If you had lived somewhere around the 18th century, you would have seen published one of the greatest books of that time, Pamela, or Virtue Rewarded, by Samuel Richardson.

It is the sweet and tender story of a sweet and virtuous maiden named Pamela. Temptations and evils are thrust into her path, but the gentle and sweet girl never waivers from her goodness. She proceeds through the books (four volumes) with her sweet head held high, making her husband adore her, her children worship her, and her enemies love her. She is an example of personified perfection. But who is really perfect? And too many sweets make some people ill.

But There Are Others

If, however, you have a few moments of spare time and desire to spend them on a good book, why not try some of the newer books in the library?

For a spicy tale of witchcraft and suspense, read Dark Enchantment by Dorothy Macardle. This is the interesting story of a young English girl vacationing in France, who discovers a present-day witch.

Books On Drama

If witches do not interest you, and the theater does, try The Flower Girls, by Clemence Dane. This is the facinating story of the colorful and dramatic Floristers, the first family of the English theater. Its themes range from the legends of ancient England to tales of Broadway. It's a delightful story.

Or History

If you perfer history, read The Searchers, by Alan Le May. This book contains the friction of savage Comanches and tough and quiet south-plains cattlemen, just after the Civil War.

Another great historical novel is Swords of Anjou by Mario Pei. Intense drama and breathless suspense, treachery and heroism, gory battle and broad humor; all are found in this great book, against a background of feudal France and Moorish Spain.

Pamela?

If you do not find what you seek in these last books, don't forget dear, sweet Pamela, who waits alone on a very dusty bookshelf.

If you should actually desire to take the plunge and read Pamela, you had better hurry. Books taken out December 3 -December 16 are due December 17, and books taken out December 17, 19, and 20, will be for overnight use only.

Books Out Over Holidays

However, there's still a chance for you who really want to read the book. Any student who wishes to take out books for use during the holidays may do so, beginning December 19, by making a $5.00 deposit at the circulation desk. Pamela, and other books checked out over the holidays, are due back January 13.

Civil Service Announces Examination

A civil service examination has been announced for Dietetic Intern for filling internships paying $2,0000 a year in Veterans Administration hospitals in Los Angles, California; Bronx, N. Y.; Hines, Illinois; Memphis, Tennessee; and Houston, Texas.

To qualify for these internships, applicants must have received a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university and have completed courses of study in appropriate fields. No written test is required. Interns will be given a 12-month training course after which they will be eligible for promotion to a Dietitian position with the Veterans Administration, which pays from $3,670 to $4,525 a year.

Applications will be accepted through March 1, 1956 for the classes of interns beginning on July 1, or September 15, 1956. Applications must be filed with the Board of Civil Service Examiners, Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from most post offices throughout the country or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Spanish Club Elects Officers At Party

New officers are Harold Crane, president; Jim Kennedy, vice-president; Susie Parkinson, secretary; and Jane Bradfield, treasurer.

Sports Spotlights

By Sonny Shackelford

A BRIEF REVIEW

The year 1955 has presented a large assortment of thrills to the sports world. You will read many columns before long which will remind you of the highlights of the year. The bowl games on New Year's day started things off with a bang. Then came the big basketball tournaments. Major league baseball received a new enthusiasm, owing partly to the tight pennant race in the American League. The World Series found Brooklyn fighting back after two defeats to win their first Series victory in history. Australia came from "down under" to white-wash the Yanks in the Davis Cup, 5-0. That was a great disappointment to tennis fans in the States. America's future seems gloomy now that Tony Trabert has been lured by the professional green stuff. Boxing, too, offered some important and exciting title matches. And it has been a toilsome year for tracksters all over the country as they prepare for the 1956 Olympics.

It has been a full year for Maryville College also in athletics. The wrestling tournament drew quite a crowd, and the baseball and football teams provided their faithful supporters with a lot of action. The intramural program throughout the year has afforded many students with the opportunity to escape academic frustration with some spirited competition.

FOOTBALL

There are numerous All-American selections throughout the country, but I think mention should be made of two outstanding players who made virtually every squad for the second successive year. Halfback Howard Cassady of Ohio State and Ron Beagle of Navy, who were consistently hard to hold, were the honored athletes.

The stirring bands and pigskins have disappeared, but I'll be willing to wager that come January 2 the family will be gathered around the TV set to observe the exciting bowl classics and gala half-time shows. This year, as last, there have been many surprises in conference competition and national rankings. You can be assured of more thrills and surprises in the bowl games. Before the parlay sheets appear, I will venture my predictions at this time.

Rose Bowl — UCLA over Michigan State
Cotton Bowl — Mississippi over TCU
Sugar Bowl — Georgia Tech over Pittsburgh
Orange Bowl — Maryland over Oklahoma
Gator Bowl — Auburn over Vanderbilt

BASEBALL

Several weeks ago all minor league officials had their annual meeting to discuss trades, drafts, and changes. Some of their choices of players has an important bearing on the strength of the major league teams. There were a few deals of slight significance at the minor league meeting, but the major league owners who are doing their shop and trade-talk at this time usually supply the big surprises. In a huge player transaction involving important figures, Larry Doby of the Indians was traded for the White Sox's Chico Carresquel. In the National League I see that the Dodgers traded Don Hoak and others for the Cubs' Ransom Jackson in an attempt to strengthen third base. There will be inevitable trades and rumors of trades, so if you are a rabid baseball fan you'd better keep your eyes open. After all, some-1953. That same Antonelli, incidentally, won the penant for the Giants one may give away another Johnny Antonelli as the Braves did in in 1954.

Considerable reaction has been expressed over the selection of Yogi Berra as the Most Valuable Player in the American League. Many supporters of Detroit's Al Kaline, Cleveland's Al Smith, and Boston's Ted Williams have offered defense in behalf of their favorites. It was generally conceded that Kaline would be the winner, but the pennant winner always seems to influence the choice. At any rate, Berra certainly deserved some recognition for his wonderful clutch play during the season.

Each year the problem of attendance is discussed by club officials. In several instances there have been franchise changes. In this connection the Dodgers have announced a plan to play seven of their home games in a New Jersey stadium. It will be interesting to observe the reaction of the faithful Flatbush fans in that situation.

BASKETBALL

Unfortunately, I was unable to see Maryville's first game. After viewing the game with Tusculum I don't believe the Highlanders are as bad off as some imagine. Our fellow Presbyterians from Tusculum annually boast a strong squad in basketball — their devotion to the game indicates that basketball is nearly an academic course or requirement. Getting back to the game, I think the boys hit an uncanny percentage in the second half. Trailing by six at the half, the aggregation comprised of Dunn, Gregory, and Wallace in the line-up at the same time proceeded to catch the Pioneers and lead at one point. Bill Wallace was having a great time under the boards. If he hadn't fouled out, it might have ended differently. The fact remains, however, that those three men — with the outside help from the guards, of course — certainly seemed to be the best line-up of the night.

It's amazing how exciting the intramural league is this year. Each day turns up with some good, and generally close, games. Many of the participants in intramurals were high school players and really love the game. But I'd be willing to say that most of the boys play not to win but to experience team spirit and cooperation and to get some recreation from a scholastic schedule.

In keeping with Tom Anderson tradition, here's the sermon for the day:

Santa and Rudolph are almost here,
You better watch out — and spread good cheer.

AS I SEE IT

By Jerry Waters

The hooded creatures which you have seen running across our campus are not Eskimos or freaks, but they are members of the wrestling squad. Yes, wrestling season is here and the team has matches continuing from December 9, 1955, in the first semester to February 26, 1956, when the NCAA Southeastern Invitational Wrestling Tournament will be held at the University of the South (Sewanee). To win this tournament is the desire of every team in the conference, and the individual competition is even more intense. No doubt every true wrestler hopes some day to be a champion in this tournament or some other tournament in the country.

In order to predict a team's future possibilities, something must be known of the team's past success. Last year Maryville had a successful season, losing only to the YMCA of Knoxville and Auburn and trying two onther matches. All other matches were won. As you will remember, Auburn won the SIW Tournament, but Maryville was second.

Maryville has practically the same team as last year, for no members have been lost as a result of graduation. Many new men have been added to the squad this year. In the 123-pound class, we have Dick Jones, who has the potential of becoming a very good wrestler. Bill Wilkie, who wrestles in the 137-pound division should be able to use his strength and endurance to good advantage in the future. Also in the 137-pound class is Bruce Lundberg, who is becoming a good wrestler as practice continues.

In the 157-pound division we have Don Hill, who is strong and has excellent possibilities. Roy Meyers has been doing a fine job in the 167-pound class and is giving a lot of competition to his opponents. In the 177-pound division John Emery is developing into a good wrestler. We have Tom Axley as a new heavyweight. Axley is a big man and with more experience will develop into a strong opponent. All the "rookies" mentioned with the exception of Lundberg, who is a sophomore, are freshmen.

The other wrestlers on the team have wrestled in competition and have thus gained valuable experience. Yours truly wrestles in the 123-pound division. In the 130-pound class we have "Booty" Miller, who was captain last year and is the best in the Southeast, as his record shows. Jimmy Cummings in the 137-pound title will be gunning for the 137-pound title in the SIW Tournament this year. Both Miller and Cummings are seniors, and the team will be relying heavily on them this year.

Don Nabors is holding down the 147-pound division, and with a year's experience behind him, he should be a tough opponent. "Crow" Renfro is our 157-pound wrestler. This class is a difficult weight class because many of the best wrestlers seem to weigh in at this weight. Renfro is a fast man and should be of great help to Maryville this year. In the 167-pound division is Tom Bugenhagen, former title holder of his class in this conference. Tom is the most experienced man on the team and he is one of the best wrestlers in the conference.

John Anderson will be giving conference opponents in the 177-pound division a difficult time this year. John was hindered last year by a knee injury. Don Moore and Bob Clemens are our heavyweight contenders. Moore was second in the conference last year and is a senior. Bob Clemens is fast developing into a good wrestler and should be an asset to our team this year. Other grapplers who will be taking the place of our graduating seniors are Gene Garren in the 137-pound class, Max Williamson in the 147-pound division, Harold Templin in the 157-pound class, and Chuck Wagner in the 167-pound division.

These are the facts as I see them. We have the potential of becoming a good team. Whether we develop that potential will depend upon the individuals of the team.

I think that wrestling as a sport is often misunderstood. Some people think the sport is repulsive and gruesome; others seem to have the idea that the wrestlers are out on the mat for a game of "patty-cake." Actually the sport requires excellent conditioning, good balance, strength, and agility, as well as a tremendous desire to win. Besides the physical qualities, one learns to control his temper as well as learning how to win and how to lose. For the most part, anywhere our team goes, we are received by a friendly group of boys who make us feel welcome on their campus.

Although a group of boys wrestles as a team, wrestling is really an individual sport. Because of the individual nature of the sport, each wrestler is very sensitive to the reaction of the fans as they cheer for him or for his opponent. That is one of the reasons why wrestling teams like to have their matches at home. When the wrestler is away from his own college, he often feels as if every fan is against him. This psychological effect is devastating to the morale. No school, which we have visited supports their teams better than Maryville, and I think that you will find, when we lose, it is more often on our away matches. The team appreciates your support and we will do our best to make this year the greatest season yet.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jerry is the captain of this year's Highlander Wrestling Squad and was the winner of his division in the SIW Tournament last year.)

Coach Lombe Honaker Pays Tribute To John Stone, Maryville Athlete

By Bob Evans

This article is being written as a tribute to Mr. John Stone, a recently departed friend and graduate of Maryville College, who was in Coach Honaker's words "the best all-around athlete ever to be graduated from this school."

Mr. Stone played center in his freshman year at M.C., and for the next three years he was first-string center. He was the best center ever to play at M.C. and was rated by General Neyland, to be fully as good as Elvin Butcher, the all-Southern center of '27. In his senior year he was also captain of the football squad.

In Mr. Stone's four years here the Highlanders basketball squad had a record of 25 wins, 10 losses, and 1 tie, amassing 904 points to their opponents' 213.

Mr. Stone also had an outstanding career in baseball in his four years on the hill, serving as captain of the team in his junior year. Coach Honaker, his coach and friend said, "He was the best hitter that has played at Maryville in the past 34 years."

He had several offers from the big leagues before finishing college, but he refused to go before graduation. In 1927 at the close of his junior year, he signed with the Detroit Tigers, and as a result, reported to the Evansville Indians in June of 1928. He went to Detroit in August of that same year and stayed with Detroit for five years. In 1933 he was traded to the Washington Senators. He played for the Senators until June 1938 when he had an attack of tuberculosis. He recovered, but he never went back into baseball.

He married Ruth Ellis, daughter of Professor Ellis, who was the principal of the prep school and the librarian for twenty years.

Mr. Stone owned and operated a farm and milk plant in Shelbyville, Tenn., until his death.

Students Tell Of Iranian Christmas

By Betty Springstead

Santa Claus is coming in Iran, too. Three of our students, Leon Gabrielian, Armen Saganian and George Podgorny will be home in Iran for Christmas in thought if not in deed.

But, what is Christmas like in a land where 98% of the people are Moslems? Christmas for the Iranians will come on January 6. By January 1, also a holiday, all the Christmas trees will be trimmed and the interior of the Christians' homes will be beautifully decorated in much the same manner as our homes will be. But, walking down the streets before Christmas, you would not be able to tell a Christian home from a Moslem one, as the Christians are in a minority and can have only indoor decorations. No carolers will be heard or seen since carols are not sung much in Iran. Perhaps the snow will fall this year in time for the country to have a "White Christmas."

Finally, Christmas Eve will arrive and a fast will be kept all day. At night, the Christians will go to church to celebrate the birth of Christ with worship. Then, the fast will be broken and everyone will go home for a big Christmas dinner.

And then Santa Claus will come.

Ted Tabulates

By Ted Engle

Finishing the season with an accuracy of 91 per cent the following are my predictions for bowl games across the country on New Year's Day:

Rose Bowl
Mich. State 20 UCLA 13.
Orange Bowl
Oklahoma 20 - Maryland 14
Cotton Bowl
TCU - Mississippi 7
Sugar Bowl
Pittsburgh 27 - Georgia Tech. 20

Season Record

Second Semester Begins Jan. 11

Second semester will begin Wednesday January 11, 1956, with an 8:00 chapel service in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. Full classes will be held that day with required attendance. The usual penalities will apply for absenses on the first two days after the vacation.

Dormitories will be open for returning students Tuesday noon, January 10. The dining hall will open to serve the evening meal that night.

Highlands Drop Two In Starting Season

Intramurals....

Instead of the usual game scores of the past several games this week's column will be devoted to team standings, high scorers, and a summary of the first round of league action.

At the end of the first round of play the league stands are:

"A" League	Won	Lost	Pct.
Sledgehammers	5	1	.833
Y Flyers	4	2	.666
Wheels	4	2	.500
Dukes	3	3	.500
Daddies	1	5	.166
Piledrivers	1	5	.166
"B" League
Hurricanes	5	1	.833
Rockets	5	1	.833
Warriors	5	1	.833
Local Yokels	3	3	.500
Cyclones	1	5	.166
Kappa "B's"	1	5	.166
Tackhammers	1	5	.166

The amount of scoring in the games in both leagues has increased rapidly during the last several games. As of Wednesday night, the 7th, the top three scorers in the "A league are: Bob Ramged of the Sledgehammers leading with 72 points; Charles Partee of the Piledrivers -64, and Dan Wiley of the Sledgehammers - 60. In the "B" league the top three are as follows: Phil Clapp of the Golden Rockets - 84, C. Young of the Golden Rockets - 74, and Jim Marsh of the Pre Min Hurricanes - 56.

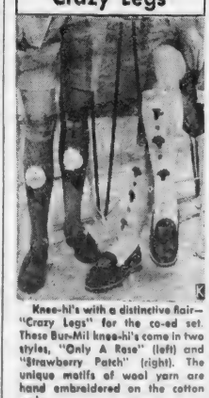
Although it may appear as if the top few teams in each league are running all over the lower teams this is not the case. A large percentage of the games have been very close all the way and have been won by a team either coming from behind or maintaining a nar row lead.

The season has a long way to go and anything can happen. Those top teams aren't undefeatable

YMCA Announces Recent Activities

On December 4 and 5 Mr. Al Payne, Secretary of Student Work of the Southern Area Y.M.C.A., came to observe Maryville's Y.M. as a part of a nation-wide study of the functions of and needs met by the Y.M.C.A. throughout the country. Mr. Payne met with the Y. cabinet on Monday evening.

Christmas Music



Be listening for the Christmas music from Anderson Tower; the Y.M.C.A. devotions and discussion committee is hoping it will put students in the holiday mood.

Suggestions Welcome

Anyone having suggestions about Y.M.C.A. programs for next semester are invited to give them to Ray Sammons or Harold O'Bannon, worship committee chairmen.

First Milligan, Then Tusculum Defeat Scots

The Highlander Basket b a l l Squad dropped their first two games of the season losing to the Milligan College Buffs 79-67, and the Tusculum College Pioneers 76-64.

Milligan Wins First Game

Milligan had an advantage over the Scotties in that it was their fifth game of the season and it was the Scotties' first. Milligan had a good ball team. They didn't look too promising in the first half, but when they really got rolling in the second half they looked very good. At halftime they held a fairly comfortable lead of 36-29.

High Scorers

The high scorer for the Scotties was center Bill "Punchy" Wallace with 23 tallies. Bill scored thirteen consecutive free throws and a total of fifteen out of eighteen. Chuck Dunn also hit the doubles column scoring twelve points. Rookie Gayle Ferguson tallied for eight points as did John West.

Four of the Buffs hit two figures. Forward Glen Barton and guard Dennis Greenwell both scored fourteen points. Milligan's center Duard Aldrich scored ten points as did their other first string guard Bud Gaslin.

Pioneers Drub Scots

The Pioneers of Tusculum handed the Highlanders their second straight defeat of the season on Tuesday night, 76-64.

Tusculum led by a 30-24 margin at halftime. Shortly after the start of the second half the Pioneers had widened the gap to nine points, but in a matter of approximately two minutes the Scotties had gone into the lead by one bucket as the stands went crazy. The Scots lost the lead, regained it and lost it never again to regain it.

Set Shot Artists

Tusculum was sparked by some really polished set shot artists who could drop their shots in from almost anyplace on the court, as well as those who could drive in there to score and some really tall rebounders.

Top Talliers

Ralph Horne, Tusculum center scored 33 points to lead the way for the visitors. Stallard and Hickney followed him with twelve points each.

Four Maryville players scored in double figures. Jim "Kanga-roo" Gregory, a sub, was high man with 14 tallies while rebounding Bill Wallace followed with 13, Lynn Sexton got 12 and John West 10. Although it did not show in high scoring, Chuck Dunn and Jack Crouch turned in good performances for the Scots.

King College

The Highlanders played their third consecutive home game last night playing host to King College, but as the game was played last night the results were not available for today's Echo.

Wrestling Squad Has First Match

Last night the Scottie Wrestling Squad had its first meet of the season against the Knoxville YMCA in the Alumni Gym. Because the meet was held last night, the results were not available for this issue of the Echo.

The matmen's first match of next semester will be on January 17 at Chattanooga, where the Highlanders will tangle with the rough and ready men from the University of Chattanooga.

Trophy Has Come For Sportsmanship Award In YMCA

The YMCA proudly announces the arrival of a 14½" trophy which is to be awarded to the intramural athlete who gives evidence of most closely adhering to the principles of good sportsmanship during the 1955-56 intramural season.

The trophy is made with a beautiful, well-finished walnut base and is crowned with a figure which symbolizes "male victory." All who are interested may see the trophy on display in the Student Center. The "Y" will publish, at some future date, the attributes which will be considered in making the award.

Women's Sports News

At this time the Women's Athletic Association is having a volley ball tournament. Last Tuesday the Howies won the first game of the tournament.

February Meetings Begin Eightieth Series Soon

Three Leaders Are Returning From Previous Years

Rev. George E. Sweazey, Ph.D., D.D., will be the leader of the 80th series of February Meetings to be held February 1-9.

Rev. John Magill, D.D., will conduct the singing for the fourth year, and Henry Barraclough, L.L.D., will be the guest accompanist for the fifth year.

The series will open Wednesday morning, February 1, and will continue through Thursday morning, February 9. Services will be held each day at 9:45 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. in the Chapel, with the exception of Saturday night. There will be a service Monday morning.

On the Sunday during the Meetings Dr. Sweazey will preach at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

There will be opportunity for personal interviews with the leaders on a schedule to be announced by the faculty-student committee on interviews. Forum meetings will be held if they are desired. Preceding and during the Meetings there will be prayer groups which will be arranged by a faculty-student committee.

About The Leaders

Dr. Sweazey, pastor of the Huguenot Memorial Presbyterian Church, Pelham, New York, and former Secretary for Evangelism and Director of the New Life Movement for the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. led the Meetings in 1952. Dr. Magill is pastor of the Abingdon Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and a graduate of Maryville College in the Class of 1939. Mr. Barraclough, of Philadelphia also, is Assistant Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

College Adds Five To Faculty, Staff

President Ralph W. Lloyd announced that five new members have been added to the Maryville College faculty and staff for full time or part time work during the second semester. Two faculty members will be on leave this semester: Howard Schwam, assistant professor of Spanish, who will do graduate work at Columbia University in New York; and Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz, professor of Home Economics, who will be at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

James A. Hamlett, will take Senor Schwam's place this semester. He is from Nashville, and he is a member of the faculty of Knoxville College. He will spend part of his time at Maryville teaching two Spanish courses and part of his time at Knoxville College. Besides a bachelor's degree from Fisk University, Nashville, he holds a master's degree from Louisiana State University.

Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, Pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church, Maryville, will teach a course in the Philosophy of Religion. Dr. Pritchard received his undergraduate bachelor's degree from DePauw University, in Indiana, and holds bachelor's and doctor's (Th.D.) degrees in theology from Boston University.

Mr. Herbert F. Ingle, Jr., will be assistant in the library. A graduate of East Tennessee State College, he is from Elizabethton, Tenn. He holds a degree in Social Sciences and Library Science.

Mrs. Eva Mae Vineyard will be assistant in the treasurer's office. Mrs. Vineyard graduated from Seviervlle High School and has previously taken work at Maryville College and the University of Tennessee.

Mrs. Edward N. Wyman, a Maryville resident, will be a secretary at the Fine Arts Center.

Nineteen Maryville Students Attended World Conference During Holidays

By Winifred Kie

During Christmas vacation nineteen Maryville students took a trip around the world! They traveled to eighty countries and met 1275 students representing those countries. This tour took place on the campus of Ohio University at Athens, Ohio, during a five-day conference held under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement and sponsored by the World Student Christian Federation.

It is considered to be the most important of its kind in the history of the Student Christian Movement—the reason for this being the large number of international students who attended as full delegates and the sharing of leadership responsibilities by outstanding Christian teachers and leaders, both international and American.

The theme of the conference was "Revolution and Reconciliation" Major issues of the day were discussed seriously under the guidance of men and women with experiences in the field. Included in these discussions were the issues of the new relationship of missionaries to the younger churches around the world, the problems of colonialism, racism, underdeveloped areas, new conflicts between Christianity and the non-Christian religions, and the relationship of the Christian faith to areas of rapid social change.

Primary in the conference was the focus of attention upon the necessity for Christians to bring the reconciling power of Christ into these revolutionary issues.

The next edition of The Highland Echo will feature in greater detail the outstanding highlights of the conference.

Student Council Has First Meeting

By Ted McDaniels

Last Wedensday night at the regular meeting of the Student Council the treasurer reported a balance of more than $123.00 in the bank. This figure does not include the allotment for Council from this semester's student activity fee. The use of this money had not been decided, but the general sentiment of the members present was "SPEND IT."

Town Night Violation

There was only one town-night violation reported, the case of the town night checker in one of the dorms who forgot to sign in. It was suggested that since it was a "checker" that the maximum penalty be imposed; however, it was decided that the town night privileges be suspended for a period of one week.

New Permission Blanks

It was brought to the attention of the Council that special permission slips had been placed in the hands of the housemothers to be given to girls out on special permission in order to facilitate the checking in of these people. The information asked for on the slip is as follows:

Date .....
1. For Town Night .....
   a. With Whom .....
   b. Time out .....
      In .....
2. Other than Town Night .....
3. Nature of Permission .....

Printed Schedules

In the near future schedule cards will be printed and placed in the hands of the students. These cards will give the meeting time of Classes during the February Meetings as well as the time of each class in both "B" and "C" schedules.

President Shackelford outlined briefly the agenda for the present semester, and Social Committee chairman Dick Henderson outlined the coming social events. He stated that it looked like a busy semester with only two Saturday nights not accounted for and about six events to fit into them.

Curriculum Committee Is Now Established

Students, Faculty To Work Together

Six students have been elected to serve on the newly-established curriculum committee, a student-faculty group which will study the college curriculum and suggest improvements where necessary to the Student-Faculty Senate. The election was held Tuesday morning in divisional meetings of the student body.

The curriculum divisions and the students elected from them are as follows:

Division of Languages and Literature — Joan McNaughton, junior English major; Division of Bible, Philosophy, and Education — Charles Frissell, junior psychology major; Division of Science—Andy Loven, junior chemistry major; Division of Social Sciences—Tom Paton, senior history major; Division of Fine Arts — Jackie Speigner, senior music education major; and Division of Physical Education and Health and Athletics—Dee Woods, senior physical education major.

Serving as chairman of the committee is Dr. E. R. Hunter, Dean of Curriculum. Faculty members in each of the divisions will be appointed by Dr. Lloyd. The committee will then elect one of the student members as vice-chairman.

The committee was established upon recommendation of the Student Council in cooperation with the Student-Faculty Senate and the Executive Committee of the Faculty and is provided for in By-Law IX of student body constitution.

This by-law is as follows:

CURRICULUM COMMITTEE BY-LAW IX

Sec. 1. The Curriculum Committee shall be a student-faculty committee, composed of the Dean of Curriculum as chairman, and a student and a teaching faculty member from each of the six curricular divisions of the College.

a. Faculty members shall be appointed by the President of the College.
b. The student member from each curricular division shall be chosen by the major students in that division.
c. The committee shall elect one of the student members as Vice-Chairman.

Sec. 2. It shall be the function of the Curriculum Committee to study matters of curriculum and instruction and report the results of such study to the Student-Faculty Senate.

Pi Kappa Delta Chooses Members

In a meeting held on Thursday evening, January 12, the Tennessee Alpha Chapter of Pi Kappa Delta elected the following members: Eleanor Koster, Margaret Patterson, Corita Erwin, Bob Bogle, Bob Goodlin and Wendy Wood. This organization is the Maryville chapter of the national forensic society.

The Maryville debaters also announced plans to participate in the Smoky Mountain Tournament to be held January 27-28 at Carson-Newman College. The following teams will participate: Margallen Hanna and JoAnn Brooks, Graeme Sieber and Tom Paton, Bob Goodlin and Bob Bogle, and Keith Ham and Nancy Wilson.

Student Vols To Have Music Program In FAC

Student Vols will meet tomorrow evening after Vespers in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center for a program called "Ten Top Tunes." Actually an old-fashioned "Sing," the program will include William Van Zant, and Ed Grigsby on their respective trumpets, the Girls' Trio, a special number by Janet Maib, and a marimba solo by Penny Neff. All are invited.

Theta Alpha Phi Will Hold Initiation

Theta Alpha Phi will hold its informal initiation for this year on Tuesday, January 24. The initiates are Ann Wiley, Ruth Wilson, Wendy Wood, and Don Thiel.

Formal initiation will be held on Saturday evening. Marcia Williams is president of the group and Tony Clark is chairman of the initiation committee.

Ginger Tells Of 'The French Way'

By Mary Ann Morris

"The French way.' This is the first hurdle for a visitor to France," says Ginger Colwell, a Maryville College student who traveled to France last September. Miss Colwell spent two and one-half months in gay Paris, studying at the Sorbonne. She goes on to say, "At first, everything is compared to those things one finds at home. But little by little, the change of locale makes one change attitudes, and 'the French way' seems to come naturally. For example, there is the French way (the continental way) of eating; a truly difficult feat for an American. The food is precariously balanced on the back of the tines of the fork, no mean trick for a novice especially when the fork is held in the left hand."

"The French way of greeting, nothing simple as the good American 'Hi', is an elaborate formula of, 'I am enchanted to make your acquaintance,' and is the bane of all French students. But it is really accepted as standard speech," says Miss Colwell.

"The French also have a curious attitude concerning those poor misfits who are trying to speak French," Miss Colwell reports. "To the French, anyone who cannot speak French is illiterate. As long as one can pronounce the words, they think he is a linguist, but even he who fights his way through subjunctives and past anteriors is considered stupid if he has an accent."

Miss Colwell took all the traditional tours, seeing the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, the most famous art gallery in the world, the Arc de Triomph, and other such historical monuments. But as for the inside of French buildings, concerning plumbing and allied appliances, Miss Colwell says, "Their attitude is one of casual disregard. Such things are trivial when the cafes beckon."

Miss Colwell saw concerts galore during her trip; Russian folklore ballets, French ballets, the Opera, and the world-famous Rubinstein. She lacked nothing in the way of movies, either, as half of the movies shown in Paris were American.

Language mistakes were bound to happen, as the time when Miss Colwell went into a French version of a butcher shop and asked for 100 kilograms of meat. She almost came out with what she asked for, 200 pounds!

"To Americans used to the 'alabaster cities' gleaming," says Miss Colwell, "Paris also offers wonder: that any city can be so dirty.

The city has celebrated its 1000th birthday, and from the looks of the buildings, the 1000 years were rough. With an off-hand concern, the Arc de Triomph was garden-hosed for the Armistice Day Parade. This celebration is one done in the typically French way. Nowhere else would such emotion be displayed over something so far in the past. It is an inspiring colorful sight though, with the French guard on horseback, and dressed in colorful finery which dates back to Napoleon. The whole city can almost be considered a memorial to this leader. Nowhere in the city can his imprint be missed."

All in all though, the French way is a magnificent way to do things . . . as any Frenchman will tell you. Just ask Ginger Colwell!

Echo Staff Positions Are Vacant

There are several positions vacant on the Echo staff in the freshman and sophomore levels. Students interested in writing for the Echo should see the editor or come to one of the announced staff meetings.

Student-Faculty Group Makes Selection

Nine Maryville College seniors have been elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, it has been announced by Dean Frank D. McClelland. The students who achieved this honor are: Forrest Amidon, Mary Brasfield, JoAnn Brooks, Thomas Bugenhagen, Ethelyn Cathey, James Cummings, Martha Jackson, Nancy Jones, and Edgar Shackelford.

Students are selected for Who's Who on the basis of student leadership, scholarship, and participation in extra-curricular activities. This selection is made by a vote of the faculty and Student Council.

Amidon

Forrest Amidon, an English major from Erie, Pa., is president of the YMCA. In his junior year he was president of the Pre-Ministerial Association, a member of the Inter-club Council, and a player in the Maryville Playhouse. Amidon has also been on the Y Cabinet and in the Vesper Choir and Men's Glee Club.

Brasfield

Miss Mary Brasfield, an organ major from Butler, Mo., is president of WSGA. An active member of the Maryville College band, Miss Brasfield has been drum major for the past two years. She is a member of Bainonian Society and was chosen an ABC girl in her junior year. She is a member of the YW-Cabinet and the Student Council. Miss Brasfield was chosen by the student body as the 1955 Barnwarming Queen.

Brooks

Miss JoAnn Brooks, a political science major from Louisville, Ky., is a secretary of the Student-Faculty Senate. Miss Brooks is a former vice-president of Theta Epsilon. She is a member of the Student Council, an active member of the debate team, and is the president this year of Pi Kappa Delta. Miss Brooks has been a member of the YW-Cabinet and in her sophomore year was a Nu Gamma leader. Last year she was chosen as a member of the Daisy Chain.

Bugenhagen

Thomas Bugenhagen, a senior math major from Erie, Pa., is a past-president of Alpha Sigma. In his sophomore year he was captain of the wrestling team and in his junior year was elected Athletic Association President. He was president of his sophomore class and has been active on Student Council for several years. Bugenhagen was awarded the mathematics prize last spring. In his freshman year he was a May Day escort.

Cathey

Miss Ethelyn Cathey, a senior English major from Clarksville, Ark., is the president of YWCA. Miss Cathey is a member of Theta Epsilon. A Nu Gamma leader in her sophomore year, she was chosen Nu Gamma Chairman the following year. She has been a member of Writers Workshop for two years and now serves on the Governing Board. In her junior year Miss Cathey was a May Day Attendant and a member of the Daisy Chain. She has been a member of French Club, Girls' Choir, and in her freshman year she served as a WSGA representative.

Cummings

James Cummings, a physics major from Maryville, is president of the senior class. Cummings is a member of Vesper Choir, Student Council, and Student-Faculty Senate. A cheerleader for two years, he is now co- chairman of the Pep Committee. He is on the Y-Cabinet and this year is one of the Ten Key Men. He was the senior Barnwarming attendant this fall. Cummings was Business Manager of the Echo for two semesters. An active participant in

Here We Are Again!

Back at M.C. again for another semester. For many of us this will be the last and for many more of us it will be the second semester; however, to all of us here on the Hill it means a fresh start and fresh opportunities. It means new classes, new professors, and new responsibilities.

Over the holidays we all experienced the needed change from school routine. Nevertheless with the coming of the fall semester's grades doubtless there were very few of us who did not resolve to make certain changes in our study habits, class participation, and class alertness for the spring semester. Perhaps some also planned to alter our extra-curricular plans. Well, now we have been back ten days and have had the opportunity to put the good intentions to the practical test—have we?

It has been said that sometimes students do not realize the aim of a course or the continuity of it until very near its completion. Perhaps with a little more concentrated effort and seriousness of purpose these points would become clear earlier and thus greater benefits and understanding would be derived from the course. None of us will have the opportunity to relive the educational advantages afforded us in these years. Now is the time to act and appreciate what we have here. Let us strive to make this semester really worthwhile.

—J.W.

Curriculum Committee By-Law IX

After the work of a full year the Student Council, in co-operation with the Student-Faculty Senate and the Executive Committee, came up with the Curriculum Committee By-Law IX.

This by-law has been established with the purpose in mind to further the interest of the students in their school. It is felt that through this committee, with members from each of the divisions—both student and faculty—it will be able to formulate a more dynamic curriculum.

Through this committee the curriculum could be planned so that the advanced subjects in the more crowded major fields would be offered more often, thus reducing the size of the class. This is one idea; there are, of course, many others.

T. McD.

Just Another Tradition?

The Highland Echo is now in its fortieth year of service to the students of Maryville College. Since its founding in November, 1915, the Echo has endeavored to present an accurate and fairly complete account of campus news. It has recorded the many events through the years that have made for the growth of the college. Its function has indeed been a valuable one to students, faculty, and to all others interested in Maryville. One might even say that the Echo has become a tradition with us.

However, there is a danger that like many traditions a student newspaper may come to be regarded as just merely a tradition with no real cause for being. It is a danger the staff must always guard against. Up-to-date news, interesting feature material, and thought-provoking editorials are what every staff strives for. Sometimes it is the job of "the press" to rouse students from lethargy and prod them into action. Sometimes it is necessary to censor some of the activities. A student newspaper must never come to a standstill as far as policy is concerned or else it will lose the interest of its readers.

However, the paper is not an exclusive project carried on by a picked staff. The readers themselves can play a part in giving it a more vital function on campus. The Highland Echo has always invited letters to the editor, but usually the students neglect this opportunity for expressing themselves. Very few letters are ever received; a "What's the use" attitude seems to prevail. Yet all letters that are printed are read widely—over 800 copies of the Echo are circulated each issue.

The Echo will probably continue in its efforts to preserve its long record of good service, but without the active interest of the students it can come to be regarded as another meaningless tradition.

Scots & Soda

By Joanne Causey

Just what is it that little groups of students are seen discussing so earnestly around registration time? What is the subject of all those secret meetings held in the wee hours of the morning in Pearsons and Carnegie, not to mention Baldwin and Memorial? Courses, that's what it is, courses. Well, why do they choose the courses they do? Is it on the basis of professional scholarship? Do they eagerly seek out the profs with the Phi's or the ones who have written numerous books in their fields? Nope, it is none of these. The deciding factor is the kind of tests that the scholar gives.

Now let's take Dr. Clodfelter, for example. He's a good soul. Why, he'd do anything for you—except give you a fair exam, and he'd readily give you the shirt off his back—but not a passing grade. The story is told that three students took one look at his final and then quietly walked over to the window of his third floor Anderson classroom and jumped out.—Actually this story is not correct—only two jumped out.

To show you why Dr. Clodfelter's classes are rather sparsely populated and even then, only with new students, here is his final examination:

GENERAL DIRECTIONS: This examination will test your ability to read, comprehend and solve new problems by the use of your ability to read, comprehend and solve new problems. All undotted i's and uncrossed t's will count off five points each. Please do not start until I say go.

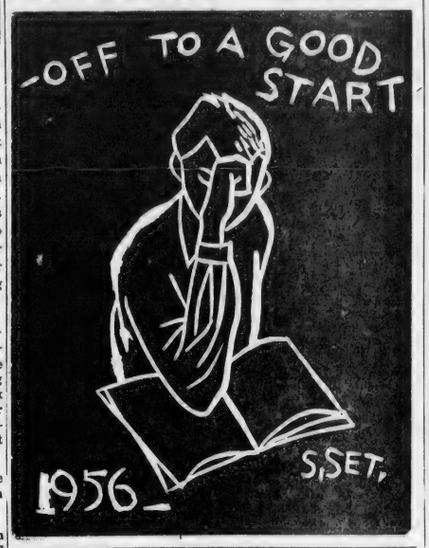
16. What movie is currently playing at the Capitol theater up town?
    III's war. Be brief.
17. How many chariots were used in Thutmose III's war? Be brief.
18. What is the name of the book I wrote? This question counts 50 points.



"This is the end of the test. Please print your name carefully backwards five and a fourth inches down from the top of the page and two and a third inches over from the left edge. Then fold paper lngthwise three times, printing your name again on the third fold. Now fold crosswice twice. When this is done ball the whole thing up and place carefully on my desk. Any failure to comply with these regulations will be regarded as gross negligence and will accordingly meet with a severe penalty."

He's Really a Good Guy

Now students, don't let this deter you from rushing over and signing up for Dr. Clodfelter's courses. He is not impossible. Why, a girl passed his 302 course five years ago. He is well-qualified, too—he has written numerous books on the architectural ability of the ants. He once placed second in a ping pong tournament.

TALK OF THE WEEK By Sue Settle

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

Smith Photographs Now On Exhibit

The art exhibit now being shown in the gallery at the Fine Arts Center is "Art in Photography", a collection of the works of Jim Smith, senior at Maryville College.

Some of the pictures being exhibited include "Jill", "Fontana Lake", "Eagle Creek", "Retrospect", "Bridge", "Landscape in Infrared", "Easter Bonnet", "Blaze", "Crystal River", "Delores", "Joan", "Wintery Waterfall", "Nude", "The Yawn", "Snow in the Smokies", "Fontana Dam", "Four Hours Old", "Marquis De Yengo", "Sue", "Snowscape", "Nude", "Natalie", "Fille Do Joie", "Catch!", "Mrs. Josef Hoffman", and "Sentinel".

Jim graduated from the school of modern photography, New York Institute of Photography, in 1955. He was director of photography for Fontana Village in 1954 and 1955, is now the president of the Maryville College Camera Club and is a member of the Photographers Association of America. Jim began his avid and active interest in photography in 1950. He plans to go into photography and public relations work.

American Art To Be On Exhibit In FAC Gallery

Coming to the gallery of the Fine Arts Center on January 26, is the exhibition "Hightlights of American Paintings" from the American Federation of Arts in New York City. This showing is designed to be a survey of colonial beginnings of America through contemporary works. Some of the artists to be shown are Copley, Stuart, Homer, Whistler, Audubon, Eakins, Sargent, Burchfield, Marin, Feininger, and others. There are fifty actual paintings. At 7:30, on the evening of Thursday, January 26, Mrs. Beard will give a Gallery Talk, introducing the exhibit.

By SUSIE PARKINSON

George is a college man. He loves onions and turtles (not mixed). George got bored one day . . . down in the dumps. All the methods of committing suicide he thought of were too painful, so he decided to go to the Capitol Theater this afternoon and see Richard Conte in "The Case of the Red Monkey" plus Roy Rogers in "Rainbow Over Texas".

Finds Other Pursuits

George is now really . . . well he is, so he cuts his hair off while listening to "The Birds of Paradise". Now he feels much better. In high spirits George takes off to try out for "Beyond the Horizon" by Eugene O'Neill, the major production of the Maryville Playhouse this semester. He is determined to win the role of an old maid set in her ways. Watch for an announcement in your daily chapel service.

"What thou doest, do quickly", George reads in his Bible so he makes a mad rush for the dining hall where he reaches politely for "da salt". His fish is still flopping on the plate.

Seeks Refuge in Library

Thoroughly disillusioned, George heads for the library in search of solitary confinement. The library, however, is crawling with freshmen trying to find copies of "Underwater Basket-weaving" for their term papers George grabs a book—it is "Blizzard" by Phil Strong, who was grounded in Charleston. He becomes engrossed in the icy, howling whirl around him. He then discovers that by mistake he has been reading "The Corpse Chewed Gum" by Ralph Wagner.

Moral Of It All:

We truly hope that this episode in the life of George has given you all a clear picture of the many cultural opportunities available in this hemisphere.

Music Education Club Sees Group Of Slides

The Music Education club held its first meeting of the semester last Thursday night in the Fine Arts Center. The program consisted of the showing of several audio-visual slides on the American national anthem and how it came to be written as well as the development of musical instruments through the ages.

Anyone interested in two tickets to the 1956 Rose Bowl Game? They are excellent seats right on the fifty-yard line, section 1, row 12. Anyone who is interested please contact me in the Echo office.

Highlanders Bounce Back

The Scottie Hoopsters, after losing three in a row, bounced back to win three of their last four outings. At the start of the season they were downed by Milligan, Tusculum and King. The Scots defeated the airmen of McGhee-Tyson and were again trimmed by King College. Then they successively triumphed over Chattanooga and Hiwassee. It seems that the Scotties have ironed out some of the kinks and can really drop them through the hoop. But, as always, they want YOUR SUPPORT at those home games, for they have a semester-full of rough opponents.

Grapplers Show Improvement

The Wrestling Squad, after a very disheartening loss to Knoxville YMCA last semester, showed a very decided improvement this semester as they held the powerful University of Chattanooga to an 18-18 deadlock.

They tied the Moccasins even though they have had considerable bad luck in the form of injuries and boys failing to make their weight. Let's hope from now on in they will have a few of the breaks going their way. They have the material and the fighting spirit, all they need now is some SUPPORT from the student body.

A Sports Forum?

As most of you probably know, the Echo has a policy whereby its readers can send comments, suggestions, etc. in the form of letters to the editor and these are printed in a regular column called "Echo Forum". I was wondering if it were not possible for this page to have a similar column.

Many of you have made comments to me personally in the line of criticism in the general field of athletics at this school. Some of these criticisms were eventually made known to the student body through editorials in this column whereas others were discarded as not important enough to be mentioned.

In the future would those of you who have comments, criticisms, etc., in the field of athletics, please hand them or mail them to me in the form of a letter so that the entire student body might be aware of your observations. If the letters are not too numerous or lengthy, they will be reproduced on this page in their entirety, if space permits, in a column called "Sports Forum".

Something for the Women

In keeping with the tradition of Tom Anderson, and to show the women that they need not feel "left out" on this page, I should like to include the following poem.

Women's faults are many,
But men have only two,
Everything they say
And everything they do.

But since this is the sports page (a gross assumption, I realize) I feel it is only right that a man should have the final say.

Man wants but little,
And is easy to please,
But woman, bless her heart,
Wants everything she sees!

AS I SEE IT. . . .

By Jack Crouch

As most of you know who read the ECHO or journey to the Alumni Gym on game nights, our Maryville basketball team lost its first three games. There can be and there are many reasons why a team loses consistently and I'm sure every fan has his own thoughts on the matter just as I have mine. For myself though, I believe that the lack of experience and height on the part of our team members was the chief factor in our defeats.

When we began the season early in December, the squad was made up of four returning lettermen, one of whom was our dependable guard Lynn Sexton, who has since graduated; a few two year and three year rookies; and two promising freshmen. A two year or three year rookie, which ever the case may be, is a boy who has been a member of the basketball team but has not seen much varsity action. This was our personnel. At best, it left something to be desired as far as expereince goes. Now we come to the lack of team height. Everyone who follows the game of basketball knows that in the last few years the emphasis on height has increased overwhelmingly. Any college or professional player under six feet two inches is considered to be rather short. Almost always, the team which has the taller players controls the backboard and gains most of the rebounds. Thus, they obtain possession of the ball longer and get more shots at the basket. This is common knowledge and I only mention it to show the importance that the lack of heights has shown in our early defeats.

On the other hand, I believe, that since the beginning of the semester the team has profited from its early losses by gaining the before-mentioned valuable experience and correcting costly mistakes. Also, with the addition of six-foot three-inch Jim Saunders to the squad, the Scotties have added the height and rebound potential which up to now has been lacking.

Well, these are the facts as I see it and with the support of all the students I believe we can give you, if not a winning season, at least an entertaining one.

Matmen Deadlock Chattanooga U. In Opening Match Of Semester

COMING EVENTS

Tonight at 8 p.m. the Highlander Hoopsters will face the Tigers of Hiwassee College. On January 27, they will encounter Emory-Henry in another home game.

The Scottie Wrestling Squad has its next meet on January 28. They will oppose Auburn.

The Scottie Matmen's second meet of the season with the University of Chattanooga ended in an 18-18 deadlock. The Scots journeyed to Chattanooga on Tuesday to grapple with the Moccasins of U. C.

In the first match of the evening Jerry Waters, M. C. team captain and 123 lb. contender, pinned D. Riggs in 1'45" of the first round.

Beuford "Booty" Miller because he could not make his weight, forfeited the 130 lb. division to J. Farr of U. C.

Jim Cummings of Maryville pinned his opponent in the 137 lb. class, J. Scruggs, in 47 seconds.

The Scotties' Don Nabors pinned M. Stack in 1' 54" in the 147 lb. division.

In the 157 lb. class Max Williamson decisioned L. Hoades of Chattanooga 2-1.

Don Hill, the Scots' 167 lb. contender, was pinned by M. Graves in two minutes flat.

In the 177 lb. division, John Anderson of Maryville lost on a decision 4-8 to J. Dyer.

Tom Axley was pinned by the Mocs heavy-weight Abe Cohen in 1' 30".

M Club Sets Date For Spring Hike

At the first meeting of M Club this semester a tentative date of May 5 and 6 was set for the spring hike. Mary K. Alison and Nancy Priest are in charge of the hike.

New officers were elected to replace those that are not here this semester. The new treasurer is June Renner. The three new program chairmen are Sue Burton, Helen Franklin, and Lottie Jerkins.

After the meeting three of the senior physical education majors planned the Women's Athletic Association activities for this semester.

Freshmen Emerge Triumphant In YMCA Inter-Class Tournament

The freshman class basketball squad capped first place honors in the YMCA sponsored interclass basketball tournament which was played last Saturday night.

The juniors downed the seniors 33-19 to reach the finals but were in turn defeated by the freshman squad 32-23. The freshmen had previously beaten the sophomores 24-14.

In the finals the juniors were sparked by the set shooting of Bill Dent, the captain of the squad, and Guy Selander. But the freshmen had the jump on the upperclassmen on the backboards, out-rebounding them continually. The frosh also used a slowed-down style of offense which paid off in the long run.

Members of the frosh squad remarked on the support and enthusiasm of the fans.

In the scoring department Tom Morris was high man for the frosh with ten points. Bill Dent and Guy Selander had ten tallies apiece for the juniors.

Team captain Tom Morris accepted the trophy for the freshman squad.

Intramurals....

By JIM CONKLIN

The basketball court had a breather over the holidays, but with the resumption of classes, the Intramural Basketball Leagues again swung into action. After one week of play the league standings are as follows:

"A" League	Won	Lost	Pct.
Sledgehammers	7	1	.875
"Y" Flyers	6	2	.750
Wheels	5	3	.625
Dukes	3	5	.375
Piledrivers	2	6	.250
Diaper Daddies	1	7	.125

"B" League	Won	Lost	Pct.
Warriors	7	1	.875
Hurricanes	6	2	.750
Rockets	5	2	.714
Local Yokels	4	3	.571
Tackhammers	2	5	.250
Cyclones	1	7	.125
Kappa B's	1	7	.125

High Scorers

Due to the return of some players that had been suspended by the M.C.I.B.A. (branch of the N.I.B.A.), there is a new high scorer in the "A" League, Tom Morris of the "Y" Flyers. Tom is leading with 111 points. Bob Ramger of the Sledgehammers is second with 78, and Dan Yoder, also of the sledgehammers, is third with 71. At the present time we only have the leader in the "B" League and that is Jim Marsh of the Hurricanes with 74 points.

Action

In the past week's action the Tackhammers won 2-0 in a forfeit over the Rockets, the Hurricanes lashed the Kappa B's 38-10 and the Warriors beat the Cyclones to the score of 29-13.

"A" League action saw the "Y" Flyers scoring the most points in any game yet this season in the "A" League by walloping the Diaper Daddies 63-27. The sledgehammers out-hooped the Piledrivers on a rough game that was played befitting the names of the two clubs 46-25, to retain their league lead. In the final game the Wheels rolled by the Kappa Dukes 29-22 in one of the closer games of the season.

TODAY'S GAMES

This afternoon the "A" League has three games scheduled in the Alumni Gym with the first game starting at 1:30. The Sledgehammers will play the "Y" Flyers in what may prove to be one of the best and most decisive games of the year. The Flyers are in second place and with a win in this game could move into a tie with the Sledgehammers for first place.

Highlanders Bow To King But Defeat Airmen

The Highlander Basketball Squad finished up last semester with a loss and their first win of the season. The Scots were edged out by King College 76-72 but trounced the McGhee-Tyson Sabors 89-52.

A Close Battle

The Scotties had a slight edge on King all through the first half. At the half they led by the slim margin of 36-35. Throughout the second half the game was very very close. It was a see-saw battle all the way with the Scots continually gaining and relinquishing the lead.

Good Rebounding

Both MC and King had excellent rebounding on the backboards. The Scotties were also their typical ball-stealing selves. But King was just too much for the Highlanders.

Wallace is High Man

Bill Wallace was top tallier for the Scots with 22 points. Gayle Ferguson and John West also added 16 and 14 points respectively for the Highlanders.

Five of King's players hit the doubles column. Forward Mark Wilson led the attack with 17 points. Guards Outlaw and Helton had 18 and 13 tallies respectively. Edgar and Frucette had 11 and 10 points each.

Scots Down Airmen

Filling an open space on their schedule the Scotties encountered and trounced the Airmen of the McGhee-Tyson Air Force Base in one of the most unusual games of the semester. The Scots jumped to an early lead and led at half-time 40-20.

Wallace is Top Again

Bill Wallace was again the top man for the Highlanders scoring 23 big points. John West with 15 tallies was second for the Scots.

Scots Take Road Trip, Gain Two Victories

Chattanooga And Hiwassee Bow

The Highlander Basketball Squad, after losing three out of four games last semester, bounced back to take two out of three at the beginning of this semester. At the present moment the squad is batting almost .500 with 4 losses and 3 wins.

King Downs Highlanders

On the opening day of shchool the Scotties, playing their first road game of the campaign, lost to King College 73-70 at Bristol.

High-scoring Bill "Punchy" Wallace led the Highlanders with 22 points. Guard Bob Helton with 23 tallies was top man for King.

The Scotties were seriously hampered when Wallace fouled out with five minutes remaining in the game.

Scots Pound Mocs

Last Saturday the Highlanders triumphed over the University of Chattanooga 78-69. It was the Moccasins' sixth straight defeat in basketball this season.

The Moccasins enjoyed a 69-66 lead with 1:59 remaining, but Bill Wallace, Jack French and Jim Saunders engineered a Maryville rally in which the Scots scored twelve points, while holding the Mocs scoreless.

Wallace led his team's scoring parade with 22 points, 14 of which came on the free throw line, while French and Saunders netted 20 and 13 points respectively. For Chattanooga, Green, a forward, had 18 tallies.

Scots Stop Hiwassee

Thanks to a 28 point production by big Bill Wallace, the Highlanders continued along the victory trail downing Hiwassee 74-68. The Scottie center turned in one of his finest offensive performances of the year on Monday night at Madisonville.

Other standouts for the Scots were Jack French, who had 14 tallies, and Jim Saunders and Pat Flynn, who had 10 apiece.

Daran, Poe and Bucker were the top talliers for the Hiwassee Tigers, scoring 16, 14 and 14 points respectively.

Grapplers Lose To Knoxville YM

The Scotties Wrestling Squad lost its first meet of the season to the Knoxville YMCA 19-13 on December 9, largely because two matches were defaulted.

Before the regular matches began Tom Axley of Maryville pinned Tom Cohen in an exhibition match in the heavy weight division.

Jerry Waters won the 123 lb. division by forfeit because Knoxville "Y" had no entrant in this class.

In the 130 lb. class "Booty" Miller (M. C.) pinned Bill Wolfleager in 3 minutes and 52 seconds.

Jim Cummings of Maryville lost the forth match of the evening to Jim West by a decision of 10-4.

Don Nabors decisioned Tom Roddy of Knox "Y" 4-0 in the 147 lb. division.

In the 157 lb. class Jack Renfro lost by default in the second period.

The Scots' Roy Myers also defaulted to Dale Harrison in the 167 lb. division.

"Tiger" Tom Bugenhagen wrestling in the 177 lb. division lost to Wayne York.

In the last match of the evening Bob Clemens of Maryville lost to heavy weight Dale Wright by a decision of 8-4.

YMCA Plans Active Spring Semester Of Programs, Sports, Social Events

By Joe McNeal

The Maryville College Young Men's Christian Association has a busy and productive semester ahead of it according to the president of the group, Forrest Amidon. The Y hopes to promote many activities and projects which will reflect the ideals and goals of the Christian group—goals best expressed by the well-known equilateral triangle illustrating a balance of physical, mental, and social well-being.

The activities for the semester began on January 14 when the boys met for the inter-class basketball tournament. The juniors defeated the seniors, 34-19, only to lose the final game against the freshmen 32-23. The Frosh had beaten the sophomores in an earlier game, 24-14. The evening's activities were made even more enjoyable with an hour's swimming in the pool, opened for this special occasion.

More Sports

More of the same type of activity is now in the planning stage. An interclass swim meet is among the possible things to come. The Y will form a basketball team which will play against other area squads, and the association will climax the year in sports by awarding its trophy to the intramurals player judged to be the best in sportsmanship.

Programs Planned

Along with these sports activities the Y will carry on its program of religious work and education. Gustave Ferre, a well-known lecturer, will appear on January 22. A series of films based on Life magazine's "World Religions" articles will be shown during the semester. The devotional and discussion committee hopes to publish a devotional bulletin sometime during the year, and there will be discussion sessions with certain members of the faculty from time to time.

Social Life

Social activities are also on docket for the semester. Joint meetings with the YWCA are being planned and the year's activities will close with the annual Y retreat during which the YM and YW get together at some well-known recreational site for a day. During the retreat the planning committees of both groups will meet jointly for a preview of future plans.

All these activities, as well as the activities of all organizations on campus will be covered completely in The Highland Echo as they take place. Watch for them!

Echo Reporter Gives Information On Finding Jobs Or Studying Abroad

By CAROLYN CONES

Do you yearn to go abroad? Do you aspire to attain the outermost realms of higher education? Are you interested in gainful employment? Are you curious as to why education costs you what it does? If your answer to any of the above questions is "Yes!", "Maybe" or "Well—", then the following might contain some nourishing food for thought for you.

So you want to go abroad! It really doesn't have to be mere wishful thinking, you know, and one way to make it a reality is to win a scholarship or fellowship for foreign study. Where would you like to go—Europe, the Middle East, Asia, or Latin America? They're all included under the program.

Perhaps something from this list sounds tantalizing: Austria, Brazil, Ceylon, Colombia, Cuba, Denmark, Great Britain, France, Germany, Iran, Israel Italy, Mexico, the Netherlands, Sweden, and Switzerland. If your choice is Brazil, Ceylon, Colombia, or Mexico, then, sorry, but you'll have to wait until next year, for the competition deadline has already passed for these countries.

"Where Do I Start?"

In order to qualify, you must be a United States citizen, be in good health, have good character, etc., etc. Of course, it is rather important to be able to speak, write, and read the language of the country in which you wish to study. The program is designed mainly for graduate students (attention, seniors!) but an exceptional under-graduate might apply.

For further information, ask for the pamphlet, "Foreign Study Grants, 1956-57," from the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City, New York. Remember, even if you don't win, you can always study abroad using your own money — that is, if you have enough.

English majors et al., would you like to attend summer school at Oxford, the University of Birmingham at Stratford - on - Avon, the University of London, or the University of Edinburgh? Then examine with careful eye the courses offered this summer: Shakespeare and Elizabethan Drama (Birmingham); Literature and Art from the mid-eighteenth to the mid-nineteenth centuries (London); Literature, Politics, and the Arts in Seventeenth-Century England (Oxford); European Inheritance given by the Scottish Universities (Edinburgh).

Application is made to the same address as above. You can also compete for the limited number of scholarships available to American students participating in this summer program.

Hunting Jobs?

If you are more interested in employment, either full-time or for the summer, then don't overlook the possibility of the Government, which has numerous types of jobs included on the Federal pay roll—professional, personnel, administrative, technical.

Here, too, you have a wide choice of location: first of all, of course, Washington, D. C.; Maryland; California; Florida; Colorado; etc., or perhaps even a foreign country.

Many of the Government jobs require a prospective employee to make a satisfactory performance on a written examination, while for others a college degree is all that is necessary (for scientific personnel and the like).

Examinations are held periodically (Knoxville being the nearest testing center), but unfortunately the announcements, due to their number, do not always receive sufficient publicity. You can check the announcements posted in the Knoxville Post Office, but it would be better to talk with the Civil Service examiner, whose office is located in the same building.

Possibilities in summer employment with the Government include: clerical—there are a number of these available to those who can type at least 40 w. p. m. —and student assistant jobs designed for college students majoring in science.

Cost of Education

In closing, there are a few statistics concerning the cost of higher education that you can pore over, compliments of the Council for Financial Aid to Education, Inc. In tax-supported institutions of higher learning, the student pays 20 cents on every dollar used to educate him. At privately - supported institutions, the ratio is from 45 to 66 cents. The rest? From alumni, friends, etc.

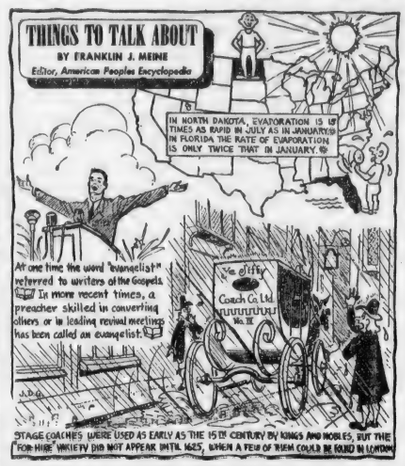
Bainonians Elect New Chapter Chairmen

Last Saturday Kathy Garrison, Bainonian's new president, presided over the first meeting of the semester. The main business of the meeting consisted of the election of new chapter chairmen. They are as follows: Beta, Iris Abbot; Chi, Opal Miller; Delta, Millie Volbeda, Gamma, Ruth Morris, Iota, Jane Mitchell; Kappa, Mary Kirkland, Omega, Lottie Jerkins; Mu, Sue Brown; Phi, Kathie Briggs; Tau, Barbara Gottschalk; Upsilon, no election; Zeta, Anna Allcroft.



The entertainment for the evening was a live television show arranged by program chairman, Lynn Mitchell. Libercee (Lynn Mitchell), George (Mary McEver), the McGuire sisters, (Louise Ogden, ,Shirley Mayfield, and Carol Lee Lacy), and Jeanette McDonald (Zona Gogel) appeared on the program. Tonight's entertainment will be a surprise.

On January 28 Bainonian will have a joint meeting with Kappa Phi. The Scotsmen will entertain.

19 New Students Come To Maryville

There are 19 new students on campus this semester—14 boys and five girls. Eight of these are from Maryville and four are transfer students.

The farthest from home is Willliam Martin, who is from Tehran, Iran. He is interested in medicine and is a member of the freshman class. Within our country Lena Fred, who is from Hotevile, Arizona, has come the farthest. Nursing is her interest, and she is a member of the freshman class.

From New England comes Judy Cummings, who is a sophomore transfer student. She is from Westport, Connecticut.

Carolyn Priest, a freshman, is a home economics major from Greenfield, Ohio.

From Bernardsville, New Jersey, comes Janice Johnston, a freshman interested in social work. Completing the quintet of girls is Mary Fay Bundy from Birmingham, Alabama. She is a freshman interested in English or drama.

The following freshmen are from Maryville: Larry Hodge, who is interested in business administration; Louis Pangle, who is majoring in physical education; Dale Patterson, who is majoring in physical education; Howard Teezill, who is interested in medical technology; and James Lee Russell.

A transfer student, Ralph Wood, is also from Maryville and is interested in drama and speech. To complete the group from Maryville is Donald Mull, who is also a transfer student. He is majoring in business administration.

From not-so-distant Alcoa comes Warren Echles, a freshman who is also interested in business administration. Joseph Emmens is a freshman from Knoxville interested in majoring in business administration.

Another Tennessean, Jackie Sharp, is a freshman from Louisville. Jackie is interested in advertising.

Christian Education is the interest of Gary Davis, a freshman from Penns Grove, New Jersey. Also from New Jersey is Robert Brown, who is a freshman from Manasquan.

Finally, from sunny Florida, comes freshman Don Jones. He is a business administration major from Bradenton.

Nine MC Alumni Receive Honors In Science Field

Nine alumni of Maryville College are listed in the new edition of "American Men of Science", a directory of outstanding scientists in the United States. The men listed have achieved significance in the field of biological sciences.

The scientists who were graduated from Maryville College include the following:

Dr. Leland Shanor, class of 1935, now teaching in the University of Illinois. Dr. Shanor is a former pathologist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture and was research associate for the Canal Zone laboratory.

Dr. Robert Godfrey, class of 1936, who is now teaching at Florida State University and is a former plant explorer for the Department of Agriculture in Turkey and the Union of South Africa.

Dr. Alma W. Barksdale, class of 1937, who has done extensive research on the taxonomy of fungi and antibiotics and is now with the New York Botanical Garden.

Dr. George C. Kent Jr., class of 1937, who is noted for his research in histology and cytology and endocrines and the physiology of reproduction in hamsters.

Dr. Charles B. Blair Jr., class of 1938, who has done extensive research on chromonsonal aberrations and the effects of interrupted nitotic divisions.

Dr. Roy Van Nest Talmage, class of 1938, who is teaching at Rice Institute in Texas.

Dr. Willard D. Klimstra, class of 1941, who has been influential in conservation education and wild life plantings.

Dr. Harvey E. Lahman, class of 1941, now teaching in the department of zoology at the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Robert Brown Short, class of 1941, now teaching at Florida State University.

Dr. Lloyd Travels To Northern States

Dr. Lloyd was absent from Maryville the early part of this week, traveling as far north as Canada.

Last Sunday he was in Detroit where he preached in two morning services at the Redford Avenue Presbyterian Church.

On Monday, Jan. 16, he was in Montreal where he conferred with the Chairman of the North American Area of the World Presbyterian Alliance concerning the annual meeting of the group in Pittsburgh February 20-23.

On Tuesday, Jan. 17, he spoke at the annual banquet of the Wisconsin State Council of Churches, held in the First Presbyterian Church, Neenah, Wisconsin.

Dr. Lloyd returned to Maryville on Thursday morning.

String Ensemble Announces Plans For Musicale

The college string ensemble, composed of John Graulich, Edward Simpson, Bevins Householder, Jeanne Ginaven, Paul Schroeder, Sylvia Smith, Jane Robison, and Miss Crews, is planning a spring concert in the form of an 'After Dinner Musicale" to be given at 7:00 P. M. on Tuesday, April 10. The program will include works by Bach, Grieg, Mozart, Strauss, and others. The string ensemble is also going to furnish the accompaniment for Bach's "Concert for Piano in D Minor" with senior piano major Myrna Ginaven as soloist. This will be presented the evening of Miss Ginaven's senior recital April 30th.

Positions Open

The string ensemble is open to all string players, and there are vacancies for two violins, one viola, and one cello at present. These will be additions to last semester's group. Anyone who is interested should contact the conductor, Miss Crews.

Lorna Eagle To Have Christian Ed. Program

The Christian Education Club will have its first meeting for second semester on Monday, January 23, at Anderson 303.

The program will be given by Lorna Eagle, who will speak on the Ecumenical Conference. A short business meeting will follow.

Beverly Tillman, president, states that all those who are interested will be welcome to come to the meeting.

"Man's greatest problem is being able to recognize ignorance and learning to live with it without being frustrated by it."

M.C. Graduate Is Promoted By Mutual of N.Y.

Leland T. Waggoner, CLU, Maryville College graduate, Class of 1938, has been promoted to regional vice-president by Mutual Of New York, it was announced today by Stanton G. Hale, vice-president for sales. Mr. Waggoner has been assistant manager of sales at the company's home office in New York City.

As an undergraduate, Mr. Waggoner was associate editor of the Maryville College paper and was active in debate and other activities. While attending the college, he was a reporter and feature writer for the Knoxville Journal, as well as correspondent for several out-of-town newspapers.

A veteran of more than twenty years service with MONY, Mr. Waggoner joined the company's Nashville agency as a field representative in 1934. He established himself as one of the company's leading field representatives, and was deisgnated a Chartered Life Underwriter in 1941 by the American College of Life Underwriters. A year later, he was advanced to a post at the home office as a member of the field training staff. During World War II he served four years with the U. S. Navy, advancing to the rank of lieutenant commander. He was in charge of the Navy's insurance program in the entire Pacific area.

After his return to MONY in 1946, Mr. Waggoner was appointed agency manager in Boston, Mass. From an agency comprising one full-time field representative, Mr. Waggoner developed the Boston unit into one of MONY's largest sales forces and most consistent leaders. In March, 1954 Mr. Waggoner was promoted to assistant manager of sales, which post he has held until now.

He has been associate editor of the Chartered Life Underwriter Jouinal; co-editor with Harry Krueger of the book, "The Life Insurance Policy Contract," published by Little, Brown & Co., and author of "A Road Map for the Medical Examiner" and "The Map for the New Agent," both published by the Insurance Research & Review Service.

Mr. Waggoner is married to the former Florence Gee of Carrollton, Ga.

March Of Dimes Campaign Now On

Welch Urges Giving

"Tennessee needs to boost its March of Dimes giving by 10 cents for every resident of the State, in order to bring its donation up to the national average, and we're counting on Teens-Against-Polio drives to help", says Jim Welch of Kingsport, State March of Dimes Chairman. "Last year our State ranked 42nd of the 48. Our average per capita gift was only 26 cents, compared with the national average of 35 cents. That's why we have as our Tennessee slogan this year, 'Now is the time to give an extra dime'."

"Polio isn't licked yet", Welch states, "and it won't be until vaccines and treatment techniques are perfected, until we have enough specially trained medical personnel, and until every present and future polio victim is recovered as fully as possible to normal living. We've got a big job yet to do, and high school and college Teens-Against-Polio drives can help in a big way."

BARRY'S BACK AGAIN!

MC Debaters Win Top Honors In Tournament

Hanna-Brooks Team Captures First Place

Maryville College won sweepstakes in the Smoky Mountains Forensic Tournament, Saturday, January 28, at Carson-Newman College. Mars Hill, N. C., took second place and Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, Cookeville, placed third.

Two other schools participated, Lincoln Memorial University and David Lipscomb College from Nashville. Carson-Newman, as the host school, did not vie for this honor.

The question under debate was Resolved: That the non-agricultural industries of the United States should guarantee to their employees an annual wage. Every team debated both sides of the question.

Maryville College Debators returned with three trophies: one for sweepstakes, one for Debate and one for Extemporaneous Speaking.

The team of Margallen Hanna and JoAnn Brooks took first place in the Women's Division of Debate. Five teams attended the tournament from Maryville. Three of these teams qualified in the semi-finals of Debate.

Maryville winners of individual events include: Margallen Hanna, second, Women's Oratory; JoAnn Brooks, first, Women's Extemporaneous Speaking and also second place in After-Dinner Speaking; Eleonore Koster, second, Oral Interpretation.

Both first and second places in Senior Men's Debate were won by Carson-Newman teams with C-N's Guy Patterson winning the Men's Extemporaneous Speaking Contest and Joy Neville winning the Women's Oratorical Contest. Phyllis Doane and Ellen Marie Schneider of the C-N women's debating team won second place in their division.

James Grubb of LMU won the Interpretative Reading Contest; Canelle McClure of TPI, the After Dinner Speaking Contest; and Robert Hamlin of David Lipscomb won the top award in Men's Oratory.

Mars Hill College won the Junior Men's Debate with David Lipscomb taking a second in this category.

Twenty-one debate teams were represented in the tournament.

Sandy Macneill Enjoys Writing To Youth In Other Countries

By Bob Evans

Sandy Macneill, freshman music major, is a member of an interesting and unusual organization known as YOUTH OF ALL NATIONS, INC.

This organization has transformed the personal letters of young people all over the globe into energetic ambassadors of peace through, what this organization calls, a correspondence course in humanity.

Sandy corresponds with a nineteen year old boy from Jamaica, West Indies, and a college student from Israel. She too is nineteen. Sandy finds this correspondence interesting, enlightening and educational.

The purposes of Youth of All Nations, or YOAN as the organization calls iteself, are as follows: first, to help world youth understand nations and cultures other than their own, by the only direct means most people have—the international mails; secondly, to enable members of YOAN to share in the YOAN publication, Mirror for Youth, what they learn from each other and what their world headquarters learns from them; and thirdly, to improve human relations and help achieve enduring peace in a friendlier world.

Organized soon after World War II as the result of the efforts of a ten-year old refugee, Ruth Sandman, and her writer-friend, Miss Clara Leiser, YOAN began in a humble way The first step of the program made it possible for Americans to write letters of welcome to new arrivals, who, like Ruth, might be bewildered or vengeful.

Soon it became clear that a big, original, exciting job in international, intercultural relations could be done by mail. A correspondence course in humanity began to take shape. The letter-writers decided to call their project "Youth of All Nations." Their slogan became "Through youth understanding to lasting peace."

The organization has won acclaim from coast to coast with thousands of members among young people in the United States alone. This group was commended from the floor of the House of Representatives by Representative Frances P. Bolton of Ohio. Mrs. Bolton had the following to say about YOAN:

". . . every once in a while one runs into a courageous, forward-looking activity on the part of some individual aimed to alleviate the distress and confusion resulting from war. This is especially heartening when it has to do with youth, who, afterall, are the world's future for peace."

(The writer is indebted to a pamphlet entitled "The Story of Youth of All Nations, Inc." and the Congressional Record of June 7, 1949, for information for this article.)

Know Your Clubs

Camera Club

By Mary Ann Morris

The Camera Club of Maryville College was organized by Jim Smith at the beginning of last semester. Sponsored by Mr. Kinsinger, the club was organized to give students who are interested in photography an activity on campus, and a chance to learn more about this subject.

At present, the club has approximately twenty members. Their meeting place is the band room in the Fine Arts Center, and they meet for two hours on the first and third Monday nights of each month. At their meetings, the club members learn how to improve lighting, composition, subjects, and how to develop and take pictures. They have a well-equipped dark room.

The club's activities include lectures, movies, and slide shows. On January 23, they hiked into the college woods to take pictures of the snow. The club will welcome new members, and as few of the present members have expensive equipment, anyone wishing to join should not let this lack stop him.

Experimental Play To Be Melodrama

Next Friday at 8 o'clock in the Theatre Experimentals will present: "He Ain't Done Right by Nell, an old fashioned melodrama by Wilbur Braun. The cast as announced by Miss Craven last week is as follows: Nell-Sue Short, sophomore art major from Gibsonia, Pennsylvania; Jack Logan-Bruce Ingles, junior English major from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Granny Perkins-Ann Wiley, sophomore English major from Heiskell, Tennessee; Lolly Wilkins-Sue Burton, junior Christian Education major from Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Hilton Hays-Bill Potter, sophomore biology major from Centre Hall, Pennsylvania; Vera Carleton-Jane Murphy, freshman Business Administration major from Clinton, Tennessee; Burkett Carleton-Glenn Sherrod, sophomore history major from Knoxville, Tennessee.

Christian Ed. News

The Christian Education Club will have its next meeting on February 27. Barbara Coates will conduct devotions.

February Meetings Are Now In Progress

Bayeux Tapestry Is Exhibited

By Betty Ann Springstead

For those of you who didn't have a chance to see Maryville's reproduction of the Bayeux Tapestry when it was on exibit in Dr. Hunter's room, you will have the opportunity to see it on display in the library starting Monday.

What is the Bayeux Tapestry? It is a series of panels depicting the life of Harold, King of England, and the conquest of England in 1066, by the Normans. In the original, kept in a museum at Bayeux, France, the panels are embroidered with wool on linen. Our copy, which is on paper, is about one-third the size of the original with one full-sized panel included in which you are able to see the long stitches used.

This tapestry has historical as well as artistic value. One panel depicts men amazed at the appearance of a comet, which resembles a badminton birdee. As Haley's Comet appeared in 1803, it is reasonable to date the tapestry around that time. The history involved is accurate and would be especially interesting to those studing English history.

Our reproduction of the tapestry shows the use made of colors. There is much use of green, yellow, black and dull red, and many times the legs of horses or dogs will be different colors, perhaps to show perspective. There are hundreds of two-dimensional figures shown, people, dogs and horses being the most common. Also if interest is the scene in which Harold is being crowned, with the royal symbols still used today, the sceptor, crown and orb.

Operetta Cast Is Announced

The Men's Glee Club and the Girls' Glee Club will present "Finian's Rainbow" in the Theater on April 6 and 7, under the direction of Mr. Kinsinger, Instructor in Music.

The leads and other parts are as follows:

Finian, Dol Thiel; Sharon, his daughter, Nancy McGeorge; Og, the Leprocon, Ruth Wilson; Woody Mahoney, Bob Moses: Susan Mahoney, his sister, Gail Shiffer; Senator Rawkins, Stan Timblin; Buzz Collins, the senator's right-hand man, Don Hughes; Sheriff, Dick Dowes; Share-croppers, Morgan Biggs, Harry Crane, Liz Bixler, Sue Trotter; Passion Pilgrim Gospellers, Jim Calquhoun; Tobacco ridge, Charles Stanbery; Tobacco Girls, Linda Hayes, Joyce Hierhager, Marcia Williams; Children, Virginia Marshall, Marjorie Hunter, Jane Mitchell, Joan Gray, Cynthia Golding, and others.

Three Leaders Are Here For Eightieth Series

By Bill Deerfield

Dr. Sweazey Feels Importance Of Meetings

In an interview held the other day, Dr. George E. Sweazey, the leader of this year's February Meetings said that he considered the Meetings the most important period in the year because it offered such opportunity for Christian service and growth. He expressed the hope that the students feel the same way. To stress his belief in the importance of the Meetings he related how he had met an elderly gentleman in town during the week who told him that the Meetings had been the turning point in his life when he accepted Christ as his Saviour during the 1909 series.

Dr. Sweazey, who handled a great deal of information concerning religious emphasis meetings while serving as director of the Evangelistic Committee of the Board of National Missions, feels that the planning and the system that go into the February Meetings make the series the best of their kind in the country.

His opinion regarding Maryville students is a favorable one. He feels that the students "seem to like each other and like the school," whereas the atmosphere on many campuses is rather impersonal. And, as he said when he was formally introduced in chapel this week, he is always pleased to meet students who have attneded Maryville.

Early Contact With M. C.

Dr. Sweazy was born in Salt Lake City, Utah where his father held the position of dean at Westminster College. Dr. Lloyd and his brother were also on the college faculty at the time and were good friends of the family. Another of the Maryville faculty to know the family was Miss Davies whose father was the pastor of a Salt Lake City church. At the present time Dr. Sweazey is most closely related to Maryville through Dr. Lincoln Barker, who is his brother-in-law.

Eventually his father left Salt Lake City to join the staff of Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. Here Dr. Sweazey received his B. A. degree and then went to Princeton Seminary where he received both his M. A. and B. Th. degrees. He completed his studies at the University of Berlin.

After taking his Ph. D., he returned to America and began his first pastorate as "the assistant to the assistant" at the Old First Church in Newark, N. J. After this assistantship he served as the pastor of a church in Danville, Ky., for a period of seven years. During this time he met his wife who was a freshman at Centre College in Danville. They were married two weeks after her graduation.

From Danville the Sweazies went to serve at the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church in South St. Louis, Mo., where they remained until Dr. Sweazey was appointed director of the Board of National Missions, Department of Evangelism.

In 1953 he accepted the pastorate of the Huguenot Memorial Presbyterian Church in Pelham, N. Y.

The Sweazies have three children: Anne Fulton, 17; George Edgar, 15; and Mary Hendy, 14.

French Club Elects Three News Members

Three new members were voted into Le Cercle Francais at the first meeting of this semester. Those admitted are: Janet Bell, senior; Joanne Causey, junior; and Katrina Wells, sophomore.

At this meeting Ginger Colwell, who has recently returned from several months in France, spoke to the members about some of her experiences abroad.

The next meeting of Le Cercle Francais will be held February 9.

Dr. Magill Is Proud Of Maryville

Dr. John Magill, has returned as song leader of the Meetings for the fourth time. He is a Maryville graduate and is pastor of one of our large congregations, that of the Abingdon Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia.

While he was a student at Maryville Dr. Magill was choir director of the New Providence Presbyterian Church and was also an member of the Vesper Choir.

After his graduation in 1939, he entered McCormick Theological Semenary in Chicago. After receiving his D. D. there, he served in a Chicago pastorate for a period of four years and then went to the First Presbyterian Church of Monmouth, Ill.

Maryville Rates High

Dr. Magill says that wherever one goes people incvitably ask three questions; "Where are you from? What's your business? What's your college? As far as the last question is concerned Dr. Magill says that he can hold his own with any university graduate. He believes that a school like Maryville offers excellent preparation for the Christian ministry and its graduates are readily accepted by the best seminaries. Like Dr. Sweazy he feels that there is a feeling of warmth and comradship among Maryville students that is often lacking in other schools. He is deeply impressed by what he describes as "the sane clear, conscientious thinking" of Maryville students as reflected in the evening discussion groups that are being held. He is also impressed by the fact that at Maryville religious guidance and emphasis is not left to outside groups like the Westminster Foundation, but permeates the entire program of the school. Dr. Magill also lauds the "tremendous" strides made by the music department since his student days at Maryville. He attributes this advance chiefly to the hard work of Miss Davies and those who have assisted her through the years.

Dr. Barraclough Likes It Too

Dr. Henry Barraclough has returned to the Meetings as pianist for the fifth year.

He was born in England and as a young man served as a secretary to a member of Parliament. While he was acting in the capacity of secretary he was playing the piano at a series of weekly religious meetings, and it was here that he became acquainted with Charles Alexander the famous evangelistic singer, who hired him as the pianist for his team.

The team came to this country in 1914, and Dr. Barraclough became a citizen. He served in World War I and rose to the rank of Sergeant Major. He saw action in France and returned to the United States at the close of the war.

He took a job in an insurance office and remained there five years. He also served as choir master of the Tiago Presbyterian Church for 16 years. He has been married to Mrs. Barraclough since 1921.

In addition to his activities in the field of music, Dr. Barraclough is a director of Bloomfield College and Seminary and of Beaver College. He is also the Assistant Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Likes Singing

When asked his opinion of the February Meetings "Barry" replied, "What enthuses me is the singing that seven or eight hundred young people can make when they want to." He concluded: "We enjoy coming to Maryville and hope we'll be able to continue as long as we have the strength."

On The Christian College

"What makes a college Christian?" This was a question discussed recently by Dr. Walter L. Lingle of Davidson, N. C., in an editorial appearing in the "Christian Observer," a Presbyterian, U.S., Church paper. Dr. Lingle, for many years associated with Davidson College as its president, feels that four factors are necessary in the make-up of a Christian College—Christian faculty; courses in the curriculum of Christian nature, such as Bible, Christian Ethics and Religious Education; selected student body; and required Christian services.

Maryville seems to stand up to all these requirements of a Christian college—in practice as well as in policy. A description of our daily chapel service might be gleaned from this paragraph of Dr. Lingle's:

"The Christian college can. . . have its daily chapel service of worship attended by all the students. Although this service may not last more than ten minutes, during that time a portion of the Scripture is read, a few seed thoughts are dropped, a hymn is sung and a prayer is offered. Services of this kind thoughtfully and reverently conducted from day to day are bound to leave a permanent spiritual impression on many if not all the students during the four years they remain in college. Incidentally I may say that these chapel services from day to day also make for the unity and solidarity of the student body."

We might elaborate on this theme of college-sponsored Christian services. The February Meetings are recognized to be one of the high spots in the religious life of this campus. The daily meeting of the student body in chapel is expanded into a series of meetings lasting ten days. Outstanding leaders take time out from busy schedules at home to devote their time to this special program.

Many other colleges, whether church-related or not, have similar programs. Warren Wilson Junior College in North Carolina has had one this past week, as has Tennessee Polytechnic Institute in Cookeville. Such services on campuses throughout the nation are designed to place a renewed emphasis on spiritual matters. It is very fitting that Maryville reassert its Christian principles in its February Meetings. They are one of the important factors in making Maryville a Christian College. —B.W.

The Ford Foundation Grant

The Ford Foundation Grant of $260 million to 615 privately supported, accredited, four year, liberal arts colleges and universities, announced on December 12, will be a substantial addition to the resources of these colleges and is a very great encouragement.

The amount to be received by each institution has not been finally determined, but tentative amounts were announced, based proportionately on, but in most cases less than, the salary budgets of the various colleges. That announced for Maryville is $148,000. One-half of the grant is to be paid by July 1, 1956, and the other half by July 1, 1957. This must be added to the endowment and the income (probably between 4% and 5% annually) is to be used for increases in teachers' salaries.

It is a noble gift to Maryville College and a magnificent total gift to independent and church-related colleges. Although the amount of individual salary increase which the income can provide will not be large, the whole program calls attention to private colleges and to a vital need in higher education. It should set a pattern for other foundations and corporations and encourage their investment in these historic American colleges which are not and should not be supported by taxes.

We are grateful and hopeful.

—Ralph W. Lloyd.

THIMK!

Scots & Soda

By Carolyn Cones

Everyone at some time experiences the urge to commit to paper the events of his varied and fruitful life in daily accounts arranged in chronological order—to keep a diary!

The reason for such an undertaking is not always self-apparent. Perhaps it is merely the historian in an individual that acts as the motivating force. Perhaps it is for the sheer joy of self-expression. It may be to provide memories of a particular pleasant period o flife. On the other hand, it may be written as a source for the autobiography of the individual when he becomes famous! indeed, famus people are rathed expected to provide a reliable account of their distinguished lives, so it is best to begin early in the gathering of material.

With these thoughts in mind, let us see then what a diary might look like when kept by a serious! indeed, famous people are rather expected to this institute of higher learning. Since we will be, in some cases, looking into the future, the following excerpts, picked at random, will not always be given a definite date.

January, Second Week

Dear Diary,

Another semester has started, and I'm full of enthusiasm! I'm going to really study this semester—no more wasting time 'cause I'm going to use every minute! Honest, Diary, I mean it this time. I'm reforming, really, and I'm going to be real serious-minded.

Incidentally, today while waiting in one of those frightfully long lines, I met the cutest—— Oh dear, there I go off the subject again. Well, maybe just this once. I hate to stop right here, Dairy, but I simply have to study. You're going to be real proud of me, I'm sure!

January, Third Week

Dear Diary,

My classes are all so hard that I truly don't know what to do. You know, I studied two whole hours last night and got almost nothing done! I don't feel so well today, and I'm sure it's because I've been studying too hard. I simply must get out more. You wouldn't want me to be sickly, now would you, Diary? Besides, I've decided to follow a new study technique that ought to cut down on study time and still make it possible for me to make respectable grades. Now where is that magazine?

January Fourth Week

Dear Diary,

We had the most beautiful snow, so of course I couldn't study with all that glorious out-of-doors just waiting for me! I will, of course, study late tonight to make up for it.

I must remember to pay my class dues—I do hate so much to owe money.

My, but the room is nice and cozy, really perfect for leeping, but I have so much to do and—

February 14

Dear Diary,

I have a secret admirer! Today I received the cutest valentine, and it has such a sweet verse:

Most valentines are just merely phenomenal,
But you, my valentine are simply abominable!

Now, I ask you, isn't that the nicest thought you've ever seen? Incidentally, I must remember to look up the meaning of the word, "abominable."

I mustn't forget to pay my class dues.

I have a big English test tomorrow, so I guess that I had better get started on it. I think I'll make some popcorn, since I study better while I'm eating.

February Third Week

Dear Diary,

I just got hold of the February copy of "Coronet", and guess what's the name of one of the articles?——"I Lost 401 Pounds." Honest, that's really the title. Maybe there's hope for me after all!

I really must remember to pay my class dues.

Oh, yes! I just got a box from Mother—three kinds of fudge, a cake, and lots and lots of cookies. Who wants to count calories at a time like this?

I've come to the conclusion that if I could stay awake in classes, I'd get more out of them. Maybe I should get to bed earlier.

March, Second Week

Dear Diary,

My, how the time flies! That book report for English is due tomorrow, and I haven't as much as opened the book. If I say up all night and cut all my classes tomorrow, I think I can get it done. Goodness knows, I need the grade. Of course, it's my own fault, but it's been so nice out lately, and I am really such a nature-lover at heart.

Dear me! I've forgotten to pay my class dues. I must tend to this right away.

March, Third Week

Dear Diary,

All my teachers are giving tests at once. What ever will I do? You know how opposed I am to cramming, but I don't really have much choice. Maybe if I had prepared my daily assignments—but, honestly, you know how busy I've been with outside activities and everything. I can't study all the time.

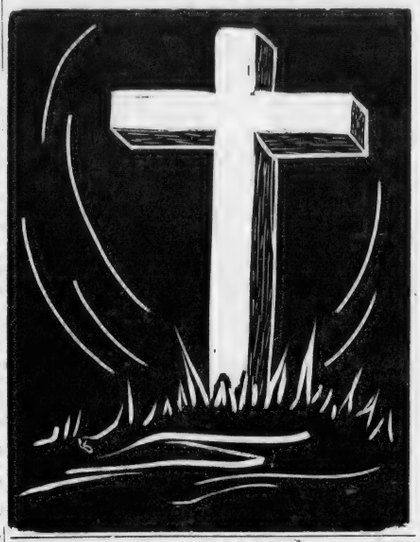
Must remember to save out the money to pay my class dues.

April, Second Week

Dear Diary,

Oh, Diary, it's so nice out! I feel so wonderful—it must be spring fever, I'm sure. I could be outside all day long! Who in the world wants to see me worrying over some silly old book with weather like this. It's terrific, no fooling!

I was so embarrassed when someone was around asking for my class dues. As if they thought I wasn't going to pay! You know me better than that, Diary.



May 15

Dear Diary,

Just four exams are standing between me and home! I'm far too excited to study, but that doesn't matter since I'm sure I know enough to get by. On the other hand, it might not hurt to stay up the night before each exam and study. I can catch up on my sleep when I get home. Just think, Diary, I'm going home! ! !

I just had a thought. Maybe they won't send my grades until I pay my class dues.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Sue Tourtellotte

Did he or did he not see his shadow? According to one of our oldest and quaintest traditions, the chubby little fellow known as the ground hog comes out of his burrow on February 2 of each year and delivers a most momentous prediction. The legend runs that if he should chance to glimpse his shadow while peering around, he will be so startled, he will return to his hole and winter will continue for another six weeks.

Judging from some of our typical Maryville weather, I would say that he definitely did not see his shadow. However, he was probably so very much impressed by our campus that while he was out, he decided to stay. After all, how would you feel living in a hole for several months?

His Taste of MC Culture

The first place he visited was the dormitory. However, he didn't stay very long because he was frightened by the echoes of "See Ya Later Alligator" and "A Womp-bomp, a Lou-bomp, and lam bam Boom." This obviously was no place for a frightened little fellow like himself. Maybe the library would be more his "Speedo."

In browsing about the library he came upon some new books which interested him. One was a French play, "La Cuisine des Anges," by A. Husson. It reminded him of the movie he saw before he had gone into hiberation —"We're No Angels."

The ground hog didn't see any shadow at Maryville; however, he did see perspective at the latest art exhibit in the Fine Arts Center which features a group of oil painitngs by Tip Ayres and Ruth Fulton, two Knoxville artists.

With much regret the ground hog bid adieu to our fair campus. He was pleased with what he had seen, but sorry that he couldn't be here for the experimentals production and "Beyond the Horizon."

Preview Of New Spring Fashions

By Jeanne Ginaven

Dazzling white worn with brilliant color; white linen jackets for day or night; a huge white leather bag worn with red, beige, or blue costumes; paper-white hats; and the return of white spectator shoes—these will all appear in your spring fashion picture. There is quite a range of color: melon, pink, amber, and orange. Red is brilliant red, blue surprisingly combined with green. Prints look hand-painted or hand-blocked, on wool as well as cotton and silk.

Everybody's favorite, the sheath dress, is accompanied by a slim little jacket or a long straight duster. Boleros, shawls, jackets, coats accompany lots of things this year.

Another favorite, the shirt-dress comes this year in shantung, Paisley, or knitted cottons. Cashmeres give the short-dress an elegant touch. As for bathing suits, they hug the figure in new elasticized fabrics, and the beach skirt returns again. The silk shirt you treasure can be worn with your shorts for a very special afternoon (in the summer, that is)

A beautiful scheme for spring is to wear a chalk-white sheath with periwinkle blue shoes, a pale pink scarf, and a big white picture hat. Sounds good? Go out and try it soon. Spring comes early around these here parts!

Sports Spotlights

Fans Show Enthusiasm

Certainly the student body has shown added enthusiasm and spirit in supporting both the basketball and wrestling teams this semester. This added enthusiasm is easily witnessed in both the pep and spirit of fans and the larger number of them who attend the games. It was also surprising how many fans were present at the Alpha Sig Hammers—All Stars game. Although it was but an intramural contest, there still were many fans out there cheering for their favorites. So as Robert Bruce has said, "Fans, stand up and take a bow."

Highlanders Change Attack

After basically sticking to a man-to-man defense in most games last semester, the Highlanders have changed their mode of attack this semester to a "floating" zone defense. However, occasionally they still revert to the man-to-man defense.

On offense the Scots switched to a slowed-down type of play that certainly disturbs their opponents. By "a slowed-down type of offense" I do not mean "freezing" the ball. (Freezing the ball is ordinarily referring to the leading team's domination of the ball during the closing minutes of the game so the other team has little or no chance to score.) What the Scots do, t hey do occasionally throughout the entire game. Also the Scots are looking much better at ball handling on offense, as well as working it in to set up plays rather than taking long set shots.

I think, in all, the Scots are much improved over last semester. When I saw the Hiwassee game, although we lost, I was not disappointed, because of the team's improvement in fundamentals. However, the team has to start hitting better. Undoubtedly, almost every team we have played, whether we have won or lost, has had a better shot percentage than we have. When the Scots win, it is because through ball-stealing they get more shots than the other team.

Extraneous Influences

As I said in the last section, I feel that the Scots have improved in ability considerably since last semester. Consequently, when they win a game, I like to see them do it on skill alone without the aid of environmental influences. I am referring, of course, to the refereeing which has been as of late, to put it mildly, just plain "rotten." I have always felt that the referees tended to favor the Highlanders slightly at all of our home basketball games. However, in the Emory-Henry game I personally felt that they went just a tad too far.

To state facts for a change rather than just my own opinion (and that of many others I know), it is interesting to note that in the game mentioned above Emory and Henry had 49 fouls, three of which were technical fouls, and Maryville had only 22. A rather amazing difference, isn't it?

Wrestlers Suffer Another Injury

The Scottie Matmen have once again been plagued by an injury. In their match against Auburn University last Saturday night, Jim Cummings received a pulled tendon which, unfortunately, might put him out of action for the rest of the season. Let's wish him a speedy recovery and a chance to wrestle in the S. E. C. Tournament at Sewanee on February 26.

AS I SEE IT....

By Jim Cummings

As most of you know, the wrestling team has not won a match, so far... The closest we have come is to tie the University of Chattanooga... We have had three losses, one to Auburn and two to Knoxville YMCA. ..Some people think that losing to the Y is..a disgrace. Two years ago that would be true, but for the past two years the Y has had a powerful team, and this year we.. have just lost by 19-13 and 18-16... The loss to Auburn was much worse (20-7), but the individual matches were far closer than the team score, i.e. 6-5, 8-6. A break sometime during these matches could have given us the victory.

We have a pretty inexperienced team. The first four weights are returning lettermen as is our 177 pound class. The other three weights are filled by rookies, two freshmen and a sophomore. Jerry Waters, our captain and wrestling in the 123 division, has won enough matches and points to letter. Buford Miller, last year's captain and the 130 pound grappler, has also lettered. Both Jerry and Buford are living up to their SIW championship titles by staying undefeated. The only other letterman, so far this year, is Don Nabors who has been doing a great job in the 147 class. The rest have not been able to compile enough wins to have earned their letters yet. Max Williamson (157), Don Hill (167), Sonny Axley 'Heavyweight) still lack experience, but are rapidly gaining it and we hope that they will be able to place in the tournament. John Anderson (177) is a previous letterman and has had some pretty stiff competition. Against the Y he had to wrestle a former AAU champion and against Auburn he had a SIW champion.

We have been hurt by losing some of our best wrestlers. The loss of Tom Bugenhagen in the 167 division, Jack Renfro (157) and of Don Moore and Bob Clemens in the heavyweight class has cut down the experience of our team. With these boys we could easily be the undisputed top team in the leauge, as it is the loss to Auburn makes some people dispute that. We have gotten some boys this semester that are going to be good when they learn more about it. The new ones from last semester (those that are still out, I should say) are showing great promise.

I will not commit myself and say definitely that we will win the tournament, but I think that we have a tremendous chance to accomplish this. We have two champions and have one-runner-up which is beter than any of the other teams. If we can retain these champions and get the runners-up into the championship slot we will have a jump on every team.

Tonight we are having our last home match. This is against the team we tied two weeks ago, Chattanooga. It is also the debut of Bruce Lundberg in the 137 pound class. I'll not predict how the team will do, but I will say that it will be close and well worth your while to watch. Your support is greatly appreciated. It seems to be a psychological fact that if the crowd is yelling for you it is a lot easier to wrestle. So come on out and yell (for the basketball team, too.) After this match we have two more, one with Emory University and the other with Sewanee. After that the tournament at Sewanee will end the season.

Highlander Hoopsters Win One, Lose Two

Scots Defeat Emory And Henry After Losing Two

Over a two weeks period the Scottie Basketball Squad has dropped two games, one each to Hiwassee and Tusculum. They were victorious in another against Emory and Henry.

Tigers Trim Scots

Playing at Hiwassee on January 21, the Scots lost a close one 60-66, to the Tigers, whom they had beaten earlier in the season. The Scotsc had good rebounding, whereas the Tigers out-jumped the Scots.

Scots Lead at Half

The Scots led by a slim margin of 25-22 at half-time but lost their lead shortly after the start of the second half. The game was very close in he closing minutes but the Tigers went on to win the game because they had a much better shot percentage than the Scots, sinking almost every shot.

Wallace Leads Scots

The high point makers for the Scots were: Bill Wallace with 21, and Jack French with eleven. Lewis, Buckner, and Poe led the Tigers with 23, 16, and 14 points respectively.

T. C. Trounces M. C.

The Highlanders journeyed to Tusculum on January 25, to be downed by the Pioneers 83 to 63.

The Pioneers led at halftime 38-31 but in the second half they proceeded to widen a gap the Scotties could never bridge.

Wallace Has 29

High-scoring Bill "Punchy" Wallace was the high hoopster of the game with 29 big points. Jim "Kangaroo" Gregory added ten tallies to the cause.

Horne Paces Victors

Ralph Horne, the Tusculum center, led the attack for the Pioneers with 28 points. Stallard and Bell, the guards, had 16 and 12 points respectively.

Scots Edge Wasps

Returning to their home court last Friday night the Scotties entertained the Emory-Henry Wasps and emerged on the long end of a 78-73 score.

It was a very tight game for the entire first half with the lead changing hands many times. The Scots exhibited good ball-handling and close defensive play as well as plenty of fancy ball-stealing. The Wasps, on the other hand, worked the ball in very nicely and had a good shot percentage.

M. C. Leads At Half

The Scotties held a slim two-point edge (37-35) at halftime but quickly piled up points as the second half progressed. At one point the Highlanders led by sixteen tallies and then the pendulum swung the other way and the Wasps closed the gap to one point. Hcwever, they never could gain the lead again and the Scots went on to win it.

French is Top Tallier

Jack French led the Scotties in the scoring department with 24 points in one of his best performances of the season. Reliable Bill "Punchy" Walace aided his teammate with 21 points and Jim Gregory did likewise with 16 tallies.

Emory's guards, Buddy Cumminsgs and Jim Conk, led the way for the Wasps with 23 and 21 points respectively.

A really popular book would be one on "How to Get Out of Doing It Yourself."

TONIGHT'S EVENTS

Tonight at 7:15 P.M. in the Alumni Gym, the Highlander Hoopsters will encounter those tall, lanky boys from Lincoln Memorial University. Immediatley following the basketball game, the Scottie Matmen will take on the Chattanooga Moccasins in their fifth and last home meet of the season.

Intramurals....

By Jim Conklin

With the Intramural basketball league drawing to a close, the team standings are as follows with about one week of play left till the consolation tournament.

"A" League

	W	L	Pct.
Sledgehammers	12	1	.923
"Y" Flyers	9	4	.615
Piledrivers	7	6	.538
Wheels	6	7	.461
Dukes	4	9	.308
Diaper Daddies	1	12	.976

"B" League

	W	L	Pct.
Hurricanes	9	2	.818
Warriors	9	3	.750
Yokels	8	3	.727
Rockets	6	5	.545
Tackhammers	3	8	.272
Cyclones	2	9	.181
Kappa B's	2	9	.181

The excitement now is in the "B" League with a possibility of any one of the top three teams capable of ending up in first place. The Hurricanes, Warriors, and Yokels are in a tight race and the championship may not be decided till the last game of the season.

In Wednesday's action the "Y" Flyers flew by the Wheels in a high-scoring game to the tune of 72-70. Tom Morris led the attack by racking up 38 points. The first place Sledgehammers continued to roll on by downing the Daddies 48-20, and the much improved Piledrivers out-hopped the Dukes 48-36. The Piledrivers scored the most points of the season in any one game by defeating the Wheels 76-47 in one of last week's games.

Friday and Saturday there is action in both leagues, with the "B" League playing three games in the Intramural Gym on Friday and the "A" League rolling into action at 1:30 on Saturday in the Alumni Gym, also with a slate of three games.

Sig Al! Stars Eke Out 72-71 Win

By Jim Conklin

Last Saturday night the Alpha Sig All Stars, a team composed of ten members of Sig who play in the Intramural league, won a very good basketball game from the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers 72 to 71 in the Alumni Gym.

The Sledgehammers got off to an early lead only to see the All Stars cut it to within two points at the middle of the first half. Again the Sledgehammers put on a spurt and were leading at halftime 35-30. The second half was an exciting see-saw battle with one team or the other getting a short lived one or two point lead only to see the other team dunk a field goal and go ahead.

With about twenty seconds left the All Stars went into a 72-69 lead. The Sledgehammers got the ball and worked it in for another two points closing the gap to 72 to 71, but before either team could score again the game ended with the All Stars coming out victorious.

It was one of the best games seen in the Alumni Gym for some time. The All Stars were paced by the 20 points of Charlie Partee with Ted Engle adding 18 and Tom Morris 15. For the Sledgehammers Ed Hammond and Bill Dent set the pace with 19 and 18 points respectively. It was a good, exciting, fast moving game and the kind we could stand to see more of here on campus.

Knoxville YMCA, Auburn Defeat Scot Matmen

The Scottie Grapplers lost two in a row over a two week period, dropping a close one to the Knoxville YMCA squad 18-16 two weeks ago today and suffering a disheartening loss at the hands of Auburn University last Saturday.

"Y" Ekes Out Win

On January 14, Knoxville "Y's" strong wrestling team made it two straight for the season over Coach J. D. Davis's matmen. The Scots won the first four matches of the meet, but Knox "Y" came back to take the next 4 matches. However, the "Y" team had one more pin to their credit than did the Scots.

Jerry Waters, the Highlanders 123 lb. contender, pinned Dick Thompson in two minutes of the first period.

Teamate Beuford "Booty" Miller followed suit to pin his opponent, Bill Wolfenburger in the second period.

Maryville's 137 pounder, Jim Cummings, decisioned Jim West, 12-10.

The "Y" team captain, Tom Roddy, was defeated by Don Nabors 7-4 in the 147 lb. class. This was Don's third straight win of the season.

The tide turned as Don Jones of Knox "Y" decisioned Max Williamson 3-0.

In the 167 lb. division the Scots' Dale Patterson was pinned by Bill Costed in the third period.

The "Y's" Wayne York pinned John Anderson in the third period of the 177 lb. match.

Dale Wright did likewise to the Scotties' heavyweight, Tom Axley, in the second period.

Auburn Smashes Scots

Last Saturday night Auburn won a decisive 20-7 victory over the Scot matmen in the Scotties' second home meet of the season. Auburn won six of the eight matches and tied one, but the Highlanders had the pleasure of getting the only pin of the evening.

In the first match of the evening Jerry Waters of Maryville and Walter Keller of Auburn wrestled to a 7-7 draw in the 123 lb. classification.

"Booty" Miller pinned Auburn's 130 lb. contender, Jack Allison, in 2:41 of the second period.

In a close one Frank Keller of Auburn, decisioned Jim Cummings 6-5.

In the 147 lb. class Don Nabors lost on a decision 7-2 to Auburn's Vic Maldarado.

Jerry Embry also won by decision, 5-0 over Max Williamson. Maryville's 157 lb. aspirant.

Ted Hagan of Auburn defeated Don Hill 8-6 as Don all but pinned him in the closing seconds of the match.

In the 177 lb. division Dick Downey decisioned the Scotties' John Anderson 5-0.

Auburn's Bill Rankin emerged victorious over Tom Axley 4-0 in the last match of the evening.

Theta Alpha Phi Holds Formal Initiation

Last Saturday night Theta Alpha Phi had a dinner at which time Ann Wiley, Wendy Wood, Ruth Wilson and Don Thiel, were formally initiated into the membership.

ATCHLEY-MARSEE

Dr. and Mrs. Paul L. Atchley of Knoxville are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Joy '59, to Mr. J. L. Marsee who is attending school at L.M.U. *No definite plans have been made for the wedding.

JOHNSTON-LOTZ

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Johnston of Turtle Creek, Pennsylvania, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Joan '59, to Sgt. Rolf M. Lotz also from Turtle Creek. No definite plans have been made for the wedding.

Weddings

HAMPTON-HILTON

Mr. Joe B. Hilton of Elizabethton, Tennessee, will take as his bride Miss Roberta Hampton, ex '58, tonight at seven o'clock in the First Methodist Church of Elizabethton. Following a short wedding trip they plan to reside in Elizabethton, where Mr. Hilton is employed.

Visitors

Miss Dee Farkas, ex '58, spent the past week-end on Maryville campus visiting friends. She is now a student of Wooster College in Ohio.

Also seen recently on campus have been Junior Davis, Bill Howell, and Fred Roseborough, who now attend the University of Tennessee.

YMCA AND YWCA NEWS

In keeping with the adjusted schedule of activities during February Meetings, the YM and YW will not meet tomorrow. However the regular meetings will resume next week.

The YW has two new cabinet members: Cathy Richtmyer, a sophomore from New York, and Joan Causey, a junior from North Carolina. Miss Richtmyer represents the newly formed Sunnybrook project, formerly a part of the Community Service Committee. Miss Causey replaced Lavinia Lee as co-chairman of the Worship Committee, which plans the Sunday programs.

Also of interest are the announcements that the Little Chapel, as yet only partially furnished, will be left open for private worship for the remainder of the semester; and that arrangements have been made for the YM and YW to use half of the Student Council bulletin board.

Great Archaeological Discovery Is Made By Professor Periwinkle

By Joanne Causey

—NEWS BULLETIN: Today history has been made. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, February 3, 2956, will be a day historians will never forget. For centuries, explorers, and archaeologists have been searching for some clue, some bit of information about the primitive civilization of that lost tribe, Maryville College. For years, archaeologists have given their lives looking for the location of this ancient seat of learning. Again and again they have begun excavation, only to find that they were mistaken. Two months ago, that eminent achaeologist, Dr. Ignatius Periwinkle, uncovered a textbook and knew at once that he was at last on the right track. When asked by reporters why he was so positive that the book was Maryvillian evidence, he replied tersely, "Wal, it deals with ancient lore peculiar to Maryville —"ethics" is what they called it in their dialect."

Excavation went on at full speed and soon an excellent example of primitive music was unearthed. Its title when translated reads simply "Shake, Rattle, and Roll."

Dr. Periwinkle with his great knowledge of native music said this was a song that home ec. majors were taught to croon to infants at play. Periwinkle expressed great elation over the discovery of a movingly simple Christmas song believed to have been chanted by the Maryvillian singers known as the Vesper Choir. This song which Dr. Periwinkle plans to translate is tentatively entitled "I Saw Mama Kissing Santa Claus."

Rare Letters Unearthed

All of these finds, however, were merely regarded as promises of greater things to come. Today the professor uncovered the greatest discovery of all—the ancient archive building known as Thaw. Besides books found there on such fascinating topics as underwater basket weaving and embalming, which were evidently of vital interest to students then, the doctor found an item of inestimable value—a packet of letters from students to their relatives written in February. Periwinkle says they afford great insight into the weather, clothing, food, and customs of the Maryvillians. Here are some of the most valuable samples:

Dear Mother:

Please don't send me the mink coat. It would be worthless here—who ever heard of a water-proof mink coat? Instead, please send by air mail special delivery Daddy's canoe—the one he uses for those 100-mile jaunts in Canada. Also, send me his hip boots. Also, his water proof tins for salt, stamps, etc.

Mother, is it really true that dripping water can drive one insane? I'm a little worried about my roommate.

Love,
Esmerelda

Dear Dar,

I am writing this in pencil because the rain washes away the ink in one line before I can finish the next one. Our room is warm and cozy but this rain pouring down all the time is kind of hard on one's books and clothes. My roomy and I have coated all our books with wax but there's just not much we can do about the clothes. Dad, would you mind sending that waterproof pup tent we camped out in last summer? It would really come in handy here in the room. I don't mind studying with rain pouring down my back, but I sleep with my mouth open, and as it keeps filling up with water all night, I'm a little afraid I might drown. Please enclose the tent in your next letter. My swimming has really improved—it is so nice to be able to practice right here in the room.

Love,
Ambrose

Dear greatgrandmother,

Sorry, I haven't written earlier, but I dropped my notebook on the walk on the way to chapel this morning and it took four of us skindiving all afternoon to find it.

As you may have guessed the tropical rain season has set in here. Coming from Texas, I was kind of surprised about it all. I mean, teachers look so funny teaching while treading water.

Well, I've got to back-stroke over to the library and hit the books.

Please send my ball-point pen that writes underwater if you want to hear from me again.

Love,
Matilda.

Tune in tomorrow, ladies and gentlemen, for news of further discoveries by Dr. Ignatius Periwinkle concerning that long-lost primitive tribe, the Maryvillians.

Y-Rooms Permission

People who use the Y-Rooms are urged to remember that permission for any type of a party to be held there must be secured several days in advance from Miss Massey. This does not apply to regular meetings held there.

Students who expect to use the Y-Rooms must first sign-up on the calendar which is posted in the hall outside the rooms.

German Club Elects Officers

A new slate of officers was elected for the semester at the January 23, meeting of Die Deutsche Gesellshaft. Herr Reber is the faculty advisor.

The elected officers are as follows: President, Gene Spiekerman; vice-president, Robt. Krogh; Secretary, Joyce Hierhoger, and Treasurer, Jack Woodhall. The program committee is headed by Carol Williams.

All students interested in Die Deutsche Gesellschaft may contact officers or Herr Reber for information regarding membership.

singing on the bus and a five-hour "hotel" lay over. She whimsically mentioned that the "bugs" bit some of the girls rather badly. Upon arrival in Meshed they went to a Persian Sunday School program and a carol sing. She writes: "We had a lovely Christmas Eve service for the English speaking community out there which is quite small. It is made up of the mission, Point 4 army and the Consulate plus one German couple. The four of us from Teheran made up the choir. . . Mark Irwin gave us an excellent sermon. Really, the evening was all that Christmas was meant to be. Christ was really there."

She recounts shopping activities, and then discribes a rug factory which uses child labor extensively.

"Meshed is a very Moslem City," she continues, "it is where one of the prophets is buried. There is a gold -domed shrine where he is buried and a museum of the gifts people have given in his memory. The city is more fanatic than most and at this time (the Christian Church is having its difficulties with the city government so please pray for the church and missionaries there as they are very discouraged. . .")

After delay and illness the party left for Teheran on a Tuesday. Their driver was involved in a fight with a passenger, they were delayed further by the driver and passenger going to court over it. Finally they took the one and only train. The four had just enough money for train fare, without eating and finally arrived home to a "worried group of missionaries ready to go on a search for us."

Miss Platt concludes her letter by mentioning her cleaning up activities and preparation for school – "School begins tomorrow and I did want to say thank you to each one of you personally for your Christmas letters... ."

Maryville Graduate Writes Of Her Missionary Experience

By Don Adams

The adventures and daily life of a missionary in Christian service overseas is a rewarding and exciting one. Miss Joan Platt, a graduate of the class of 1952, has vividly discribed some of the events of the busy days through the Christmas holidays. Her letter, from which excerpts are taken, telling about work as a teacher and missionary at the American Mission in Teheran illustrates a dedication and devotion to service and Christian fellowship which we can understand and appreciate at this time.

Joan went to Iran in the fall of 1952, returned last summer on leave, then returned to the Mission School in Teheran, where she is a full-fledged teacher on a five-year term. She is teaching children of 15 nationalities. She writes:

"On December 22, after a busy week at school we left for Meshed to spend our Christmas holidays with the missionaries out there. Dottie and Wendy, the two new teachers who live on the other compound came to our compound the night before and slept here with us. We all had breakfast together on Thursday with Dr. and Mrs. Elder joining us ....."

Miss Platt continues with a description of the trip to Meshed that included a flat tire, carol

Alpha Sig To Present Its Sweetheart Show

Four Cupids, Sweetheart To Be Presented

The annual Alpha Sigma Sweetheart Show will be held at 7 o'clock tonight in the Intramural Gymnasium.

The show, which was written and produced by Jim Kennedy, will serve to introduce the new Alpha Sigma Sweetheart and the four "cupids". The girls were chosen by secret ballot, and their names will not be disclosed until they are formally presented. They will be escorted by the officers of the society: Bill Strickland, president; Guy Selander, vice president; Bob Finertie, secretary; Dan Wiley, treasurer.

The production will consist of a series of scenes depicting the favorite type of girl at Maryville. Musical contributions will be made by Bob Moses, voice solo; Fred Wyman, saxophone; Zona Gogel, and Louise Ogden, piano.

Richard Henderson will M. C. the show, and there will be a chorus under the direction of Ruth Nelson. Others in the production include: Bill Dent, Lee Hammond, Sharon Rise, TomMorris, Dick Jones, Mary Walker, Grey Clark, Ves Travis, Bob Ramger, Edith Skinner, Tom Bugenhagen, Ka Leeth, Bob Hassel, and Don Roulette.

Ka Leeth was last year's Alpha Sigma Sweetheart.

Hampton Is Planning Publicity Drive

Mr. Hampton, Director of Public Relations, announced recently that the Public Relations Office is initiating a program to secure students for next fall.

He said, "The aid of the societies and other campus organizations is very earnestly requested. Efforts will be made through churches and schools to interest the students in Maryville College."

Colored slides are available for use in home town churches and schools. Arrangements can be made through The Public Relations Office, Maryville College.

Music Faculty To Give Recital

The music faculty of Maryville College will present two programs of the music of the great composers Mozart and Schumann February 16 and 17. These recitals commemorating the 200th anniversary of the birth of Mozart and the 100th anniversary of the death of Schumann, will be given in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 8 p. m. on both Thursday and Friday nights.

Numbers performed on Thursday night will be: "Papillons," by Schumann; "Trumpet Concerto in E Flat Major," by Mozart; "Il mio tesero in tanto," from Don Giovanni by Mozart; and "Piano Concerto in A Minor," by Schumann. Those performed on Friday night will be: "Sonata for Two Pianos in D Major," by Mozart; "Organ Fantasia in F Minor," by Mozart; "Six Canonic Etudes for Two Pianos," by Schumann; and "Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Major," by Mozart.

Members of the music faculty performing will be Mr. and Mrs. Schoen, Miss Crews, Miss McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Miss Davies, Mr. Bloy and Mr. and Mrs. Kinsinger.

Student Recital To Be On Tuesday

The Fine Arts Music Department will present a student recital Tuesday, February 14, at 4:30 p.m. The following program will be presented: "Sonata, Op. 2," Beethoven—Lynn Mitchell, pianist; "Concerto No. 3 in G Major," Mozart—John Graulich, violinist; "Aleluja," Mozart—Carol Lee Lacy, mezzo-soprano; "French Suite in G Major, No. 5," Bach, and "Vision fugitives," Prokofieff—Jane Robinson, pianist; and "Mazurka, Op. 67," "Mazurka, Op. 68," Chopin—Charles Cureton, pianist.

All students and faculty are invited to atten dthe recital to be held in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

'Brownie And His Boys' Help Keep College Campus In Top Shape

By Don Adams

"Come on in and sit down." Brownie dragged a chair over to his big desk in his office in Anderson Hall and urged me into it. He cleared a big stack of work requests to one side and settled down to tell me about Maryville College. "Let's see," he rumbled, thumbing through the college directory, "Cordin to this, I'm listed as Ernest Chalmers Brown, Campus Engineer."

"Campus Engineer covers a lot of territory," I mentioned. Brownie drummed thoughtfully for a moment; then he told me that his job covered everything from the campus and building maintenance and heating plant to various college properties around town.

Was Here In 1910

Brownie, as he has been affectionately called by generations of students and faculty alike, told me that since he first came to the college in 1910, he had seen it grow and expand into what it is today. He glanced out the window and recollected that he started here in the seventh grade under Miss Henry and stayed right on till he finished his freshman year. Then after 4 months with the post office, he became the college power plant operator.

"I helped build the new heating plant in '37-'38 down across the road, after they took the other one out;" he nodded toward Memorial, "it was over there then. I used to have as many as 200 students on the payroll here—right now I've got 17 regular staff on campus maintenance. Mr. Carl Doiano, a 1923 grad, is the carpenter-shop foreman. Mr. Domiano, a fine cabinet man, takes care of all necessary woodworking and repair jobs for the college. He built the risers in the chapel and a fine bulletin board in Carnegie, among other things. Some of his equipment includes planers, bandsaws, a cut-off saw, sanders and a jointer."

His Helpers

"Let's see," Brownie mused, "some of the other jobs around here include campus, lights, heat, painting, plumbing and repairs. Tom Hutsell is my head plumber and Leslie Teffeteller works with Tom, as does Henry Cowan. Lee Stephens, Henry and Leslie are also handy with paint brushes. We

Jeans Drag Is Coming Up Soon

By Nancy McGeorge

Calling all girls Calling all girls! Here's your chance to grab that special man! Saturday night, March 3, the annual Jeans Drag, sponsored by the Girl's Choir and Men's Glee Club, will be held in the Alumni Gym. The charge will be only 10c a couple, with the girls supplying their dates with homemade corsages. During the evening, the most original corsage will be chosen. Plans for the Jeans Drag are being carried out by Marian James, Social Chairman: Heading the various committees are Jane Mitchell, refreshments; Jim Colquhon, Publicity; and Sue Trotter, Tickets.

Rev. Hal Lloyd To Lead Vespers

The leader of the Vesper Service this Sunday will be Rev. Hal Baldwin Lloyd, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Rockford, Illinois.

He is President and Mrs. Lloyd's son and graduated from Maryville College in 1943. He and his wife and their two small children are visiting for a week in Maryville.

After his graduation from McCormick Theological Seminary in 1946, Mr. Lloyd went to the Philippines as a special term missionary for three years. Upon his return to America he was for six months interim personnel secretary for the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions and spoke on many college campuses.

Then came a year of graduate study at Cambridge University in England, followed by his present pastorate in which he has now served four years.

Kappa Phi Society Has 88th Birthday

On Tuesday, February 14, Kappa Phi society will be 88 years old. To celebrate, the members will have a spaghetti dinner and dance sponsored by the freshmen next Saturday evening.

Begun in 1868 primarily as a literary society, with Hugh Sawyer as its first president, the organization has seen many changes. The programs at first consisted of speeches, papers, orations, and debates. Soon there were plays, music groups, and social events as other organizations took over the literary functions

Two years ago the society moved into its own club house. Last year some furniture was donated to add more comfort. It was also last year that the men changed the name from Athenian to Kappa Phi, which stands for "society of friendship." This year a television set was added to the properties.

On February 25 there will be a show which will honor six Bainonian seniors for their contribution to the campus activities. Following that the annual Stinking Shoe Classic basketball game will be played with Alpha Sigma. Plans are being made for more programs to promote friendship and fellowship within the society. There will be talent shows, TV shows, speakers, joint meetings with Bainonian, intramural sports and other activities as Kappa Phi looks forward to many more years of active service to Maryville College campus life.

The Harpsichord Has Arrived

By Bill Deerfield

Last summer while Henry Emmans was vacationing in England, he visited the workshop of Arnold Dolmetsch in Haslemere, a town about forty miles from London, and placed an order for a small harpsichord.

When the instrument, properly termed a virginal, finally arrived on Feb. 1, Micky Van Metre helped Henry tote it down to the steam plant where Lyle Talbot and Carl (the college carpenter) helped them open the heavy packing case.

The fragile looking instrument was then carried to the Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center and set up on the platform. Not intimidated in the least by its tiny keyboard (four octaves and two notes in range) and its staid and dignified English walnut case, Henry and Ben Stabley boldly banged out pop tunes that undoubtedly caused both Bach and Handel to shiver in their shrouds.

With this in mind, if anyone passing through the F.A.C. should hear the strains of "The Third Man Theme" coming from a practice room, it won't be the fellow that plays the zither but only "Henry and his hot harpsichord."

There are two kinds of people who don't say much—those who are quiet and those who talk all the time.

Peace Talks Under Way

February 6—In peace conferences with British and French Ambassadors, Sec. of State Dulles said that arms alone would not guarantee peace between Arab and Israeli. He also stated that arms would not be granted at present, but there is a possibility in the future.

Allies to Demonstrae

Feb. 6—U. S. Allied forces will stage a dramatic military exercise next week in Thailand to demonstrate the readiness of Southeastern Asia defense machinery.

Gas Bill Passed

Feb. 6—The Senate passed the national gas bill freezing producers from direct price regulation by the Federal Government. The measure was won by a 53-38 majority.

Kefauver-Stevenson

Feb. 5—Senator Kefauver was judged the gainer of some strength recently in California from Adlai Stevenson. The basis of the gain was Kefauver's firmer stand on civil rights, which some Negro leaders think implies that Kefauver is in favor of Federal intervention to improve the standings of the Negroes.

Morse To Give Senior Recital

The Fine Arts Music Department will present Richard Morse, bass, in his senior recital on Friday February 24. Mr. Morse, a senior music major from Canton, North Carolina, will present a varied program consisting of the following: Solo Cantata — "Mein Hertz ist Bereit," by Buxtehude, with string quartet; two Mozart concert arias, "Un Bacio di Mano," and "Mentre ti Lascio"; four lighter English numbers, "Dearest Amelia" from Menotti's "Amelia Goes to the Ball," "De Massa ob de Sheepfol," "The Lament of Ian the Proud," "When I Think Upon the Maidens"; and two duets with instructor, Mr. Dan Kinsinger, from Bizet's "Pearl Fishers" and Puccini's "La Boheme."

Ben Stabley Has Radio Program

By Jim Conklin

Thursday night at 8:00 a new radio program, "Stairway to the Stars," was presented over station WGAP. It is a half hour program consisting of piano playing by Ben Stabley and announcing by Wemy Bowles.

Although Thursday night was the first time the show was on the air, its fresh and relaxing tone are sure to make it an every Thursday night listening date for many people here on campus and throughout Blount County.

The general theme of the program is, as already mentioned, the piano playing of Ben Stabley. Ben is a junior chemistry major from Penns Grove, New Jersey, and has been playing piano for about 15 years.

Announcer Wemy Bowles is a sophomore biology major from Bavatia, Ohio.

From time to time Ben is going to have guests appear on the show to give it variety and added interest. Next Thursday his guest will be Bill Howell, who attended Maryville College for two and a half years and is now attending UT. If anyone has a special request for Ben to play, he can either contact Ben or send a card to Ben Stabley, Radio Station WGAP, Maryville.

Japanese Exhibit To Be In Gallery

The art department will have an exhibit of Japanese prints in the gallery beginning Thursday. There will be a gallery talk at 7:30 Thursday on these prints, which are by Utamaro and Hokusai. Everyone is invited to attend.

Know Your Clubs

Christian Education

By Helen Jansen

One of the newest clubs on campus is Christian Education Club of which the aim is to develop interest in the field of Christian education and action.

Its president is Beverly Tillman, a sophomore English major from Troy, Ohio. The advisor is Miss Cartledge.

The club meets every second and fourth Monday nights each month at 6:45.

The active membership consists of thirty students. Half of the members expect to go into full time Christian work. This might be partly responsible why many people suppose that Christian Ed. Club is only for those going into full time work. Actually this is a mistaken idea, for the organization needs and wants anyone and everyone who is interested in Christian living in all walks of life—housewives, doctors, engineers, or teachers. It is only natural that a large proportion of its membership should intend to do paid Christian service.

Some of the members have already had valuable experience and training in the form of secretarial work and camp counseling.

Recently, they had some excellent instruction in Christian education from Lorna Engle, who reported on the Ecumenical Conference.

Everyone will be glad to know that a booklet of Dr. Sweazey's selected sermons will be available soon. The Christian Ed. Clubers will be selling them and will announce more about it later.

One of the high points of their activities this semester will be a spring retreat.

Tentative plans are made for a joint meeting with Pre-Ministerial on February 27, with a showing of a film on seminary training.

Lee, Williams To Read In Workshop Monday

Writers Workshop will meet Monday at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Mary Lee will read, criticized by Marcia Williams. San Roberts will also read, her critic being John Graulich.

At next week's meeting Carol Sleight and Cary Valentine will read and Joan McNaughton and Joanne Causey will criticize.

Boyd Is Named Acting Assistant Treasurer

Mr. Robert Johnston Boyd, formerly of Washington, D. C., has been appointed Acting Assistant Treasurer at Maryville College, President Lloyd has announced.

Mr. Boyd will be associated in the Treasurer's and Maintenance offices with Mr. S. E. Hening, who has served as Acting Treasurer since last October.

Mr. Boyd's experience includes eight years as secretary and treasurer of the Newark Trust Co., Newark, Delaware; four years as vice president and cashier of the Security Bank, Washington, D. C.; and five years as Acting Director of Banking and Investments, Savings Bonds Division,, U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd will arrive about February 15 and will reside at the home of Mrs. Otto Pflanze, 413 Houston Street, Maryville.

Buck-O-The-Month Is Rapidly Nearing Goal

"We expect to go well over the $12,000 goal set for March 15th for the first year of Maryville College's Buck-of-the-Month Club," Mr. James Hampton, Director of Public Relations, said recently

"At the moment, we're at the $11,300 mark with more coming in every day," Mr. Hampton said. "We received $500 from the last letter, so we expect to be well over—perhaps even by March first.

The Buck-of-the-Month Club fund is used for current operating expenses of the college. The hope is that it may be eventually used toward faculty salaries.

The most interesting fact about the Buck-of-the-Month plan to all concerned," Mr. Hampton said, "is the wonderful participation—the percentage of alumni that contribute." Over 30% of Maryville alumni are contributing.

New Librarian

This semester, Maryville College has welcomed a new circulation librarian, Mr. Herbert Franklin Ingle. Mr. Ingle is from Elizabethton, Tennessee, and at present is living in Maryville. He graduated from East Tennessee State College, majoring in Social Studies. He plans to attend library school in the near future.

Visitors Are Swarming Campus To View Objects Of Art In Museum

By Joanne Causey

Have you noticed the great influx of visitors on our campus, the scores of cars streaming in, daring even to take up the hallowed parking places allotted only by the Dean's Office? Do tourists asking for directions constantly disturb your slumber? Are you frequently late for classes in Thaw merely because these curious visitors want a picture of a native in front of this famous building?

Well, if you have noticed all of this and wondered what's going on, here is your answer—the Library Museum. Tourists have just discovered its superiority to such mediocre institutions as the Louvre in Paris, the Smithsonian in Alcoa, and are turning in ever-increasing numbers to the one here on our own Maryville College campus.

Just stroll in the Museum here and you'll see hundreds of suntanned, shorts-clad men, women, and children rapidly taking notes and gazing with rapture at these displays so unusual as to seem from another world. One bronzed young football player from Brooklyn says with his voice quivering with excitement, "Gee, mudder, look at dis baby cradle which is typical of those found in nearly every Persian home!"

His mother commends his intellectual curiosity and replies, "And son, what about this twenty-four pound cannon ball, found in the First Creek near Peter and Bradley's Mill, twenty-five years after the battle of Fort Sanders at Knoxville, Tennessee!"

Most Popular Displays

On and on it goes—people exclaiming and wondering over the many and varied exhibits. The curator of the museum reports that the following have been among the most popular of the displays:

1. Beads made of cedar berries and other seeds from Syria.
2. Fifty caliber rifle made in 1864 by the Burnside Rifle Company in Providence, Rhode Island.
3. Ornaments made from kingfishers' feathers.
4. French canteen — secured at Chateau-Thierry and used in the Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne, and the Meuse Argonne.
5. Hat worn by a Moro chief of "datu", woven by Moros; silver tip worked by natives . . . from the Philippines

Ecumenical Meeting Drew 3500 Students From Many Lands

Days' Activities Were Varied And Interesting

By WINIFRED KIE

"Welcome to Athens, S. V. M. delegates!" This greeting was seen everywhere we looked on the day we arrived in Athens for the Student Volunteer Movement's 17th Quadrennial Conference.

The day of arrival was marked by an atmosphere of confusion. Students jammed the railroad station, the bus terminal, the stores and resaurants, but most of all the library, where registration of all delegates took place. In this general confusion conference leaders,, students of Ohio University and citizens of Athens gave a helping hand whenever and wherever they could. Even the president of the university helped carry suitcases that day!

Theme Emphasized

Each day a different aspect of the conference theme, "Revolution and Reconciliation," was discussed and emphasized. These various aspects of the theme were as follows: 1. The World in Revolution; 2. God speaks in the World of Revolution; 3. Jesus Christ, Reconciler and Saviour of the World; 4. The Church and Its Mission; 5. Christ calls Christians Now; 6. Jesus Christ, Lord of a World in Revolution.

The mornings at the conference were devoted to morning worship, platform addresses and Bible discussions for which we were divided into small groups of ten to fifteen persons led by a student chairman and an adult resource leader. The afternoons were used for optional activities, area forums, Bible discussion groups, vocational seminars and special meetings, such as campus and regional delegation meetings.

In the two-hour evening sessions platform presentations on the theme of the day were made by speakers from various areas in the world. The last 15 minutes of each evening session were used for intercessory prayers led by representatives of Christian communities in various countries.

"Firesides"

One of the highlights of the conference was the "Firesides" held at the close of each day's activities. These "Firesides" provided an opportunity for students and leaders to explore together their particular concerns and interests in free informal discussions. At least 50 different "Firesides" were presented every evening. A wide variety of choices was offered to the delegates—pacifism, India, work camps, journalism cells, communism, Tibet, African games, diplomacy, physics and theology, world news, etc.

During the free time for optional activities delegates could visit the colorful Exhibit Hall, which displayed valuable information concerning summer service projects, study and travel opportunities and the work of the church around the world.

The bookstore, ,which was located in the Exhibit Hall, offered an excellent selection of books of which many were especially related to the theme of the conference, "Revolution and Reconciliation.

Dick Yun's Pottery is Exhibited

Downtown store windows displayed articles from many lands --and international works of art contributed by students from abroad—were exhibited in one of the lounges of the Student Center. Among others, the ceramic pieces of Dick Yun, a Maryville freshman from Korea, attracted a great deal of attention.

In spite of the busy schedule delegates managed to find time for fun and fellowship. New friendships were formed and old ones renewed. Under the accompaniment of cokes and jukebox music dates were made, heated discussions were held, Chess games were played, and national boundaries were broken.

To many of the delegates the New Year's Eve Communion Service, which was officiated by the Episcopal Church of Athens, was the most outstanding highlight of the conference. 3500 students from over eighty countries dressed in a colorful variety of costumes filed up the platform and kneeled reverently side by side to receive the sacrament — an impressive sight which one cannot easily forget!

THESE STUDENTS FROM MARYVILLE attended the Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission, which was held on the campus of Ohio University, Athens, during Christmas vacation. Some of them have written down their experiences, which are printed on this page.

'Revolution And Reconciliation' Was Theme of Conference

By GEORGE HARDY

Why must man suffer? Why does man fight man, Brother fight brother? Why are Communism and other non-Christian ideologies making such headway in the world? What is the role of the Church in counteracting this violent upheaval? How can I, as one individual, in my corner of the world comprehend this revolution, much less help the plight of my fellowman?

These are some of the questions brought to Athens, Ohio, by Christian young people from around the world. These young people realized that conflicts and revolutions are disrupting our world. To survive we must recognize, try to understand, ,and search for answers to these problems.

The theme "Revolution and Reconciliation" reflects awareness, on the part of the planners and the delegates to the conference, of the fact that the world needs the reconciling power of Christ in this period of turmoil. This revolution is not the type that we usually associate with the word but one in which old social, religious, and economic patterns are being destroyed. Concurrent with this destruction of old patterns is the destruction of the social, spiritual, and physical lives of the people.

Every day the theme of the conference in its different phases was developed and emphasized by the Rev. Richard Shaull. For several years he served as a missionary in Colombia, South America. At present he is advisor to the Brazilian Student Christian Council, Dean and Professor of Systematic Theology at the Presbyterian Seminary in Campinas, Brazil.

Bible Groups

Bible discussion groups met daily, basing their study on Dr. Shaull's texts,, Jeremiah 1-2 and Paul's letter to the Ephesians, and discussing the implications that these had for the world in revolution, the church, and us as individuals. During these meetings there were many probing questions and inspired search for answers. Many of those who participated were exposed to much that they had never thought deeply about before and were inspired by the unity of purpose that existed in such an ecumenical group.

In his address, Mr. Shaull stressed that social revolution in the world is not new. He cited the case of Jeremiah, who also lived in a time of war and upheaval. This turmoil Jeremiah interpreted to the Hebrew people as the judgment of God destroying institutions which had arisen and no longer carried forth God's plan for our generation, thereby estranging ourselves from Him, we must accept the inevitable consequences.

The sole purpose of the Church is to discover God's will for this present generation and follow it. In order to do this, we, as members of the Church, must center our lives around God. Every Christian has the responsibility of sharing the faithful witness of Christ in every part of his daily life, regardless of his vocation.

God's will can only be known and expressed to men as each individual is motivated by the spirit of love to be an inseparable and intrinsic member of the world-wide Christian fellowship.

One Phase Of The Conference Was 'Awakening Through Drama'

By MARGARET WILKINSON

Throughout history, religion has often used the ancient art of drama, as a dynamic means of portraying ideas and life. At the Quadrennial Conference drama of splendid simplicity and dignity was inter-woven with the day-to-day themes. An episode of a play was presented at each evening session, ,and the medieval morality play, The Summoning of Everyman was given each afternoon. For the most part, these dramatic presentations indicated the concern of those not specifically within the organized church for the central themes of the Gospel.

A choric drama, The Crier Calls, was given the opening night, and set the stage of mood upon which the remainder of the conference was built. Darius L. Swann, a native Virginian now at Ewing Christian College in Allahabad, India, wrote it especially for this conference. The Crier Calls is a symbolic representation of the impact of the world revolution on a typical American student. It was an eye opener to the fact of a revolutionary world, a thing which most Americans do not fully realize.

Other Presentations

For the remaining evenings, the day's theme and the play from which an episode was taken were: 'God Speaks in a Revolutionary World"—A Sleep of Prisoners by Christopher Fry; "Jesus Christ the Reconciler"—Felicia Komal's verse adaption of Cry, The Beloved Country by Alan Paton; "Christ's Church and its Mission"—Murder in The Cathedral by T. S. Eliot; and "Christ Calls Christians now"—A Child is Born by Stephen Vincent Benet. All these presentations were done with little or no stage equipment, but depended entirely upon the two or three actors' ability and inspiration to present eternal truths forcefully and fearlessly.

The dramatic episodes of the evening sessions were presented by Hal Bokar, of the Bishop's Company, and members of the Ohio University Drama Department. Mr. Bokar and those working with him helped undertake two adventures in drama during the Fireside hour. Included in the drama workshop were the philosophy, technique, and demonstration of religious drama, and on one evening, there was a Fireside for those interested in reading a play aloud.

'Everyman' Given

The popular medieval morality play, Everyman, was presented several times and discussed many times. It offered grounds for discussion, growth, inspiration, and entertainment, and its influence was felt widely and deeply by delegates. In its simple symbolism it depicts the calling of a representative mortal, Everyman, by Death.

It is drama like this which has deep reaching influence upon men's lives—sending them away exalted, or with clearer understanding into the lives of others, and with a deeper sense of harmony and intimacy with God and with man.

Area Forums Provide Insight To Problems

By CARRIE FREEMANTLE and CATHY RICHTMYER

The purpose of the area forums was to present in a compelling way the role of the church's mission in a particular geographical area. In each group the first concern of the leaders was to give the groups concise information about the recent social and political changes in the area. Information concerning the work of the churches in the region was also given—their achievements and their failures. Those of us who attended the forums were challenged to discover how much we can participate in the mission of the church in the particular area that we attended.

In this process we were given the opportunity to ask questions and to discuss the situations in the various countries with people whose homes are in the area.

Study of India

To give the readers an idea of the kind of information we learned about the different areas, we have chosen India as an example:

India, struggling for peace and freedom in a world of chaos, must be understood and praised as she searches for answers to the revolution which surges within and about her. India, a pro-peace country, is seeking to find the answers to the social, politcal, economic, and industrial revolutions within her country.

In understanding India one must consider these points. The new India is searching for truth and a democratic way of life. India is a neutral country in the struggle between the East and the West—a new idea in world international relations; a new, dynamic force seeking to find the answer to revolution.

Conference Had Cosmopolitan Air

By WINIFRED KIE

"Cosmopolitan" seems to be the best way to rescribe the general air of the conference, and the place where this was most evident was during the daily one-hour presentation of the Festival of Nations.

The main purpose of this feature was to enable us to learn something about the customs of nations and peoples which are different from those of our own lands, and looking back, we can say definitely that it had fulfilled its purpose.

Songs, Dances

Songs, dances and other entertainment native to their countries were presented by students from abroad. Classical dances from India . . . a Japanese war dance . . . a graceful wedding dance from the Philippines . . . gay and colorful folk dances from South America . . . a flute player from Thailand . . . folk songs from Sweden and Canada. These are just a few examples of what was seen and heard by those who attended the Festivals. By doing so these people showed their willing ness to explore the idea that "our differences are meant to be enjoyed and not to be ironed out."

President Dwight Eisenhower sent this message to the delegates at the conference:

"I congratulate your organizations during the Christmas season—a time for renewal of hope for a just and lasting peace. All of you have my warm best wishes for a fruitful deliberation."

Seminar On Vocations Held

By SHIRLEY MAYFIELD

One of the special types of meetings was the vocational seminar. It brought together those who had an interest in various fields of life work. Its purpose was to supply information about many occupations and to make known in what way there is any opportunity and need for Christian witness through this daily work. There were also arrangements made for those who had not yet decided on their future occupations.

There was ample opportunity to have interviews with experts in almost any field of work, particularly the ones directly related to the mission field and full-time church work.

It was pointed out and stressed that since God calls everyone to follow Him—each Christian should consider what Christ would have him do before he decides on a life's work. He should also take into consideration a self-knowledge of his abilities, likes and dislikes which were given to him for a purpose. Any occupation taken by a Christian should be in harmony with God.

Hoopsters Lack Skill Against LMU

The Highlanders were certainly playing way under par when they encountered LMU last Saturday night. They lacked the spark they had at the beginning of the semester. They are falling back on their old habits of taking long "gun" shots instead of working it in for lay-ups.

However, the Scotties have one consolation in that they lost by eleven points to a school which had beaten such schools as Milligan and Eastern Carolina State by 15 and 20 points.

LMU Fans Show Spirit

Not taking anything away from the support of the MC student body, which certainly has been better this year than it has been in many years, but I think LMU fans really showed some spirit for as little a group of rooters as they had. I think they should be commended for their support.

Rookies Bolster Squad

While "veterans" such as Bill Wallace and Jack French are as ever, certainly rookies like Earl Smith and Jim Saunders are adding very sorely needed "new blood" to the team. Jim Saunders' added height and rebounding power are a big help to the team and, undoubtedly, Earl Smith is proving to be as much an asset to the basketball squad as he was to the football spuad.

Improved Ref-ing

In my humble opinion the refereeing was improved 100% last Saturday night as compared to that of the previous Saturday night's game.

An Intramural All-Star-Varsity Game?

With student interest in both intramural and varsity basketball at a very high point, why not have an Intramural All-Star-Varsity game? In intramurals not only is student interest at an all time high, but also student paricipaion. This year, as in many other years, there are many good basketball players among the ranks of the intramural teams, and I for one think that they could give our varsity squad a good battle.

The Wresling Squad

Jerry Waters really got our grapplers off to a flying start last Saturday night with his near pin in record time. Even though he wasn't able to pin his opponent on the first pass, he pinned him shortly thereafter in an extremely fast time of 15 seconds.

Dale Patterson, wrestling in his first home match of the season, looked very fast and deceptive for his weight classification. Dale has been filling the slot when needed in both the 167 and 177 divisions.

Abe Cohen of Chattanooga also worked extremely fast for his weight, pinning Tom Axley in 1 minute 12 seconds. Abe, UC's S. E. C. champ in the heavyweight division, worked as fast as some 123 pounders—a fact which is rather unusual for any heavyweight.

Lundberg Makes Debut

Bruce Lundberg, the Scotties' 137 pound contender, wrestled the first match of his career last Saturday night. He looked surprisingly good for a rookie, but will undoubtedly show more promise as he gains experience.

AS I SEE IT. . . . .

By Bill Wallace

As most of you already know our basketball team started the season with a comparatively short and inexperienced squad, but as the season has progressed we have gained experience. Our ball handling has been better due to this experience and with th addition of Jim Saunders to the squad our rebound power has increased.

The two things which seem to hamper us most lately is a weak defense and an inability to hit consistently. If we can strengthen our defense and begin to hit we may be able to win some of our remaining games.

Although our season's record to date isn't too impressive we hope to improve on it in the games which remain, but even if we don't I think that we can give any of these teams an interesting night of basketball.

I would like to thank the student body for myself and the team for the fine support they have given us this year. Although, so far we are having a losing year, so far, the attendance at the games has been better than in the past few seasons. Your attendance and encouragement aids the team and improves the morale of all of us, so keep turning out for the games and we'll do our best to make this season a successful one.

Matmen Lose To Chattanooga

The University of Chattanooga grapplers downed the Scottie wrestling squad 16-14, last Saturday night, in a meet that wasn't decided until the last match.

Waters Pins Opponent

The meet was opened by a very fast pin by Jerry Waters, MC's S1W champ,, and was closed with a pin which decided the match by Chattanooga's SIW heavyweight champ, Abe Cohen.

Meet Results

In the 123 lb. division MC's Jerry Waters pinned Doug Riggs in 51 seconds of the first period.

"Booty" Miller, the Scots' 130 lb. contender, decisioned John Farr 10-4.

Tony Scrugges of UC decisioned Bruce Lundbery 6-2 in the 137 lb. class.

The Scotties' 147 pounder, Don Nabors, decisioned Walt Stack 5-3.

In the 157 lb. division the Scots' Max Williamson won in points over Len Hoads in a close one 2-0.

The Mocs' Marvin Graves won by a fall over Don Hill in 1'30" of the third period.

Dale Patterson of Maryville lost by decision 6-4 to John Dyer in the 177 lb. division.

Abe Cohen, UC's heavyweight, pinned Tom Axley in 1'12" of the first period to win the meet for Chattanooga.

Scotties Bow To Railsplitters

Last Saturday the M. C. Hoopsters played host to Lincoln Memorial University. The "Railsplitters", as LMU is known, took command early in the game and went on to a 75-64 victory over the ill-fated Scots.

MC Leads in Opening Minutes

The Highlanders led in the opening minutes of the game but soon lost their lead and never again offered a serious threat to the 'Splitters. LMU led at the half-way mark 42-32.

The Railsplitters were tall, fast and had rebounding power. They also were a good match for the Scots in the ball-stealing department.

Wallace is Top Tallier

Bill "Punchy" Wallace was once again way out in front in the scoring department for the Scotties with 28 tallies.

Bob Radar and Ed Burton led the onslaught for the "Splitters" with 27 and 22 points respectively.

THREE FOR TRACK

By Roy Terrell

(Taken from Sports Illustrated Feb. 6, 1956)

A trio of record-setting young men with an eye on Melbourne has made the '56 indoor track season one of the best in years.

The United States has been singularly blessed down through the years with track athletes able to resist the ravages of wear and tear and time; runners and jumpers and weight men who could compete—and win—in one Olympic Games and four years later return to compete—and perhaps win—again. How pleasant it is to consider, for example, such polished old champions as Harrison Dillard, Bob Richards, Mal Whitfield, Andy Stanfield and Parry O'Brien and know that, in Melbourne in November, they will once again be on your side.

But Olympic teams and Olympic hopes are built even more on the exciting talent of great young men and in this, too, the United States has been more than fortunate, The year 1955 produced Arnie Sowell, Charles Jenkins, Bobby Morrow and Don Bragg. Now 1956 promises to be even better; already, with the indoor meets still months away, the track world has discovered Phil Reavis, David iSme and Lee Calhoun. The three names are good ones to remember; they may appear again on the passenger list of a ship bound for Melbounre in the fall.

Reavis is a 19-year-old Villanova sophomore from Somerville, Mass. In high school he once cleared 6 feet 6 inches; as a college freshman he did 6 feet 7½. But this, the experts were willing to bet, was as high as he could go; Phil Reavis is only 5 feet 9½ inches tall and 5-foot 9½ jumpers just do not go around threatening world records which, these days, is almost a prerequisite to a berth on the Olympic team. That, however, was some weesk ago. Today the 135-pound Negro has cleaned up ot the Massachusetts K. of C., Philadelphia Inquirer and Boston A.A. games by jumping, on successive week-ends, heights of 6 feet 9 3/4 inches, 6 feet 10 and 6 feet 9. The first earned Reavis the meet's outstanding-athlete award; the second set a meet record; the third gained the youngster a tie with the man generally acknowledged No. 1 among the world's current high jumpers, Ernie Shelton of southern California.

The secret of Reavis' success is really no secret at all, but something every good high jumper must have—tremendous leg spring. Reavis has it in phenomenal quantities. "The greatest I've ever seen," says Charles Holding, the former East Texas star. "I saw Reavis jump last year and even then he could get up—which is the most important thing. Now he has learned to get across the bar, too."

Sime has been even more spectacular (SI, Jan. 30). For one thing, while Reavis was known for his schooldday track feats, Sime hardly touched the sport back home in Fair Lawn, N.J. He was a baseball player with enough right-hand power to attract major league scouts and, having also attracted a scholarship from Duke, headed South to play baseball. But one day Sime was clocked going to first base. The time: 3.5 seconds (Mickey Mantle of the Yankees, hitting from the left side of the plate, was once timed in 3.4). So Sime found himself a member of both the baseball and track squads last spring and once he began to run, no one could catch this redheaded 18-year-old with the smooth, powerful stride. He went undefeated as a freshman and this winter received an invitation to the Washington Evening Star meet.

What happened there was a revelation. Now grown up to 6 feet 2 inches and 185 pounds, Sime beat two famed sprint champions (Andy Stanfield, Olympic 200 meters; Rod Richard, Pan-American 100 and 200) in a series of three dashes at 70, 80 and 100 yards. His time for the 100 was 9.5, the best ever recorded indoors.

Sime still plans to play baseball, but his coaches feel there won't be too much conflict. He'll enter two more eastern meets, the Millrose Games this weekend and the New York A.C. event, also at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 11. After that he will run only in the Atlantic Coast Conference indoor meet Feb. 24 and then start getting ready for the big outdoor races.

In the sense that the others are 1956 discoveries, Calhoun is not—or at least not exactly. This 175-pound North Carolina College hurdler from Gary, Ind. won the Evening Star Games hurdle event as far back as 1953 and was second in the National AAU indoor meet. But then he went into the Army and disappeared from view. Now, back in school, Calhoun has resumed his track career in earnest.

Already he has successfully passed the two big tests facing any hurdler: Harrison Dillard and the clock. Calhoun beat the ageless Olympic champion at 50 yards in a world-record-equalling 6 seconds at Philadelphia; the next night he romped home ahead of a Dillard-less field in 6.3 seconds for the Washington 70-yard race (also tying a world record). Saturday night at Boston he was scheduled to meet Dillard again but had to be content with just winning. This time he ran a tenth of a second off Dillard's meet record as Old Bones watched from the sidelines with an injured leg.

Now, although North Carolina College Coach L. T. Walker has entered the slender 22-year-old speedster in most of the remaining major indoor meets (including Saturday's Millrose Games where Calhoun will again share the spotlight with Reavis and Sime), the big target is the outdoor distance of 120 yards, the American equivalent of the Olympic 110 meters. Calhoun's best time for the event, made in the Army, is 14.3, which is good but not nearly good enough. But last year's times on Calhoun are like last year's shoes on a growing boy—they just don't fit any more. "We're working now to get into the 13s," says Walker, "because I think it's going to take 13.8 or 13.9 to get on that boat."

Chillies, Howies Pick Teams

Last Thursday the Captains of the Chillies and the Howies chose the members of the All-Star teams. On the Chillies team are Captains Betty Harril and Lottie Jerkins, Colleen Crawford, Barbara Thomas, Lois Stutt, Joan Schultz, Lorna Eagle, and Carol Griffiths. Captains Pat Smith and Helen Franklin, Queen Crossing, Nancy Wilson, Bobbye Hall, Janc Byrne, Margie Hunter, and Kay Henry are on the Howies All-Star team.

Thursday also started the tournament between the two teams. They will play three games.

Swimming will begin on February 21. There will be competition between individuals and the two teams.

Durng March and April there will be a softball tournament. The last two weeks will be spent in preparation for May Day.

The referees for the basketball games are Mary K. Alison and Dee Woods, who are senior physical education majors. Liz Murphy, who is also a physical education major has been the basketball coach.

Intramurals....

The Intramural Basketball season came to a close on Monday afternoon with the Sledgehammers defeating the "Y" Flyers, the Kappa Phi Dukes outscoring the Wheels and the Piledrivers beating the Diaper Daddies.

There is little material for the column this week except to comment on the beginning of the consolation tournament, which started Wednesday. Any team is capable of winning the tournament and the outcome will be interesting to watch.

In the next issue of the Echo there will be a complete list of the final standings, high scores, and results of the consolation tournament. Till then — "Good luck in the tournament!"

COMING GAMES

Tonight the Highlander Basketeers will encounter Tennessee Wesleyan at 8:00 in the Alumni Gym.

Next Saturday night they will face the Moccasins of Chattaga.

The Wrestling Squad's two remaining meets of the season are both on the road. Tonight they will wrestle at Emory University and next Saturday they will be at Sewanee.

UP Poll

The United Press college basketball ratings of the top ten teams in the nation:

1.	San Francisco	(16-0)
2.	Dayton	(16-1)

It's Fame Spreads

As can be easily understood, "Life" magazine wanted to do an article about the Library Museum, but college authorities wisely refused, feeling that this would destroy that private, homey atmosphere which is so characteristic of the place as things now stand.

As there have been many requests, the college may soon sell miniature cannonballs, spears, canteens, and Moro chieftain hats to tourists, who are expected to buy them as quickly as they can be produced. With the profits thus gained, new dorms could be constructed, but the students unanimously agree that the funds should be spent only in obtaining new exhibits for the Library Museum.

Socially Speaking

Engagements

Blair-Toomey

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Blair of Alcoa have announced the engagement of their daughter Donna Marlene to Mr. Edward Kent Toomey also of Alcoa and a former student of Maryville College. The wedding will take place in March at the First Baptist Church of Alcoa. Mr. Toomey is now attending UT and is minister of music at Oak Street Baptist Church of Maryville.

Rogers-Renfro

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Rogers of Maryville are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Delores Ann, to John (Jack) Renfro of Maryville.

Mr. Renfro is now a senior at Maryville College. The wedding will take place in May.

Parties

Now that the terrible odor of paint has departed and order has come out of chaos, the girls of Memorial Hall are really proud of their newly redecorated kitchen. The walls have been painted light blue and are trimmed with dark blue while the floor has been painted red. In fact the girls are so proud of their kitchen that they are planning to honor it with a shower in the near future. All that come to this kitchen shower must bring a gift that can be used in said place. Not a bad idea girls!—And anything for a party!

Week-end Vacations And Visitors

Miss Elizabeth Enloe will be visiting her home in Atlanta this weekend. She will have as her guests Miss Dee Woods and Miss Betty McKenney.

Marian Hina, who is now attending UT, visited friends on campus Wednesday night.

Mr. Anthony J. Clark is visiting Miss Dorothy Miles ex '57 this week-end at her home in Meridian, Mississippi.

Susan Parkinson and Joan Gray will have as their guests next week-end their mothers, Mrs. David Parkinson and Mrs. Edward Gray. They are both from Birmingham, Michigan.

(Have you recently become engaged? or married? Have you had any visitors? Have you been lucky enough to take a vacation? Have you attended or given a party?—Or do you know someone who has? Others are interested in what you are doing, too, so why not tell the writer of this column about it?? After all, this column is for you so we want it to be about you!!)

BROWNIE . . .

try to paint at least one-third of the dorm rooms every year, plus the bathrooms and the roofs when needed." He pointed toward Baldwin. "That roof needs painting badly, right now."

Brownie indicated that his crew could handle any jobs. Harvey Benson is a handy man with the power mowers, and with some 60 acres of campus, that is a real job. Gene Hutsell and Ernie Farr handle all the trucking jobs around campus and the College Woods. George Griffiths, Herbert Henry, Tecora Dowdle and Cleo Flukers take care of the dormitories, Willard House, and hospital upkeep for Brownie.

Smile wrinkles appeared around Brownie's eyes as he leaned back in his chair. He told me about some of the many changes on college campus since he helped build Voorhees Chapel 47 years ago, about the labor getting up 4 a.m. every day to haul brick from the train station to the Thaw Hall site in 1920, and the variety of jobs his "boys" have had throughout the years. He told me that during the winter months L. L. Lonas and helper Bill Mays operate the 4:45 a.m. shift at the heating plant, while Lyle Garner and Eugene Hedrick operate the afternoon shift. It takes a lot of coal—nearly 1500 tons—to maintain heat and hot water in the campus-wide central heating system.

"I have a student helper, Howard Bell, who works at the heating plant, and another student, Bill Potter, who delivers the milk from the farm every day. We take care of the farm and Dr. Lloyd's home, too," Brownie mentioned. "Harley Huskey is out at Morningside, while Roosevelt Haven and Truman Buchanan look after things at the farm."

"It's a big job and a lot of responsibility for all," Brownie told me. "For instance, we also mark and maintain the athletic fields, and keep the gymnasium floors in shape. Right now we're cleaning up the woods—trimming brush, fixing paths, and doing some cutting."

Recalls Events

Brownie is a wonderful story teller of past happenings at the college. He told me about the tremendous class rivalries through the years, and about the famous Barnwarming frosh-soph big egg throwing fight, complete with dress suits and an old-time ambush "That was back in 1912," he recollected.

Then he continued telling me about the day-to-day work of the college Engineer. "Right now we need new paving and new walks over two-thirds of the campus travel ways. We need a maintenance shop pretty badly for repair work, and truck and toll storage, he told me.

I learned that Brownie and Ralph and Jim Irwin have a total of 121 years service at Maryville College. Mr. Jim Irwin maintains repair, supply and painting facilities at the college, while his brother, Mr. Ralph Irwin, has been the college patrol man since, as Brownie put it, "Whiskers went away."

Harvey Benson strode into the office. We got up, and as I started to leave, Brownie said, "I could go on all day if we had the time," and as he turned to Harvey, he rumbled over his shoulder—" telling about rivalries and Caanan and Egypt. . ."

Slide-Making Will Be Theme of FTA Meeting

The next meeting of FTA will be February 16. At this program the members will discuss and experiment with making a projection of various types of glass slides.

At the first meeting of this semester, January 19, the program featured the movie "What Greater Gift?" The theme of this movie was the choice of a vocation.

'He Ain't Done Right By Nell' Was A Real 'Melerdramer'

Ah,, that old fashioned melodrama was perfection personified . . . the villain was vicious and nasty and wicked . . . the hero was brave and manly and bashful . . . and the heroine, well, words just couldn't possibly describe the wide-eyed innocence, the sweet, sincere simplicity of that fine living quotation of womanhood.

Never again, the old folks said, at the turn of the century . . . but if only they could have lived to see the radiant revival last evening in ye olde theatre, their souls would have been gratified.

The villain was just as villainous, the hero quite as heroic, and Little Nell, the brightest nugget in them thar mountings, was as master-fine as ever.

The refined renditions of those gorgeous old pieces really did gladden the glands of the noble artists behind the curtain. Sweet lil ole Granny eve shed a sweet lil cle teardrop (one of many) to hear those old time tunes.

Whether you hissed and booed the villain audibly or under your breath doesn't matter . . . just so you cheered loud and long for the triumph of GOOD (dum, dum, dadum) over EVIL (sssssss) and the receipt of just deserts by one and all.

Vera and her father return to the city . . . Little Nell and Jack follow closely after . . . Granny and Lolly resume gossiping where they left off . . . and Hilton Hays (oh, that dreadful name' is banished forever from the hearts of all good people.

Council Acts On Three Town Night Violations

Maximum Penalty Is Imposed In Each Case

By Ted McDaniels

There were three town night violations this week, all of them cases in which girls cut campus to go up town without signing out on town night slips.

This was the big discussion at Student Council at its last meeting. After considering the facts as they were presented, the Council proposed that the maximum penalty be carried through since the girls had a full knowledge of the act and its consequences. The motion was made that the penalty of eight weeks suspension of town night privileges be brought to bear. The motion was carried with a vote of twelve to one.

Visitors Attend Meeting

This week the sophomore class was extended an invitation to come to the meeting to see the Council at work. There were twelve sophomore visitors this week as compared to the five or six freshman visitors last week. President Shackelford commended the apparently growing interest in the workings of the student government.

Echo By-Law

The final word on the Highland Echo By-Law was passed on to the council; The By-Law has been approved the Student Council and passed through all the other red tape and is now ready to be put into action. The rules of procedure will be drawn up by the committee and will go into effect immediately. The text of this By-Law will be printed for acknowledgement of the student body else where in this issue.

The Council moved that a delegation be sent to Carson-Newman to participate in the Eastern Division Conference of the Tennessee Association of Student Governments. This conference will be held on Wednesday, February 29.

Lecture Series

President Shackelford stated that the Lecture series that is provided for in the new student activity fee will begin if possible this semester. He said that a committee under the chairmanship of Dr. Queener will meet in the near future to plan the lectures and make all necessary arrangements.

It was also mentioned that the dates for open house have been set. The women's dormitories will hold open house Sunday afternoon, March 4, and the men will play host the following week, March 11.

Business Club Has Dinner

The Business Club's annual dinner and dance was held last night in the Y-rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Hening, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn and Mr. Newell Witherspoon attended the dinner as guests of the Business Club. Also, Mr. Heneing, the college treasurer, was named to an honorary membership in the club.

Bob McKean, president of the Business Club, acted as toastmaster. Members of the organization selected a queen of the club, "Miss Balance Sheet of 1956," later in the evening However, the name of the lucky girl was not available at the time this article was writen.

Graulich, Williams To Read In Workshop

John Graulich and David Willims will read in Writers Workshop Monday at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Their critics will be Jim Hopkins and Carol Sleight.

Last Monday Cary Valentine read a one-act play, and his critic was Joanne Causey. Carol Sleight read two short stories, which were criticized by Joan McNaughton.

Kappa Phi Honors Six Bainonians Tonight In Show

This evening, six Bainonian girls, selected by the men of Kappa Phi, will be presented in its annual A.B.C. Show to be held at 7:00 in the Alumni Gym.

This year's show, entitled "Leading Ladies" centers around an actor, John Miller (played by Dave Gilliland) who reminisces about the six Sigmund Romburg shows that he has appeared in. Outstanding songs from four of the musicals will be presented by the following vocalists: Harold Mays, Dick Morse, Jim Barber, Howard Bell. Four of the six girls to be honored will be presented during the singing of these songs, and two will be presented in waltz numbers with Dick Preston and Bill Deerfield acting as partners to the girls.

Music will be supplied by an orchestra, which will include Henry Emmans playing the virginal.

East Tennessee Music Festival To Be Held Here

By Webb Gentry

On March 15 and 16 Maryville College will be the scene of a two-day East Tennessee School Band and Orchestra Concert Festival. The festival is held each year in a different school. There will be about 3000 students making up about 60 bands and orchestras on the campus for the two-day period. A Maryville Collcge band student will be assigned to each band and orchestra to guide them throughout the day.

A very distinguished panel of judges have been selected to judge the 1956 contests. These are Carlton Butler, University of Alabama, Charles Minelli, Ohio University, Ben Sisk, Georgia Institute of Technology and Victor Showalter, Delta State Teachers College.

All bands and orchestras will perform in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel on the stage, which will hold about 120 players at one time. From the Chapel they will move to the Theater stage at the oher end of he building, for exercises in sight reading. The auditorium of the Fine Arts Center will be used for tuning and warming up for all bands and orchestras.

The division each school will play in will be determined by the size of the school. Plaques will be awarded for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd divisions with ratings given in five grades which are poor, fair, good, excellent and superior

The students of Maryville College and the public are invited to listen to any or all of the performances of the bands and orchestras.

New Jersey Students Tour MC Campus

Maryville College played host to a delegation of 52 students from Chatham, New Jersey last Thursday. Miss Betty J. Miller, an MC graduate of 1941, and Director of Christian Education at Ogden Memorial Presbyterian Church, Chatham, led the mixed high-school group, which is touring southeastern colleges.

Pastor Clarence L. Lecrone, of the Ogden Memorial Church accompanied the students. Miss Miller took a set of MC slides to show her group as an aid to interested and prospective students.

During the next few weeks the college will play host to other church-sponsored groups of students college-touring during their spring vacations.

There are 75,000,000 licensed drivers in the United States, or 12 drivers per vehicle registered.

Tedford, Ogden To Give Recital Tuesday In FAC

The Fine Arts Division will present Louise Ogden and Sidney Tedford in a Junior recital on Tuesday, February 28, at 4:30 in the Fine Arts Center.

Mr. Tedford, Tenor, will be accompanied by Lynn Mitchell, pianist. His selections include "An Die Geliebte," by Beethoven; "Il Mio Tesoro in Tanto," by Mozart taken from "Don Giovanni;" "Music for a While," by Purcell; "I Know Where I'm Going," folk song arranged by Hughes; "There's Many Will Love a Maid," by Michael Head; "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Roger Quilter.

Louise Ogden, pianist, will present as her selections the following: "Toccata in G Major," by Bach; "Sonata in E Minor, Op 90," by Beethoven; "Intermezzo Op. 119, No. 2," by Brahms; and "Four Bagatelles," by Tscherepnine.

The recital will be held in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall at 4:30. The public is invited to attend.

College Choir Plans Tours

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will begin its spring concert tours March 18, John Hutton Jr., director of the choir, has announced. The tours include short trips to churches in Tennessee and a three-day tour to Birmingham, Alabama.

The Vesper Choir trips this year will be as follows:

Sunday, March 18, First Presbyterian Church, Rockwood, Tenn.;

Sunday, March 25, First Presbyterian Church, Oak Ridge, and Graystone Presbyterian Church, Knoxville;

Sunday, April 8, Second Presbyterian Church, Knoxville;

Saturday, April 21, First Presbyterian Church Eastlake, Birmingham, Ala.;

Sunday, April 22, Ensley Highlands Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Ala., at 11:00; also in Birmingham on the same day, Edgewood Presbyterian Church at 4:00, and Sixth Avenue Presbyterian Church at 8:00;

Monday, April 23, Northside Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.;

And, finally, Sunday, May 13, the home concert in the chapel.

Here Are Events For The Semester

By Carolyn Cones

A glance into ye olde crystal ball plus a bit of help from the social committee reveals a number of campus activities to be held throughout the remainder of the semester.

Especially appropriate for leap year will be the annual JEAN'S DRAG, sponsored by the Girl's Choir and Men's Glee Club. This square dance will be held on March 3 in the Alumni Gymnasium, and the cost will be twenty-five cents per ticket.

Don't be alarmed at seeing the clouds of dust pouring forth from the girls' dormitories during the next week. It will just be the gals preparing for their OPEN HOUSE on Sunday afternoon, March .

Eugene O'Neil's "BEYOND THE HORIZON" will be presented on Saturday, March 10. The cast for this modern tragedy will be headed by Kathy Briggs as Ruth, Preston Bogia as Robert, and Mary Dixon as Andrew.

On March 11, the boys will hold their OPEN HOUSE, as they display their rooms to the admiring eyes of the public.

The freshman will make their bid for recognition on Saturday, March 17, when they entertain the other three classes with the FRESHMAN TALENT SHOW.

On March 24, Henry Emmans, senior music major from Succasunna, New Jersey, will present his SENIOR RECITAL.

Saturday, March 31, will be a YWCA and YMCA program.

"Music hath Charms. . .", so on April 6 and 7 the Combined Glee Club will present the operetta, "FINIAN'S RAINBOW."

Spring brings flowers—and the SPRING FORMAL. Sponsored this semester by Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma, the dance will be held on April 14.

The Y RETREAT at Laurel Lake will be on Saturday, April 28.

March 5 is the date set for the STYLE SHOW sponsored by the home economics department. Models will be the home economics students wearing clothes they made for their courses.

Add to this list the Artist Series, experimentals, baseball games, tennis matches, art displays, etc.; and it promises to be a full year.

Maryville Debaters Win State Tourney

Brooks-Hanna Take Top Honors In Women's Debate

By Paula Konenberg

The Maryville College debate team won the sweepstakes in the state tournament held at Tennessee Polytechnic Institute in Cookville, Tennessee February 9-11.

Of approximately 150 debaters, Jo Ann Brooks was judged the best debater. Corita Erwin was rated second best debater.

As teams, Margallen Hanna and Jo Ann Brooks received first place in women's debate, with Eleonore Koster and Corita Erwin taking second place.

In the individual speaking events, Miss Brooks placed first in oratory and in impromptu, and Wendy Wood placed second in after dinner speaking. Eleonore Koster won second in both peace oratory and extemporaneous speaking.

Corita Erwin, Mary Clover and Keith Ham reached the finals in the individual speaking events. Other members of the team who attended were Bob Goodlin, Bob Bogle and Tom Paton.

Future Meets

On February 29 the team will go to Colombus, Mississippi to the Magnolia Tournament, and March 29 has been set as the date for a trip to William and Mary College. The Provincial Pi Kappa Delta tournament will be held April 18-19 at Cookville, Tennessee.

When asked if she would care to make a statement concerning the debate team, faculty advisor Miss Walker replied, "I guess not—they know they're good."

There are over 90,000,000 motor behicles registered in the world. Two-thirds of these vehicles are in the United States.

Radio Workshop Students Produce Weekly Programs

By Ann Wiley

Every Tuesday evening at 7:15 a little group on campus lives and learns some radio life. This is Radio Workshop. Anyone may become a member who is willing to do some hard work, learn loads, and profit plenty!

Radio Workshop, this year differs from its pattern last year in that it is responsible for every three out of four programs. Last year, Y-Radio had a program every week, assisted only generally by the "Workshop-er's" . . . this year Y-Radio takes over only the fourth program.

Under the auspices of Mr. Griffin and Dr. Cooper, Radio Workshop presents programs, giving our side of college and campus life. There are hardly any dramatic presentations, but panels and informal discussions about any and all aspects of Maryville College is the main point of business.

Each member of Radio Workshop is responsible for at least one program . . . the casting, directing, technical aspects, everything!

Weekly Programs

On February 22, Radio Workshop had as its guests several members of the debate team presenting both affirmative and negative views on the national topic, Guaranteed Annual Wage. On February 29, the program will be a chemist's field-day as presented by the Science Department. March 7 will give a preview of the Playhouse spring production, "Beyond the Horizon."

March 14 will be Y-Radio's monthly program, and March 21 will bring to the air, the English Department in a discussion (probably heated) on the ideas of Shakespeare authenticity and the new material on Shakespeare vs. Marlow. The glee clubs will summarize "Finian's Rainbow" on March 28. The programs after this date are still tentative, but these few will give an idea of he work and play Radio Workshop is giving YOU!

On Wednesday evenings at 9:30 tune in to station WGAP for programs on campus life.

Dr. Ferris Visits Here From India

Dr. Dorothy Ferris, from Ferozepore, India, will be on campus this weekend and will take part in several activities. A Maryville graduate, Dr. Ferris is now medical director of the Francis Newton Hospital in Ferozepore India. This year the money from the college's Fred Hope Fund will be applied to the expenses of constructing a new nurse's dormitory at the hospital.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Ferris will speak at the Highland Presbyterian Church service. At 1:30 tomorrow afternoon she will speak to a joint meeting of the YWCA and the YMCA. She will also take part in the Vesper Service in the Chapel Sunday evening at 7:00.

Monday at 6:45 p. m. Dr. Ferris will tell the Pre Med Club of her work at the hospital. All members of the club are invited to this special meeting.

Tuesday morning Dr. Ferris will participate in the chapel service.

AAUW To Give Tea For Senior Girls

The Maryville branch of the American Association of University Women will have its annual tea for the senior women of Maryville College, Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center. This tea is given to acquaint the senior girls with AAUW and its purposes.

The Education Committee will be in charge of the program, with Mrs. D. S. Kramer leading a panel discussion on the topic "Why Johnny Can't Read".

Hostesses for the evening will be members of the Arts, International Relations, Publicity and Reporter Committees.

Famous Pianist To Give Recital

By Janet Whitmore

The piano virtuoso Jesus Maria Sanroma will present the third Artist Series program of the 1955-56 season. Sanroma will appear at the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel Thursday, March 1, at 8:15 p. m.

Famous throughout the Americas, Sanroma has been functioning for years as an effective musical one-man good-will delegation. He was born in 1903 in Fajardo, Puerto Rico. When he was thirteen the government of Puerto Rico sent him to the New England Conservatory in Boston. He has also studied with Antoinette Szumewska, one of Paderewski's few pupils, in Boston, and with Arthur Schnabel in Berlin.

The versatile Sanroma is equally at home in classic and romantic music as in modern. In the course of his concert career he has been soloist over 400 times with 75 orchestras under 83 conductors. He has been starred at summer festival series in Evansville, Ind., New Orleans, Miami, Cleveland, and New Haven. He has also given recitals in Bogata, Columbia, and Quito, Ecuador. He has been a popular pianist on the radio for many years and has appeared on coast-to-coast broadcasts over all the top networks. Recently he has been successful in television—appearing on the Chesterfield Supper Club program with Perry Como.

Sanroma appeared with the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler in 1954. He toured with the Gershwin Music Festival in 1953 and was re-engaged to make the tour in 1954.

During this winter, in addition to his regular recitals, he will appear with the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D. C., the Rochester Philharmonic and the Oklahoma City Symphony. He also appears every Sunday as both emcee and artist on his own television series in Puerto Rico.

New Spanish Teacher Has Had Much Experience In Languages

By Joanne Causey

Amidst the grumbling of juniors about Special Studies as second semester got under way, I kept hearing of a new teacher who spoke an infinite number of languages, and who was continually dazzling his students with his knowledge of "far-away places." Comments like these were frequent, "He's interested in your getting more out of Spanish than just the ability to conjugate "caer" in the preterite tense." Everyone seemed so enthusiastic that I thought I'd see for myself.

I soon learned that this is easier said than done, for Mr. Hamlett is an exceedingly busy man. Besides his duties here at Maryville, he also serves as head of the language department at Knoxville College. I found him at last as he was preparing to make his daily dash to Knoxville, and he graciously consented to chat a few minutes.

Mr. Hamlett has had a most fascinating background. It seems his whole interest in foreign languages began in high school. While attending an Armistice Day parade in his native Nashville, on the theme of "International Friendship with Our Latin American Neighbors", he had the opportunity to talk with the representatives of the various countries in their own tongues. People around him were amazed to see a home town boy conversing with foreigners so easily. The joy of being able to communicate with the Latin-Americans firmly established his interest in the study of languages and as a result, he decided to make it his life work.

This interest further developed when Mr. Hamlett attended Fisk University, taking French, Spanish, German, Portuguese, and Latin. While in college, he served as president of the Spanish Club for four years, president of the French Club, reporter for the German Club, chairman of the International Students' Senate, and student assistant in the department of foreign languages. Majoring in modern languages with a minor in mathematics, he was graduated "cum laude" with departmental honors.

After graduation, he worked for the board of education in Cleveland, Ohio, later translating several articles from French to English for a Hungarian society.

He also served for a time as instructor of languages at Leland College, in Baker, Louisiana.

Mr. Hamlett obtained his master's degree from Louisiana State University, writing his thesis on "The Folklore of the French-speaking Negro of Evangeline Parish." (Dr. Cooper's linguistics class recently enjoyed hearing some of his recordings of natives speaking this dialect.)

A man with varied interests, Mr. Hamlett's hobby is photography. He says he enjoys working with international groups, also. (He seems unusually qualified for this last activity.)

As he prepared to dash down three flights of Anderson stairs, I asked him if he ever grew weary of teaching. "No," he answered, "teaching is my permanent vocation—teaching languages, that is. In this way I feel that I can propagate interest in people of foreign cultures which is vitally important for international understanding."

ECHO FORUM. . .

The Theatre Audience

By Joan McNaughton

Audience preparation for the theatre may seem to be a foreign idea to many people, but actually it is a vital and necessary part of any performance. It is the completion of the creation that originally existed in the playwright's mind. The author creates the situation, the characters, the action; the actor finishes this creation with a sensitive, interpretive insight; the audience links them together with its response. For, the final purpose of the actor is to convey, or effect a spiritual feeling, or emotion to his audience. Reason and logic move to the gallery, while atmosphere, mood, and feeling have orchestra seats. The actor has the power to mold, build, or destroy the spirit of his particular creation, and he can push and pull all he wants, but the audience must make themselves pliable in his hands. Theatre-goers need conditioning—conditioning to shake off all worries and thoughts of where and what they are, and give their imagination complete freedom to ramble where the impression will take it.

A knowledge of the play beforehand is helpful to set the mood before one enters the door; it will also prepare one to see characters and not just friends in their usual campus personality. However, though helpful, acquaintance with the play is a small preparatory tool in relation to the preparation of attitude. One's world changes as soon as he enters the door, and even more intensely when the curtain goes up. It can be a world of tragedy, fantasy, horror, realism, romanticism, farce—anything, for this is a world of emotion and emotional release. When the play is over one becomes real again, even though the inspiration tingles and tugs inside him. In time this leaves, but the memory drifts in and around him, for he has seen himself and felt his emotions in the theatre-world of human feeling.

A Model Community?

Many complaints heard around campus can be summed up by the phrase, "life on campus is not as similar or as representative as life is in the 'outside world.'" Perhaps we could point out some ways in which this is particularly true.

The group of students, numbering about one-third of the student body, who aid in the successful management and operation of the college are ordinarily referred to as "student help." These students, serving in such varied capacities as librarians, waiters, bell-ringers, janitors, etc., collectively are rather similar to a small business or corporation—but ARE they? Do they have any of the rights and privileges of the employees of a modern business concern? Certainly not! Of a "sweat-shop" of the turn of the century? possibly!

Now we are not just complaining about the low salaries of those on student help, but rather the inequitable wage scale. It seems to be common knowledge that waiters and waitresses earn approximately 24 cents an hour, and that some of those who work in the library get as little as 30 cents an hour. It is also common knowledge that there are those who have janitorial jobs who, because they are "salaried", earn 75 cents to a dollar an hour. This seems rather odd since the wage scale should probably depend upon the difficulty of the job, and certainly waiting a table and working in the library demand more skill than a janitorial job.

Also, it is surprising to note just how much effort the students must put forth to earn the measly salary in some of the student help occupations, particularly in the library. There are probably many students who work during the summer for a dollar to a dollar and a half an hour at various occupations. Although they "work" for eight hours a day, what with coffee-breaks and lunch hours that run ten to fifteen minutes overtime, they are probably not expected to work as hard as many who are on a student help and who work for 25 to 30 cents an hour.

And thirdly, the faculty is always telling us what freedom we have; so why not let them show us? Are those in student help as free to move under the faculty and administration as are the labor under management? Certainly not. Why cannot the students form a STUDENT HELP UNION?

Scots & Soda

By Mary Ann Morris

Girls, have you ever wondered just exactly how to catch that man of your dreams here at Maryville College? Well, the method of capture depends on the guy himself. Every male is different. But don't despair, the men have been typed, and theer's a sure-fire trap for each and every type!

Out-Study Him

Does your heart-throb wear thick horn-rimmed glasses, and carry books a mile high, even to meals, to study between bites? Does he spout off chemistry formulas and Latin proverbs at the slightest encouragement? Then it's a cinch that he is the studious type! Wear thicker glasses than he does. Carry more books, and, at the opportune moment, drop them at his feet so he can pick them up! Better still, drop them ON his feet, then he'll HAVE to pick them up, or he won't be able to move! While he struggles with your books, chat casually about your theory that the world is really a hexagon held in the trunk of an enormous elephant that stands on a huge tortoise's back. He will be yours in no time!

Cultivate Your Walk

Is your man a great giant, broad-shouldered and muscular, who stands straight and tall? Are his piercing eyes always on some destant object, never noticing anything as lowly as you? Then he is the athlete, a real man's man To win his attention, you must be completely and utterly feminine. Wear a clinging black satin dress and spike heels to class. Paint your fingernails black, for glamour. Learn the Monroe wiggle. Guaranteed: you will be noticed!

Make Him a Part of Things

If you have noticed that your dreamboat blushes continuously, hides when you or other strange people approach, and, when, cornered stares at the ground while croaking something about the weather; then he is the bashful type. You must draw him out slowly. Arrange a small, cozy party of about five hundred students, and, when he is sitting nervously in a corner, gently make him a part of things. Drag him out into the middle of the floor, and announce an impromptu rendering of "Romeo and Juliet," with him as Romeo. (You as Juliet, but naturally!) He will love you forever!

Be Innocent

Does your ideal throw money around like water, and drive a different car on campus each week? Is the carnation in his dark blue suit always fresh, and is he? Then he is the well-known ladies' man! He is the guy seen with all the glamour girls around school, but he tires of them quickly. To get him, YOU must be different! Try the "fresh from the farm" approach, complete with long pigtails and freckles. Be little Miss Innocence herself, and——you'll get yours! (Man, that is.)

Be One of the Gang

If your guy is a woman-hater; if he snarls at the fair sex, and shuns all femininity; then be one of the boys! Join him in a late poker game at Carnegie; light up a cigar when he does. He will have to admit that you have a charm all your own!

Be Able to Take a Joke

If your man is always doing annoying little things, like throwing you in the fish pond, or giving you a candy box filled with cobras, or slipping dynamite down your back, then he is the practical joker. There is only one way to handle this type, and that's to out-practical-joke him. Pour glue in his typewriter. Set fire to his room. Make a trip to Arabia, and call him long distance, collect. He will soon be yours, because his motto will invariably be "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em."

You Can't Win

If your guy is the "I want a buddy not a sweetheart," type; if he is constantly getting you dates with other guys, and treating you like a "Cousin," and you think you haven't a chance with him——you're right!!!

The Cardinal Rule

But if your man is one of the other types, and you follow the advice for this particular type, you've already practically got him—just about. Just remember the one cardinal rule to catch a male: keep telling him he's the greatest. He already knows it, and maybe you can talk yourself into believing it!!

STUDENT COUNCIL HAS FEUDAL ORIGIN

By Ted McDaniels

What is the Student Council? What are its functions?

(This sounds like the beginning of some of the editorials that have been printed to ask you all to take a greater part in the student government, doesn't it? No this time, this is supposedly written in a different vein.)

The answers to the questions asked at the beginning of this conglomeration of print are not too easy to write out, but due to much experience and a lot of research much enlightening and helpful information has been uncovered.

The Student Council is a form of self-government that has evolved from the ancient feudal society of the middle ages.

It is, as Karl Marx would say, a manifestation of the discontent of the simple proletariat to a tyrannical oligarchy. Back in the days when the Lord of the Manor reigned supreme over his subjects it was the custom forhim to issue forth with many profoundly thought-out edicts: "In the coming fiscal year 1313 all serfs who recognize the suzeranity of Lord Waldo and dwell in his domain with the expectation of his protection in the inevitable wars with the surrounding manors, (Emory and Henry, or Carson-Newman, and any or all allied clans), will in due recompense set forth three-fourths of their yearly income to provide the necessary income for the maintainence of this manor."

After many years of this insufferable totalitarian there arose a genius, Karl Marx. This man prevailed as the savior of all student kind, and at a meeting of the First International he read the The Student Manifesto. The theme of this revolutionary idea was, "Students of the

Visitors On Campus

Miss Sydna Cash ex-'58 was the guest of Miss Ruth Wilson and her many other friends here this past week. She is now a student at East Carolina State College in Greenville, N. C.

Visiting the campus this past weekend were Miss Martha Murphy of Warren Wilson College in North Carolina, Mrs. Mattie Murphy and Miss Betty Duncan of Springfield, Tennessee. They were here especially for the Theta program honoring Miss Liz Murphy. While she was here, Mrs. Murphy sang a solo at the Sunday worship service of Houston Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Miss Sheila Sutton '55 visited friends on campus this past week. She is now a student at Union Seminary in New York City.

Mrs. J. H. Coates of Wilmette, Illinois visited her daughter Barbara this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ingle and their son, Mr. Roger Ingle, of Jonesboro, Tenn., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hampton. They attended the Kappa Phi Dinner Saturday evening.

Roger has played varsity basketball for three years and baseball for four years, at Jonesboro High School. He expressed interest in attending Maryville College

Music Library Has Record Collection

By Webb Gentry

A recent visitor to the Fine Arts Arts Center was greatly surprised to find a well-kept musical library. She would have been even more surprised to have seen the wide musical range the library has. It includes music from the pre-Palestrina to the Gershwin age, and major works of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Mozart, Franck, and many other well-known composers.

The library is located right off the main lobby to the right. There are two large and four small listening rooms. For anyone interested in high-fidelity, a hi-fi record has been provided. The library is open to all students and faculty from 2:30 to 5:30 every afternoon except Sunday. Here is an invitation to come visit the music library some afternoon. We'll see you there.

Bryan Ernst, Former MC Student, Sends Greetings From Ceylon

By Barbara Wilkie

"Greetings from sunny Ceylon," writes Bryan Ernst, whom many students may remember as the sociology major from Ceylon. He is now back home again after having "a wonderful tour of a good part of the world." He left Maryville in 1954, and in a recent letter to friends here he described his activities.

Last year from June 7 to September 7 Bryan traveled quite extensively. He writes: "First there was the choir tour (with the Princeton Seminary Choir), which took us to the American Northwest right to the west coast—12,000 miles in eight weeks—and then after a week at Princeton, I left New York on the 'Queen Mary' for Southampton, England. We left New York on August 10 and were in Southampton on the 15th, having stopped at Cherbourg,France, on the way. I went ashore at Cherbourg to sample French life firsthand."

As he continued his homeward journey, Bryan passed through Port Said, Egypt; Aden, Arabia; and Bombay, India. Re describes his trip through the Suez Canal: 'We passed through several lakes somewhat like the five great lakes on the US-Canadian border. To see ships moving in an area where there only appeared to be sand made me think of the 'Ship In The Desert.' There was a state of emergency in Egypt at the time, so we were asked to be careful if we went ashore. Aden is a free port where you can buy most anything at, the most ridiculous prices, there being no customs duty of any kind."

Bryan is now an assistant minister in the Presbyterian Church in Colombo, Ceylon and is often called upon to conduct choirs and orchestra of the church. He says, "This is a wonderful work and I have waited almost thirteen years for it, planning and working towards the goal. My main mode of transport has been my two feet in a good pair of shoes, and occasionally trolley, train or bus or taxi, but very shortly the church will give me the use of a motor-scooter which will be capable of doing 162 miles on a gallon of gas."

Bryan is still reminded of the American way of doing things in the "radio programs, attire and amongst other things, not the least by the many US nationals around." He thinks "It is a wonderful feeling to be back home again after so many years absence, even though I do have nostalgic memories of the USA."

Sometimes Bryan runs across someone from America. He writes, "It was just two days ago in church that I met a young Southern American preacher whose present residence is in Florida, but who hails from Tennessee and who, being a Baptist, went to school at Carson-Newman College. He was glad to meet a one-time rival of his from Maryville. It's a small world, isn't it?"

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Evans

Hoopsters Are Having a Weak Finish

The Scottie Basketball Squad, after having had a mediocre start in which they won approximately half of their games, are having a rather weak finish. They did have the pleasure, however, of upsetting a heavily-favored Tennessee Wesleyan squad, treating them to their fourth defeat in 19 starts. The team record at the present time is four wins and thirteen losses with two games yet to be played.

SIW Tournament To Be At Sewanee

Our Wrestling Squad still seems to be in a state of continual change. "Booty" Miller temporarily wrestled in the 137 lb. division but will return to his regular 130 lb. classification for the tournament. "Booty," in moving to the 137 lb. slot to fill in for the injured Jim Cummings, made possible the debut of Dick Jones in "Booty's" place. Jim Cummings' injury healed earlier than had been thought and he wrestled in the Sewanee meet, but he too will return to his normal weight for the tournament.

The NCAA Southeastern Invitational Wrestling Tournament started yesterday afternoon and will be concluded today. The tournament is being held at the University of the South, which is also known as Sewanee. The following are my predictions for the tournament:

115 lb.——?
123 lb.—Jerry Waters, Maryville
130 lb.—"Booty" Miller, Maryville
137 lb.—Jim Cummings, Maryville
147 lb.—Don Nabors, Maryville
157 lb.—Jerry Embry, Auburn
167 lb.—Marvin Graves, Chattanooga
177 lb.—Dick Downey, Auburn
191 lb.——?
H.W.—Abe Cohen, Chattanooga

I think that Walter and Frank Killer of Auburn will give Jerry Waters and Jim Cummings a run for their money in their respective weight classes. Also I think that Paul Miles of Emory and Arthur Frankos of Sewanee might give Marvin Graves a rough time.

Although Dick Downey of Auburn won his weight division in this tournament last year and I have picked him for a repeat performance, he just might be edged out by John Dyer of Chattanooga, a very strong contender for the first-place slot.

For those of you who remain in the dorm and on campus most of the time, as I do, I should like to point out that history has been made in our very backyard and most of us dorm students are totally unaware of it. It seems that Loudon High School, leading by a slim margin of 39-34 at the half over McMinn County High School, went on to win the game in an unbelievably lop-sided second half, 197-57. Loudon chalked up 94 of their 197 points in the last quarter alone.

At the other extreme is a basketball (?) game in Hillsboro, Oregon, in which Hillsboro High School eked out a victory over Forrest Grove High, 3-1.

Early Signs of Spring

Our tennis team has, believe it or not, already begun practice. Yes ,our racketeers began limbering up for the season last Saturday and the entire squad will be turning out for a full-team practice this afternoon. The team's first match will be on March 24 again at the University of Tennessee on the UT courts.

Also in a short time as the weather improves and Coach Honaker is able to get the field in shape, baseball practice will begin.

So, let's hope that Old Man Winter leaves us shortly so that we can see some action in tennis and baseball.

AS I SEE IT. . .

By "Booty" Miller

In my opinion wrestling is the most valuable sport we find offered anywhere. Some participants in other sports will most probably think that this is a brash statement, but first let me give some of my reasons for believing this.

To begin with wrestling is the oldest and most natural sport in existence. Anywhere you find active men and boys eventually you will find them wrestling. Sometimes it is done for self-preservation but usually just for personal enjoyment.

To me part of the value in a sport is the limits to which it offers participation. By this I mean that boys who can not find a place on the football or basketball teams because of their small size or on the baseball team because of poor eyesight but still possess athletic ability will find the wrestling team just made to order for them. Also persons not being particularly blessed in coordination will find wrestling a tremendous help.

Besides its body-building and conditioning properties, wrestling offers many qualities found in the ideal personality. It teaches self-reliance and independence by having each person face his opponent alone and at the same time teaches cooperation and respect for the abilities of others through the team situation.

As a muscle developer, wrestling is superior to weight-lifitng and dull exercises in that it builds longer and more useful muscles whereas weight-lifing muscles are more bulky and tend to be useful only in lifting. This sort of strength is not so important to a wrestler. Instead he learns speed and skills in leverage to overcome any lacking in strength.

In my four years on the wrestling squad we have never had a lower team in the winning column, but in other things I shall always remember this as our BEST year. I think Coach Davis and everyone else will agree with me in saying that it is better "to participate to the fullest extent of your ability than to win," and I think that is what we have done this year. Although we have won only one match and tied another we have learned a great lesson in sportsmanship and team cooperation.

To begin with our team has been very low in experience having only three letter men from last year, but our boys have been eager to learn and I, for one, will be watching them with interest next year. I feel safe in saying that next year they will have a far better win and loss record and that I am expecting to see some great wrestlers develop in the persons of Don Hill, Don Mull, Dick Jones, Jack Emery, Dale Patterson, Tommy Tom, Max Williamson, Bruce Lundbreg and Sonny Axley as well as the continued success of Jerry Waters and Don Nabors.

I think Coach Davis and Captain Jerry Waters are to be commended for their patience and all their work in teaching us.

Grapplers Close Season, Go To SIW Tournament

Scots Drop Five, Upset Wesleyan

Over the past two weeks the Highland Hoopsters dropped five successive games to Carson-Newman, Tennessee Wesleyan, Milligan, Emory-Henry and Chattanooga. They also managed to upset Wesleyan in their second encounter with them.

Eagles Trounce Scots

The Carson-Newman Eagles playing host to the Maryville Highlanders at their home court in Jefferson City downed them 75-53 on February 9.

Captain Bill Wallace scored 19 points to lead the Scotties and Arnold Millinger was high-point man for the Eagles with 26.

TWC Downs MC

On February 11, Tennessee Wesleyan College came to Maryville to defeat the Scots 85-63 on their own court.

Wesleyan's very fancy passing and shooting drill during the pre-game warm-up brought applause from both the Wesleyan and Scottie supporters.

The Scotties took an early lead, but the Bulldogs very shortly tied it up and went into the lead themselves. Once the Bulldogs got the lead they never relinquished it. At the half they led 48-32.

Wesleyan played a very close game in that they did not take a shot unless they had one and if they took a shot, they made it.

Buffs Stop Scots

On February 14 the Highlanders journeyed to Johnson City to be trampled by the Milligan College Buffaloes 76-63.

The Scotties played a cold first half which saw the contest tied two times and the lead changing hands seven times.

At the half the Scots were on the long end of 35-32 score.

The lead changed hands four times early in the second half and the contest was nip-and-tuck for the first eight minutes, but Milligan got the jump and went ahead 46-44 on Delmer Harris' goal with 12 minutes remaining, and the Scotties never caught up.

Centers led in scoring for their respective teams, Bill Wallace with 22 for Maryville and Alf Aldridge with 21 for Milligan.

Wasps Edge Out Scots

Journeying next to Emory, Virginia, the Scotties were stopped by the Emory and Henry Wasps 71-66 on February 14.

The Highlanders tried hard, but the Wasps, led by forward Dave Couk, who just kept pouring them in, were too much for the Scots.

John West was the top tallier for the Scots with 15 points. Jack Crouch and Bill Wallace aided him with 14 and 13 points respectively.

Dave Couk, of course, led the Wasps with 28 big points. Dotson, the center, and Bennet, a guard had 15 apiece for the victors.

MC Falls Before Mocs

The University of Chattanooga took a hard-fought 76-69 basketball verdict from the Highlanders last Saturday night in the Alumni Gym.

Howard Clark and Bill Brown bucketed 16 points each to lead the visitors' attack as he Moccasins pulled away to a 38-35 intermission lead and stayed one jump ahead most of the time thereafter.

Jim Gregory, a reserve, was high scorer for the Scotties with 11 points. Bill Wallace and John West added ten apiece to the cause.

Highlanders Crush Bulldogs

The Scots, hitting with remarkable accuracy at the free throw line, surged in front in the second half to upset heavily-favored Tennessee Wesleyan, 80-61, on Monday night.

The Scotties, trailing 39-34 at the half, came roaring to the front shortly after the opening of the second half and won going away. The Scotties hit 32 of 43 charity tosses, while the Bulldogs connected on 17 of 24.

John West and Jim "Kangaroo" Gregory paced the Maryville victory with 20 and 19 points, respectively, while Ron Knight and Pat Gorman led 23 and 21 tallies for Wesleyan.

REMAINING GAMES OF SEASON

Tonight the Highlander Hoopsters will be at Harrogate, Tennessee, to play the Railsplitters of Lincoln Memorial University.

On Monday the Scots will play their last game of the season against the Carson-Newman Eagles of Jefferson City, Tennessee.

Medical Schools Recommend May Admission Test

Candidates for admission to medical school in the fall of 1957 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May, it was announced today by Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the test for the Association of American Medical Colleges. These tests, required of applicants by almost every medical college throughout the country, will be given twice during the current calendar year. Candidates taking the May test, however, will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall, when many medical colleges begin the selection of their next entering class.

Candidates may take the MCAT on Saturday, May 5, 1956, or on Tuesday, October 30, 1956, at administrations to be held at more than 300 local centers in all parts of the country. The Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to classes starting in the fall of 1957 take the May test.

The MCAT consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on understanding of modern society, and an achievement test in science. According to ETS, no special preparation other than a review of science subjects is necessary. All questions are of the objective type.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which gives details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, are available from premedical advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J. Completed applications must reach the ETS office by April 21 and October 16, respectively, for the May 5 and October 30 administrations.

Wrestlers Have One Win, One Loss

The Highlander Wrestling Squad broke even in their last two meets, dropping one to Emory University and winning out over Sewanee. They are now at Sewanee for the NCAA Southeastern Invitational Wrestling Tournament which ends today.

Matmen Lose to Emory

On February 11, the Scottie Grapplers journeyed to Atlanta to lock horns with Emory University. The Scots fell before Emory by a score of 21-13.

MC Has Two Pins

Maryville won the first three matches but dropped the next five. Emory had three pins whereas MC had two.

Meet Results

Jerry Waters, Maryville's 123 lb. contender, decisioned his opponent, Dick Davis, 7-0.

Dick Jones, wrestling for the Scots in the first match of his career, pinned Campbell Giddens in the 130 lb. division.

"Booty" Miller also pinned Jim Asben, Emory's 137 pounder, in 2' 04" of the second period.

Howard Hiely of Emory decisioned Don Nabors 8-4 in the 147 lb. classification.

Don Mull, making his debut for the Scotties, lost on points in a very close match, 11-9, to Don Burkwalter.

In the 157 lb. division Paul Miles pinned the Scots' Don Hill in 2' 50" of the second period.

Bart Knight of Emory pinned Dale Patterson in 2 minutes flat in the second period for 167 pounders.

Bill Cromwell cinched the meet for Emory in the battle of the heavies when he pinned Tom Axley in 2' 40" of the first period.

MC Wins Last Meet

Last Saturday night the Wrestling Squad ventured to Sewanee where they captured their first victory of the season in their last outing of the season. The Highlanders defeated the University of the South (or Sewanee, as it is more popularly known) by a score of 18-14.

Meet Results

The Scots' 123 lb. contender and team captain, Jerry Waters, pinned his opponent, G. E. Holmes, in 2' 56" of the third period.

Dick Jones of Maryville lost on a decision to Ken Rhen 13-2 in the battle of 130 pounders.

The Scots' 137 pounder, "Booty" Miller, pinned Jim Porter in the opening 15 seconds of the second period.

In the 147 lb. division Jim Cummings decisioned Sewanee's Bill Craig 13-4.

Max Williamson of Maryville won by default in 15 seconds of the second period over Ed Giggs in the 157 lb. classification.

Don Hill, M.C.'s 167 pounder, was pinned by Arthur Trawakos in 2' 15" of the second period.

In the 177 lb. division Sewanee's John Girault decisioned Dale Patterson 4-1.

The Scots' Tom Axley lost on points to Bobby Cheer, 3-0.

In an exhibition heavyweight match Jack Emery decisioned John Hutchinson in a close one, 7-6.

AP POLL

San Francisco is still breezing along in front in college basketball. However, while the top teams continue knocking one another about without rhyme or reason, its hard to say who is second to the unbeaten Dons.

Illinois moved into the No. 2 spot in this week's Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters mainly because the other leading contenders managed to get beaten last week.

During the past week Louisville, which had been down in fourth place, knocked Dayton out of the runner-up spot. The Xavier of Cincinnati conked Louisville, and Dayton promptly smacked Xavier.

The standings of the top ten across the nation are as follows:

1. San Francisco (20-0)
2. Illinois (16-1)
3. Louisville (21-2)
4. Dayton (20-2)
5. Vanderbilt (18-2)
6. N. C. State (19-3)
7. Alabama (16-3)
8. Kentucky (16-4)
9. North Carolina (16-3)
10. Temple (19-1)

The UP poll differs in that the third and fourth positions are reversed, as are the fifth and sixth and eighth and tenth. Also SMU is in the seventh slot.

HOWIES TRIUMPH IN TOURNAMENT

With the Howies winning the basketball game on February 16, the Woman's Athletic Association closed the basketball tournament. The Howies won the tournament.

Last Tuesday, the association began swimming. The two teams will compete against each other and individually.

College Students Help Swell Air Coach Traffic To Record

BURBANK, Calif., Feb. 24—an estimated nine per cent of the nation's record-breaking air coach passenger traffic last year was composed of college and university students, it was disclosed today in a survey by North American Airlines.

The nation's largest independent airline reported that last year more students than ever used low-fare air coach for travel from home to campus, for home weekend and vacation visits.

Still other thousands have inquired either individually or through student groups concerning North American's plan to extend low-fare coach to Europe.

If given Civil Aeronautics Board approval, North American would begin flights between New York and the principal cities of Europe in April at rates averaging 4 cents a mile.

The trip from New York to Shannon would be $125 one way; to London, $140; to Paris, $146.50; Frankfort, $156, and Rome, $175. Existing air tourist rates are 43 to 53 per cent higher than fares planned by North American. Present one-way fares range from $261 to Shannon to $360.20 to Rome.

On its domestic routes, North American fares are 3.2 cents a mile. The one-way transcontinental fare is $80 from New York to Los Angeles. The contemplated 4 cents a mile charge in overseas operations is to allow for higher cost in transcontinental operation. Other air-lines charge as much as 8 cents a mile on trans-Atlantic air-tourist flights.

Students aware of this disparity have inquired why it costs twice as much to fly over salt water as it does over land? North American's answer has been that it should not and will not cost double if CAB permits it to begin trans-Atlantic service, and prove that lower-cost overseas travel is possible.

North American's planned rates are based upon intensive, economic studies and experience in flying Armed Forces personnel and dependents overseas under government contract. All together, North American has flown nearly one million passengers more than one and one-quarter billion passenger miles with a perfect safety record.

With growing nationwide support from college students and associations added to that from others of middle income and moderate means, North American hopes to add overseas operations to its growing list of contributions to air transportation.

North American's management led the way in developing the first U.S. low-fare air coach service ten years ago. Other airlines did not generally adopt low-fare flight until five years later. Today air coach accounts for nearly 40 per cent of all airline passenger traffic in the U.S. The saving to air passengers already has been tremendous but could be increased another $100 million annually if North American were permitted to extend its domestic service.

CIVIL SERVICE HAS POSITIONS OPEN

There is an urgent need for Chemists, Mathematicians, Metallurgists,, Physicists, and Electronic Scientists in the Washington, D. C., area, the United States Civil Service Commission has announced. Vacancies are in various Federal agencies and pay salaries ranging from $4,345 to $11,610 a year.

To qualify for positions paying $4,345 a year, applicants must have had appropriate education or a combination of education and experience.

Further information and application forms may be obtained at many post offices throughout the country, or by writing to the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washingon 25, D. C. Applicants should ask for Announcement No. 46(B). Applications will be accepted by the Board of U. C. Civil Service Examiners, National Bureau of Standards, Washington 25, D. C., until further notice.

Shop Early For A Summer Job If You Want To Be A Counsellor

By Sue Tourtellotte

May 22 seems a long way off to most of us as we plunge into the midst of a second semester of college life. But if you are the average Maryville student, you must also keep an eye to the future—the future which will loom upon you in a matter of three months. And it will certainly LOOM if you don't give some serious thought to what you will do with your next three months of vacation.

As students of a Christian college like Maryville, we may find many opportunities for practical and profitable summer employment. The following are just a few of the countless jobs to be had. Perhaps one of them is just what you are looking for, but if not, a little investigation on your own part should bring success.

Girl Scout Work

There is quite a demand for women counsellors in Girl Scout camps. In most cases no previous experience is required as there is a training period of a week. Most camp seasons in the Girl Scout camps last for about seven weeks. The usual requirements for application are a sincere interest in camping and an understanding of children who may be from seven to seventeen years old. Specific counsellors are needed as Unit leaders and assistants (Leaders must be 21, Assistants, 19), Waterfront directors who should be 21 and have their Red Cross Life Saving certificate or their Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's badge, and assistant waterfront directors who should be 18 and have their Senior Life Saving badge. There is also a need for those who are qualified to teach crafts or be dieticians or nurses. Besides the salaries which range from $75-$300 plus board, one may gain valuable experience in recreation and education. The bulletin board in Anderson Hall contains specific information concerning Girl Scout camps in Tennessee, Connecticut, Michigan and Georgia. However, there are Girl Scout camps in almost every state and the requirements are all similar.

Other Camps

Those of you interested in social work would find many opportunities at the College Settlement Farm Camp in Willow Grove, Pa. This camp is operated for underprivileged children from the Philadelphia area. Men and women counsellors are needed.

The Blue Ridge Assembly, which is a YMCA conference ground offers 75 jobs each year to college students. The jobs are of many types; stenographers, waitresses, life guards, craft instructors, store clerks, bell hops, and program assistants. The season extends from June 8 to Sept. 1 and it is a 48 hour week, including Sunday. A job at the Assembly affords play, study, work and worship as well as a reasonable salary.

If you have an interest in Christian ministry in our national parks, you should contact Rev. Mr. Pilsecker of the Maryville Lutheran church.

Men and women who are 19 and over and who wish camp jobs in North Carolina, South Carolina or Georgia may send for information to the Camp Counselor Placement Service, 425 E. Howard Street, Boone, North Carolina. Jobs are available as program directors, cabin and unit counselors, dietitians, nurses and boating and waterfront directors.

These are just a few suggestions for employment during the summer months. You need look no farther than your own community to find some job which will satisfy your needs, but now is the time to get busy and be assured of a definite position.

Advice On Planning Your Spring Wardrobe

By Jeanne Glnaven

The first thing a wise gal does in planning her spring wardrobe is to take stock of what she already has, and to write it down. When she goes on the buying spree, she must remember that the clothes she buys must coordinate in silhouette, color, in fabric, and type. She doesn't buy a slim coat if all her dresses are full-skirted and neither does she buy one with slim sleeves for a bulky suit.

As for colors, if her suit or coat is vivid, she'll buy her other clothes in quieter colors. Remember patterns and prints; too. Everyone loves a striped T-shirt, but not with a plaid skirt.

A fashion-conscious gal is an avid reader of fashion news. Fashions of 1956 are exciting and different. If she wants a full-skirted suit, the newest had wide, flat pleats. If she is looking for a straight coat, she sees about the new caftan version with slit sides or the slim coat with elbow-length cape. She also makes sure that the things she buys can do double-duty—the coat she wears for school may also go to church, and many of her accessories will have multiple uses, too.

Lastly, once she's planned her clothes strategy, she isn't sidetracked by every random attraction. She looks until she finds exactly the silhouette, color, and fabric she has decided on. And she's the best-dressed girl at college.

Dr. Lloyd, Miss Hunter Attend Area Council

Dr. Lloyd has just recently attended the meeting of the North American Area Council of the World Presbyterian Alliance held in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, from February 21 to February 23.

Since he is the North American Secretary, President Lloyd gave an Area Report on Tuesday. On Wednesday, he gave one of the afternoon addresses concerning ecumenical bodies.

Also attending the meeting in the capacity of a secretary was Miss Nancy Hunter, secretary to Dr. Lloyd.

Deutsche Gesellschaft Has Party In Y Rooms

At the Die Deutsche Gesellschaft party held last Monday evening in the Y rooms, Robert Krogh, Vice President, announced plans for the semester. Monday, February 27, entertainment plans include a German Quiz with contestants hurling questions and answers at each other.

The percentage of car-owning families having two or more cars has increased from 4.8 per cent in 1948 to 13.8 per cent in 1955.

SCOTS AND SODA . . .

world, Unite! You have the world to gain and nothing other than your chains to lose."

And so, out of this humble beginning The Student Council arose as the new protector of the interests of the common student.

VIVE LA STUDENT COUNCIL!

And now to treat the second question—"What are the functions of this Student Council?"

They have become the protector of student kind with their most famous publication DER M'EN BOOKEN. In this great documentary the laws which are designed to lead the common student to his place in eternity are codified. It provides punishments ranging from the ultimate—expulsion from the minor—to a mere deprivation of privileges for the rest of his life for the minor infractions. In this book they have laid down the rules of social conduct that are to be followed in this utopian society. As an example: "men must wear shirts while swimming and women must wear bathing caps." (That's all it says.)

By these and other rules the Student Council has hoped to provide the way for the common student to stay out of trouble, by practically limiting him to doing nothing but study.

Now, I Paul Proletarian urge you—"STUDENTS OF THIS LAND UNITE YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE BUT YOUR FREEDOM."

Hampton Edits 'College Annual'

Significant articles by outstanding American educators are featured in the 1956 "Small College Annual," edited by James W. Hampton, director of public relations at Maryville College. Published in the interests of the small, liberal arts colleges in the United States and designed for use by parents and guidance personnel, the magazine is attaining national recognition as an important source of reference.

In the forthcoming issue, which will be off the press this week, a Symposium of the types of colleges will be of paramount interest. The Case for Coeducation is presented by Dr. J. Gordon Howard, president of Otterbein College in Ohio; Dr. Paul S. Havens of Wilson College in Pennsylvania writes concerning the merits of the College for Women; Dr. J. Pendleton Caines Jr., president of Wofford College in South Carolina, discusses the men's college, and Donald Stophlet, of Rockford College in Illinois, presents an interesting case for the Coordinate college.

Another of the outstanding features is an article on Accreditation, prepared by Paul Napier, past president of the Association of College Admissions Counselors, in collaboration with Dr. Glenn McConagha, for ten years Director of the United States Armed Forces Institute.

Of vital significance is the Eighth Annual Listing of Recommended Small Colleges formerly featured for many years in the Annual Report on Small Colleges in "Good Housekeeping." This compact list, which presents up-to-the-minute statistics on location, enrollment, and costs at more than one hundred representative small colleges, is the only such listing published annually in the United States.

All news for the Echo should be turned in on the Wednesday before it is to be printed—preferably before noon.

Kappa Phi Has Dinner

Kappa Phi held its annual Spaghetti Dinner in commemoration of its eighty-eighth anniversary last Saturday night in the Y-rooms. The dinner which began at 6 p. m. was followed by a dinner dance.

The toastmaster for the occasion was Joe Williams, who introduced those who were responsible for the dinner. He first introduced Keith Ham and Joe Tropansky, co-chairmen of the dinner committee. He then presented Corita Erwin and Keith Ham who served as chefs for the occasion.

Joe then introduced J. B. Adams, president of Kappa Phi, who in turn recognized the guests of Kappa Phi: Mr. and Mrs. Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. Hening, Miss Dean Stiles and Mr. Newell Witherspoon. J. B. then read a copy of a letter which had been sent to Dr. Orr, Dr. Hunter, Dr. Queener, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Bushing and Mr. Howell, all of whom had been members of Athenian. This letter acknowledged hat their honorary membership had been transferred to Kappa Phi, its successor.

The next order of business was that of conferring honorary membership upon Mr. Ainsworth (in absentia); Mr. Hampton, public relations director; and Mr. Hening, college treasurer.

Nearly half (46 per cent) of all cars in the United States are parked outdoors overnight.

Glee Clubs To Have Jeans Drag Tonight

Sock Hop Will Be Tonight At 7:30

By Sue Tourtellotte

"On your mark, get ready, get set," every one to the annual Jean's Drag sponsored by the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, tonight from 7:30-10:15 in the Alumni Gymnasium. Tickets are 25c and are still available.

MC Don Thiel and Social Chairman Marian James have announced that it is to be a sock hop with square dancing to the music of the Stringbusters. A professional caller will also sing some popular songs.

Prizes

Girls are to make corsages for their dates and these are to be judged by the chaperones on the basis of the prettiest, the most original, and the funniest. Refreshments will be served.

Vols To See Slides By Rev. Symes

Student Vols will meet in Bartlett Hall Sunday night at 8:15.

The Rev. Richard Symes will be the guest speaker and will show colored slides on the program and activities of Dodge House in Detroit, Michigan. He is in charge of the summer recruitment program for Dodge House in addition to being in charge of the conferees.

Dodge House is a Presbyterian Agency conducting a winter and summer program in the factory section of Detroit. The summer program is a work-study program with students visiting such places as labor unions, auto factories, churches of all denominations, city planning commission, the Detroit Housing Commission, and other agencies. Its main objective is understanding problems of economic, social, educational, and religious significance.

Mr. Symes just returned from interviewing college students in the East for summer positions.

Saturday morning he will be available for students who wish to interview him. Sign-up sheets are posted outside the conference room in the chapel.

'Architectural Forum' Features MC Chapel

An article on the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel will appear in the April issue of "Architectural Forum," a leading magazine in the architectural field. Members of the magazine's staff visited the campus recently to photograph the building and to obtain the opinions of visitors and students regarding it.

It is not known how long the article will be.

MC Sophomore To Study Abroad

Miss Sue Nelson, a sophomore elementary education major from McRae, Ga., has been selected by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, USA, to spend her junior year studying in the Philippines.

She is one of three students from the United States who were chosen to study in Silliman University in Dumaguete on the island of Negros. She will begin her term there in June of this year and will continue until next March. After that she will either participate in a work camp in Thailand or tour Europe.

Miss Nelson first learned of the junior-year-abroad plan from Miss Margaret Flory at Montreat, N.C., last summer. She filed an application and was notified last week of her accentance.

Know Your Clubs: BUSINESS CLUB

By Don Adams

Guy Sneed mentioned recently something to the effect that it is oftentimes difficult to maintain a balance between the contemporary world outside and our own little college world.

This is especially true in the competitive field of business where classroom theory about it —is by no means the practice of a going business concern.

The Business Club of Maryville College is attempting to match students and the business world at first hand in however limited fashion. The purpose of the club, headed by President Bob McKean this semester, is to create interest in business and to familiarize members with aspects of business.

In line with a program concerning aspects of industry, marketing and selling, the Business Club has had frequent speakers; Mr. Hening spoke last week.

Films are also shown. Most important to first hand experience, however, are the yearly business trips to investigate and evaluate aspects of industry. Last year the club studied the tobacco market in and around Knoxville. This March 20th, ALCOA will be studied.

The president, vice president A. G. Chambers, secretary Joel Reeves and treasurer John Graves staff this year's slate of officers, while Mr. Newell Witherspoon and Mr. Robert Lynn are advisors.

The social program of the Business Club which meets every other Thursday evening, has included a dinner dance, and outings to the mountains.

Dr. Wade H. Boggs To Speak Here For Vespers

Dr. Wade H. Boggs, Jr., Professor of Bible and Christian Doctrine at the Presbyterian General Assembly's Training School in Richmond, Virginia, will lead Vespers tomorrow evening.

A Deputation Team from A.T.S., consisting of four students and Dr. Boggs, plans to be on campus today through Monday.

A.T.S. is maintained by the Presbyterian Church in the US to prepare men and women lay workers, for various departments of the church's work at home and abroad. Through the courses students are trained for service as Directors of Christian education, teachers of Bible in schools and colleges, workers with young people and children, home and foreign missionaries, pastor's assistants with education responsibilities, student workers, secretaries in church work, Sunday school extension workers,, and directors of church music and church organists.

Plans are being made for meetings with student groups here on the campus and also personal interviews and conferences.

The Vesper Choir will sing two anthems: "Come, My Way, My Truth, My Life" by Friedell and "Grant Unto Me the Joy of Thy Salvation" by Brahms.

Dr. Pradervand Coming As Chapel Speaker

Dr. Marcel Pradervand will be the chapel speaker March 15. Dr. Pradervand is the General Secretary of the Alliance of the Reformed Church Throughout the World holding the Presbyterian Order, the headquarters of which are in Geneva, Switzerland.

Dr. Pradervand, a Swiss minister, received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree in May, 1949, from Maryville College. He is in the United States for one month. He has just returned from a two-month tour of Austrlia, New Zealand, and other countries of the South Pacific area.

Miss Brown To Read Paper At Faculty Club

The Faculty Club will hold its meeting this coming Monday, March 5, at 7:30 in the Home Economics department. This time a paper will be presented by Miss Sally Brown, who teaches history. The subject of her paper is "What is a Southern Bourbon?" The paper is based on her thesis which was submitted at the University of Tennessee last summer. It is a discussion of the leading Bourbon men, in order to discover whether they really deserved the name Bourbon with which they were labeled by the Northern Press.

Ike To Run

Washington, Feb. 29—Against a background of high tension, President Eisenhower said that he would seek reelection. His statement was made at a news conference at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. The President indicated that he would enumerate his reasons for running again in television and radio talks to the nation.

VP?

Washington—As the President struggled with his decision to seek reelection, speculation as to who would be his running mate was the talk of the nation. Many Republican leaders favor dropping Nixon for a less controversial candidate; followers of the Vice President said, however, that they would oppose any such move. The President's feelings about the matter were not definitely known.

Railroad Tragedy

Swampscott, Mass., Feb. 28—In another tragic railroad accident, 13 persons were killed and 100 others were injured when two passenger trains bound for Boston were wrecked in a rear-end collision. A second accident occurred at Revere 90 minutes later injuring 20 persons, many of them survivors of the Swampscott tragedy.

Debate Team Goes To Tournament

Maryville's debating team is now participating in a tournament at Mississippi State Women's College in Columbus, Mississippi. This debate tournament is for the southwestern and southeastern United States and began yesterday.

The following debaters are taking part:

In the Senior division — Margaret Allen Hanna, Tom Paton, Graeme Sieber, and Marvelyn Rise.

In the Junior division — Margaret Paterson, Elenore Koster, Mary Coker, and Wendy Wood.

Keith Ham is in the following divisions: oratory, after dinner, oral interpretation, and radio speaking.

This tournament is different from former debating events in that only ratings of Superior, Excellent, Good, and Fair will be given. The ratings are determined by the debate coaches and faculty members of the respective colleges.

The Maryville College team has two more tournaments—one at Mary Washington College at Fredericksburg, Virginia—and one in the Pi Kappa-Delta Tournament in Cookville, Tennessee.

It is hoped that Maryville will have the U.T. debate team here next week.

Playhouse To Present 'Beyond The Horizon' Friday And Saturday

Bogia, Briggs, And Dixon Star

By Ann Wiley and Bill Deerfield

Preston Bogia, Catherine Briggs, and Mervyn Dixon will star in the forthcoming production of Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon," to be presented by the Maryville College Playhouse, under the direction of Miss Kathleen Craven, on March 9 and 10 at 8:00 in the Theatre.

Bogia, a senior English major from Newport, Del., will portray Robert Mayo; Miss Briggs, a freshman home economics major from Maplewood, New Jersey, will portray his wife, Ruth; and Dixon, a sophomore biology major from Mt. Holly, New Jersey, will portray Andrew Mayo, Robert's brother.

The supporting cast is as follows: Sadie Davis, Mrs. Mayo; John Ribble, Mr. Mayo; Sylvia Smith, Mrs. Aikins; and Richard Crowder as Uncle Dick.

Synopsis

The action of the play centers about Robert Mayo, a sensitive young man with consumptive tendencies, who, as the play opens, is about to realize the life long dream of leaving his father's farm for a sea voyage with his uncle. Before he leaves, however, he impulsively tells Ruth, his brother's sweetheart, that he loves her and that he felt he had to tell her before he left. He is surprised to learn that she loves him too, and although he is very unsuited for farm life, Robert yields to Ruth's pleadings to marry her and give up his dream. When he reveals this sudden change in his plans to his parents they are overjoyed, but his brother, Andy, too crushed by the fact of Ruth's love for Robert, and realizing he could never stay to watch their happiness, insists on taking Robert's place on his uncle's ship although in his heart he loves the farm.

Within a month of their marriage, Ruth realizes that she loves Andy and has made a terrible mistake. As the years pass she grows to hate Robert, whose gross incompetence is ruining his father's prosperous farm. The situation is intensified by the death of Mr. Mayo, the interference of Ruth's mother (a nagging, bitter invalid) and the presence of their small daughter Mary, who becomes a source of petty bickering.

The couple attempts to cover up marital difficulties when Andy, who has become a success after three years in Argentina; but after he leaves the situation becomes worse as the incompatibility of their personalities drives them further and further apart and, ever closer to physical and spiritual deterioration.

In the course of the play little Mary, Robert's one hope of happiness dies, and a final tragic note comes when Andy returns, financially ruined, to find Robert suffering of tuberculosis. He dies, despite a frantic attempt to get him proper medical care,

Mop-Slinging Girls Are Achieving Minor Miracles In Dorm Rooms

By Paula Kronenberg

"Watch out for that mop and don't walk on the clean floor." . . . "You mean all of that came out of our room?". . . "Grab the broom roomie—this place looks like the dust bowl.". . . "These rugs are the worst!—think we ought to wash 'em?". . . "Now that we've cleaned it up I hate to move back in," . . . "Wait until the housemother sees this place. She'll flop from the shock!"

For the first time in weeks judging by the before and after views of the rooms) a small amount of elbow grease has been applied by the girls of MC. Small amount? Let's not kid ourselves—this is real work. Have you ever tried moving a dresser containing a year's supply of cosmetics, souvenirs, and—yes—clothes? Now you begin to get the picture.

Most of the cleaning and rearranging has already been done, but you can be sure that this afternoon will find hair tucked behind scarves, blue jeans rolled up, and mops flying, as the slow starters get into the swing of things. The halls take on the appearance of obstacle courses, the rooms resemble the aftermath of a small tornado, and the girls remind one of a string of overcooked spaghetti. But oh, the results!—and they're all for your viewing during the Big Day tomorrow. Big Day?— why, didn't you know the spring cleaning and open house occur sumultaneously at MC? Come up to see us sometime between 2:30 and 4:30. We will be ready for you as soon as we get the mops put up.

Dr. Lloyd To Be In NY

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd plans to travel to New York City next week to attend several meetings.

Monday through Wednesday he will be at the meeting of the General Council of the Presbyterian Church USA. Thursday he will be at the meeting of the Permanent Commission on Inter-Church Relations. Friday, March 9, he will attend the joint emeting of the Commission and a committee from the United Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Ferris Speaks To Pre-Med Club

By Joe McNeal

Last Monday, February 27, Dr. Dorothy Ferris, head of the Francis Newton hospital in Ferozepore, India, spoke to the members and guests of the pre-med club. Her talk centered around the development of India's two Christian medical schools. Building around this central theme, she told an inspiring story of the heroic and selfless dedication of a few Christian scientists working against almost incredible obstacles to bring a ministry of healing and Christian understanding to a nation where ignorance, disease, and famine are commonplace afflictions.

Dr. Ferris is a Maryville College graduate. She took her medical studies at the University of Cincinnati, and she holds MB and MD degrees. During her work in India, she has taken an active part in the development of the two Christian medical schools there, one in the north and one in the south. In her talk she told of many of the difficultics the two colleges have faced in the past and which they must face in the future.

An important point in Dr. Ferris' speech was the terrible shortage of medical facilities in India and the lack of trained medical personnel. In India there is one doctor to 7000 people—an overall figure (in the country the ratio drops to one to 20,000 people). The shortage of nurses and technicians is just as acute, Dr. Ferris stated. The poor medical facilities are a challenge to even the strongest-hearted medical practicioner.

It is to help alleviate a part of the equipment shortage, particularly at Ferozepore, that the Fred Hope Funds have been directed for the last few years.

Readers In Workshop To Be Deerfield, Nollner

Bill Deerfield and Faith Nollner will read in Writers Workshop Monday at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Their critics will be Sadie Davis and Clara Gowans.

On Monday March 12 Barbara Wilkie and Adlai Boyd will read. Their critics will be Jim Laster and Nancy Kotz.

At the last workshop meeting John Graulich read a poem and a meditation, which were criticized by Jim Hopkins. Dave Williams read a science-fiction short story, which was criticized by Carol Sleight.

Vesper Speaker March 11 To Be Dr. Glenn Moore

Dr. Glenn W. Moore, Secretary of the General Council of the Presbyterian Church USA, will be the Vesper speaker Sunday evening, March 11, in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, at 7:00.

Now We Have The Real Facts—Yes-The Real Truth About Leap Year

By Mary Ann Morris

"Leap year!" These are two words that are music to the ears of any young girl. But how many of you know how leap year really started? Some people erroneously think that Caesar, in 46 B. C. revised the calendar, adding a day every four years to take care of each year's extra one-fourth day, and that Pope Gregory revised this in 1582 A. D. But the real facts have recently been uncovered, and the truth can now be told.

Thousands of years ago, a few centuries after Adam and Eve, there lived a cave-man named Melvin McKnocknees. Melvin was a great hunk of a man, strong, and not afraid of man or beast. But there was one thing that Melvin feared, and that one thing was marriage—in the person of Abigail Leap. Abigail Leap had loved Melvin for 27 years. She had slyly hinted of her feelings by cooking him such delicacies as fried dinosaur hump, and boiled equidae legs, and stewed skink; but Melvin ate and went on his merry way, with never a word of marriage This continuous situation was the joke of the firesides.

A New Method

Abigail began to realize that things were not going her way, and she woke up one day, at the first of the 28th year, and decided that Melvin was going to marry her before the second month had gone by. The news got around, and this new development got a bigger laugh than Melvin's stubbornness and Abigail's persistence.

Abigail ignored all the laughter, however, and very quietly shut herself in her cave and refused to come out. Melvin first learned of this when hunger pains struck him. At first this didn't bother him, for his friends,, applauding his stand for freedom, kept him fed. Then it began to dawn on him that, although the food supplied him was good, it was not the best Abigail had been an excellent cook. Melvin lost weight and acquired a gaunt and hungry look, but refused to give in. And Abigail refused to budge.

The day finally came when Mel-

Better Publicity Needed

Recently fifty-two high-school students visited the Maryville campus as part of a tour they were making to various colleges. Their visit was arranged through the Public Relations Office here, but few Maryville students knew who the group was or where it came from until after it had gone.

At least four Maryville students live quite near the town in New Jersey from which the bus load of boys and girls came. Perhaps they might have known some of these visitors and would have welcomed a chance to see them.

The Public Relations Office has announced that more touring high-school groups are expected to stop at Maryville this spring. It would be a very good thing if more publicity could be given before the groups come, so that college students from those towns might be given a chance to talk with them. Merely showing prospective students around campus is not enough. There should be more personal ways of publicizing the college. Would not college students be the most logical ones to turn to for this?

The Highland Echo, a publicity medium which reaches all Maryville students, tries to keep up with the news as it happens, and it likes to inform students of events that are about to happen. However, it is often the case that publicity concerning the college is released to all the surrounding newspapers but fails to reach The Highland Echo. This is usually not the fault of the Echo editors and reporters, who have assignments covering the Public Relations Office for every issue. Perhaps there can be a better setup in the future which will insure more adquate coverage. It is good to tell others about the college, but it is also good to let students know what may be going on in their midst.

—B.W.

The Cult Of The Well-Rounded

There is tendency in our educational system to keep everyone on the same level. In college particularly students get the impression that they are expected to maintain high standards in a very wide variety of activities. We have often heard it said that each of our teachers thinks that his is the only class as far as giving out assignments is concerned, and yet if our teachers were questioned on this, they would undoubtedly agree that we shouldn't spend all of our time studying. This paradoxical situation holds just as true in the field of extra-curricular activities. We are urged to come out and "support the team", to help decorate for the dance, to be in the cast of the show, to date, keep posted on the latest novels, plays, and national sports events, while maintaining a scholastic average that is above the level of disgraceful.

What we actually have is a "cult of the well-rounded" individual Every one is urged by parents, teachers, and friends to be "well-rounded." We may succeed in being "rounded" by dabbling in a dozen different activities, but actually it is only the very brilliant and talented that succeed in being really well-rounded.

There is a danger that in these efforts to be "well rounded" none of us will excel in anything, and we will become so many mediocre, "rounded" billard balls. To become expert in any field requires endeavored sacrifice The great lover cannot be a great scholar; the great musician cannot be a great athlete.

If we look at the record of history we will find that a great many of those individuals who have contributed most to human progress were not "well rounded". If they were in our midst, they would be classed as "fanatics" or at least distastefully narrow by the proponents of the cult. Joan of Arc would probably neglect her studies in favor of church work, Edgar Allan Poe would probably avoid the locker room, while Babe Ruth would, undoubtedly, rather play baseball than read a book or attend a play.

When we are in our early years perhaps it is wise to try our hand at many things so as to discover where our talents lie. Once having discovered them, however, it might be better to develop those gifts we have to the highest possibl degree even at the expense of being excluded from the ranks of the "well rounded."

Scots & Soda

By Joanne Causey

Just Plain Bilge or, Happiness Is Just Around the Corner (of Anderson)—A Soap Opera.

Episode One

Rinso White is a freshman at Maryville. Her roommate Cyclops, is a delicate lass with shoulders like a football player, a height which makes it necessary for her to bend over in order to enter their room, and feet which require the butchering of a cow to provide the leather for each shoe. Needless to say, diminutive Rinso can't wear Cyclops' clothes. She is crushed with grief. One of her cherished illusions has been shattered because she has always dreamed of the day when she could enter college and wear her roommate's clothes. After all, what are roommates for?

As the episode ends with the organ playing "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," Rinso is heard sobbing and eating chocolate ripple ice cream from the Student Center.

Episode Two

Rinso finds happiness temporarily with her roommate Cyclops when she finds out that she brought with her to college a T.V. set, a clock-radio, a Hi-Fi record player, a typewriter, and a hair dryer like those in beauty parlors. Rinso has thoughtfully contributed a huge aquarium full of her prized guppies and 12 African parrots. (Rinso just LOVES birds.) The two girls have much in common—they both love chocolate ripple ice cream.

Both girls try out for many activities on campus. Our heroine has her little heart set on making the clean-up committee for the Tightrope Walker's Club. Alas, she fails the entrance test—shoveling a ton of coal in five minutes. To make her disappointment even keener, Cyclops succeeds in making the football team—and not just the squad, either, but quarterback on the starting line-up. When Cyclops wins the homecoming game over I.C.U. and is carried out on the shoulders of the spectators, Rinso feels lonely and lost in the crowd. Her roommate is now a campus hero and has no time for her little friend. Oh, cruel world!

Organ plays "None But the Lonely Heart" and Rinso's sobs are heard mingling with the sound of a nickle dropping in the coke machine. She intends to drown her sorrows in coke.

Episode Three

The dorm catches fire and the alert Maryville Fire Department quickly extinguishes the blaze. The only room affected is Rinso's—everything in it was burned to a crisp except her gym suits, thank fortune! Since Cyclops is away for the week-end on a football trip, none of her clothes are damaged.—She has them all with her. Rinso is destitute in the COLD, COLD world.

Rinso's plaintive voice is heard warbling "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Episode Four

Our orphan girl finds happiness for a while in the arms of Cecil B. DeMaul. One night in Bainonian Parlor he slips a ring with a beautiful pure granite stone on her finger. Ah, the ecstasy of it all! Has our girl found lifetime bliss? Alas, the next day in lab she drops the ring in her chemistry experiment and it vanishes forever, leaving only a bubble behind it. When Rinso tells Cecil, he says his love vanished with the ring, and strides off into the golden sunset with his tennis racquet under his arm. He doesn't even give her a farewell handsake. Rinso fights back her tears and keeps a stiff upper lip—which doesn't help her appearance any.

As the episode ends, Rinso's sweet voice is heard reciting "Crossing the Bar," with organ music in the background.

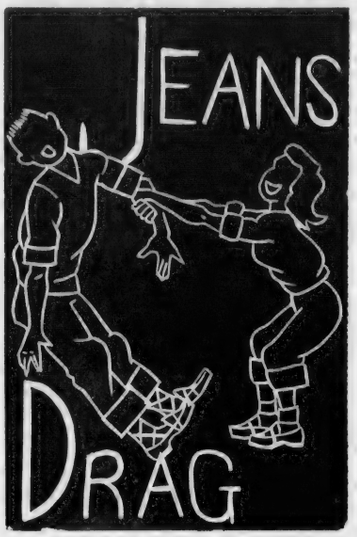
Episode Five

This semester Rinso finds real happiness. She is elected to the kitchen committee—an honor which she has long wished for. And she meets Bilge who sits in her chapel row. She knew him casually in the bird watcher's club, but their love really began one morning when he came in late to his seat in the middle of their row, stepping shyly on her toes. This went on for several romantic weeks until one day she got up her courage and gaily kicked him in the shin. That did it. He asked her to walk over to the library with him to return an over-due book. From then on they were always seen together: Rinso always went with Bilge to deliver the mail in Carnegie and Bilge always went with Rinso to her modern dancing class. They enjoyed bird walks together in the college woods. Neither will ever forget the day they simultaneously sighted a yellow-throated gargler. And then one day he gave her the complete works of Audubon which, of course, meant they were engaged.

Theirs will be a June wedding with Cyclops ushering. Yes, life CAN be beautiful at Maryville.

Organ music plays "On Highlanders Down the Field.'

ECHO FORUM—



Dr. Ferris And The Fred Hope Fund

By Sonny Shackelford,
President of the Student Body

Dr. Dorothy Ferris, who visited our campus for several days last week, gave us a better understanding of the work and position of the Frances Newton Hospital. Her presence incited a new enthusiasm in that work in India and brought to our minds a wonderful feeling as we have a part in the Fred Hope Fund Drive.

As of February 20 the Fred Hope Fund pledges totaled 427. The amount of subscriptions stands at $2,026.85, considerably more than the $1200.00 set as a goal by this year's Fred Hope Fund Board. At the present time $1066.65 of the subscriptions has been received. One check of $600 has already been sent to the Board of Foreign Missions for Dr. Ferris' work and a similar one will be sent later. The $400 presented to her in chapel Wednesday is intended to be over and above the original goal of $1200. Everyone is urged to follow-up his pledge and complete payment as soon as possible. The next opportunity will be March 10 and 12 when a table will be set up in Anderson. However, payments can be made at any time in the Student Help Office.

TALK OF THE WEEK By Sue Settle

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Betty Anne Springstead

Yawn.

We have had a momentary glance of premature spring, as evidenced by 'bat and balls', jacks, and the ever popular yoyo. The American College Dictionary speaks of yoyos in this way; "a toy, consisting of a round, flat-sided block of wood with a groove around the edge, in which a string is wound. The yoyo is spun out and reeled in by the string, one end of which remains attached to the child's finger." Need I say more?

Lowering ourselves from this type of culture which is typical of college students of great intelligence, shall we think about something as lowly as movies? "All That Heaven Allows" is playing Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol. At the same theater on Thursday and Friday will be "Man With a Gun." And I have a special scoop that will make everyone want to cut their Saturday afternoon classes to see it. "Break to Freedom" will be showing.

For those of you who have advanced so far that you know that you like colored comics better than black and white ones, maybe your artistic spark is there, just waiting for the right moment. Why not start with something that you can at least recognize? There is a very interesting exhibit, down at the fine arts center, of Japanese color prints by Utamara and Hokusai. In my unlearned opinion. Utamara does on excellent job on Japanese women, and Hokusai does an even better job with lightening flashing before a mountain. If you get really interested in these prints, and would like to know what they are all about, there are books set out right there, with the display. Two of the more promising seem to be Japanese Color Prints, by L. Benyon and J. J. Simon, and The Floating World, by James Michener.

And when we speak of books, our minds go to the ever popular library. Take time out from your research themes, special studies, and outside reading to look at the Dictionary of the English Language, by Samuel Johnson, on display there. If you have the chance, look up some words, such as "awful", "cough", and "oats". Be careful though, evidently its an old book, and should be handled carefully.

I think that Ben Stabley's radio program should be mentioned in a culture column such as this is. It is a good program, and the guest "star" this week was Elizabeth Murphey. Who knows? "They may even have a sponser."

Sorry to have kept you so long from your yoyos. Spring is coming, and you had better hurry if you are going to learn 'around the world' in time.

Well, yawn, guess I'll go build a snowman.

Mary Brasfield To Give Recital

Mary Alice Brasfield, an organ major from Butler, Mo., will give her major senior recital on Tuesday, March 6, in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center. The program, starting at 8:00, will consist of four pieces by J. S. Bach: Toccata; Adagio and Fugue in C Major; wo soll ich fliehen hin, Mein Seele Erhebet den Herrn, and Kommst du Nun; Jesus von Himmel herunter.

Miss Brasfield will also play Fugue in C Major by Dietrich Buxtehude, Chorale in A minor by Cesar Franck, Toccota on Ave Maria Stella by Marcel Dupre, and Passacaglia from Symphony in G Major for organ by Leo Sowerby. This program will be a consumation of her past four years' of work for Miss Brasfield. Her plans for next year are to be the organist in a church.

The organ in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall has been recently tuned and should be in top shape for Miss Brasfield's recital.

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Evans

As far as I am concerned, the sports-world is at present in that in-between-time when winter sports are over or in their last throes and spring sports have not yet begun. There's nohing much to do at present but re-hash games from the winter season or look with hopeful expectation toward the spring. So, shall we do some re-hashing and looking around.

Grapplers Finish Fourth In Tournament

That of the past week which is most prominent in our minds is undoubtedly the SIW Tournament which was held last Friday and Saturday at Sewanee. In this tournament Maryville, in the personage of "Booty" Miller, appears to have made history in that "Booty" is the first wrestler who has ever won his weight division for three successive years in any conference tournament. "Booty", indeed, deserves hearty congratulations for his performance, as also does Jerry Waters, who for the second consecutive year emerged champ of his division. Also Jim Cummings and Don Nabors, only a sophomore, took second place in their respective divisions.

Hoopsters Win Last Game of Season

The season ended for the basketball squad on a very promising note. Not in that they won the last game, but that rookies and comparatively inexperienced players finally broke into the scoring column in a big way. At the start of the season and for that matter for the greater part of it, Bill Wallace was consistently the high scorer of the team by a large margin. Now, I do not mean to take anything away from Bill's ball-playing which certainly has been a big asset to the squad all season. However, I certainly was encouraged to see Jim Gregory get 11 points in the Chattanooga game, 19 in the Wesleyan game and ten points in the Carson-Newman game. John West scored 15 points in the Emory game ad 20 in the Wesleyan game. Also such rookies as Gayle Ferguson and Earl Smith came through with 14 and 8 points respectively, in the last game of the season.

For a while a team can get by with a high scorer whom the whole team "feeds". However, opposing teams soon "get wise" to such a mode of attack and can stem off an offensive threat by double-teaming the high scorer. But at the close of the season it looked as though Maryville would be able to start a whole team next year, any one of whom will be capable of hitting in double figures consistently.

Stinkin' Shoe Classic

I personally think that Alpha Sig did a very commendable job and Kappa Phi did a very poor job in substituting during the Stinkin' Shoe Game. Sig played all of its 22 team members for several minutes of each half. Although Kappa Phi played all of their members but one, most of the subs were in for only a very short time. This is clearly shown by the fact that about 70% (15 of the 22) of the Sigs scored, whereas only 41% (7 out of 17) of the Phis scored.

Congratulations to the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers, who won the A league championship and also the Pre-Min Hurricanes, who copped first division in the B league tournament.

Sports In The Near and Distant Future

Coach Honnaker announced his grid slate for 1956 which included nine scheduled games with the possibility of a tenth. Two new opponents appeared on next fall's roster. They are the Eagles of Morehead State in Morehead, Kentucky, and the Bulldogs of Tennessee Wesleyan Colleg in Athens, Tennessee.

This spring promises to be a very busy one in the sports world. There will be baseball, tennis, two weeks of spring football and now there is the flicker of hope on the horizon that there might be a track team.

AS I SEE IT. . .

By John West

As I see it, our basketball team has had a rather mediocre season. Although our record is not impressive, I do not think it truly indictive of the type of ball we have played. We have lost quite a few games by very close margins. In fact we have lost 4 or 5 games by an edge of not over 6 points, but winning the close ones is part of the game. Here are some of the vital statistics of the games this year.

Our opponents have scored a total of 1422 points as compared to 1344 for Maryville College. This is not quite 4 points per game more than the Scots, which seems small compared to the number of games we won and lost, which was 7 wins and 18 defeats. At the free throw line Maryville holds quite an edge having attempted a total of 697 and connecting with 424 which is about 61 per cent. The opponents attempted 519 and connected with 267 which is 57 per cent. By the above statistics you can see that Maryville fell behind on its field goals.

The Scots leading scorer was Bill "Punchy" Wallace who hit for a total of 385 points and an average of 19.250 per game. He was followed by three other members who had from 7 to 9 point average per game.

Looking into the future, the team should have a better balanced squad. Out of the 12 man squad we only lose one by graduation. This is Chuck Dunn. Although Chuck is a senior, this was his first year out for basketball. Chuck played some fine ball even though a first year man. This is shown in his 13 point performance in the Carson-Newman game which was a game packed with excitement.

One of the highlights of the season was the 80 to 69 victory over Tennessee Wesleyan College. After being defeated by a 85 to 63 margin on our home floor, TWC was upset by a high spirited Maryville College squad. I don't think the Carson-Newman game can be left out because it was a game which was filled with excitement and had the fans sitting on their toes most of the last half. This one ended in a very extraordinary fashion, but the Scots did not fall behind.

In one way this season was a successful one. Not by the won and lost column, but the team gained much needed experience which is necessary to have a winning team.

Let us all look forward to a beter season next year and now turn to a spring of baseball.

Hoopsters End Season With Win Over C-N

Team Is Starting Tennis Warmups

The Highlander tennis team is currently engaged in warm-ups preparing for the start of the season, three weeks from today. Tentative ladder positions were drawn out of a hat and soon the team will start a round of ladder matches to determine which six players will face the University of Tennessee's Tennis Squad on March 24 at U-T's courts.

Squad has Female Aspirant

The "veterans" who are returning from last year are Charlie Partee, Stan Mont, Sonny Shackelford, Doug Brian, Dave Williams and Bruce Ingles. They will be bolstered by such "new blood" as Joanne Causey, Ted Engle, Charlie Garrison and Don Newroth.

The following is the tennis schedule, all the meets of which are definite at the present time except the meets against Milligan and East Tennessee State on April 23 and 24:

March 24 UT away
March 31 UT here
April 4 Tenn. Wesleyan away
April 6 LMU here
April 7 Sewanee here
April 9 ETS here
April 14 CEN here
April 23 Milligan away
April 24 ETS away
April 30 C-N away
May 2 Chattanooga away

Alpha Sig Downs Kappa Phi 100-78

The Alpha Sig Globetrotters and the Kappa Phi All-Stars clashed in their annual basketball battle of the Stinkin' Shoe Classic on Saturday night. Sig emerged victorious, 100-78.

Pre-Game Show

The Sig Trotters put on an impressive and enjoyable pre-game show to the delight and enjoyment of all the fans. The squad came onto the court through a huge paper hoop, in typical Globetrotter fashion. The team was arrayed in a wide assortment of pajamas and gyrated around the gym in a passing drill to the strains of "Sweet Georgia Brown," the Globetrotter theme song.

Trotters Gain Early Lead

In the opening minutes of the game the Trotters built up an impressive ten point lead. However, Kappa Phi soon caught them and at the half Sig led by the slim margin of 41-40.

In the second half Sig poured on steam and slowly but steadily built up a considerable lead. They really brought pressure to bear in the last five minutes of play, scoring twenty points and hitting the century mark. The Trotters left the floor with a 100-78 victory in their pockets.

Morris Leads Trotters

Nimble Tom Morris, who, strangely enough, was not a starter, led the Trotters in the scoring department with 20 big points. Guy Selander, captain of the squad, was "rather warm" scoring 18 points. Bill Strickland and Bob Ramger bucketed 12 and 10 points respectively.

Set-shot-artist Jim Marsh was top tallier for Kappa Phi with 18 points. Bob Muir with 14 tallies and Joe Williams and Jim Gardner with 11 and 10 points aided Phi's efforts.

In Russia they're trying to cross a photo of Perry Como with a sportcaster, and if they're successful they'll get a Red Barber.

Intramurals....

By Jim Conklin

The Intramural Basketball season came to a close on Monday night with the final game in the A League tournament, being played in the Alumni Gym. In this game the Alpha Sig Sledgehammers defeated the Y Flyers 47-44. It was a good close ball game all the way with the Sledgehammers managing to maintain a several point lead right up to the final buzzer, which ended the game.

The B League Champions of this season are the Pre-Min Hurricanes, who defeated the Rockets 45-40. Congratulations to these two teams who are their respective league champions and also to all the teams in both leagues for a good season.

Volleyball

Even before the final basketball game was over the first volleyball games of the present season had been played. As of now there have been too few games played to have any tabulation on team standings, but it looks as if there will be several teams fighting for first place.

Wrestling

On Thursday and Friday the Intramural wrestling tournament was held. The results were not known before the Echo was printed so they will be in another issue.

Softball

Even though volleyball is the present Intramural sport, let's not forget that it won't be long until the softball season gets under way. This is one sport that just about every fellow goes out for, so we're looking forward to a lot of good ball games this spring. Just don't try to rush the season and ruin your arm in this cool, changeable weather.

Wrestlers Win Fourth Place In SIW Tourney

Maryville's Wrestling Squad emerged in about the middle of the heap at the Southeastern Invitational Wrestling Tournament at Sewannee last Friday and Saturday.

The Scotties amassed 44 points, which were good enough for a fourth place. Auburn took first place honors with 60 points. Emory University was a very close second with 56 points. The third slot was filled by Chattanooga with 48 points. With 43 points, was hot on the heels of Maryville. Sewanee and Tusculum fitted the sixth and seventh slots with 32 and 8 points respectively.

There were three rounds of wrestling, which, for the layman, means that those who went to the finals had to wrestle three matches in two days. And, there was even a few wrestlers who had to wrestle four times in the two-day span.

The following are the winners in each division tournament:

115 lb.—Dick Sams (E)
123 lb.—Jerry Waters (M)
130 lb.—Booty Miller (M)
137 lb.—Howard Harley (E)
147 lb.—Vic Maldorado (A)
157 lb.—Jerry Embry (A)
167 lb.—Arthur Tranahos (S)
177 lb.—John Dyer (t)
191 lb.—Ed Davis (V)
HW—Abe Cohen (C)

Also Jim Cummings copped a second place in the 137 lb. division, Don Nabors a second in the 147 lb. division and Tommy Tom a fourth in the 115 lb. classification.

Grid Slate Announced By Coach Honaker

Coach Lombe Honaker announced the Maryville College football schedule for 1956 on Monday of this week:

Sept. 15, Morehead (Ky.) at Maryville; 22, open; 29, Centre (Ky.) at Danville, Kentucky.

Oct. 6, East Tennessee at Johnson City; 13, Emory and Henry at Maryville; 20, Tennessee Wesleyan at Athens; 27, Howard (Ala.) Maryville homecoming.

Nov. 3, Jacksonville State at Maryville; 10, Concord (W. Va.) at Maryville; 17, Carson-Newman at Jefferson City.

Honaker said he hopes to fill his only open date, Sept. 22.

Scotties Split Last Two Games

In their last two games of the current campaign the Highlanders came up with a loss to Lincoln Memorial University and a victory over Carson-Newman, their age old rivals.

MC Bows to LMU

The Lincoln Memorial Railsplitters closed out their basketball season last Saturday night with a 90-60 victory over the Scotties.

LMU took the lead from the outset, leading at halftime 46-26.

Wallace Leads Scots

Forward Don Burton with 35 points paced the Railsplitters to victory, while Captain Bill Wallace with 27 tallies was high point man for the Scots.

Highlanders Edge Out Eagles

On Monday night the Carson-Newman Eagles fell before a determined Highlander squad by the slim margin of one point. The Scotties closed out their regular season with a thrilling 68-65 triumph over the Eagles.

Maryville led 40-30 at the half. The Eagles closed the gap at the start of the second half to make the remainder of the game a see-saw battle which was not decided until the final seconds.

Ferguson, Dunn are on Top

Gayle Ferguson, a reserve, bucketed 14 points to pace the Scottie attack while Ayres had 16 for the visitors. Chuck Dunn and Jim "Kangaroo" Gregory helped the cause with 13 and 10 points respectively.

UP and AP Polls

The University of Alabama, near champion of the strong Southeastern Conference and victor over Kentucky last week by 101-77, pulled an upshot in both the United Press and Associated Press weekly basketball polls.

The Crimson Tide bolted from eleventh place to sixth in the UP Ratings and climbed three notches to fourth in the AP list.

Elsewhere in the polls, undefeated San Francisco stayed on top everywhere. Illinois, dropped to number three by the UP selectors, held onto second place in the AP standings.

The United Press college basketball ratings:

1. San Francisco (21-0)
2. Dayton (22-2)
3. Illinois (17-2)
4. N. C. State (21-3)
5. Louisville (22-3)
6. Alabama (17-4)
7. Southern Methodist (21-2)
8. North Carolina (17-4)
9. Iowa 14-5.
10. UCLA (17-5)

The Associated Press college basketball ratings:

1. San Francisco
2. Illinois
3. Dayton
4. Alabama
5. North Carolina State
6. Louisville
7. Vanderbilt (19-3)
8. North Carolina
9. Southern Methodist
10. Iowa

Did you hear about the guy who therw a bar of soap at his mirror and had seven years of bad lux.

Athletic Dept. May Begin Track

At the present time there is the possibility that Maryville may field a ttrack team this spring.

Coach K. P. Johnson said, "Whether or not we will field a track team this spring rests entirely on whether meets can be scheduled." He went on to say, "Certainly enough students have shown interest in track for a team to be formed." Coach Johnson said, that all concerned are very optimistic about the possibility of a track team.

Those who have shown an interest in track are the following: Bib Higgert, Mert Hall Walt Woodhall, Don Hill, Bruce Ingles and Charlie Garrison, who will probably run the 100, 200, 440 and broad jump. Tom Dolch is interested in hurdling. Don Vandenberg and Joe Williams who are interested in running the half mile, mile and two mile events.

Merv Dixon and Jim Gregory will do the high jumping. Bill Strickland will put the shot and throw the discus and javelin. Jerry Waters and Ed Drum will handle the pole vaulting chores. Coach Johnson also encourages any other interested trackmen to either contact him or turn out for practice.

At the present time Coach Johnson has meets with Tusculum, Milligan and Bryan tentatively planned. He said that all meets are pending the approval of the respective schools.

Dr. Dorothy Ferris Tells Of Her Work In The Frances Newton Hospital

By Don Adams

Dr. Dorothy Lee Ferris, director of the Frances Newton Hospital in Ferozepore, India, spoke at the morning Chapel services Tuesday and Wednesday.

At the Wednesday morning service Edgar Shackelford, president of the student body, presented Dr. Ferris with a special gift of $200 for the hospital. The check for the amount is over and above the pledged amount for the year which is two thirds complete with $1200 collected.

Ethelyn Cathey, and Mary Carol Coker, presidents of YWCA and Student Volunteers respectively, conducted a devotional service.

Dr. Ferris, a 1928 graduate of Maryville College and the Medical College of the University of Cincinnati, depicted conditions and human problems in Northern India.

The Frances Newton Hospital is five miles from the 1947-created border of Pakistan.

She reviewed the struggles of thousands of people, Moslem and Hindu alike, who have turned for aid and healing to the hospital, the most modern of its kind in the northern provinces.

She told about the ceaseless work it required and still requires to acquire even the most elementary necessities; the materials with which to build and maintain this hospital for women and children where not long ago deadly rioting and floods endangered lives throughout the border region.

Dr. Ferris, a medical missionary for twenty years, emphasized the great advances and help to the hospital, Maryville College students of many college generations have provided with the benefits of the annual Fred Hope Fund. Badly needed, much used surgical and operating room equipment were made possible by contributions to the Fred Hope Fund. A new student-supported nurses dormitory is rising near the hospital.

Remember–It's Jeans Drag Day

By Jeanne Ginaven

Well, boys, that day is almost here! In fact, today's the day! Be sure and be ready on time, because a girl doesn't like to be kept waiting. And be sure you know the correct way to wear a corsage!

You may wear anything you like, within reason — preferably jeans or levis. Girls also may wear jeans or levis, or a skirt and blouse if you like. Girls, if your fella is wearing jeans and you are, too, get yourselves shirts to match! You'll see lots of couples there who had the same idea, too.

Come and wear your best hillbilly clothes!

Marines Announce Training Program

-A new flying program for college undergraduates was announced today by the Marine Corps.

To be known as the Platoon Leaders Class (Aviation), its major features will be that members belong to it at the same time they attend college and are guaranteed flight training as officers immediately upon graduation from college. No Marine Corps training takes place during the college year, however.

Information may be obtained from Marine recruiting stations, reserve units, and Marine Corps Headquarters, Washington 25, D. C.

Now We Have . . .

vin was too weak to lift his club. He had to admit then that he needed Abigail's cooking, and if he had to marry her to get it—he would! He dragged his wasted body to her cave door, and weakly surrendered. He hadn't the strength to bash her on the head and drag her away by the hair, as was the custom, but this didn't bother Abigail. She merely slung him over her shoulder and carried him in her cave for a good home-cooked meal.

That's The Way It Was

The watching crowd was astounded, but managed a cheer, which abruptly hushed as they realized that Abigail had not captured Melvin before the month was up. It was now the first day of the third month; she had missed her goal by one day! Then a woman stood up and proclaimed that to miss by one day, after all those years of waiting, was ridiculous, and why didn't they do something? So—the Stone-Age Society added one more day to the second month, in Abigail's honor. Now she had attained her goal! Not only that, it was decided that this extra day would be added to the second month every four years, and on that year the girls themselves would be allowed to smash the heads of the men of their choice, and not have to wait 27 years as Abigail had done. And they named the year "leap year," after Abigail Leap.

This is the true story behind leap year, and why it is the only year the girls can propose. But don't waste any time, girls, for leap year will not be around again for another four years! Remember the old saying, "Nothing ventured, nothing gained!" But keep one other proverb in mind, also, "Look before you leap!"

Playhouse To . . .

and his depressingly tragic end is lightened only by the fact that in his death he believed that he had finally gained release from the farm and that his voyage was "about to begin."

"Beyond the Horizon" is a drama that is essentially concerned with the idealism of youth. One critic has said that it was O'Neill's intention to show us, although the hopes and dreams of young people are often cruelly frustrated, they are valuable in themselves and are worth having suffered for.

Play Committees

The committees for the play, as posted by Miss Craven and made up of members of Playhouse are as follows:

Lights: Tony Clark (chairman), Ginger Colwell, George Hardy; Sets: Louise Pratt (chairman), Sue Burton, James Barber, Barbara Godshalk, Sue Tourtellotte, Liz Frei, Tony Clark, Elaine Bowman, Dave Pierce, Ralph Wood, Charles McFarland;

Other College Newspapers Contain Some Choice Tidbits, Reporter Finds

By Mary Ann Morris

Tired of reading the same old stuff? Do you long for something different, something new? Then read on, for below you will find some of the choicest tidbits other papers can offer. It's old stuff to their readers, but it will be new to you! (We hope!)

What Is A College Boy??

A college boy is laziness with peach-fuzz on its face, idiocy with lanolin on its hair, and the "Hope of the Future" with an overdrawn bank book in its pocket.

A college boy is a composite . . . he has the energy of a Rip Van Winkle, the shyness of a Mr. Micawber, the practicality of a Don Quiote, the kindness of a Marquis de Sado, the imagination of Boll Sykes, the aspirations of a Casonova, and when he wants something it is usually money.

He likes good liquor, bad liquor, cancelled classes, double features, and girls on football weekends. He is not much for hopeful mothers, irate fathers, sharp-eyed ushers, campus guards, alarm clocks or letters from the dean.

A college boy is a magical creature . . . you can lock him out of your heart, but not out of your bank account. You can get him off your mind, but you can't get him off your expense account. He is a no-account, girl-chasing bundle of worry. But when you come home at night with only the shattered pieces of hopes and dreams, he can make them seem mightily insignificant with three magic words: "I flunked, Dad!"

A College Student's Secrets Of Success:

1. Don't answer when your name is called in class. Keep your teacher guessing.
2. Ignore the bells. They ring periodically—just to keep you awake.
3. Don't sit in your assigned seat. Be hard to find.
4. Don't sleep at night. Save it for school.
5. If the stairway traffic is heavy, take the elevator. You may have a long wait (especially at Maryville), but you're young.
6. If the elevator is crowded, take the dumbwaiter. People often forget this convenience, so it probably won't be crowded.
7. Don't do homework. It is just a communist conspiracy to break down the morale of your youth.
8. Be alert. Don't wait to be told to leave at the end of class.
9. Don't answer when called on in class. Play hard to get.
10. Yawn, openly stretch. Show you are relaxed.
11. If you don't have time to finish your lunch, take it with you to class—the teacher will understand.
12. Hum or whistle in class. Teachers will know you're as busy as a bee.
13. Don't join any clubs. They may be supervised.

Concert Thursday

VOL. 41 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 17, 1956 Number 15

Mozarteum Orchestra To Give Concert Here

ERNEST MAERZENDORFER
The Conductor of the Mozarteum Orchestra, which will appear here Thursday.

Last Concert Of Artist Series To Be Thursday

By Bill Deerfield

The Mozarteum Orchestra of Salzburg will be presented in the last concert of this year's Artist Series Thursday at 8:15 in the auditorium of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

The famous group, under the direction of Ernst Maerzendorfer, has been acclaimed throughout Europe and is now touring the United States in connection with the Mozart Bi-Centennial Celebration. Their first American season has been described as "the most exciting news of the year" in music circles.

The orchestra originated in Salzburg as an outgrowth of the Court Chapel of the Archbishop of which Mozart had been concert master. The orchestra was organized in 1841 with the approval of Mozart's widow and participated in the first Salzburg Music Festival in 1942, with the great composer's son, Wolfgang Amadeus, conducting.

The present conductor, Ernst Maerzendorfer, who was appointed in 1953, enjoyed a career in music in both Europe and South America before he became the music director of the group

Their concert at Maryville College is as follows:

Overture to "Idomeneo"
German Dances (KV 509)
Aria: "Donne mie, la fate a tanti" from "Cosi Fan Tutte"
Mr. Herbert

Dr. Pradervand Is On Campus

Dr. Marcel Pradervand, General Secretary of the World Presbyterian Alliance, arrived in Maryville this week for a visit on the campus of Maryville College. He has been a guest of President and Mrs. Ralph W. Lloyd.

He spoke Wednesday evening at seven o'clock at New Providence Presbyterian Church in the weekly School of Missions being held in connection with the Lenten season. This morning he spoke at the Chapel service.

Dr. Pradervand was appointed to his present post after serving on the staff of the Department of Reconstruction of the World Council of Churches in Geneva. He had special responsibility for the administration of construction and relief after World War II in France, Belgium, Italy and Luxembourg.

Dr. Pradervand was born in Switzerland and studied at the University of Lausane, the University of Basel and the University of Berlin. In addition to pastorates in Switzerland, he has served as pastor of the Swiss Church in London. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Maryville College in 1949.

Dr. Pradervand has been in the United States since February for an important series of meetings and has been filling speaking engagements in the United States and Canada. After a short stay in Maryville, he will go to Cincinnati for further engagements.

Causey, Gowans To Read In Writer's Workshop

Readers in Writer's Workshop Monday will be Joanne Causey and Clara Gowans. Their critics will be Barbara Wilkie and Liz Frei.

On Monday, March 26, Nancy Kotz and Marcia Williams will read, their critics being Bruce Ingles and Cary Valentine.

Handbook Board Selects M.C. Girl

Ethelyn Cathey, senior English major from Clarksville, Arkansas, has been named to the College Board of the next volume of the "Going-to-College Handbook," annually published in Richmond, Va. The book is designed to offer practical helps for college students and those looking forward to college.

Nominated by college or national youth officials, members of the College Board serve as advisors to the editors in planning and developing the book.

At the present time the College Board is being polled to discover attitudes and opinions on a number of lively campus problems.

Scheduled for publication next August in time for home town going-to-college functions, the Handbook will be used during the remainder of the year by students looking forward to college.

Textbooks For Asia Is Project Of Students At Highland Church

By Carolyn Cones

Some magazine articles are read and quickly forgotten; for others, however, this is not the case. An article in the September copy of "Harpers", Shannon McCune's "Personal Experiment in International Friendship", is an example of the latter; for it was this article that started the project of Dr. Hunter's Sunday School class at Highland Presbyterian Church the collection of text books for Asia.

The article was spotted by Dr. W. H. Crothers, a retired minister and active member of Highland. Recognizing the importance of its message, he showed it to Dr. Hunter in the hope that something constructive might be done about it. Enthusiastic about its possibilities, Dr. Hunter called together the officers of his Sunday School class, and a project was born.

Why did this one article create so much interest? It's the simple yet moving story of a single man's attempt to combat a growing interest in the study of Russian in Japan and of the wide-scale project which resulted.

Students Using Russian Textbooks

While the author, Dr. McCune, was studying in the fall of 1953 at Tokyo's Institute of Geography, he was surprised to note the number of Russian texts being used. He learned that while Japanese students, who had studied English for years, preferred to use American texts, many could not afford them. Since Russian text books cost from thirty cents to a dollar and American books were ten times as much, a number of students were undertaking the study of Russian so that they might be able to use these cheaper texts.

The United States Information Service sends books to Japan, but since these are elementary books not enough advanced for college level, Dr. McCune decided to look for help from private sources. He wrote to a number of geography teachers in America asking for books and was encouraged by the Band Festival Draws 2500

By Helen Jansen

Twenty-five hundred high school students composing fifty-two bands participated in the annual contest sponsored by the East Tennessee Band and Orchestra Association on Maryville College campus on Thursday and Friday. This was the first time that Maryville had acted as host to the East Tennessee bands. Thirty of the fifty-two bands competed the first day and twenty-two the second day.

Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel provided a stage for auditions and the Theatre was used for sight reading. As was the practice in former years, each band began with a warm-up march and then played two chosen contest pieces which were from an approved list.

This year's festival constitutes the tenth year on record for the event. In 1954 and 1955, it was held at Carson-Newman in Jefferson City, Tenn., and before that time, it was held at the University of Tennessee Last year 53 bands and orchestras took part with an average number of 70 students from elementary, junior high, and high school age

Mr. Ralph Moore, director of orchestra and band here at Maryville College was chairman of arrangements. Mr. Joe Parker, Secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, was responsible for the arrangements of meals for those attending.

The president of the East Tennessee Band and Orchestra Association is Mr. O'Dell Willis, the band director of Central High School in Fountain City, Tenn.

The judges for the contest were the following: Carlton Butler, University of Alabama; Charles Minelli, Ohio University; Ben Sisk, Georgia Institute of Technology; Victor Showalter, Delta State Teachers College.

There were no concerts on Thursday or Friday evenings; in former festivals it has been the practice to have concerts These have been dispensed with, because it was felt that they required too much time and effort.

Crawford, Pakosh, Williams, Axley Have Leads

The annual Freshman Talent Show will be held tonight in the alumni gym at 8:00 p. m. Joe Williams will star along with Colleen Crawford, Mary Pakosh and Tommy Axley.

Since the details of the show are being kept quiet, all we know are the names of those who are playing the main parts. Don Newroth, from New Castle, Pa., will announce the acts. Joe Williams plays the part of Bill, a treasure seeking deep-sea diver; Tommy Axley, from Maryville, is Neptune; Colleen Crawford, from Chattanooga, is Lola, a glamorous girl; and Mary Pakosh from Washington, is a mermaid—Neptune's daughter. Jeanne Ginaven accompanies the actors, and rounding out the show is a chorus line directed by Pat Smith with help from Jane Mitchell and composed of Gray Clarke, Barbara Thomas, Ves Travis, Helen McDonald, Georgene Rohlander, Sue Tourtellotte, Jane Mitchell, Susan Parkinson, Joann Degroot, Pat Smith, Carol Griffiths and Barbara Gilmore.

Those on the hard-working committee are: Script, Bob Wyman, Mary McEver (co-chairmen), Ott Feddern, Joe McNeal, Joe Williams, Nancy McGeorge and Joann Antes; Props: Susan Parkinson, David Pierce (co-chairmen), Doris Watt, Ron Lind, Janet Rath, Joan Schultz, Ione Bahmer, Hugh Davis and Joe Tropansky.

Talent: Judy Trnavsky, Dick Jones (co-chairmen), Mary Pakosh, Bob Moses, John Christie, Mary McClure, Colleen Crawford, Zona Gogel and Ted Frauman. Lights and staging: Ruth Wagner, Bob Higerd (co-chairmen), Bill Lynch, Stan Carpenter, Norma Taubert, Donna Tourtellotte, Faye Sandling. Publicity: Jack Emory, Barbara Mueller, Carolyn Tilley, Nancy Potter, Yeb Yun, Mary Newton andDodie Waters.

Students Vols To Sponsor Visit of Ecumenical Team

Student Vols is sponsoring the visit of an Ecumenical Team to Maryville Campus from April 2 to 5. The team is composed of the Rev. K. J. Philip of India and Mr. Frank J. Reynolds of the USA. Their speaking engagements and appointment times for individual conferences will be announced later.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Picks Eleven Seniors

Choir To Begin Tours Tomorrow

The Maryville College Choir, directed by John Hutton, Jr., will begin its series of spring trips this Sunday, March 18, with two concerts. The first one is at 3:30 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Rockwood, Tennessee. From there the choir will travel to the First Presbyterian Church at Harriman, Tennessee for an 8:00 appearance.

On March 25, Palm Sunday, the choir will be at the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Ridge at 3:30 and at Greystone Presbyterian Church of Knoxville at 8:00 that same evening.

The choir program will be divided into three parts. The first part will include: John Redford, "Rejoice in the Lord Alway;" Thomas Morley, Angus Dei;" Richard Farrant, "Lord for Thy Tender Mercies' Sake;" and Antonio Lotti, "Crucifixus." The second part will consist of Paul Tchesnekoff, "Salvation is Created;" Alexander Gretchainoff, "Nunc Dimittis;" Johanness Brahms, "Motet, Op. 29 No. 2;" Martin Shaw, "A Carol of Beauty;" Harold W. Friedell, "Come, My Way, My Truth, My Life;" Healey Willan, "Rise Up Love, My Fair One;" and Arthur S. Warrell, "King of Glory, King of Peace." The last part will be as follows: F. Melius Christiansen, "Beautiful Savior;" Leo Sowerby, "Fight the Good Fight of Faith;" Normand Lockwood, "Evening Hymn;" and finally Harry H. Harter's "Let Not Your Hearts."

Council Discusses Ideas, Plans

By Ted McDaniels

At the last meeting of Council there were many suggestions put forward but none of them have had sufficient investigation to make any immediate action practical.

It was suggested that the Townnight Commitee chairman sit on the co-ordinating council of the W.S.G.A. in order to further the relationships between the Council and W.S.G.A. This is also intended to eliminate any confusion in the questions of jurisdiction over various offenses and to provide an understandable code of rules governing the dormitory life of the girls

Another suggestion forwarded by the sophomore representative to Council, Charles Garrison, was the possibility of installing milk machines in the dormitories in addition to the "coke" machines. The suggestion was felt to be worthy of investigation, consequently a committee was appointed to look into the possibilities.

Debaters Win More Honors

The Maryville College debaters are continuing to take top honors in the various debating tournaments around the South. The last trip sent the team to Columbus, Mississippi and to Mississippi State College for Women on March 2 and 3.

Superior ratings were won by Eleanore Koster in debate, Tom Paton and Keith Ham in men's after dinner, and Wendy Wood and Margallen Hanna in women's extemporaneous. Excellent ratings were obtained by Eleanore Koster in women's extemporaneous, Tom Paton in men's extemporaneous, and Keith Ham in men's oral reading and original oratory.

Other debaters attending were Graeme Sieber, Marvelyne Rise, Mary Clover, and Margaret Patterson. Faculty members attending were Miss Walker and Mr. Lynn.

Four Societies Seeking Prize For Best Skit

Next Saturday night in the Alumni Gym Maryville students will have their annual chance to see the four societies compete for the Skit Night trophy. The themes of the skits are being kept in dark secrecy as each society seeks the coveted award.

Dee Woods is chairman of Bainonian's skit, which was written by Joanne Causey. Members of the cast will be Ginny Beebout, Ann Wiley, Kathy Kerns, Ducky Coker, Betsy Hoaster, Zona Gogel, and Anna Allcroft.

Theta skit was written and is being directed by co-chairman Liz Enloe and Paula Kronenberg. Members of the cast include Ann Kelton, Colleen Crawford, Mary Clover, Mary Polhemas, Jo Ann Brooks, Sue Short, Jane Robison, Judy Patterson, Ruth Wilson, Liz Murphey, Doris Scott, Ann Murray, Ruth Wagner, Joyce Boyd, and Natalie Richards.

Chairman of Kappa Phi's skit is Jim Barber. Jim Hopkins wrote the script and is directing the cast, which has not been announced.

Bill Heird and Bob Hassall are in charge of Alpha Sigma skit, the cast of which has also not been announced.

Emmans To Give Senior Recital

The Division of the Fine Arts will present Henry Emmans, organist, in a senior recital on Monday, March 19. Mr. Emmans will be assisted by a brass ensemble consisting of Ralph Moore, Stanley Carpenter, John Williams, Morgan Biggs, Kenneth Burnham and David Gilliland.

The following program will be presented by Mr. Emmans: "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor" by J .S. Bach; "Fantasia in Echo Style," by Jan Sweelinck; "Claire de Lune," by Karl-Elert; "Fantasy on Wareham," by Searle Wright (assisted by brass ensemble); "Organ Sonata No. 6," by Mendelssohn; "Choral Prelude on Old Hundredth" by Henry Emmans; "Jesus, Priceless Treasure," by Flor Peeters; "Toccata from the Fifth Organ Symphony," by Charles Widor.

The recital will be held in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 8:00 p. m. The public is invited to attend.

Know Your Clubs: Future Teachers

By Susan Parkinson

One of the most successful clubs on campus is the Future Teachers club. Headed by Nita Baylor, senior from Sturgis, Michigan, the club is open to both elementary and secondary education majors.

This year there are 40 members of the local FTA and 29 belonging to the NEA. Meetings are every second and fourth Thursday.

Assisting Nita are Kathy Kerns, secretary-treasurer and Nancy McCammon, vice-president.

Recent activities include a most successful tea in the Y-rooms, and learning to make slides.

Their banquet will be March 27 in the Y-rooms. It will be a spaghetti supper. Entertainment will be provided by the Maryvillians and the Scotsmen.

On April 26 Mrs. Ketron with a group of girls will speak to the club. Representatives of the FTA clubs in Blount County high schools will be invited to the college for supper and also to attend the meeting.

FTA was presented with a Victory honor roll for having such a large membership.

Top Scholarship Is Recognized

Tom Bugenhagen, Ethelyn Cathey, Doris Glad, Margaret Allen Hanna, Carol Hutton, Esther Lerch, Charles Partee, Iantha Peterson, Lois Tinklenberg, Madlon Travis, and David Williams have been elected to membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma Maryville College scholarship society.

These students represent subject fields as follows: two biology majors and one each from the departments of mathematics, English, art, sociology, French philosophy, home economics, elementary education, and philosophy-physics.

The society's requirements, similar to Phi Beta Kappa, require a minimum general average of 7.0 and good moral character. Not more than ten percent of the senior class may be elected. Students must have been in Maryville College for two years.

Tom Bugenhagen

Tom Bugenhagen is a mathematics major from Erie, Pa. He is a past president of Alpha Sigma and in his sophomore year was ceptain of the wrestling team. He was also the Southeastern Conference champion in the 167 lb. class in the same year. In his junior year he was elected Athletic Association President. He was president of his sophomore class and has been active on Student Council for several years. He was awarded the mathematics prize last spring. In his freshman year he was a May Day escort.

Ethelyn Cathey

An English major from Clarksville, Ark., Miss Cathey is the president of YWCA. A Nu Gamma leader in her sophomore year, she was chosen Nu Gamma chairman the following year. She has been a member of Writers Workshop for two years and now serves on the Governing Board. In her junior year Miss Cathey was a May Day Attendant and a member of the Daisy Chain. She is a member of Theta Epsilon and has been in French Club, Girls' Choir, and in her freshman year she served as a WSGA representative.

Doris Glad

Miss Glad, an art major from Brooklyn, N. Y., completed her college requirements last semester. She was a member of Theta Epsilon, having served as Rush-week Chairman in her senior year. She was a cheerleader for two years and co-captain her sophomore year. She was a member of the Athletic Board of Control, Pep Committee, and Woman's Glee Club. She also belonged to the art club.

Margaret Allen Hanna

Miss Hanna is a sociology major from Jeffersontown, Ky. She is secretary of Pi Kappa Delta and has gone out for debate for two years. She is a member of YWCA Cabinet and the International Relations Club, having been its president her junior year. She was also in the Vesper Choir one year and was a member of the Daisy Chain last year.

Carol Hutton

Miss Hutton, a French major, is from Greenback, Tenn. She is president of French Club and has also served as its vice-president and secretary. She is a member of Pi Gamma and is on the YWCA Cabinet.

Esther Lerch

A biology major from Clearwater, Fla., Miss Lerch is a member of Bainonian, having been its program chairman for two semesters. She has been a band majorette for three years and an ABC Girl her sophomore year. She was

We Are Still Lazy

About this time last year an excellent editorial appeared in the Echo entitled "Are We Lazy?" It deplored the lethargy into which college students allow themselves to sink when they drift into the groove of the college routine of planned activities. It suggested that "advancement of any kind depends upon initiative."

The statements written last year are just as applicable to this year's situation. College students are still getting bogged down in the usual maze of required courses, assigned reading, and term papers. Everything becomes an assignment or a function to which one is expected to go. The result seems to be that many students do only what they think they have to. They lack initiative to branch out into new and different paths. They become merely followers or lookers-on.

This kind of intellectual laziness brings about gaps in the education of many students. They come to regard recitals and concerts as open only to music majors; art gallery talks as the exclusive concern of the art department; or student government as the pet project of a few council members. Passively accepting what they consider a set system, they miss the enjoyment of active participation in projects of social or cultural improvement.

The following paragraph from the aforementioned editorial seems to state the situation aptly:

"At our advanced age we should all be mature enough to realize that individual education is not the responsibility of someone else; it is up to the person. Advancement of any kind depends upon initiative. So do we have a similar challenge here: are we going to make our stay here nothing more than a dull, four-year grind, or will we broaden ourselves by taking advantage of chances to learn by doing? If we do not, we will be contributing ourselves to a large part of our own discontent."

B.W.

A Spring Misdemeanor

There is more or less an unwritten code of laws pertaining to the respect of the college grounds by the students. After all, this is our home for a good portion of the year, and therefore it should be treated as such. With the warm spring days many flowers and bushes on campus are beginning to show signs of life. Several times the flowers bordering the walk by Fayerweather have showed signs of blooming but because of circumstances beyond their control they never bloom in the out-of-doors. Instead they are picked and soon "decorate" some student's room, where they are often hidden behind a pile of books. These flowers and others scattered around the campus have been planted with the intent of beautifying, and they are intended to be enjoyed by all passers-by. We would like to suggest that hereafter the flowers be left for these purposes!

This also is the time of year that grass begins to grow. It has no opportunity in many places on this campus because of the unceasing parade of feet which trample the ground hard. Brick and asphalt paths have been laid in every conceivable direction around and between the buildings. Very little if any time can be saved by "short-cuting" between them. Ugly brown paths will soon become eyescores around many of the buildings. Chapel usually lets out with ten to fifteen minutes to spare before "A" hour, yet why is it that many students feel the need to "short-cut" across the ground to the back door of Anderson or the Fayerweather? Several walks are laid in thaose directions and really their use is a great saving on shoes as well as on the grass in wet weather. It is difficult enough to coax grass to grow under trees, but what possible chance for survival does it have after the feet of scores of waiters and waitresses have pounded over it while hurrying to work? It would be a sad state of affairs if signs of "Keep off the Grass" had to be posted. Are we not thoughtful enough people to assume the personal responsibility of helping to maintain good looking campus grounds?

Famous speeches by men (and women) of renown:

Dr. E. R. Hunter, Scholar and Dean. . . (this gem actually woke up 'Shack' on the back row) . . . "Wife to Husband: "What are you, anyway, a man or a mouse? Squeak up! !'"

Miss Carolyn Blair, Keeper-of-detentionhall, 3rd floor Anderson. . "No, Miss Zimmerman, it's 'Intimations of Immortality', not 'Imitations of Immorality'."

Edwin Ray Hunter, Professor of Shakespeare, Chaucer, and Others. . . "Whistler, finding his mother sitting in he floor: 'Oh, dear. . . Mother's off her rocker, again.'"

Daniel K. Pearsons, founder of the MC Dining Hall. . . "Dine Deluxe, with help from three small points. (1) Biscuits should be opened with the fingers, except in extreme cases where an axe might be permissible. (2) Never eat peas with a knife. . . knives should always be eaten alone. (3) Never rattle your knife and fork; glasses are more musical."

Student Suggestion Box. . . "Next Faculty Play should be a repeat performance of "Arsenic and Old Lace". . . so we can see them as they really are!"

The Lone Ranger. . . "A tomahawk is what, if you go to sleep and suddenly wake up without hair, there is an Indian with."

Linda Lovely, typical Maryville College coed. . "Too bad the men on this campus like gals who are out of this world. . . seems to me they'd like them a little closer!"

Math major. . . "There are 5880,600 seconds until commencement. If you read this at 8:30 A.M. when you're supposed to, I'm safe. . . if you wait until 11:45, then figure it up for yourself!"

Lynn Mitchell, after Miss Jackson's Sophomore Lit class. . . "If ignorance is bliss, then I'm really blistered!"

Anonymous. . .

(1) Anyone seen the little foreign models on 4 wheels that are being driven by members of our student body? From one reliable source: "I don't know whether to run or get the Flit gun!"

(2) Notice in a small Scottish church: "Those members of the parish who are in the habit of putting buttons in the collection plate instead of coins. . . PLEASE put in your our buttons and not those from the cushions in the pews." (They caught Marshall and Colquhoun).

(3) How ot pass a course:
a. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you must look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it. b. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell. If he looks up and smiles expectantly he's told one. c. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. . . just ask.
d. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there, alone, dozing.

FOURTH FLOOR—BALDWIN

By Many Ann Morris

The stairs are there, if you look for them, in a dusty, remote corner on third floor. The webcovered but sturdy steps wind up and around, ending at the big wooden door. The door has no knob, but swings open automatically as you approach, as if to welcome you. Few girls come to Fourth Floor—Baldwin anymore.

You enter, sinking into the deep rug, and you look around. It's a strange room. A soft light glows from some unknown source, and music faintly sounds from a distance. A brief thought flashes your mind, and immediately the music changes to your favorite song, "Later, Alligator."

A sign on a huge, square, box-like machine attracts your attention, and you wander over. "Homework in Three Minutes," it gleams. "Term Papers in Five." It seems to wait, expectantly, but a round, triangular machine catches your eye, and you go to investigate it. "Order Your Dates Here," you read. A mechanical arm hands you a card on which to fill out your specifications. You muse on the possibilities, but you hesitate, and finally turn away. A disappointed sigh seems to fill the room, then slowly dies.

Luxury Everywhere

A small door at the end of the room looks interesting. You walk toward it. You pass a free nectar machine; an automatic globe that advertises the clean and pressed return of your clothes in ten minutes; a soda fountain which promises anything you can order; a beauty salon, offering a "New You," which you can order and pick up later. Near the door stands a 57inch television set, with luxurious chairs in front of it. At last you reach the door, and it opens silently before you.

The room beyond is dark and shadowy. A giant screen at the far end immediately lights up, as you enter. One of the year's best movies, the latest, begins. You think of your dream man, Marlon Brando, and at once he appears on the screen. Later, when you leave, you hear the projector click, off, as if dejected at your departure. The door slides shut behind you.

Designed For Your Comfort

You walk by a wire-like mechanism which displays the words, "Personality Plus, Get your Supply Here." A silver booth proclaims, "Your Ideal Wardrobe, Straight From Paris in Twenty Minutes." You near the entrance, the big wooden door. As you do so, a metal man offers you a handful of money, as if bribing you to stay. The door opens reluctantly to let you pass, and slowly closes behind you with a gentle defeated thud. The steps winding down are dusty and covered with cobwebs. Not many girls come to Fourth Floor—Baldwin anymore, and it's lonely.

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Sue Settle

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Janet Whitmore

The purpose of this column might be said to be that of providing you readers with some fairly good excuses for neglecting your book work. It is the time of year when such excuses are more readily welcomed—is that possible? It is spring—as if I needed to mention the well-known fact—the time for daydreaming and getting into unexplained moods. Sages of old have diagnosed these symptoms and have named the disease "spring fever."

Antidotes

Suppose we take a little time and see what remedies can be used to combat this common ailment. The medicines which are readily attainable vary all over the country, but after a little research the following have been found to be available in Maryville.

On a warm breezy night a stuffy room and an open book are just unbearable. The movies in town hold much more appeal—let's face it Tonight and Monday and Tuesday the Capitol will be showing "The Second Greatest Sex" starring Jeanne Crain, Mamie Van Doren, George Nader and Kitty Kallen. It is a musical of the "Calico Days." The Park will show "The Three Sisters."

However, if you find the preceding cure just a tad too lengthy or noisy, how about an after-supper stroll? A good excuse for this excursion may be a desire to view the work in the art gallery. The Japanese prints will be on display there only through Monday. If you find the exhibit does not quite suit your fancy, at least you can enjoy the sunset which is beautiful from the FAC amphitheatre.

The Show

Tonight's recreation and entertainment certainly possess no question. This evening is the premiere—and doubtless final—performance of the Freshmen Talent Show. This is sure to be a main topic of conversation for days for there is much talent among the Frosh.

By reading the rest of this issue of the Echo I'm sure you will notice the abundance of music recitals and events. Music is well-known as a cure for all sorts of things — "soothes the savage beast," "calms the troubled soul," —and you can recall the rest of the old adages. Why not give it an opportunity?

Another remedy you can easily try is a good book—one you've just discovered on the New Book Table. Check it out, find yourself a bench under a tree, tilt this bench at the desired angle, gaze around at the world a little and settle down to traveling and dreaming via the literary method.

The Sure Cure

One last remedy I can offer to you is the suggestion of a nap. You can accomplish this anywhere and nearly anytime and without any trouble. It is a slow cure—one that needs lots of practice—but is guaranteed not to harm.

MC Spanish Club To Visit Knoxville College

Members of the Spanish club are going to Knoxville Monday night for a joint meeting with the Knoxville College Spanish club.

Maryville students will provide the entertainment for the Knoxville students.

Miss Crews To Attend Music Education Meeting

Miss Katherine Crews, assistant professor of music, will attend the Tennessee Music Education and the Tennessee Education Association convention to be held March 21-24 in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Two pre-school violin students of Miss Crews' will be present on Friday evening to play in the All-State Orchestra. These students are Bevins Householder of Maryville High School and Paul Schroeder of Alcoa High School.

Miss Crews, as State String Chairman, will be in charge of the string teachers meeting to be held in the morning of the 24th.

Sports Spotlights

By Ted Engle

Tennis Begins

Along with the spring thaw comes the tennis season on the hill. Once again the varsity netsters are monopolizing the courts getting ready for a rough schedule. The squad looks very impressive in early season workouts which provides a bright outlook for the season lying ahead. Lettermen back from last year's squad include: Sonny Shackleford, Charlie Partee, and Doug Brian; all of whom look ready and capable for the roughest competition. A sure bet for at least fourth position is Sant Mont. Stan has a year of experience behind him and has improved immensely over the past year. This is indeed a feather in Stan's cap because he played very little tennis before coming to M.C. Several are fighting it out for the remaining fifth and sixth positions. These include: Bruce Ingles, Bob Jackson, Ted Engle, Dave Williams, and Charlie Garrison.

As I said previously the schedule this year looms as a real test for the M.C. netsters. The first two games are with the University of Tennessee. The remaining matchs are: Tennessee Wesleyan, Lincoln Memorial, Sewanee, East Tennessee State, Carson Newman, King, and the state tournament at the University of Chattanooga. There are twelve regularly scheduled contests this season all of which will provide keen competition. The mor spectators the better the team, so let's help cheer the Scotties to a successful season.

Track Revived at M.C.

M. C. made a step in the right direction when they revived track and brought it back to Scottie-land. It's providing a great chance for fellows to make good in athletics who don't play the three main sports. It's going over great and theer's a tremendous turnout for the various events. The events include: 100 yard dash, 220, 440, 880, the mile, the 2 mile, high and low hurdles, broad jump, javelin, high jump, discus throw, pole vault, and the shot put. There's a great deal of rigorous and spirited training, and where there's spirit there's a bright outlook for success. Promising prospects include Lou "Huge" McFarland who has been impressive in the 440, 880, and the 220 hurdles. The gangly Buckeye has an excellent stride and with a little polishing will be a great asset to the team. Also are Don Vandenburg, who was the main stay on last year's cross country team, Joe Williams, Tom Dolch, Bob Higgerd, Bill Potter, Dave Krotchco, Charlie Garrison, speed merchant Bob Ramger, Stan Carpenter, Mert Hall, Ed Drum, Jerry Waters, Bill Strickland, Bob Finertie, Will Roberts, Tom Morris, Allen Russell, and Hugh Davis. Ed Drum and Jerry Waters have been impressive in the pole vault and Bill Strickland and Finertie on the shot put.

Even though track is a comparitively new venture for M. C., the trial runs have been good and talent is being uncovered. Best of luck to Coach Johnson and the team in the rapidly approaching season.

NCAA Tournament Begins

The biggest event of the college basketball season is now underway. I am speaking of course of the NCAA tournament which at it's conclusion will pretty well ell which is the nation's most powerful team. The San Francisco Dons now rated by both the AP and UP as the top team nationally are heavy favorites to repeat as the nation's king of the courts. Last year they crushed highly favored LaSalle (Tom Gola and Company) for the crown. With towering, All American center Bill Russell paving the way the Dons should waltz to victory again. However they will meet stiff competition should Kentucky, Temple, and Ohio State win their districts. Basketball is a sport of many upsets so anything can happen, as is shown in the first round scores. Temple came from behind to nip a powerful Holy Cross quintet 74-72, North Carolina State trailing through the entire game fought their way through 4 overtime periods before dropping a heartbreaking 79-78 decision to underdog Canisius. Moorehead, the top scoring team in the nation, followed the experts predictions by overpowering Marshall 107-92, and Wayne thumped highly regarded DePaul 72-63.

Soccer?

It is my belief that Maryville is lacking a sport that seems to provide great enthusiasm when played in intramural competition. Soccer made it's debut at M.C. last year in the intramural system and was greeted with great enthusiasm. As you remember the intramural soccer championship was played under the lights as a prelim for the Alpha Sig Hammers-All Stars football game. It provided a great many spills and thrills and was claimed as a success in relation to the spectator turnout. Whether it could be played in competition with other schools I don' know as most colleges in this area do not include soccer in their athletic system, however a more extensive program in intramurals would be a good substitute. A league of three or four teams would provide a great deal of competition and fun for all included, this can be verified by those who played last fall. Let's talk it up, and next semester get a good soccer program started. Maryville needs a more extensive athletic program, varsity or intramural, to fit the inteersts and skills of all. As the athletic system now stands only a select few get to participate in sports. Having only varsity sports in baseball, basketball, football, and tennis, freshman and non-varsity upperclassmen are left out. Track will help a great deal, but I believe aother sport for the fall is needed, and soccer would be ideal. It's up to you and I so let's get some interest started and have some fun in the process.

Baseball Season Near

It won't be long now before the Highlander baseball team will be taking the diamond and the season will be officially open on the hill. There has been a prety good tournout for practice especially from the freshmen. The veterans back from last year include: Don Moore catcher, John West at third base, Bill Dent at second, and Chuck Dunn at first. The mound staff left from last year's squad composed of Bill Evans and southpaw Jack Crouch, both of whom will probebly have to carry most of the mound duty. Jack Woodhall and Don Hill, newcomers to the squad, have looked impressive during the early season workouts. If the Scotties can get good results from the pitching mound, the outlook for the coming season is bright. However, it looks as though most of the duty will fall on a few in the pitching department. Best of luck to Coach Honaker and the team for a successful season.

Following of Teams is Poor

The turnout for varsity events at M.C. is litle short of a disgrace. I seems that people have to have a winning team before they'll bother to walk across campus to see their school play. We fail to realize that we as spectators have a gerat deal to do with whether our teams win or lose. It stands to reason that a team with no student body backing hasn't the spiri that a well backed team has. Schools that travel as far as fifty miles to play us here have as many or more fans at the games than we do. Everybody moans and groans about our teams but the majority never go out for sports or even attend games to give the teams some backing and pep. It doesn't feel too good to play in front of a bleacher section half filled with spectators. The athletic spirit and participation is at a rock botom low at Maryville and the only remedy is an active student body. Baseball and tennis are coming up; let's see an optimistic crowd instead of a pessimistic few.

NOTE: Webly Bowles on March 12, 1956, accomplished his long awaited goal by curling seventysix pounds ten times. Congratulations Webly!

Baseball Team to Start Season In Two Weeks

Tennis Team Has Ten Meets

Weather permitting, the tennis team is presently engaged in ladder matches to get in shape and to determine who will be the starting six against U-T on March 24. At the writing of this article (Wednesday) the top six on the squad were the following: Sonny Shackleford, Stan Mont, Doug Brian,, Charlie Partee, Bruce Ingles, and Ted Engle with Dave Williams, Bob Jackson and Charlie Carrison in the next three slots.

The Highlander Tennis Team has ten scheduled matches this season with two pre-season practice matches with the University of Tennessee.

There have been several changes in the tennis schedule since it was published in the last issue of the Echo. Consequently, here is the revised tennis schedule:

March 24 U-T, Away
March 31 U-T, Here
April 4 Wesleyan, Away
April 6 LMU, Here
April 7 Sewanee, Here
April 9 ETS, Here
April 14 C-N, Here
April 24 ETS, Away
April 25 Milligan, Away
April 28 King, Here
April 30 C-N, Away
May 2 Chattanooga, Away

Track Schedule Is Announced

Lombe S. Honaker, director of athletics, has announced that the Highlander Track Squad will have a schedule consisting of four meets, two each with Milligan and Tusculum. This is the first time Maryville had fielded a track team in two years. Two years ago the Scots had a lone track meet against Bryan University.

The following are this year's scheduled track meets:

April 13 Milligan, Here
April 21 Tusculum, Away
April 28 Tusculum, Here
May 11 Milligan, Away

Students Show Interest

At the present time there are twenty-five fellows out for track. Coach Johnson has expressed the hope that more will come out after intramural volleyball and spring football are completed. Those who have already shown interest are Ben Stabley, Allen Russell, John "Butch" Christie, Bruce Ingles, Bob Wyman, Will Roberts, Don Vandenberg, Don Ford, Bill Potter, Dave Krotchko, Hugh Davis, Joe Williams, Bob Higerd, Tom Dolch, Stan Carpenter, Bill Lynch, Bob "Burn-em-up" Ramger, Lew McFarland, Bill Strickland, Joe Tropansky, Mert Hall, Jerry Waters, Dick Jensen, Ed Drum, and Tom Morris.

Hiwassee To Play Here April 2

Members and aspiring members of the Scottie Baseball Squad have been for the past few weeks getting in shape for the rapidly approaching season. Pre-season warmups are taking place in the Alumni Gym with the fellows throwing that pill around a little to get their arms in shape.

Scots to Scrimmage U-T

The Highlander Diamondmen will scrimmage with the U-T Baseball Team for two or three days the last week of this month. The Scotties' regular season begins on April 2 when they encounter the Hiwassee Tigers here at the Scots' home field. Following is the baseball schedule for the entire season:

April 2 Hiwassee, Here
April 5 Hiwassee, Away
April 9 LMU, Here
April 10 Tusculum Away
April 14 Wesleyan Here
April 19 Milligan Here
April 21 C-N Here
April 24 ETS, Here
April 26 LMU, Away
April 30 C-N, Away
May 1 E&H, Away
May 2 Milligan, Away
May 5 Tusculum, Here
May 6 ETS, Away
May 12 E&H, Here

AS I SEE IT

By Bill Dent

Well, it's spring again and in the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of ——— baseball. Yes, all of the major league teams have started spring training. The Yankees are at St. Petersburg, Florida, the Phillies are to Clearwater, Florida, and the Highlanders are here on the hill. For the past two weeks, Coach Honaker has been looking over the prospects for this year's squad.

Among those out for baseball this year, there are five lettermen back from last year's team, which won a few more games than it lost. The returning lettermen are Don Moore—catcher, Chuck Dunn—first base, John West—third base, Bill Evans—pitcher and outfielder, and myself—second base. There are several others who played some last year and also some goodlooking rookies. (First year men). Some of the freshmen are Don Hill, Walt Woodhull, Gayle Ferguson, and Paul Conklin

The weakest spots on the team this year will probably be in the outfield and on the pitching mound. Three of our outfielders from last year have graduated, so Coach will have to find a new outfield somewhere. Bill Evans will play the outfield when he isn't pitching, but the other two pastures are wide open.

The pitching staff last year consisted of Bob Ramger, Bill DeLozier, Bill Evans, Fred Roseborough, and Jack Henry Crouch. Bill DeLozier has left school, "Rosie" transferred to UT, and Ramger is not out this year, which leaves us with two pitchers. We will need to find a few more before the season starts.

The first game will probably be sometime around the first week in April. We will probably play about a 20 game schedule which will give all you baseball fans a good chance to see the Scotties in action. If we can fill in the weak places in the lineup, we will have a fairly good team. The spirit is good this year and all of us are looking forward to a successful season. We hope you will come out and support us. It is much easier to play when you know someone is behind you.

See you at the ball game.

Dr. Wm. E. Crane To Lead Y Series

Dr. William E. Crane, Minister of Counseling at Second Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, will speak at the YMCA meeting this Sunday at 1:30. He will begin a series of discussions on the ideals of marriage, which will continue on Wednesday at 8:15, Sunday, March 25, at 1:30, and Tuesday, March 27, at 7:15.

The meeting places of these discussions will be announced.

Dr. Crane has contributed a number of article in the field of counseling and young people's work. For 25 years he has been a counselor at young people's summer conferences.

Dr. Lloyd Takes Trips

On Wednesday, March 14, Dr. Lloyd spoke at Oak Ridge High School, in a reception service for members of the National Honor Society there.

Tomorrow, Sunday, Dr. Lloyd will speak at the Central Presbyterian Church in Zanesville, Ohio, at both the morning and evening services. Monday he will speak at the Zanesville High School. Following that, he will lead Chapel at neighboring Muskingum College, and will attend the Zanesville Presbytery in the afternoon.

After resting two days from this vigorous program, Dr. Lloyd will travel to Clinton Tennessee to address a club there. The next day, Thursday, he will travel to Chattanooga o attend the annual meeting of The Tennessee College Association, of which Maryville College is a member.

On Sunday, March 25, Dr. Lloyd will be at the First Presbyterian Church at Harriman, Tennessee. He will be a participant in a cornerstone laying of the church's new building.

Dr. Hunter Vesper Speaker Sunday

Dr. Edwin R. Hunter, Dean of Curriculum and professor of English, will be the vesper speaker tomorrow evening at 7:00 in the Chapel.

Intramurals....

By Jim Conklin

The intramural volleyball season came to a close with the final tournament game played yesterday afternoon in Bartlett Gym. The winner of the tournament will be announced in the next issue of the Echo.

Baseball

On Monday afternoon, March 19, weather permitting, the intramural baseball season will begin. All team rosters must be turned in to the Intramural Office by 8:30 Monday morning.

This is one intramural sport which seems to draw the most attention of players and spectators alike. If this baseball season is anything like last year's season, we can look forward to many interesting and exciting games.

If you would like to play for one of the teams in the league, inquire around to find out who is managing the various teams and sign up. Don't be left watching the game when you could be playing in it.

SPRING FOOTBALL UNDERWWAY

Members of this year's Highlander Grid Squad who intend on playing ball next year and interested candidates from local high schools are currently engaged in spring practice on Wilson Field. Coach J. D. Davis is putting the boys through the paces and has divided the squad in halt in preparation for the Orange and Garnet game which will be played next Friday or Saturday.

Miss Davies Attending AAUW Spring Luncheon

Miss Katherine Davies, Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts is attending the Spring Luncheon of the American Association of University Women in Chattanooga, Tennessee, today. She will preside over the meeting in her capacity as State President of the Association.

Vacations and Parties

Leaving Thursday afternoon, Joan Schultz and Carol Williams spent the past weekend at Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana, as the guests of Mr. Dick Hampton and Mr. Max Schultz. The occasion was Greek Week, sponsored by all the sororities and fraternities on campus, the main event being the Greek Week Ball held on Friday night. Also while there Joan and Carol enjoyed a dinner at the fraternity house and toured the campus. On Saturday afternoon they visited in Joan's home in Kentland, Indiana, before returning to Maryville on Sunday.

Mrs. Rowena Robinson, housemother of Baldwin Hall, spent the past weekend in Atlanta, Georgia as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. David Henry and family.

Celebrating the recent redecoration of their Rec Room, the girls of Baldwin Hall had a big party last Saturday night. On display were the various kitchen articles that had been bought as shower gifts by the girls. Popcorn and cokes were served to all present.

Parties were held in every room in Carnegie Sunday afternoon during Open House with refreshments in abundance. After stuffing to the gills, many wouldn't care if they never saw another Girl Scout Cookie ever! Very good and different were the special cookies from home served by the Iranian boys and on the humorous side were the "mixed drinks" and punch served by several—all very refreshing after the long trudge with "heels" on.

Paul Maier, ('53), Adolph Kunen ('54) and Dick Thompson ('55) were visiting here this past week from Princeton Seminary during their break between terms. Also visiting on campus was Jack Durant ('53).

Additional help came from the Committee for a Free Asia, a private, non-profit organization, when it agreed to pay the shipping costs ot the books.

Exchange Plan

Rather than give the books outright to the students, a modest exchange plan was formulated. An American book could be obtained under this plan for two illustrated Japanese books or fifty cents.

When Dr. McCune was last in Tokyo, he was pleased to note that most of the Russian texts were gone from the classrooms. American books received from the program contained a statement pasted in saying that the exchange was arranged because Americans "appreciate the freedom they have in their search for knowledge," and desire "that their Japanese friends may have similar freedom."

Since that time the project has grown into a major undertaking embracing twelve Asiatic countries. The sponsor is the successor to the Committee for a Free Asia, the Asia Foundation.

750 Books

This then is the cause of our own local project. Guided by Dr. Hunter and supervised by Pete Bailey, it has met with enthusiastic success with contributions from students and faculty amounting to approximately seven hundred and fifty books. These books are being processed for shipping and will be sent out shortly.

In Dr. Cune's own words: "It is one way in which an individual can do something on his own to help build international understanding."

March Wind Had Its Origin In Space And Is Caused By An Annual Contest

By Mary Ann Morris

Windy, isn't it? Of course it is, it's March! And March is the windy month. At least it is now; it wans't always, you know. There it wasn't always, you know. There calmest, quietest month of the whole year; not a breath of air would stir even the tiniest leaf on the smallest tree. But that was BEFORE the big race.

It happened a long long time ago, and far away on a huge planet, Zirconia, at the far end of our solar system. Zirconia was a confused mess at that time. There was a continuous battle between the two most intelligent inhabitants of the planet, the Felis Leos and the Ovises, to determine who would rule. The Felis Leos were great, shaggy and fierce. They could easily have won over the more timid Ovises, if they had not been so greatly outnumbered. This constant fighting was gradually destroying both their numbers. Finally the two leaders, becoming alarmed, called a truce and arranged for a conference.

After a long and serious discussion it was decided that there was only one way to have peace and order on Zirconia. This was for each group to take its turn each year, and rule. But then another question arose, who would be first? Naturally both wanted to be.

Planetary Race Track

There was almost another war, but at last the oldest and wisest Felis Leo spoke, and suggested that a race be held. The winner would be the answer to the question, and from then on they would rotate. This idea was enthusiastically received, and the strife between the two peoples was forgotten in he making of plans. The designed track would be a complete circle of the solar system.

The Felis Leo won the race, and his people ruled Zirconia the first year. To the Ovises' extreme surprise and gratification, the Felis Leos were good and able leaders, and the planet settled down to an organized existence for the first time.

An Annual Affair

The next year the Ovises took charge. That year also was serene and peaceful on Zirconia. And on Earth. This arrangement of rotation was so satisfactory that the next year, when the leadership again changed hands, an Ovis suggested that a race be held every year to celebrate the event. Earth had seen her last calm March.

Down through the centuries from time to time a few humans caught glimpses of the racers as they hovered briefly over the planet to rest. And as the Felis Leo resembled an Earth lion, it was soon remarked that March "Came in like a lion." Or, on those rare occasions when a gentle, but particularly fleet Ovis was in the lead, that March "Came in like a lamb." When this did happen, March would invariably "Go out like a lion" when a panting Felis Leo rushed past trying to catch up.

Glee Clubs To Present 'Finian's Rainbow' Friday And Saturday

Operetta To Have Leprechauns - And Pot Of Gold, Too

By Paula Kronenberg

"Finian's Rainbow", under the direction of Mr. Dan Kinsinger, will be presented by the men's and girl's glee clubs on April 6 and 7 in the theater.

The operetta is the story of Finian McLonergan and his daughter Sharon who come to this country from Ireland. Finian thinks that if he plants a pot of gold (which he stole from the Leprechauns) near Fort Knox he can become as wealthy as the United States has become. Og (the Leprechaun) follows Finian to try to retrieve his treasure, and the fun begins. Add Senator Rawkins, who wants the South to stay as in yesteryear; the Gospeleers; a bunch of Sharecroppers who want to save their land, and an ex-merchant marine, and the story blossoms into a colorful array of intrigue, love, folkdancing, and singing. Songs featured in the operetta are "How Are Things in Glocca Morra", "That Old Devil Moon", "When I'm Not Near the Girl I Love", and "If This Isn't Love".

Large Cast

The cast includes: Finian, Don Thiel; Sharon, Nancy McGeorge; Senator Rawkins, Stan Timblin; Woody Mahoney, Bob Moses; Susan Mahoney, Gail Shiffer; Og, Dick Dows; Buzz, Don Hughes; and Sheriff, John Ribble.

Drama Group To Give Readings April 13 In FAC

The next experimental theater production, to be held Friday, April 13, at 8:00 in the Fine Arts Center, will be a reading program by the members of Drama 208 Oral Interpretation. The readings will be selections of poetry, short scenes from plays, sketches, monologue, and a one act play. The selections are from Ogden Nash, the Bible, Edwin A. Robinson, Christopher Fry, James W. Johnson, George B. Shaw, Kahil Gibran, Stephen Vincent Benet, James Therber, and George Kaufman, and will be read by John Borter, Tony Clark, Donald Vandenberg, Herchal Netherton, Joe Statter, Winifred Kie, Amelia Maples, Mary Kirklin, Marcia Williams, and Betty Messer.

Council Meets Despite Storm

By Ted McDaniels

The last meeting of Council started off with a bang, literally, the thunder roared and the lightning crashed and the lights went out. Aside from this, nothing of momentous importance happened.

Two senior girls, failing to sign in after returning from town, were brought before Council and were penalized by the suspension of one week town night suspension.

WSGA Plans Merger

It was brought up that W.S.G.A. is considering a proposal of merging with the Student Council since many of their duties overlap. This would make the head of the W.S.G.A. a member of the Council; this is felt to be wise in that it would extend cooperation and authority. This proposal will be taken through all the necessary channels and will be reported on in further detail at a later date.

Class Meetings

President Shackelford announced that in the future the separate classes would have meetings once each month. This is to keep all the class business up to date and to facilitate the co-ordination of the class activities by the Council.

It was mentioned in the meeting that Dean McClelland had asked the Council to see if they could do anything to "keep the students off the grass." This will be looked into and action will be taken.

A proposal was made that Pres-

Tonight at 8:00 in the theater the YMCA and the YWCA will present an Easter Pageant. It will consist of a series of six monologues. Those participating are: Bill strickland, Carol Lee Lacy, Paula Jean Shaeffer, John Graulich, Bill Potter, Bill Deerfield, and Bruce Ingles.

Church Vocations Counselor Coming Here Wednesday

By Ott Feddern

Wednesday, April 5, Dr. Clifford E. Davis, Church Vocations Counselor for the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., will be here to counsel those students who are interested in church vocations and to give tests to those students who are interested in entering Theological Seminaries and Training Schools.

There are four areas of work in church vocations: ministers, directors of Religious Education, directors of music and college personnel. Ministers are needed for rural areas, in the cities, on campuses, in the chaplaincy, and many others. There is especially a great need in the rural areas, because thirty-seven per cent of the church members live there.

Christian education programs, weekday church schools, field supervision, and interdenominational services all need directors of religious education.

Directors of music are needed in parishes, choirs, and in colleges, universities, and seminaries.

College personnel are needed in such departments as Bible and Religion, Science, Economics and Psychology, English, Music, History, Languages, and Administration. Although college work is not commonly considered as a church vocation, it is necessary that members of the faculty and administration of the forty-four Presbyterian colleges be active members in some Christian church.

There are also fields in missionary work, that need workers very badly. Workers in National and Foreign missions are needed all over the world. Spiritually, educationally, and physically, one must be qualified to enter this field. College education post-graduate study for specialization in a particular field, a knowledge of the Bible and Christian Doctrines, and supervised field experience are necessary for educational qualifications. There is also a thorough physical examination to be passed. The ideal age is between twenty-five and thirty years. There are many other qualifications, such as the ability to live and work with others, and the ability to help others in their work.

The Board of Foreign Missions sends missionaries to Africa, Latin America, Mid-Asia, Europe, the Near East and the Far East. The Board of National Missions sends missionaries to both urban and rural areas, migrants, northern industrial areas, isolated Indian reservations, Spanish-speaking southwest, and in other areas.

The Faculty Club will meet Monday evening, April 2.

NOTICE

Treasurers of all student organizations should turn in their mid-semester reports to Dr. L. L. Williams in Fayerweather.

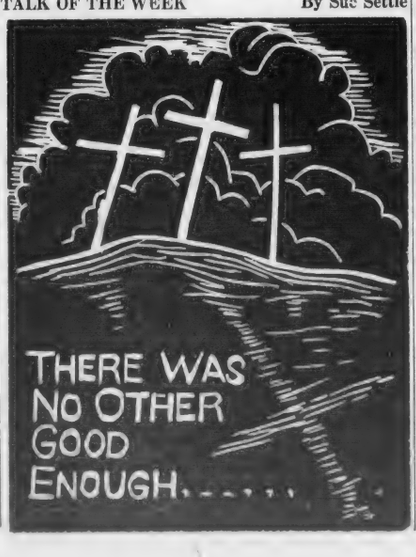
Freshmen Have Debate Tourney

The Maryville College freshmen debate tournament was held this week. Wednesday night winners were: Nancy Stere and Bill Pennock for team debate; best debater, men, Bill Pennock; best debater, women, Nancy Stere. The question debated was, "Resolved: The Federal Government Should Subsidize Higher Education for Superior Students."

The participants were: Joan Johnston, Fred Kaye, David Pierce, Betty Brown, Nancy Stere, Margie Hunter, Barbara Felts, Bill Pennock, and Mickey McGill. Preliminaries were held in Thaw Hall Monday night, and David Pierce, Nancy Stere, Joan Johnston, and Bill Pennock went on to the finals Wednesday night.

Judges of the preliminaries were the varsity debaters. The finals were judged by: Mr. H. C. Bringar, Mrs. Robert Lynn, and Keith Ham, chairman. The judges stated that all the debaters were good.

Elizabeth Murphy To Be May Queen



The royalty to preside over this year's May Day festivities is Elizabeth Murphy, Queen. Miss Murphy, a physical education major, is from Springfield, Tenn. Jim Cummings, president of the senior class will preside as king. He is a physics major from Maryville, Tenn.

Their court will be Kathy Briggs and Bob Muir, Freshmen; Gretchen Hill and Bill Potter, representing the sophomore class; Emily Swanton and Bruce Ingles, from the junior class; and Barbara Cech and Doug Brian, from the senior class.

Rotary Club Hears MC Debaters

The debate team activities for this week were many and varied. Wednesday, two teams consisting of Wendy Wood, Keith Ham, Jo Brooks, and Margallen Hanna debated for the Rotary Club in Alcoa. Wednesday morning Corita Erwin, Eleanor Kostor, Bob Goodlin and Bob Bogle left for the Strawberry Leaf Tournament at Mary Washington College in Fredricksburg, Virginia. This week, also, Marvelyne Rise was elected to Pi Kappa Delta, the National Speech Fraternity.

TALK OF THE WEEK By Sue Settle

Easter Services Begin At Sunrise Tomorrow

Artist Series Announces Events For Next Season

The Maryville College-Community Artist Series announces its tentative schedule as follows: The Fine Arts String Quartet of New York will appear sometime during the week of October 22-27. November 18, Claude Rains, star of stage and screen, will appear on the campus. February 18, the Roger Wagner Chorale will perform. On April 9th, a comparatively unknown pianist will be presented. He is David Bar-Illian from Israeli, a young man who the critics say is one of the best young pianists rising in musical circles.

The exact dates or corrections will be announced at a later date.

Graduation Play Cast Announced

The tentative cast of the commencement play entitled "The Importance of Being Ernest," by Oscar Wilde is as follows: Algy, Bill Deerfield; Jack, Herchal Netherton; Lane, Ralph Wood; Aunt Augusta, Mary Fae Bundy; Gwendolin, Helen McDonald; Cecily, Marcia Williams; Miss Prism, Ann Wiley; Dr. Chasuble, Tony Clark; Merriman, John Borter.

Cut-down sets, a style of scenery never used here before, will further enrich the production of Wilde's play which is considered one of the best comedies ever written.

The play will be performed on May 18 and 22.

Dr. E. Taborsky To Lecture Here

Dr. Edward Taborsky of Czechoslovakia will speak on "Behind the Iron Curtain" in the first Lecture Series of 1956 at 8:00 p. m., Thursday, April 12. Where the lecture is to be given has not been announced as yet.

Dr. Taborsky is a very well-known lecturer, who has given over 300 lectures in many parts of the United States.

The temporary committee appointed to secure speakers for this series consists of three students and three faculty members The members of the committee are Miss Jackson, Dr. Barker, Dr. Queener, Marcia Williams, Ted McDaniels and Charles Partee.

Theta Girls Win Skit Nite Trophy

By Ann Wiley

Saturday evening, March 24, was a big night on campus for the four societies. Weeks (or days, as the case may be) of preparation paid off in an enjoyable time for all. Theta Epsilon took honors with the best skit, "The Maryville Moppetts," and claimed the coveted cup. Bainonian presented "The Rule That Covers Everything," Alpha Sigma did "All That The Dean Allows," and Kappa Phi presented "Rosie's Tattoo."

Everyone did a grand job, but the orchids go to Theta . . . Congratulations ! ! !

Music Ed Club To Meet Thursday

The Maryville Student Members Chapter of M.E.N.C. will meet in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center on Thursday, April 5, at 6:45 p. m. A special program is being planned by Jerry Overall, the program chairman.

Ecumenical Team To Speak Here

Mr K. J. Phillip of India and Mr. Frank J. Reynolds of the USA will visit Maryville campus April 2 through April 2.

I. They will be the speakers at a combined meeting of Student Vols, YMCA, YWCA, Pre-Min Club, Christian Ed. Club and IRC on Tuesday, April 3, at 7 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Student Volunteer Movement, this Ecumenical Team is visiting selected campuses throughout the United States for the purpose of sharing with students the message and mission of the Church and for talking individually with students who are interested vocationally in Christian missions.

II. They will be available for personal conferences on Wednesday in the Conference Rooms of the Chapel. Sign up sheets will be posted.

The Reverend Mr. K. J. Philip, a priest of the Mar Thoma Syrian Church of India, worked as regional secretary for the Indian Student Christian Movement, and has been minister of a parish, and a professor in the Mar Thoma Theological Seminary. He is a graduate of University College, Trivandrum and United Theological College Bangalore. He has just finished a year of graduate study at Princeton Theological Seminary

Mr. Frank Reynolds is a graduate of Oberlin University in Ohio, and received his B. D. degree from Yale Divinity School. He plans to leave in the near future for Thailand where he will do student work under appointment of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Pre-Ministerials Have Holy Week Services

Under the sponsorship of the Pre-Ministerial Association, noonday Holy Week services were held in the Y-rooms. The speakers were Charles Cureton, Bill Van Zant, Doug Brian, Don Thiel and Jim Gardner.

The Pre-Ministerial banquet was held Thursday evening, March 15 at the College Hill Grill. Mr. Thomas Paton was master of ceremonies, and Rev. Robert T. Allen of the Trinity Presbyterian Church spoke about "The Importance of a Purpose in the Ministry".

Theta Meets Tonight

Theta Epsilon will meet tonight at 6:20 in Theta Hall. The program is in the charge of Dodie Waters.

There will be a meeting for all officers of Theta at 5:00 p. m. Monday, April 2, in Theta Hall.

Nineteenth Annual Sunrise Service Is At 6:23 A.M.

By Helen Jansen

As one of the high points of Maryville College life, Easter will be observed on April 1, with the sunrise service, church services, and vesper service as the chief events of the day.

Band To Play

At 5:00 a. m. the six piece brass group of the band will play in Anderson tower. Another group of band members will be near the bookstore, and the two groups will play antiphonally. Continuing along the road to the amphitheatre, there will be three other groups of band members playing Easter music before the 6:23 a. m. Sunrise Service begins.

Sunrise Service

In this nineteenth annual sunrise service, in the college amphitheatre in the woods, Dr. Lloyd will have the meditation entitled, "Why Weepest Thou?" — taken from John 20:15. The Vesper Choir will sing the following: "Christ Is Arisen," a fifteenth century French anthem—Hirsch; "O Sons and Daughters, Let Us Sing!;" "Alleluja! The Strife Is O'er Palestrina; "Oh, The Golden Glowing Morning;" "Come, My Way, My Truth, My Life"—Friedell. They will also sing "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today"—Williams; and "Rejoice in the Lord Alway"—Redford.

The participating band members and those of the Vesper Choir will have breakfast at Morningside before the service.

Church Services

Students will also be attending Easter services at the various churches in Maryville. New Providence will have two services—one at 8:00 a. m. and one at 10:30 a. m. Highland will have its service at 10:30. Other churches and their stated services are: Houston Memorial Presbyterian Church 10:30; Broadway Methodist Church 8:15 and 10:30; First Baptist Church 8:30 and 10:45; Church of Christ 10:30; St Andrew's Episcopal Church 11:00.

At 7:00, the regular Sunday evening Vespers, Dr. Lloyd will give a brief sermon, and there will be special music by the Vesper Choir. Their music will be "Cantata No. Four" by Bach; "Christ Lay in The Bonds of Death."

The cantata is said to have been composed for the Easter Sunday services at Leipzig's St. Thomas' Church in 1724. It follows the sequence of the original hymn with its seven verses, each verse being arranged as a variation on the tune.

The Maryville College Choir performed the cantata in 1950, under the direction of Mr. Harry H. Harter. John Hutton Jr., will direct tomorrow night's performance.

Interesting Stories Are Told About Anderson, Bartlett Halls

By Janet Whitmore

All of the buildings on campus have interesting histories. Most of us know a portion of the history of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, but how much is known by us about Baldwin, Memorial (there was a time the rooms were heated by wood stoves, supplied with wood chopped by the students themselves), Fayerweather, the bookstore, etc?

Dear Old Anderson

What do you know about Anderson Hall, the building which now occupies such an important place in our college life? It was built in 1889. If you think that it has remained unchanged during the years you are very mistaken. Anderson Hall was the first brick building to be erected on "The Hill." It was to be built for $25,000 and was completed in 18 months. In 1892 the Fayerweather Annex was added at a cost of $12,000.

I was talking with Miss Wilkinson and Dr. Orr the other day, and they were recalling for me the functions of Anderson which they could remember and also those about which they had been told. Anderson once was much more than the administration and classroom building it is now.

The first chapel, they said, was held on second floor. It was held in what are now the rooms of Herr Reber, a portion of Miss Heron's, a portion of Dr. Hunter's and the language laboratory. The first chapel was 40 by 60 feet and was lighted by large chandeliers of oil lamps.

The four societies had meeting rooms on third floor. Kappa Phi,

Frank Csapo Tells A Story Of War And A Resolve To Help His Country

By Joanne Causey

"In 1944 I was happily sending out telegrams in my father's post office in an eastern city of Hungary. With my schooling safely behind me, I was getting settled in the peaceful life of postmaster-to-be. In my mind I was already picturing myself as a dignified postmaster of the town, safely married and the proud possessor of a string of children. No, it had never occurred to me that eight years from then I would be in America," so says Frank Csapo, who is now a junior at Maryville College.

Suddenly one morning Frank's little town realized that it was directly in the path of the on-coming Russians, who were descending upon the Hungarian Plains. He had seen the endless columns of tired, hopeless refugees filing past and had pitied them. Now, Frank and his family found themselves among them. Frank went ahead of his parents on foot—they followed by horse cart.

"We didn't think it could ever happen to us," said Frank, "but it did."

A month later they were reunited at a little lake-shore cottage that his father owned. The family rested there for two weeks. It was the last time they ever spent together.

Since the German army was drafting every available young man it could find, Frank was soon recruited. As the train pulled out of the station to take him to his post, Frank waved goodbye to his parents. He never saw them again.

"As the frightened Germans retreated before the constantly ad-

OUR OWN REBIRTH

The thoughts of new life which invariably enter our minds with the blossoming of spring turn our hearts and minds toward our our hope of rebirth through Jesus Christ.

It is fitting that Easter comes in the spring, for what is a more fitting season for this religious observance? Spring is the season of the reawakeningof nature, the return to life of those things dormant or presumed dead. Should not this reawakening of nature make us mindful of our lax acceptance of Christ and make us want to re-establish a firmer faith in the Risen One?

As the death of winter gives way to the life of spring let us be mindful of the death to sin and newness of life we gain through Christ. With the dawning of Easter tomorrow, let us pledge anew our faith in our resurrected Lord.

—B.E.

KNOW THE RULES

As most students already know, Easter and Baccalaureate Sundays offer the only opportunities for Sunday afternoon daitng for freshman and sophomore girls. The following regulations apply:

1. Couples may date on campus, in the parlors of the women's residence halls, or in the immediate residential area on Easter Sunday afternoon.

2. Groups of two or more couples may walk in the College Woods.

3. Groups of two or more couples may walk around the loop.

4. All couples must be back on campus by 6:00 p.m. unless arrangements have been made with the Head of the dormitory to have dinner in town with parents or other visitors.

5. Automobile trips to the mountains with parents or other visitors must be afranged with your housemother.

6. Trips by automobile will not be authorized unless there are parents or faculty members included.

ECHO FORUM

"OPEN THE BACK DOOR"

Open that door, Dean. That is the cry this week. We would like to ask just why is that door shut? There doesn't seem to us to be a valid reason, i.e., that the students coming into chapel by that door and the choir are bumping into each other. And what is they are? Has anyone broken a leg or an arm in the scuffle? And if the idea is to do away with congestion, then why not lock the front doors after chapel?

Why is there a fine crushed stone path from the rear of Carnegie to the rear of the chapel if it is not to be used? Just think of all those stones going to waste. And Dean if your pet-peeve is the students walking on the grass this won't help the situation any. Now instead of walking on the path to the back door of the chapel they cut across the grass to the front door and get in each other's way there.

As we have walked through life we have had to walk through many doors into either the darkness and the crowd or into the bright of day, and with the sudden sunblindness upon us had to risk falling down the steps and breaking our necks many times; it is a matter of course for a grown person to be able to open a door and carry himself through without killing himself or anyone else. And look in literature how many times the door has been a symbol of a new life or sudden adventure, and now we find a door locked to us. Dean—it is most frustrating.

Granted, this editorial may seem a little silly to you Dean, but the locking of that door seems equally silly to us.

The Story of Phoomph Rabbit

Once upon a time, there lived a rabbit named Phoomph who was a very good rabbit—well, she wasn't a bad little rabbit—its just that she wasn't too good. Phoomph lived at Merryville, which is, everyone knows, the very best place to live. One day Phoomph was feeling a little badder than usual, and after rabbitly consuming her hard coffee and black toast, she left for town without signing out.

Immediately, her fairy god-mother flew up and yelled at her, "Phoomph Rabbit, you have been soo bad. Now I'll give you three more chances and then I am going to change you into a Goon."

Phoomph got pretty shook over this, and ran all the way back to the dorm and signed herself out. That night she made sure that she signed up to dye eggs in the kitchen.

But She Does It Again

The next day, as it was near Easter and she wanted to get some powder for her tail, Phoomph decided to go without signing out, as no one would know.

No one? "Phoomph!" raged her fairy god-mother. "You have been soooo bad. You go right back and sign out—only two more times and I will turn you into a goon."

Well, as any rabbit knows, it's no fun being a goon, so she ran rabbitly back to the dorm and signed herself out.

The next morning she hoppened to have to go to town aagin. Ohhh—how she wanted to go without signing out, but what loon wants to be a goon? So she was good all day. She memorized "Stopping by a Basket on an Easter Evening" by Jack Frost for her junior recital:

"Whose eggs these are I think I know,
His home is in the briar patch, though.
He is a rabbit, fuzzy tailed,
I'll take some eggs and then I'll blow."

And she ate all the shells in the egg souffle which she had for lunch. In fact—she was Too good.

At It Again

By night time she was all tired out from being good. She couldn't wait til the next day to be bad. Aha—she would paint all the mirrors and newly died Easter eggs black. She had just begun when she felt a tapping on her left ear. It was her fairy god-mother struggling for self control. "Phoomph," she said, softly. "Phoomph, you have one more chance."

Well, Phoomph was now feeling badder than ever because she had been stopped in the middle of a fourteen carrot project. So, she called up a cute chick she knew and they decided to go to town. Phoomph plucked her whiskers and painted her pawnails. After being good and not breaking rules all day she was tired of being good. So, do you know what she did??

She didn't sign out and she walked on the Wrong Side of the Street and on the way home (shudder) she LOITERED.

Well, Phoomph's fairy god-mother was trying to be fair, but after all!!

"PHOOMPH", she screamed. "I have begged and warned, but egg-zactly what good has it done? None! I am going to change you into a GOON."

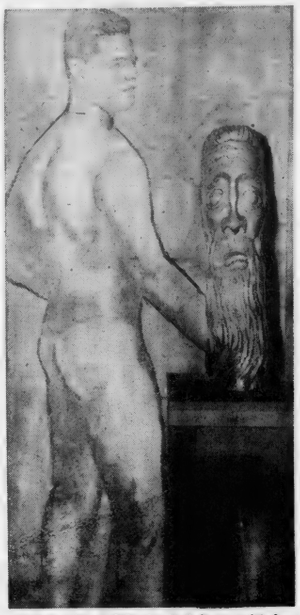
And she did.

And the moral of this story?

Hare today; Goon tomorrow.

CAMPUS HAZARDS NEED CORRECTING

Dear Editor:



I would like to call attenion to some dangerous safety factors on our campus.

One is the lack of several bricks in the sidewalk which lies between Anderson and the Office Annex. This sidewalk is poorly lighted at night, and this hole could cause a bad fall or even a broken leg, especially for a girl wearing high heels, if one was not expecting it.

The second is the lack of any kind of a barrier at the end of the small parking area at the bend of the road in front of Carnegie. When there are no cars parked, it is easy for a stranger to mistake this as a through street. It would be easy to correct this with a row of posts and a reflectorized arrow such as are used in similar places on highways. Many can probably remember seeing a wrecker pulling a car out during the recent snow.

I would like to suggest that the correction of these situations be undertaken as a service project by one of the campus organizations. I would be willing to donate the labor if given financial backing by the college or some club, as I feel that these conditions need to be corrected soon.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joanne Causey

Many were those who ventured into the teeming metropolis of Knoxville to see Helen launch the thousand ships. The majority found it to be an exciting, fast-moving, highly entertaining movie It was well-constructed too, (no, not the leading lady, the movie) with good setting, cosuming and color.

Now these same Maryvillians (myself among them) received tidings that a film of the same type would soon arrive in the confines of their own little village. "Let us then venture into yon market-place and see this wondrous account of the adventures of Ulysses after he helped return Helen to that ogre, Menelaus." So the Maryvillians reasoned. Thus it was that hordes made their way to the village and paid their shekels, expecting the same kind of entertainment they found in "Helen of Troy."

Well . . . , The beginning of the movie found us confidently waiting with our popcorn in hand. As the scene opened, we heard a sentence something like "Ulysses has been long gone." When the sentence was finished, Penelope's lips then began to mouth it. Her companion then followed the same procedure. Throughout the entire movie, the characters never caught up with their lines. Now if you are inordinately fond of Mangano and Podesta, just looking at their Italian charms may be compensation enough. But I'm old-fashioned—I like the characters' lips to stop moving when their speech is over. For a while, I thought the girls ought to try for a scholarship to a good speech-correction school; then I realized that English carelessly dubbed in for Italian. But the fact remains.

As for the plot, well, when you are reading the "Odyssey," you can turn back and figure everything out if the rapid changes of scene confuse you. However, in the movie, such is not the case. Therefore when one scene shows Ulysses and his men riding out a storm at sea and the next scene shows him gazing from the shore at a perfectly calm sea, then the audience is at sea. This "meanwhile, back at the ranch" technique was sloppily used and thus resulted in considerable puzzlement. So I would say, poor transition.

Certain elements of the story were well-done: the cyclops episode, the sirens' calling, the return of the dead at Circe's command.

Otherwise, mediocre entertainment. (Here's hoping some student's grandmother didn't play in the movie.)

Bainonian Plans Party

Bainonian is planning an Easter party to be held in Bainonian Hall this evening. Featured will be refreshments, entertainment, and games.

Camera Club Activities

President of the camera club, Jim Smith of Maryville, reports that the club has been taking field trips and learning how to develop, print and, most important, take pictures. The members of the club use the fully equipped darkroom in Bartlett and a studio in the Fine Arts Center. Mr. Smith says that one doesn't have to be a "pro" to join, the only thing needed is interest—lack of a camera should not keep anyone from joining.

The other officers of the camera club are, vice president, Stan Timblin; secretary-treasurer, Mary Morrell.

Henry's Harpsichord To Appear In Musicale

A special feature on the String Ensemble After-dinner Musicale to be given on Tuesday, April 10, at 7:00 p.m., will be Bach's "Concerto in D Minor" for two violins, (John Graulich and Edward Simpson), and harpsichord, (Henry Emmans).

The program will include music of various composers and periods, and will last no longer than an hour. The program will be open to all interested in good music and will be free of charge.

Miss Meiselwitz and Mr. Schwam have returned to M.C for the Easter holiday.

"Evolution" The Monkey's Viewpoint

Three monkeys sat in a cocoanut tree, discussing things as they're said to be. Said one to the others, "Now listen you two, there's a certain rumor that can't be true, that man descended from our noble race—the very idea! It's a dire disgrace, no monkey ever deserted his wife, starved her baby, and ruined her life. And you've never known a mother monk to leave her baby with others to bunk. Or pass them on from one to another, till they hardly know who is their mother. And another thing! You never will see, a monk build a fence around a cocoanut tree, and let the cocoanuts go to waste, forbidding all other monks a taste. Why, if I put a fence around this tree starvation would force you to steal from me! Here's another thing a monk won't do, go out at night and get on a stew. Or use a gun or club or knife, to take some other monkey's life. Yes, man descended, the ornery cuss, but, brother, he didn't descend from us!!"

Outdoor Sports Replace Indoor Sports On Campus

Ah! Spring, spring, glorious spring! And as the long-awaited and sorely-overdue spring has finally replaced the dying trusts of "Old Man Winter," the fancies of a certain hypothetical young man have gently turned to thoughts of—baseball. Yes, certain campus lovers after an inactive winter season (as far as sports are concerned), have with the coming of spring turned to their second love, baseball?? So, this Easter afternoon when you see a couple walking arm in arm into the woods, you think maybe they're talking about baseball??

Tennis Team Gets In Shape

The Scottie netmen are getting in shape this week with two pre-season practices against the Vol Netters.

Our team looked good against the always-powerful Vol squad. Also it was apparent that rookies Ted Engle and Charlie Garrison gained experience in the team drills and ladder match for each captured victories in the first pre-season scrimmage. Ted along with Bruce Ingles won a doubles match. Also Ted and Charlie each captured their singles match.

For some strange reason the squad is split exactly in half in that the top four men are very evenly matched, as are the bottom four men. Of course, only the top six players on the ladder will compete in intercollegeate matches. So far, Coach Johnson has let the ladder remain "open." Whether this procedure will continue throughout the season remains to be seen.

Brian to Captain Netters

Doug Brian was chosen to captain the 1956 Scottie Netmen.

Since most high schools do not participate in interscholastic tennis, I should like to explain the basic procedure and method of scoring that is used in tennis. In the average tennis match there are nine games played with one point being awarded to the winner of each match. Since there are nine matches, there can be no tie.

Of the nine games three are doubles matches and six are singles. The players pair up according to position on their respective teams, the top man on one team opposing the top man on the other squad, etc. In the doubles matches the first and second player on the home team pair up to oppose the top two players on the visitors' squad, etc.

In the event of a long road trip a traveling team will consist of five players and a coach. In this case there are five games played, five singles and two doubles but since an odd number of games are played, it is still impossible to have a tie.

Strickland and Vandenburg Elected Co-captains of Cindermen

The 1956 Hill-and-Dalers selected Bill "Ape" Strickland and Don "Speedy" Vandenburg as co-captains of this year's squad. Bill is throwing both the discus and shot and on occasion has made near-record throws with the discus. Don is running both the one and two miler.

So far the emphasis has been in track rather than field events with the entire team making occasional trips over the cross country course to get in shape.

Charlie Garrison in addition to playing tennis is also burning up the track on the one and two milers. Tom Morris is running the mile and high jumping, doing a good job at both. At the present, however, Merv Dixon seems to be the top contneder among the high jumpers.

It seems that Bruce Ingles, Mert Hall and Bob Ramger have things well in hand in the sprint department. "Ramist" is also dabbling in the javelin. Joe Williams has been clocked as the fastest man in the team in the 440 and 880.

Jerry Waters has a slight edge on Ed Drum in the pole vault. Tom Dolch at present is top man in the hurdles. Joe Tropansky, Bob Higerd and Dick Jenson are all broad jumping. However, so far they have spent most of their itme in running and have done very little jumping.

It certainly is encouraging to see so much interest and enthusiasm as has been shown toward track this year, especially by the freshmen. It appears that King Cinder is here to stay at Maryville.

Orange-Garnet Game Ends Practice

It is interesting to note that the "rookies" gave the "vetorans" such a good battle in the annual Orange-Garnet game. This shows that next season's grid squad will have depth as well as power. However, the depth is strongest in the backfield, where in some cases theer are as many as four good men for one position, and thins out in the line.

The rookies squadmen who looked particularly promising are Don Harbin of Rule High, Chambers from Porter and Jack Wilson of Rule.

"Flash" Harris Returns

For the regulars, Bob Hutsell, Jack Emery and Ted Wilson showed real power in the line. Earl Smith has shown plenty of improvement and although only a rising spohomore, he handles the ball like a polished veteran. Bud White was at his best and "Flash" Harris is already back in shape and looking great.

White, Wilson Have High Hope for Team

Captain Bud White and Alternate Captain Ted Wilson in a recent interview both expressed a very optimistic outlook for next season's Scottie Gridders. They said that we would have a better and more evenly balanced ball club than in previous yeasr. With Bud and Ted at the helm and with their very optimistic outlooks I think we'll have a great season of football next fall.

Baseball Team Is Shaping Up

Weather permitting, the Highlander Baseball Team is currently engaged in scrimmages and practices to get in shape for the regular season which begins on April 2.

The pitching slot seems to be the Scotties chief weakness at the present time. Bill Evans will undoubtedly be the mainstay of the pitching staff with Jack Crouch, Max Williamson, John West, Jim Marsh and Lew Shearer due to see a lot of service in this position. West has been playing third and will probably see service as a relief pitcher. The other four will undoubtedly play in the outfield when not pitching.

As all three starting outfielders were lost at graduation, there are very few with ample experience to fill these positions. The outfield at the present is weak and needs practice.

Walt Woodhall, the only freshman on the squad, looks very good at second. Backstopper Don Moore and First-baseman Chuck Dunn, both experienced diamondmen are in good shape though the season has as yet not started. Bill Dent will be in fine shape as soon as he gets the kinks out.

Scots Drop Practice Game to U-T

On Tuesday the Scots dropped a practice game to U-T by a score of approximately 10-1. The most discouraging thing about this game was the errors which in most instances were very costly.

However it is far too early to make any serious speculations as to the possibilities of the team. I'd better wait 'til they get the kinks out before I attempt any predictions.

Orange Squad Defeats Garnet Gridders 27-20

As was expected, the Orange squad downed their Garnet teammates 27-20, in the annual intrasquad game ending spring football practice. The game was played over a two day period the end of last week.

Wingback Earl Smith and tailback Earl "Flash" Harris were the sparkplugs of the Orange squad. Smith scored on a beautifully executed reversed play in which he galloped 80 yards to pay dirt. Harris was a valuable asset to the regulars, scoring two TDs.

The Lineups

Orange squad:
Center—Jim Yoakum
R. Guard—Bob Hutsell
L. Guard—J. C. McCaroll
R. Tackle—Tom Axley
L. Tackle—Jack Emery, Harold Brown
R. End—Max Williamson
L. End—Ted Wilson
B. Back—Tom Moore
W. Back—Earl Smith
F. Back—Bud White, Dale Patterson
T. Back—Earl Harris, LeRoy Clark

Garnet squad
Center—Don Stafford (Porter)
R. Guard—Jim Cole (MC)
L. Guard—Bob Beam (MC)
R. Tackle—Bob Nuckles (Walland)
L. Tackle—Jerry Cambell (Walland), Bob Carpenter
R. End—Will Woodby (Townsend), Don Harbin (Rule)
L. End—Winifred Kilgore (MHS) Bob Mull (MC)
B. Back—John Davis (Porter)
W. Back Rex Fox (Porter), Jack Truitt (MC)
F. Back—Jack Wilson (Rule)
T. Back—Ken Reed (MHS), Chambers (Porter)

Standouts for the Orange squad were Hutsell, Emery and Wilson in the line and Smith, White, Harrir and Moore in the backfield.

Tops in lineplay for the Garnets were Stafford, Cole, Beam, and especially Harbin. Truitt, Wilson and Chambers were the best prospects in the backfield.

AS I SEE IT....

By Sonny Shackelford

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of . . . tennis. You've probably heard humorous stories concerning the game of golf, and yet our national pastime, baseball, and the popular sport of tennis are played with a ball only several times larger. At least the instrument provided for hitting the round object, a racquet, is more adequately proportioned than a baseball bat or a golf club.

The weather has prevented extensive practice so far, in tennis, with the cold weather, wind and rain creating terrible playing conditions. Some advantage has been taken of the few sunny days for the boys to limber up their slugging arms. It is hoped—with all the interest in playing tennis here—that surfaced courts will be a realized dream in the near future.

Maryville appears to be in pretty good shape for the current tennis season. Three lettermen are back from last year, and the squad should be strengthened by the addition of several other enthusiasts. The much improved Stan Mont joins the returning players, Doug Brian, Sonny Shackelford, and Charley Partee. These four should give Maryville a fairly well balanced front line. Captain Brian, when his serve and volleying are "on," is the standout player. Shackelford just tries to keep the ball going, while Partee has developed into a fine defensive specialist, backed-up by some good placement-shots.

Bruce Ingles, Ted Engle, Bob Jackson, Dave Williams, and Charlie Garrison round out the squad. Several of these boys are very closely matched and since a match usually employs six men from each team, there is expected to be some stiff competition between them in ladder matches. The ladder is a listing of the players in order of ranking, the ladder matches the means by which the players are designated for a upcoming match.

The squad had a profitable practice match with U-T Monday. Although Ted Engle was the only winner in singles competition, the team looked good. Mont and Partee came through with a convincing win in the number two doubles. Today there is to be another practice session with U-T, so the students will get an opportunity to observe the team.

The team as a whole is well balanced and should establish a fine record in matches this season. The tennis schedule has already been printed in the paper, with the season concluding in the three-day state meet at Sewanee beginning May 3.

Volleyball

The Alpha Sigma Sledgehammers won the tournament and subsequently the volleyball trophy to wind up the volleyball season. Due to the fact that there was no issue of the Echo the weekend of the close of the volleyball tournament, the winner of the trophy was not made public till now.

Baseball

Intramural softball has been under way for a little over a week now and there have been enough runs scored in the few games thus far played to normally comprise a whole season's total. The low scoring game is the exception to the rule and such a thing as a pitcher's duel is unheard of. The main reason for these high scoring games seems to be a general lack of experience and practice. As the season goes on and the players settle down in their positions the scores of the games should become lower. At least we hope so. Some of the scores have ranged in difference of from one run, 5-4, to as wide a margin as 25-10. There have really been some wild ball games.

With only a few games played by each team the league standings as of Thursday night, March 29, are:

	W	L	Pct.
A.E. Hammers	2	0	1.000
A.E. Sl'hammers	2	0	1.000
P.M. Hurricanes	1	1	.500
Ball and Chains	1	2	.333
Kappa Phi	0	1	.000
Los Aucas	0	2	.000

WAA Girls Begin Softball Tourney

The WAA has been practicing softball this week and will begin the tournament between the Chillies and the Howles next week. This is the last activity to be taken up this semester.

For their spring hike, the girls are planning to go to Laurel Lake the first weekend in May at which time the new members of the M-Club will be initiated. They plan to sleep in pup-tents and maybe do some outdoor cooking.

Pre-Mins Renew Sports Enthusiasm

This year the Pre-Ministerial Association has shown renewed interest in intramural sports and in so doing has once again broken down the stereotyping of ministers as thin, non-athletic individuals.

In intramural football the Pre-Mins reached the semi-finals of the tournament and placed four members on the All-Star Squad.

The Pre-Min Hurricanes were champs of the B league in basketball and a Pre-Min team reached the semi-finals in the volleyball tournament.

As for softball, members of the team report that at present prospects are hopeful.

ODE TO A MARYVILLE BUS

First Floor Anderson is much different now than it used to be. What is now Dr. Hunter's office was at one time the bookstore, later that moved to what is now Dr. Lloyd's office. The President's office occupied a part of what is now the Personnel office, the treasurer's office was in the room now occupied by Mr. Hampton. The rest of the rooms, although divided differently then, were classrooms primarily used by the preparatory students.

A landmark in the back of Anderson Hall which observant students have oftentimes remarked over is the little circle of bricks near the walk. Not too, too many years ago there used to be a fountain and pool there.

Bartlett Hall

Bartlett is a Maryville building with an interesting history. Completed in 1901 it was the project of a Japanese student here, Kin Takahasi. "Kentucky Hossie," as he was nicknamed, was an active student leader. He was Maryville College's first football captain, editor of "College Days," the student publication then,, and a leader in religious activities. The son of a Shintoist father and a Buddhist mother, he became a Christian, and because he felt Maryville College and the Christian Church in America had done so much for him, he undertook to solicit and construct a YMCA building—Bartlett. His fellow college students under his leadership made the bricks, and farmers near by gave the wood to burn the three kilns. For two years after his graduation he traveled around the country securing funds for the completion of his project and when assured that it could be finished he returned to Japan to YMCA work there.

A former president of Maryville, Samuel T. Wilson published a book, "A Century of Maryville College," which makes for very interesting reading on just such subjects as the above. There are several copies in our library, complete with pictures of the students and buildings back when——

Bogle Installed IRC President

The International Relations Club held an installation program at its last meeting on March 19. The following were elected to their respective offices: Bob Bogle, president; first vice president, Keith Ham; second vice president, Ben Hahn; secretary, Cathy Richtmyer; and treasurer, Marvelyne Rise.

Plans are being made to attend the 4th annual Model United Nations Conference to be held at Centre College May 3 through 5.

The I.R.C. plans a variety of interesting programs and events in the future. Everyone interested is invited to attend the meetings.

vancing Russians, they looked on everyone as a potential enemy. They took all of our weapons away from us and left us weak from want of food. With all our hopes crushed, we longed for the coming of the American troops." (The Hungarians were in the German army, with their own divisions and officers but under the German High Command).

Upon arrival of the Americans, an interesting thing happened to Frank, a thing which changed his whole life. He and a friend were told they were free to go home again. As they crossed the border to enter Russian-occupied homeland, the American soldier in charge said, "Wait a minute buddy, I'll have to search you just to make sure." To Frank's astonishment, the soldier found a bullet in his back pocket. This meant a P.O.W. camp. In utter dispair Frank joined the thousands of other weary prisoners there. It was only much later that he learned that all Hungarian soldiers who returned to their homes were sent to Siberia.

Frank's despair was short-lived, however, for after a few weeks, he and one other boy were picked out of the 50,000 prisoners to serve as interpretors at 3rd U. S. Army Headquarters in Munich. Although he was discharged in five months, he enjoyed the work so much that he stayed on for six years.

In the meantime, Frank had found a good friend in a Hungarian minister who helped refugees. He suggested to Frank that he apply for a visa to come to the United States. Frank followed this advice, although without much hope, and in a short time was in America under the sponsorship of a Hungarian family. Once in the states, he began working in an automobile assembly plant, always wondering what his permanent vocation would be.

This was soon decided. A Hungarian friend of his, a minister, died in an automobile wreck. Frank went to visit his family at Montreat, North Carolina, and soon became sold on the place. It was while he was in school at Montreat College that he talked with Billy Graham. "He convinced me that I could help my people greatly by becoming a minister and serving a Hungarian-American Church. This has been my goal ever since."

Frank was enthusiastic in his praise of Maryville. "They are all so friendly, so nice to me. I don't feel like a foreigner at all."

And to Maryville College students, he isn't a foreigner—he's a very likable boy who speaks English with a refreshing Old World touch.

'Finian's Rainbow' Will Be Presented Again Tonight

Reporter Goes Backstage, Learns Production Tricks

By Mary Anne Morris

"Finian's Rainbow," the fantasy by Harborg and Lane which was presented last night and is to be presented tonight by the men's and girl's glee clubs, was a great success. The fresh, imaginative choreography was done by Sheryl Ralston, an instructor at the Lillian Bumpus School of Dance here in Maryville. The players in the operetta came to a gay and musical life on stage, and Missitucky's Rainbow Valley seemed really to exist for the audience.

The entire show revolved around the escapades in Rainbow Valley, and Finian's pot of gold 'borrowed' from the Leprechauns. Romance is furnished by Finian's daughter, Sharon, and Woody Mahoney, who lives in Missitucky and falls in love with the Irish girl. On the stage was a colorful array of odd characters. And backstage, before the operetta, the colorful array of characters was even odder.

— You Might Have Seen— —

If you had been backstage on "Finian's Rainbow" you would have been caught up in a tremendous swirl of activity. You Might have seen the chorus, sitting nervously behind the set, waiting the beginning of the operetta and its cue, and perhaps wondering if the tree will stand the strain. Several frustrated players would probably wander by, trying to find the "green" room.

The stage manager, Herchel Netherton, rushes hither and yon, shouting orders to the stage crew, lighting crew, sound-effects men, costume adjustors, prompters, the cast, Mr. Kinsinger (oops)! When he pauses for breath, you timidly ask, "Whatcha doin'?" You rate a brief "Go away, girl, you bother me," before he dashes off with a loud "Careful of the Curtains!"

A pale chorus member, Margie Hunter, wanders by, and you smile at her. "I'm scared to death!" She croaks, "I just know I'll forget that line about the rooster!"

Snoring noises come from a corner, and you decide not to wake Don Thiel. "Late rehearsals," explains a bleary-eyed Nancy McGeorge.

An agonized cry echoes from the make-up rooms, then, "Well, keep your eye closed if you don't want make-up in it!" And, a few minutes later, "Oh, I just look horrible!" "You're supposed to."

Bob Moses, desperately muttering to himself, clutches a history book in the middle of the confusion. "Crammin' for a test," he mumbles.

Over to one side, Stan Timblin is being sewed into a costume. With a painful expression he says, "Too much supper. I took a deep—ouch, watch those pins—deep breath, and everything—Oh

Faith Parish Needs Student Workers For Bible Schools

Faith Cooperative Parish is in great need of student volunteer workers to take positions in various Bible schools for the two weeks immediately following the end of this semester. Students who are chosen will be granted free room and board on the campus for the brief training period and the actual program (from May 23 through June 6).

All students interested will please see Dr. Cropp or Mr. Van Pelt or make arrangements for interviews in the near future.

Rev. Jerry G. Elliott Is Vesper Speaker

The Vesper speaker tomorrow night will be Rev. Jerry G. Elliott, assistant pastor at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

News Capsules—

By Joe McNeal

Damaging tornadoes ripped through four Mississippi river states leaving at least six dead in an avalanche of bad weather which left 46 dead across the nation as April began with storms. In Michigan 19 were killed on Tuesday, and Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Indiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Kentucky were also hit hard.

Washington, April 3—Secretary of State Dulles has stated emphatically that President Eisenhower has no intention of asking Congress for standby authority, such as he got for Formosa, to send U. S. troops to the Middle East. Dulles said that he did not foresee any crisis which would require American troops, but he stated that if such a crisis arose, the President would get the approval of Congress before acting.

Milwaukee, April 3 — President Eisenhower appears to have won a popularity contest in Wisconsin against Senator Estes Kefauver. The President had a lead of approximately 35,000 votes at this writing. The Wisconsin primary was considered to be largely a popularity contest between Eisenhower and Kefauver with the chief issue being the farm situation.

Eleonore Koster Wins National Debate Award

Eleonore Koster was judged Grand National Champion in impromptu speaking at the Grand National Forensic Tournament held March 28-31 at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia. Eleonore Koster and Bob Goodlin were division winners in impromptu speakng which placed them among the top ten in that event.

Two debate teams composed of Bob Bogle and Bob Goodlin, and Corita Erwin and Eleonore Koster participated in nine rounds of non-decision debate against teams from Vanderbilt, Brigham Young, Bowdoin, Carson-Newman, Emerson, Middlebury, and Penn. State.

Tournament April 19, 20

The regional Pi Kappa Delta Tournament will be held April 19-20 at Cookeville, Tennessee and will be attended by Tom Paton, Bob Goodlin, Margallen Hanna and Jo Ann Brooks.

Maryville Girls Kelton And Wall At Y Conference

The state meeting of the 1956 Tennessee Conference for leaders of Campus Y's and Student Christian Associations is having its first joint meeting of the Y.M. and Y.W. today at Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee, from 8:30 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. Those representing Maryville are Ann Kelton, former Nu Gamma Chairman and now the President of Y.W., and Janie Wall, the Intercollegiate Promoter on the Regional Council (whose chief responsibility is the Inter-collegiate Y Magazine).

By means of workshops and discussions, this one-day session aims to train its officers and cabinet members for their particular responsibilities, by a sharing of experience and faith, strengthen the campus program, and stimulate its growth and effectiveness.

Conferences To Come

From June 6-13, the Regional Conference of the YMCA's YWCA's, and SCA's of ten southern states will hold its annual meeting at Emory and Henry College in Emory, Virginia. It is chiefly for the training of officers and advisors. It is hoped that the presidents of the Maryville Y.M. and Y.W. can attend.

The central focus this year is upon "The Christian Student in His Contemporary Setting", which emphasizes the real mean-

Sociology Class Attends Blount Court Session

By Helen Jansen

The 202 Sociology class and Miss Sally Brown witnessed a study of a social problem in a true life case in the circuit court Thursday morning.

The class has just recently begun its study of criminology and juvenile delinquency.

The case which was before the court was stated as trespassing and destroying property of others. The persons directly involved were a 19-year-old girl and a 32-year-old man. The jury passed their judgment upon the man as guilty with a $50 fine. The judge added that the man must stay six months in the county workhouse after which he would be dismissed for a year on good behavior.

An Oriental Exotic Atmosphere To Prevail At Spring Formal

By Betty Anne Springstead

Drift into an exotic oriental atmosphere—With a magic robe to match your ball gown, transportation will be no worry. Drift by the scenes of Scheherazade and swirl thru the excitement that can be kindled only in an Arabian Night.

At the enchanted hour of 8:00 the magic of Arabia will transform the Alumni Gym into a glittering Paradise. The Sultans of Alpha Sigma and the Maidens of Theta Epsilon have imported this Eastern atmosphere especially for your enjoyment next Saturday, April 14. Admittance may be gained to this Oriental Paradise for only 125 rupees per couple.

And who are the people that have created this magic? The The chairmen of the Sultans, being naturally shy, were loath to reveal their identity. Happily, we can bring to you some of the names of the maidens who are endeavoring to bring the exotic into being. Co-chairmen are Virginia Marshall and Margie Jones; refreshment committee is headed by Katie Marston; publicity will be in the charge of Nancy Potter; Sue Nelson will preside over tickets; and the exotic entertainment will be under the care of Mary Ellen Lee and Paula Kronenburg.

This will be the most glamorous and romantic event of the season. Girls, wear your most dreamy gown and most mystic perfume and prepare to be swept away by the glamour of an enchanting Arabian Ball. Prepare to make this the Arabian Night of your life.

Dr. Eward Taborsky To Speak Here Thursday

Dr. Sam Franklin To Speak April 15 In Vesper Service

The speaker at the Vesper service next Sunday, April 15, will be Dr. Sam Franklin, Jr., who is a missionary to Japan with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Dr. Franklin, a graduate of Maryville in the class of 1924, is here on furlough working on a textbook. He is on the faculty of Tokyo Union Theological Seminary in Japan. He studied at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago and Union Theological Seminary in New York. He also spent a year studying in Edinburgh and served as director of the Delta Cooperative Farm in Mississppi from 1936 until 1943. He served as a chaplain in World War II and went to Japan in 1947.

Dr. Franklin is staying with his father, Mr. Sam Franklin, Sr., here in Maryville. His wife, Dorothy Winters Franklin, is also a Maryville graduate. Dr. Franklin holds an honorary Doctor's Degree from Maryville College.

Study In Spain

Six fellowships for study or research in Spain are available to American graduate students for the 1956-57 academic year, it was announced today by Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

The awards, given by a private donor, are administered by the Institute. Closing date for application is May 1, 1956. The fellowships provide $2000 for the academic year, for travel, maintenance and tuition.

Candidates must be United States citizens under 30 years of age. Other eligibility requirements are: A bachelor's degree by the time of departure; Demonstrated academic ability and capacity for independent study or research; A plan for advanced study at a Spanish university or for research; Good knowledge of Spanish; Good moral character, personality and adaptability; Good health; and Ability to provide for any dependents.

Foreign Service Exams Announced By State Dept.

The Department of State announced today that a Foreign Service Officer Examination will be given on June 25 at more than 65 centers throughout the United States. To be eligible to take the examination, candidates must be at least 20 years of age and under 31; American citizens of at least 10 years standing and, if married, married to an American citizen. The closing date for filing application is May 11.

Department of State officials estimate that several hundred new Foreign Service Officers will be required during the next year to fill positions both in Washington and overseas. After completing training at the Foreign Service Institute in Washington, many of the new officers will take up their duties at any one of the 272 embassies, legations and consulates around the world. At these posts, which may range in size all the way from our mission in London to the two-man post in Perth, Australia, the new officer may expect to do a variety of tasks such as administrative work, political, economic, commercial and labor reporting, consular duties, and assisting and protecting Americans and their property abroad. Equally important is the officer who takes his first tour of duty in Washington where he may engage in research or other substantive type work, or in innumerable junior administrative tasks which are essential to the day-to-day conduct of foreign affairs.

To publicize fully these exceptional opportunities in the Foreign Service which await the highly qualified young men and women of America, a number of offi-

Dr. Taborsky To Appear Thurs. In FAC Music Hall

Dr. Edward Taborsky, the first speaker in the 1956 Lecture Series, will speak at 8:00 p. m. April 12 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. His topic is "Behind the Iron Curtain".

Dr. Taborsky's professional career qualifies him to speak on such a subject.

At the time of the "Munich" settlement in 1938 Dr. Taborsky was Secretary to the Czechoslovak Minister of Foreign Affairs. In 1939 he escaped to Britain after the Nazis had taken over Czechoslovakia, and joined the Czechoslovak government-in-exile. From 1939-1945 he served as Personal Aide to President Edward Benesh, accompanying him to conferences with F. D. Roosevelt, Stalin, and Molotov. He served as Czechoslovak Envoy to Sweden from 1945-1948, resigning when the Communists took over Czechoslovakia in 1948.

Dr. Taborsky has taught at Charles University, Prague, University of Stockholm, Ohio State University, and University of Texas. He has a knowledge of French, German, Russian, Swedish, Italian and Czech, and is the author of eight books, two of them in English, as well as numerous articles for American, British, Swedish and other magazines.

Dr. Taborsky was secured by a joint temporary student-faculty committee, of which Dr. Queener is the chairman. Miss Jackson is the secretary of that committee and Dr. Barker is in charge of publicity. Other members of the committee are Charles Partee, Marcia Williams and Ted McDanicls.

An invitation has been extended to all students, faculty members, and town people who would be interested in hearing Dr. Taborsky. Admission is free.

YW Community Service Committee Has Many Interesting Activities

By Carolyn Cones

One of the ways in which a college may repay its debt to its community is through service; hence, one of the most valuable, indeed, one of the most rewarding branches of our Y.W.C.A. is the Community Service Committee. Headed by Barbara Wilkie and Jane Hussey, this committee embraces a number of varied and interesting activities: piano teaching, assisting at the Blount County Rural Teachers' Library, working at the Hospital, aiding the Y-Teens, and helping with Girl Scout work.

Piano Teaching

Piano teaching is carried on at the Community House, where pupils, who are mostly in the junior age group, receive a half-hour lesson once a week. Ruth Morris, head of this division, says that the children are enthusiastic and learn quickly—a real accomplishment since some of the pupils have no piano and consequently practice at the Community House. Ruth's church gave a sum of money to help finance this project, while books are donated by interested persons.

Others engaged in this activity this semester include Margaret Keitt, Margaret Connolly, Mary Ann Worley, Betsy Watson, and Elva Leonhardt. Right now their students are working on a recital to be held on April 28 at 2 o'clock in the Community House.

Library

Still other college girls work at the Rural Teachers' Library which is located in the basement of the Court House. This library was set up for the teachers of Blount County and rents text books, films, and film strips. The girls, headed by Mary Ellen Phipps, help the staff perform such tasks as mending films, filing, dusting, rebinding, and signing out books.

Hospital Helpers

One of the newest parts of the Community Service is the Hospital Committee, supervised by Joan Davis. Workers in this division go to the Hospital, usually in pairs, one or two hours a week to entertain the children. Future plans include the possibility of subscribing to several children's magaznes.

Those participating in this activity include Joanne Causey, Sue Nelson, Mary Ellen Phpps, Sue Trotter, Martha Goodpasture, Barbara Woodey, Sue Tourtellotte, Judy Trnavsky, Grey Clarke, Penny Neff, Helen McDonald, Mary Ann Phipps, Elva Leonhardt and Ira Jo Davis.

Y-Teens

The Y-Teens division, headed by Cathy Garrison, assists Mrs. Edith Largen, district supervisor of Y-Teen Clubs. The Teen Clubs in Blount County are found in the high schools of Maryville, Walland, Townsend, Alcoa, Friendsville, and Hale; and once a month a meeting of representatives is held in the Y-Rooms. Last semester the Smoky Mountain Conference of the Y-Teen Clubs met here on the campus.

This division includes: Bezy Zimmerman, Jane Marshall, Susie McLaughlin, Charlotte Slappey, Nancy Priest, and Shirley Carr.

Girl Scouts

A number of other girls, supervised by Sandy Dorsett, assist the Girl Scout leaders in the community. Those working in the capacity of assistant leaders are Joan Johnston, Robbie Gibbs, Joan Jet-

Increasing Interest In Learning?

Are Maryville College students suddenly turning into bookworms? Judging from the posted lists of overdue books recently, that seems to be the case. Several weeks ago the list contained the alarming sum of a little over a hundred overdue books. The latest list runs even higher with 133 books classified os overdue, and there have been as many as 170 late books in a week.

Writers of term papers and special studies may be the culprits. In that case, we hope they are the only ones in the school who need the books. But what is the poor scholar to do who wants to write on the same topic as one of these offenders? Will he have to wait the full two weeks and even more to obtain an important book, or will he have to resort to theft or more drastic means?

We are sure that the librarians would welcome the increasing interest of students in checking out books to keep for several weeks if the fines collected would substantially supplement the income of the library. But since nickels and dimes add up rather slowly and do not compensate for the extra work involved in keeping up with overdue books, we are also sure that the librarians would appreciate promptness in turning them in.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor,

Last week the Echo printed an article concerning the opening of a certain chapel door. I am not disturbed with this matter as much as I am about the writer's attitude. I think by the time one is twenty years old and a college junior one should realize that little or nothing can be accomplished with sarcasm and bitterness. Any village fool can be biter, but it takes some sense to present an argument which can stand. It is particularly disturbing to me since I know that the writer was aware of the fact that the Student Council was about to look into the matter.

A staff editor on the Highland Echo is a position of responsibility and should not be abused as it was last week. We do not have a censored newspaper now but such an idea is not beyond conception.

May I suggest, therefore, that any remarks that need to be made in the future be expressed in a more scholarly manner.

Sincerely,
John P. Borter

Editor's Note:

The Editor agrees with the writer of this letter that a reasoning attiude toward problems will accomplish more in the long run than sarcasm, but she would like to remind the writer that the article to which he refers was printed in the Echo Forum and does not necessarily represent the editorial policy of the Echo in general. The Echo Forum is reserved for comments and opinions of students and other readers of the paper and is available to those who wish to make use of it. The writer of the article which appeared in it last week was not necessarily flaunting his position as staff editor.

DATING ETIQUETTE FOR THE MARYVILLE MALE

By Mary Ann Morris

The Maryville Emily Posting: a guide to dating etiquette for the Maryville college male. Here are answers to question that turned Amy Vanderbilt gray.

To Date or Not to Date

Why not? There are many advantages to dating, many, many advantages. Can't think of any, but there must be advantages. The few and minor disadvantages, such as expense, and no one to date, are easily overruled, especially at Maryville. Dances, flowers, and other expensive entertainment is practically unknown. Surely you men are not too cheap to take a girl to a movie! As for no one to date, Maryville is plentifully supplied with girls! You could even say the place is overrun with them, like mice.

Be a Gentleman

When asking for a date, ask the girl in plenty of time. No girl likes to be asked at the last minute. Give her five, at least, so she can primp.

When calling for the girl, if she isn't ready, don't stand around looking lost. Go into the parlor; sit down and wait. If you desire to read a magazine, turn on a light so you won't strain your eyes in the dark.

When your date finally comes down the stairs, be a gentleman and help her put on her gloves, scarf, raincoat, and boots. Smile at the housemother as you leave, and assure her that you will try to be back before 12:00. She will appreciate this little courtesy.

Another advantage to Maryville College dating: no gasoline expense! No car!!! Just think of all the healthful exercise hiking to town.

Always remember that you are on a date, that you are with a beautiful girl, and there is a gleaming moon in the sky (if you are lucky). Walking to town offers a wonderful opportunity for romance. You can get as close to the girl as you'd like——as long as you are on one side of the street and she is on the other.

Don't be rude, and turn to stare at the small grey car that slowly follows you at a distance. The little man behind the wheel COULD be a lost tourist!

No Cause For Alarm

If the movie and the tomato juice afterward at the local bar (health, that is) took too long; if the door is locked when the two of you return, and your date has forgotten her key, don't be alarmed. The fire escape has been placed there for your convenience. Your date will wake the housemother immediately when inside and tell her that she is in, so she won't worry anymore.

At the end of a perfect evening, you must not spoil everything by suddenly reverting to a drooling caveman. If you grip her hand in a too firm handshake, you might frighten her, especially if she's shy. It is best to simply smile and wave a friendly goodbye, at least for the first twenty-four dates.

Even though you have taken your date home, and you are happy as a lark, it's best not to sing too loudly as you tumble in the basement window of Carnagie. Your friends might not appreciate your jovial mood. Just tip toe quietly over their heads and into your own room. Be a gentleman to the last.

This, then, is etiquette——the correct way to do things! Like eating potato chips with a spoon, etiquette must be studied and practiced. Neatly cut this article out and carry it with you at all times. When in doubt, you can refer to it; the pocket Emily Posting!

Scots & Soda

By Fulbert McDaniels

Dear Miss Millicent,

It seems that you help all sorts of people with all sorts of problems. My problem is writing. I am a poor writer living in a poorer attic in the rottenest section of Mercyburgh. The name of the book which I want published is, "The Closed Door," or, "I Saw You Cringing in the Chapel." It is the story of fourteen thousand men trapped in a condemned building which housed the "Knocksvul Nude Centennial." It was condemned on the grounds that it was a paper building. The only survivor was Gen. Clyde Furd of Afganistanian fame when he led the charge of Corktip Tarryton. (It was a king-size battle.) They had a few lucky strikes when Lord Chesterfield arrived with his Camels. He was accompanied by Sir Winston, who fights good, like a Sir should. (Sir Winston is known for his generalship in the battle of Four Roses. The guns still echo through the highlands.)

The war ceased when Pres. Snow White Booseyfelder signed over the Magna Americat Charta to Premier Staling over a Yalted Milk at Darnroten Okes. The document was witnessed by Algae Hissenberger, a former Americat diplomat and personal friend of S. W. Booseyfelder and his wife, Feller.

My problem is whether or not to have the book printed Chinese.

Yours Truly,
Garth R. Snapper

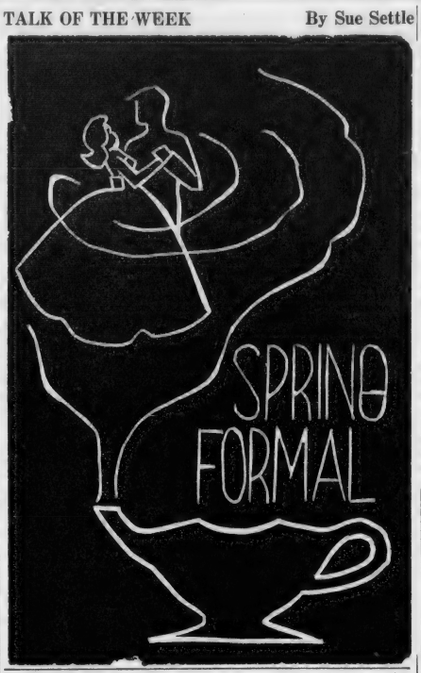
P. S.—It's to be printed in red-herring ink by Trueman & Daughters Publishing and Letterwriting House.

G.R.S.

Mr. Garth R. Snapper

I can readily see your problem, i.e., weather or not to have this book, "The Closed Door or I Saw You Cringing In the Chopel," printed in Chinese. As you know S. W. Booseyfelder is a renowned world traveler and no doubt will know if your book is not suitable printed in Chinese and placed in the Imperial Son's of Heaven Palace library, I do not feel that you have to worry too much about fire-breathing lawyers confronting you with suits for your use of the names of such famous men as Lord Chesterfield and his Camels or Sir Winston since their memory has already gone up in smoke anyway.

You mention the Battle of the Four Roses. I cannot recall any such incident, however, I do connect the names of the men you mentioned with other characters who stand on their tin cans such as the Right Hon. Mr. Budwieser and Gen. Schmidt as well as Capt. Piel of the flotilla, who as you know is the driest of them all. I hope that you won't think me impertinent for pointing out the errors in you account of the lies and loves of these great men, however, I feel I should also tell you that the charge of the Corktip Tareyton was not in Afghanistan but in the Cedar crowned highlands of Collegistan very near the sport where Fort Anderson now stands.



I do remember the signing of the Treaty of the Yalted Milks at Darnrotten Okes, but once more I would like to point out the fallacy in you account. Feller is not the name of Pres. Booseyfelder's wife but of his dorg. Please try to remember the slogan of Pres. Booseyfelder, "I hate WHaar, Elinor hates Whaar, and I hate Elinor."

I think your choice of a publishing house is excellent and I should like to suggest a white binding with a black band around the edge to signify the end of the Whaar. . .

——Truly, Truly, Fair——
Miss Millicent

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Sue Settle

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joan Marston

With all the visitors on campus the past week, the most popular shows in Knoxville were "Carousel" and "Picnic" both, I think, equally good though they are opposites.

Back down to earth (Maryville) this past week "Helen of Troy" visited the Capitol and was followed by Red Skelton acting up as per usual in "The Great Diamond Robbery." Next week on Monday and Tuesday, the Capitol will feature the rip-snortin' legend of the Yukon, "The Spoilers" starring Anne Baxter, Jeff Chandler, and Rory Calhoun. At the Park the atmosphere was a little different last week with "Running Wild," and "When Gangland Strikes."

Next week the Park has "Artist and the Models," until Wednesday and then a double feature of "City Across the River" and "Girls in the Night."

Books, Books

For some higher entertainment, the library has a varied stack of new books on its shelves. The books include one of almost every type. Here are a few examples:

"The Study of International Relations" by Quincy Wright is an attempt to explain international relations without losing the thread and confusing the reader with vague generalities. It defines everything for a clearer understanding.

"Hiroshima Diary," a journal of a Japanese physician, Michihiho Hachuja, who gives his eye-witness account of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and the seven weeks following.

"Surprised by Joy" is C. S. Lewis' story of his search for joy, a spiritual journey leading him finally back to Christianity.

William Horden wrote "A Layman's Guide to Protestant Theology" to relate objectively, the exact meanings of Fundamentalism, and Liberalism, to name two, and he traces the growth of the orthodox forms of Christian thought since the 16th century. These are just a few of the books it would be well worth your time to read.

Did you ever wish they would set aside a year when you could do nothing but read all the books you just never got around to? (I do.)

Socially Speaking

Jones-MacCall

Mr. and Mrs. Murl C. Jones have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Lou Jones, to Mr. Harry Franklin MacCall, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. MacCall, Jr., of Morris Plains, N. J. Miss Jones was graduated from Eastern Kentucky State College. Mr. MacCall, a graduate of Maryville class of '55 attends the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. The wedding will take place June 22.

Brasfield-Wheatley

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brasfield of Butler, Mo. are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Brasfield to Mr. William Wheatley of St. Petersburg, Fla. The wedding will take place about the first of September.

Ault-Cunningham

Miss Elizabeth Anne Ault became the bride of Mr. William A. Cunningham (MC '55) Friday, April 6. The wedding took place at St. Stephen's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Philadelphia, Pa.

Visitors

Visiting here over Easter weekend were Doris Scott's parents from Wilmington, N. C.

Bernice McCullough, former MC student was also visiting here. She is now attending Florida State University.

Also returning for Easter were Emma Curtis (MC '55), Mary Ann Thompson (MC '55), Sally Butts (MC '55), and Peggy Fisher (MC '55. Emma and Mary Ann are doing graduate work at UT and Sally is now teaching school in Waterloo, Iowa.

Natalie Richards' brother, Marvin Richards, and mother, Mrs. Martha Lee Richards, will be visiting campus over this weekend.

Bob Nier (MC '55) is on campus today. He is working in Oak Ridge, Tenn., in the physics research department.

John Mollard of Maidville, W. Va. has been here visiting friends this week. He is now attending Waynesburg College in Pa.

Pat Halstead (MC '54), Ginny Smith (MC '54), and Charles Greathouse (ex '56) were other recent visitors.

Know Your Clubs: Student Volunteers

By Ott Feddern

The Student Volunteer Movement is a National Organization with affiliated members throughout the country. However there are very few campuses that have the organization.

The purpose of Student Volunteers is to inform students about the missionary program and stimulate interest in mission work.

National Student Volunteers is a committee of the United Student Christian Council, which is the National Council of Churches on the Youth Level.

The Student Volunteer Movement here has a membership of about fifty paid members. Actually the movement reaches many more.

The following programs have been planned for the meetings, which are held in Bartlett Hall every Sunday evening after Vespers. On April 8, Annie Kelton will speak on Ybor City, Florida. April 15, Winnie Kie is going to speak again about Indonesia. Right now there is a money raising project for Indonesia. The topic for April 22 is Forces opposing missionary enterprise around the world. On April 29 there will be a "television" show called "This Is Your Life." The last meeting of the year which is May 6 will be the installation of the new officers for next year.

This past week Mr. K. J. Phillip of India and Mr. Frank J. Reynolds came to campus as an Ecumenical team, sponsored by the Student Volunteer Movement. They spoke to a combined meeting of Student Vols, YMCA, YWCA, Pre-Min Christian Ed Club and IRC Tuesday evening in Bartlett Hall. They also led chapel Wednesday morning.

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Evans

Spring Season Off to a Slow Start

There has been a rather noticeable lag on campus between the transition from winter to spring sports which has been aided and abeted by bad weather conditions. The most serious effect of this lag has been upon this page. For when there is little or no activity in the sportsworld, it becomes rather difficult to turn out a sports page. But, so much for my trials, tribulations and troubles and on to what there is of interest in the sportsworld.

Hall is Member of Winning Bowling Team

Although few students are aware of it, there are several college students who are members of the Merchants Bowling League in town. This was brought to my attention when I read in the "Times" that Mert Hall, a junior here at Maryville, was a member of the Bank of Maryville's bowling team, champs of the Merchants' Bowling League. In league competition they won 77½ games and lost 47½ games.

I felt that it was interesting to note that although the majority of students, especially dorm students, have very little interest in community activities and vice versa, there are some few students who have shown an interest in participating in community activities.

Track Team's Practice Meet

The track team scored an "overwhelming" victory in their practice meet against Everett High last Saturday, but can they do as well against college competition next Saturday. I don't mean to cast any aspersions by my last statement but just want to point out that high school competition can seem mighty easy for college athletes. Let's keep in mind that the hardest fight is ahead and although a victory came mighty easily, constant training and practice are essential to future success. I think the saddest part of last Saturday's meet was that Everett did not send over any competitors in many of the field events and consequently, most of these events were not run at all.

Revamping on Base Ball Squad

At the start of the season Coach Honaker was found with the problem of lack of experienced players in both the pitching and fielding departments. He has attempted to solve this problem in a very simple, yet effective way. His two-fold plan is that of inserting first year men in the empty positions and when need be, reshuffling the regulars to fill other positions, using rookies to fill the slots then left open.

As evidence of this, Coach Honaker substituted very freely in the season's opener with some boys being played in two different positions in the one game. Jack Crouch relieved Bill Evans at the pitcher's mound and Evans moved to the outfield. In the sixth inning Sid Gilreath came in at second and Bill Dent moved to third. In the ninth Lewis Shearer replaced Gayle Ferguson at first base base and Bob Beam replaced Don Moore behind the plate.

Big League Baseball Comes To This Area

Sports fans here at Maryville who do not live near a "major league city" will get a chance to see big league baseball in the next few days in this area. There will be three major league exhibition games in Knoxville in the next wek. On Friday afternoon at 2 P.M. the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago White Sox will clash, on Saturday at the same time the Brooklyn Dodgers will meet the Milwaukee Braves and finally the Washington Nationals will face the Cincinnati Redlegs on Tuesday at 2 P.M.

AS I SEE IT....

By Bill Strickland

The revival of track here at Maryville is a major step in the improvement of our athletic program and is a step which has been long overdue. Track affords on outstanding opportunity for the learning of both individual and group discipline. It is quite true that the majority of the events included in the course of a track meet are based on individual competition, but as is true in any other group, if there is a lack of team effort and spirit it is then likely that the team will fail to achieve its greatest potential power. Therefore it is seen that each member of the team must strive to do all in his power to make the team function as one united body, and in order to achieve this goal it is necessary for everyone to train diligently and above all regularly.

It is the matter of training with which I am at the moment mainly concerned. I fear that too many people on the Maryville campus hold the opinion that track is a sport which does not require much in the way of work and one in which just anyone may participate who feels like going out to Honaker Field some afternoon. Those who hold this opinion are not, however, totally wrong. Anyone who wishes may come out for track—anyone, that is, who is willing to sacrifice personal pleasure and gain for that which is best for the team. There is positively no event in either track or field which may be treated as a hit and miss affair. The only way one may ever achieve noticeable progress in his event is to work constantly to iron out the flaws in his form, and this can be gained only by persistent daily work. If one follows a consistent program of practice through the week, he'll be in top condition for a meet on Saturday; but if one works only haphazardly he will not be able to give a good account of himself on Saturday.

We have a potentially strong team here at Maryville, and I firmly believe that with concentrated work we may field a team that will live up to its greatest potential. The nucleus of the team has been working hard for some time now, but there are some who still have not learned the meaning of wanting to give their wholehearted support and time to the team. The high school from which I graduated held the state championship in track for five successive years, and during the three of those five years that I was on the team there was never a person who became a success in any event without weeks and months of hard work. This was due in the first place to the fact that our coach would not tolerate a haphazard attitude, and secondly because of the known fact that no one can do his best in competition if he hasn't prepared properly in practice.

It is good that track has been revived at Maryville, for it offers many advantages to both the school and the participants. Since we actually have an untried team, it is a little early to make any predictions as to the sort of season that may be expected. The only thing I can definitely promise is that if you will give your support to YOUR track team you will see every man out there giving you his very best performance.

Scots Trample Hiwassee 9-4 In Baseball Game

Wrestling: The New Man

(Taken from Sports Illustrated of March 26, 1956).

The new man wore a plain white towel over his shoulders in lieu of a robe. His weight was announced at 240 pounds, his opponent's at 323. The referee, Joe Walcott, a former heavyweight boxing champion, called both men to the center of the ring and, after a moment's talk, the bell rang and the action started.

The 323-pounder, billed as Cowboy Rocky Lee, reached for the new man's shoulders. The new man fell back, held up his fists like a boxer and the fat cowboy stopped dead in his tracks in apparent terror. The crowd of 4,200 in the Washington, D. C. arena laughed and cheered.

The new man was awkward. When he went down, he fell heavily as though he were not used to falling.

The cowboy pounced on the new man, grabbed his leg and twisted it. Ringsiders heard the cowboy whispering in the new man's ear. It sounded like "Hold on, hold on now!" The new man looked like he wanted to yawn.

It went on that way. The cowboy persisted in mean tricks, villainous ways, but always retreated in terror when the new man held up his fists like a boxer. And always the crowd cheered and laughed at the fat cowboy's terror.

Then the cowboy went too far. While Referee Walcott's back was turned, he rubbed his bandaged hand across the new man's eyes. Then he dropped the new man with an arm twist and punched him in the stomach while he was down. Walcott tried to intervene and the cowboy gave him a hard shove. Again the new man put up his fists like a boxer. He hit the cowboy full in the midsection. Not hard, but hard enough to put the cowboy down for the count of 10. It was all over. Time: 11 minutes. The crowd cheered and laughed.

Later, the new man talked to reporters in his dressing room. They asked him what he thought of wrestling after his first match.

"It's an honest living," said Joe Louis, boxing's greatest champion since Dempsey. "It's not stealing."

The promoter said he could make Joe $100,000 a year if he would agree to wrestle three times a week. Joe couldn't promise. He would have to think it over, he said, and talk it all over with his wife.

Vol Tennis Team Trounces Scots

Vol Netmen Trounce Scots

The Scots bowed to the hard hitting Tennessee tennis team, 7-3, last Saturday afternoon on the Scottie courts in their second practice match of the season.

Charles Partee downed Tennessee's Pete Hains 4-6, 6-4, 10-8 in the No. 2 singles match. Ted Engle breezed past the Vols' Jack Watson 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 7 singles. In the No. 2 doubles match Charles Partee and Stan Mont turned back Tennessee's Pete Hains and Mitch Watson 6-2, 7-5. Bruce Ingles extended Vol Bruce Foster to 9-7, 6-3 before losing the No. 5 singles.

The match scores:

Moore Hits Homer To Aid Victory

Playing on their home field, the Highlander Baseball Team downed Hiwassee 9-4 on Tuesday afternoon.

The Highlanders were sparked by the hitting and pitching of Bill Evans, who had two singles and a double for three for five, the powerful bat of Don Moore, who banged out a long homer to left and a single, collecting two for three and Bill Dent who had two for three.

Don Hill certainly deserves mention for his rifle-like throw which nailed a man at the plate.

Scottie Thinclads Down Everett High

The Highlander Harriers won an overwhelming victory over Everett High's track team last Saturday in a practice meet for both squads.

The Scots looked very good and with added practice should certainly be in top shape for their season opener against Milligan on April 13. The following are the results of those events for which the time was recorded: (Most of the field events were not run because Everett did not send over any competitors in these events.)

Mile—Don Vandenberg (co-captain) 5:03.4, Charlie Garrison 5:10.4.

880—Joe Williams 2:20.

440—Joe Williams 54.3.

Opportunities For Summer Study Are Listed In 24-Page Pamphlet

Foreign summer schools open to U.S. students are listed in Summer Study Abroad 1956, pamphlet published today by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

The 24-page leaflet lists 180 summer courses at educational institutions in 22 countries. It tells where to apply and gives helpful information on language requirements, admissions procedures, credits, living arrangements and costs, transportation, passports and visas, and scholarships. Early application should be made for the few awards available.

European countries where American students may enroll for summer study are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Eire, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, thee Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland. The Institute itself administers summer school programs in Austria and Britain.

In Latin America courses are offered at schools in Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Mexico and Peru. There are also summer study opportunities at a number of Canadian universities and at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon.

The majority of courses offered to summer visitors are designed to give insight into the language, history and culture of the host country. In addition to such "civilization" courses, instruction is offered in art, music, world affairs and other subjects. There are often special courses for teachers of foreign languages. Most courses include excursions to nearby sites of interest.

Summer Study Abroad 1956 names only those courses which are sponsored by foreign educational institutions. Reference is made to other publications which discuss study tours, work camps, student travel or other opportunities for a foreign summer.

Copies of Summer Study may be obtained free from the Information Division of the Institute of International Education in New York or from its regional offices in Chicago, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington. The Institute has information on other summer programs and offers general counseling services on study abroad.

Although the British are well known beefeaters, the average American can't be far behind in total consumption of that food. Each American consumed an average of 155 pounds of meat last year. He ate 79 pounds of beef, 10.2 pounds of veal, 4.6 pounds of lamb and mutton, and 62 pounds of pork.

Good will takes many forms. Gregor Piatigorsky, noted cellist, lost his 1712 Stradivarius cello to the Nazis in Paris at the beginning of World War II. Not so long ago, a dealer in Aachen, Germany, who had acquired it for $200, sold it back for the same amount to its famous owner. The instrument is worth from 25 to 100 thousand dollars.

SCANNING THE NEWS

PASSAGE of the so-called Harris natural gas bill which takes the regulation of natural gas prices out from control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and hands it over to the various State Public Service Commissions for control, will do three things:

(1) It will undoubtedly increase the price of natural gas to some 25,000,000 consumers eventually;

(2) It will likely cause a split in the heretofore unified ranks of the Democratic party; and,

(3) It will place the Democratic party in the position of being a party to the "give-a-ways" for which they have so furiously condemned the Republican party.

This is virtually the same bill passed by the Congress originally under the name of the Kerr bill, for Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, and which President Truman vetoed. Last year under a new version it was reintroduced in the House by Representative Harris of Arkansas, a Democrat, and just skinned through the house with heavy Republican support, and somewhat lighter Democratic support, but enough to pass it. The companion bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator William Fulbright, Democrat of Arkansas, and was made one of the "must" bills by Senator Lyndon Johnson, the Majority leader in the Senate.

One of the heaviest lobbies in history has congregated in Washington to bring about passage of the bill throughout the debate. Opposition to the bill has been spearheaded by Senator Paul Douglas, Democrat, of Illinois, and he sought several crippling amendments to the measure, one of which would eliminate the 27½ per cent depletion allowance granted the oil corporations, and another which would have eliminated the tax deductibility of cost of drilling a dry well which the oil companies enjoy.

Proponents of the measure declare that the present bill has been provided with safeguards to protect consumers. However the opponents still maintain that the passage would cost consumers as high as $800,000,000 annually in increased cost of natural gas, and that the so-called safeguards are purely of the paper variety and that a breakdown of federal regulation of prices at the well-head will mean large price increase at the other end of the pipeline in the middlewest and eastern states.

There has been no statement of policy from the executive branch of the government as to the possibility of a presidential veto.

The Nation's college and university enrollment this year will top the three-million mark for the first time in history, according to a report of S. M. Brownell, Federal Commissioner of Education.

Institutions reporting the largest enrollment include: University of California, 38,594; State University of New York, 33,634; New York University, 31,867; City College of the City of New York, 26,426; Columbia University, 25,887; University of Illinois, 24,128; University of Michigan, 23,765; The University of Minnesota, 23,393; Ohio State University, 21,744 and University of Wisconsin, 20,119. Total enrollment includes 1,784,000 men and 937,000 women.

THE CAMPUS RUSHING SEASON

Marshall Scholarship Scheme Is Announced By British

The Marshall Scholarship Scheme, a British gesture of appreciation for Marshall Aid, was announced in May of 1953. It provided for 12 U. S. scholars, to be selected annually from four regions in this country (and including the territories of Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico), to study at British Universities for periods of two, and sometimes three, years.

Candidates may be of either sex, married or single, but must be under 28 years of age and holders of a first degree signifying at least three years of college. Selection is on the basis of both intellect and character.

Each scholarship is valued at around $1,540 a year, tax free—which is estimated to be ample for student life in Britain. However, this amount may be increased at certain universities where the cost of living is higher, and married men receive an additional grant.

Five-member committees from each of the four U. S. regions—Middle West, North East, Southern and Pacific—are headed by the local British Consul-General. When regional selections are made they are forwarded to Washington to the Advisory Council of distinguished persons appointed to assist the British Ambassador make final selections.

These in turn are forwarded to London for approval by the Commission, Chairman of which is the Rt. Hon. Sir Oliver Franks, former British Ambassador to the U. S.

Winners are announced in the spring; scholarships are taken up the following October.

cers will visit more than 200 colleges and universities in all 48 states this spring. In order to meet all the diversified needs of the Foreign Service, these officers will talk not only with the promising students of History, Political Science and International Relations but also with those who are studying Economics, Foreign Languages, and Business and Public Administration.

The one-day written examination consists of four tests—English Expression, General Ability, General Background, and Modern Language. To be considered eligible for the oral examination each applicant must successfully pass the first three tests. Failure to pass the language test will not prevent the candidate from taking the oral examination or from subsequent appointment. The written language examination or an oral examination in any modern Foreign Language however must be passed before the candidate can be promoted in the Foreign Service and within four years after his appointment. Oral examinations will be given at Regional Centers throughout the United States. Those candidates who successfully pass the orals will then be given a physical examination and a full field investigation. Upon completion of these phases, the candidate will be nominated by the President as a Foreign Service Officer and his name submitted to the Senate for confirmation as Vice Consul and Secretary in the Diplomatic Service.

Starting salaries for successful candidates range from $4725 to $5475 per year depending upon the age, experience, and family status of the individual. In addition, generous insurance and retirement benefits are granted, as well as annual and sick leave.

If you wish to serve your country in one of these exceptional positions, you may obtain application forms from the Board of Examiners, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C. You are reminded that the closing date for filing the application is May 11, 1956.

Jesus Interprets History.
Lesson for March 11: Luke 21: 29-36.
Golden Text: Luke 21: 33.

Luke tells how Jesus at one time interpreted history and with special reference to the future. In reading his prophecy of the future, men are sometimes confused as not knowing whether Jesus was speaking at a given point of the downfall of Jerusalem or the end of the world.

The downfall of Jerusalem, its utter destruction and the slaughter of its inhabitants came with a generation from the time Jesus was speaking.

As to the ending of earthly time, men have differed in their beliefs concerning the second coming of Christ. Some say that Christ must come again before the world can be better while others believe that the millenium will come before the second coming. But Jesus expressly said that not even the angels in heaven know the time of the second coming. How can men know the time and why should they trouble about it.

The important thing is the agreement of Christians that Jesus will come again. And the urgent thing for each man is to be ready for the Lord's coming. By avoiding evil of every kind and by doing those things that will form in us a Christian character and devotion, we shall be prepared to meet Jesus when he comes again

The work of the former Church Nusery division of the committee was taken over by the various Sunday Schools. Sunnybrook, also formerly under the committee, is now separate as is the Negro Mission and Home Avenue Mission.

Plans include a survey of the needs of the community so that an even more effective program may be formulated. There is also discussion of the possibility of helping in the County Children's home.

Participants in this program are not only rendering service but also receive an opportunity to work with the community and to gain valuable experience in social work; hence, everyone benefits.

Fourteen Junior Girls To Make up Daisy Chain

Evelyn Blackburn Announces Choice

Evelyn Blackburn, vice president of the junior class, has chosen fourteen junior girls to make up the traditional daisy chain which precedes the yearly Commencement procession. They are Millie Beard, Alice Marie Blackburn, Evelyn Blackburn, Isabel Easley, Pat Hoover, Jane Hussey, Ann Kelton, Jama Lane, Shirley McNeill, Virginia Marshall, Katie Marston, Jane Robinson, Barbara Wilkie, and Margaret Wilkinson.

Chosen according to their representation of Maryville College and the junior class, the girls pick and make a daisy chain which they will carry in the procession.

Millie Beard, a home economics major from Birmingham, Alabama, serves on the YWCA cabinet as the co-chairman of the inter-racial committee. She is also active in Student Vols and Bainonian.

Alice Blackburn is a home economics major from Maryville. She is active in Bainonian, Christian Education Club, and Student Vols.

Evelyn Blackburn, an elementary education major from Maryville, is in Pi Gamma and has served as its vice president and secretary. She has been president and treasurer of Spanish club. Also in FTA, she has been on the M book staff and was Barnwarming sponsor from the junior class this year.

Isabel Easley, a sociology major from Williamson, West Virginia, is a junior representative on the WSGA Co-ordinating Council, having also been a representative her freshman year. She is a member of B. G. Club, Bainonian and Student Volunteers. Active in the Faith Cooperative Parish program, she is also chairman of the Inter-racial committee at Hale High School, where she has served three years. She was this year's Bainonian Rush Week co-chairman, and in her sophomore year she was Baldwin Hall house chairman. She has also been in the International Relations Club.

An elementary education major from California, Pa., Pat Hoover is vice president of Bainonian this semester. She has been elected president of FTA for next year. She transferred here from California State Teachers College in Pennsylvania her sophomore year.

Jane Hussey, an elementary education major from Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, is a member of YWCA Cabinet serving as co-chairman of Community Service. She has been active in band for three years, Disc Club, Theta Epsilon, FTA, Camera Club, and Playhouse.

Ann Kelton, a sociology major from Tampa, Florida, is a member of B. G. Club, Theta Epsilon, and Tau Kappa Chi. She has been elected president of YWCA for next year, having already served as a Nu Gamma leader and Nu Gamma chairman. She is a representative of the WSGA Co-ordination Council this year and served in that capacity her freshman year. She was secretary of her sophomore class and Theta Epsilon.

Jama Lane is an English major from Friendsville, Tenn., and is active in Pi Gamma in YWCA. Shirley McNeill, a history major from Townsend, Tenn., is a junior representative on Student Council. She is also active in Theta Epsilon and Women's Athletic Association, in which she served

ET High School Math Competitions To Be Held Here, Friday, April 27

Next Friday, April 27, fifty-five to sixty high school students are expected to be on campus for the East Tennessee mathematics competition, Marion B. Tolar, associate professor of mathematics here, has announced.

Maryville College is one of ten testing centers in the East Tennessee area and such high schools as Sevierville, Townsend, Alcoa, and Maryville are expected to send up to 6 students each. Examinations will be held in the following fields: Algebra I, Algebra II, and Plane Geometry.

As a result of recommendations by the Educational Committee of the East Tennessee Education Association, the competitions are designed to stimulate student interest and performance in mathematics. Mr. Tolar was on the committee to work out details for the program.

Mathematics students from the college will act as guides and assistants for the day's program, which will begin with registration at 9:00 at the Chapel. After a welcome by Dr. Lloyd, Tom Bugenhagen, senior mathematics major, will speak on "Why Study Mathematics."

At 10:30 exams will begin with Bill Dent, Jean Boyd, and Gavin Douglas assisting. A picnic in the college woods and swimming in the college pool are planned afterwards. At 1:00 David Williams, senior physics major, will speak on "Opportunities in Applied Mathematics" in the Theatre. Announcement of winners will take place at 2:30.

Other students acting as guides will be Bill Strickland, Jim Cummings, Ka Leeth, and Fred Sanner. Miss Margaret Hennemuth, assistant in the Student-Help office, will also take part in the general program.

First place and honorable mention awards will be given to the winners in each testing center. The top-ranking students in the East Tennessee area will be announced later. The list of winners will be made available to all the East Tennessee colleges, some of which will offer scholarships.

MC Debaters At Pi Kappa Delta Tournament

This week-end, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, finds Maryville's outstanding debaters at the Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, for the Pi Kappa Delta regional tournament.

The women's team consists of Jo Brooks and Margallen Hanna. The men's team representing Maryville is Tom Paton and Bob Goodlin. Eleanore Koster is participating in Individual Speaking.

Seniors Jo Brooks, Margallen Hanna, and Tom Paton will be participating for the last time, as this is the last tournament of the year.

Little Symphony To Give Concert

The Maryville College Little Symphony will present its spring concert on Thursday, April 26, in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. The program will consist of the following: "Symphony in D. Major," by Mozart; "Pastorale," by Paul Creston; "Woodwind Tune," by Ralph Moore; "Variations on a Plainchant," by Ralph Moore; "Overture in Italian Style," by Corelli; and "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Straus.

The "Woodwind Tune" will be presented by a woodwind ensemble. The concert will begin at 8:00. The public is invited to attend.

Spring Holiday Is Wednesday

At last a day of rest has come—April 25 is the day. This year the student council has arranged for buses to take students to the mountains. These are the trips being planned: Cades Cove, one dollar; Big Ridge State Park, $1.25; and Alum Cave, $1.50.

Ted Frauman is student council member in charge of the buses.

Student Council Gives Town Night Penalty To Two

By Ted McDaniels

The last meeting of the Student Council was opened with a discussion over the two town night violations of the previous week. One girl, a senior, had returned from town but neglected to sign in. The usual penalty of the suspension of the town night privilege for one week was moved and carried. Another girl returned from a town night two minutes late, and after some discussion the penalty of one week suspension of town night privilege was imposed.

Milk Machines

A discussion on the proposal to put milk machines in the dorms ensued, and it was stated by Charlie Garrison, the head of the investigating committee, that the Pet Milk Company would supply the machines and the milk (chocolate, vanilla or orange drink) in both half pint and pint containers. He stated also that the domitories would realize 10% of the profits. The proposal has been taken to senate.

High School Day

It was stated at Council that the annual High School day would be held this year on Friday May 4 and that a full days program would be planned for the visitors including a tour of the campus and speeches from prominent business men around the area, etc.

Student Art Show To Open Tuesday

A special invitation is extended to students, faculty, and visitors to see the Student Art Show which opens 7:30, Tuesday, April 24, Richard E. Beard, Instructor in Art, has announced.

The paintings and work of all students in the art department will be on display from April 24 through the month of May.

There will be pictures in pastels and water color and some oil portraits. In addition to these, abstract sculpture will have a big showing in the exhibit: sculpture in plaster, clay, and "praxitelite." The last type is a mixture of cement and vermiculite, the name "praxitelite" being coined by the students. Visitors may also view serigraphy, ceramics, balsawood constructions, and collages.

Y Cabinets To Go On Annual Retreat

YWCA and YMCA will hold their annual spring retreat for old and new cabinet members beginning Friday afternoon, April 27, and ending the evening of the 28th. The keynote speaker will be Reverend Carl C. Murray of the Norwood Presbyterian Church in Knoxville. Rev. Murray is an alumnus of Maryville College.

After the keynote address there will be discussion groups, evaluation reports of the past year's work, plans made for the coming year and recreation.

Committee chairmen are: meals, Judy Cummings; worship, Carol Sleight and Chuck Frissel; recreation, Martha Jackson and John Borter; campfire programs, Judy Ross and Charles Cureton.

Student Elections Are April 30-May 5

The tentative date for student body election this year is the week including April 30 to May 5. April 30 is the first day of any activity. That is the day that the campaign managers pick up the petitions and get them signed before the general campaign begins

The Social Committee has obtained the movie "All the King's Men" to show tonight at 8. An academy award winner several years ago, this picture is starring Broderick Crawford and Mercedes McCambridge. It is the story of Willie Stark, a ruthless, power-hungry demagogue, a Southern governor who begins a wreckless, corrupt administration, destined for eventful failure.

The place of showing the film was announced this morning in chapel.

'Chips' To Be Sold Today, Next Week

By Barbara Wilkie

"Chips," the annual publication of Writers Workshop will go on sale today, as was announced in chapel this morning. There are 75 copies to be sold at 55c each. Members of Workshop will be handling the sale.

Edited by Joan McNaughton and Clara Gowans, this year's "Chips" contains selections by nine members; Joan McNaughton, Jim Hopkins, John R. Graulich, Edwin R. Hunter, Faith Nollner, Joe Gilliland, Ethelyn Cathey, David Williams, and Arthur S. Bushing. All the selections were read in Workshop during the spring and fall semesters of 1955.

Included in "Chips" are poetry, short stories, an "excerpt," and an essay. Joan McNaughton has her "mock-epic," "A Hades Christmas Party," which was given at a memorable occasion last year in Miss Blair's Sophomore Lit class. She has also contributed several other poems.

Jim Hopkins has three poems and "Excerpts"—musings and recollections written impressionistically. John Graulich has a series of poems entitled "Growth." Dr. Hunter's contribution is a soliloquy of John Baptist, "Eagle in a Cage," in blank verse.

Five short stories are included: "Mater Duet," by Faith Nollner; "The Squire's Circus," by Joe Gilliland; "Lillian," by Ethelyn Cathey; "First Night," by David Williams; and "The Phoenix Nest," by Arthur S. Bushing.

Ethelyn Cathey has also contributed an essay entitled "On Death."

Executive Council Approves Revised System To Be In Effect Next Fall

A modified system of grading will go into effect beginning next semester, the Executive Council of the Faculty announced this week. By this system the highest possible grade average would be 3.0 instead of 9.0 as it stands now. A "B" average would be 2.0, and a "C" average would be 1.0. The graduation requirement will thus be changed to 122 grade points minimum instead of the present 366 grade points. The number of hours required will remain the same, however.

The new system is explained completely in the following release issued this week by the Executive Council:

"After thorough discussion in meetings of the General Faculty over the past two years, and on their recommendation, the Executive Council of the Faculty has approved a revised form of the grade and grade-point scales.

"The modified system is made up of four passing grades: A, excellent; B, good; C, satisfactory; D, poor but passing. F indicates failure. WF is, withdrew from a course while still passing, no credit; WF is, withdrew from a course with a grade of F on the record.

"Grade points are three for each hour of A grade work; two for each hour of B grade; one for each hour of C; zero for each hour of D; and -1 for each hour of F or WF. Standing is to be computed by taking the ratio of grade points earned to credit hours undertaken. Graduation calls for 122 hours and 122 grade points as a minimum. But if more hours are undertaken or completed, the required standing must be at least 1.0 on all hours undertaken.

"The primary reason for this change is a desire to simplify the grading and record system. The total outcome will be that there is no essential change except for greater simplicity. Any apparent differences are only relative. In general all the old factors for indicating standing are simply to be divided by three. 366 grade points as a minimum requirement for graduation becomes 122. C is still, as it was, the graduation average.

"Cum Laude graduation honors was on a standing of 6.75 plus 75 grade points; this becomes 2.25 plus 25 grade points. An A grade on Comprehensive examinations adds 40 grade points instead of 120 and a B grade adds 20 instead of 60. The minimum scholastic standing required by the Scholarship Honor Society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, was 7.0; this now becomes 2.33.

"The one essential change is in the basis for computing standing, which will be the ratio of hours undertaken to grade points earned instead of the ratio of hours completed to grade points earned. Thus a failing grade is a more serious penalty than heretofore.

"This system of grading is the one most in use among American Colleges. The use of it in reports and transcripts of credit will be more readily understood by other institutions than the former system.

"This modified system will go into effect beginning next September. For the next three years all students now in college will be in a transition group. For such students, in a situation where the standing under one system of grades is more favorable than the other, the benefit of the more favorable system will be given in every individual case. Thus the transition process should work no hardship for anyone."

Y Cabinets Named For Next Year

YWCA and YMCA cabinets have been announced for the coming year. The theme for both organizations will be "Christ is Life!" Those who will represent YM are as follows:

Artist Series, John Ribble; Athletics, Tom Morris and Charles Garrison; Barnwarming, Bill Deerfield; Community, Dave Krotchko; Devotions, Bob Wyman and Clem Birkelback; Fellowship, Bill Lynch and Joe Williams; Inter-racial, Ed Krebs; Missions, Bob Krogh; "M" Book, Mert Hall; Maintenance, Ed Simpson and Ted Frauman; Program, Jim Colquhoun, Sam Buffat, and Joe Tropansky; Publicity, Jim Barber and Bob Garden; Y-Radio, Bob Finertie; Y-Store, Jim Conklin.

Serving on the new YW Cabinet will be: Worship, Barbara Wilkie and Ann Murray; Devotions, Margie Jones and Millie Beard; Social, Judy Ross and Corita Erwin; Artist Series, Beverly Tillman; Barnwarming, Mary Ellen Lee; Publicity, Virginia Marshall; Y Rooms, Joan Davis and Alice Blackburn; Y Radio, Clara Gowans; Y Store, Cathy Richtmyer; "M" Book, Ann Wiley; Community Service, Jane Hussey and Ruth Morris; Inter-racial, Isabel Easley; Home Avenue Mission, Helen Hasenstab; Sunnybrook Mission, Janie Wall.

Nu Gamma leaders are: Chairman, Joan Neckerman; Linda Hayes, Mary Clover, Hillis McKamey, Ruth Wagner, Mary Newton, Gray Clark, Judy Cummings, Georgine Rholander, Lydia Munson, Kathy Briggs, Barbara Mueller, Joann Antes, Lib Guerin, Jane Mitchell, Helen MacDonald, Louise Pratt, and Dale Smith.

Dr. James Campbell To Lecture Tuesday

Chemist Will Be Second Lecturer In 1956 Series

By Joe McNeal

The second speaker of the 1955-56 lecture series will be on the Maryville College campus on Tuesday, April 24. Dr. James Arthur Campbell, professor of chemistry at Oberlin College in Ohio, is scheduled to deliver the first of a series of at least three talks to the entire student body at the chapel service Tuesday. Two other lectures will be given to smaller groups during the day.

Dr. Campbell is a native of Ohio, where he attended Oberlin College, receiving his early training in chemistry there. He has advanced degrees from Purdue University and the University of California, where he received his PhD in the field of nuclear physical chemistry. Dr. Campbell has had broad experience in the teaching field. He has served as instructor in chemistry at the University of California and has taught at Ohio State University and Michigan State. He has held his present position as professor of chemistry at Oberlin for the last twelve years.

Professor Campbell has been active also in various fields of chemical research. He has done notable work in nuclear research, and during the war he was active in the study and development of plutonium, one of the trans-uranium metals useful in nuclear weapons and advanced nuclear study. He is a specialist in radioactive technique, higher temperature cells, and the structure of liquids. He has several articles in these subjects. He is author with Professor L. E. Steiner of "General Chemistry and "Laboratory Experiments in General Chemistry."

Dr. Campbell has definitely been scheduled to deliver three talks, the first at the Tuesday morning chapel service on the general subject, "Science and Structures". At 9:30 the second speech on "Science and Religion" will be presented in Bartlett auditorium with both science and philosophy students attending. At 3:30 Professor Campbell will speak on a more technical subject, "Crystals", in Science Hall.

In addition to these scheduled appearances Dr. Campbell will be available for individual and small group discussions with students specializing in or generally interested in science.

Pre-College Recitals Given This Week

The Fine Arts Division presented two Pre-College recitals recently under the direction of Miss Katherine Crews, string instructor. The first was a Pre-College Piano Recital given on Friday, April 13, and the second was a Pre-College Recital for Strings, piano and voice, given on Monday, April 16. Both recitals were given in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

A Worthy Activity

The Lecture Series committee is to be commended for its work in bringing to campus this semester two outstanding lecturers. This series is proving to be a valuable contribution to the education of both students and faculty by giving them an opportunity to hear men important in different subject fields. It is comparable to the Artist Series, which brings guest artists in music and drama to campus. Both of these activities provide opportunities for broadening one's education and deserve the support and interest of the school and community.

Enjoy The Flowers Blooming In The Smokies

Spring holiday is coming up next Wednesday and many students will probably be going to the mountains. The Smoky Park authorities have reported that flowers are blooming in abundance in the park this spring and can be seen by those who will watch for them. One which blooms most profusely is the showy trillium, or great white trillium, and can be found along trails and highways to Le Conte, Newfound Gap, and Cades Cove. It has three petals and three white leaves and grows in large patches.

Redbud and service trees (shadbush) are at their peak. We have had redbud here on campus and the service tree is a small white-flowering tree which stands out conspicuously. Dogwood is blooming at lower altitudes and the silverbell, or snow drop tree, is showing its white bell-shaped flowers hanging from the branches.

Among the ground flowers are violets, most numerous along Little River Road and in Cades Cove. The light blue phacelia can be found along Little River and white phacelia is blooming at Chimney Campground. The blue phacelia grows about knee high and has blooms of five rounded petals on irregular stems. The white phacelia has fringed blossoms and stands three to six inches high. The great chickweed, which is blooming profusely, grows to a height of about five inches, and bears two or more white flowers marked by several dark stamens.

There are many other flowers to be found along the trails by anyone interested. Dog-tooth violet, trailing arbutus, solomon's seal and fire pink colorfully dot the woodlands. We hope students will be on the lookout for these flowers and shrubs and will recognize the names of many of them.

THE GUIDING LIGHT

By Mary Ann Morris

Light has come to Maryville College! No longer will we stumble blindly in the dark, our souls longing for light. At last, the beginning has begun. One streetlight stands proudly at the halfway mark on College Drive!!!

Romance Only Alibi

For years the teachers and other authorities have brushed aside the great need for light. "Let the kids have a little darkness on the way to town for romance!!" they said again and again. These illogical answers to a pressing problem drove many students to despair. The horrible truth glared from the inky door of the Drive———and from the haunted eyes of the students. There was no time for romance when panicky couples were once enveloped in the thick blackness. There were ravines and small lakes to be avoided, pits to be jumped, and a 100 foot drop on each side. Strange eyes would often glare out of the gloom. Sometimes, to the extreme embarrasment of both parties, the couple would have to clasp hands to come safely through this h——horror. Many times, a boy would safely reach the other side, panting with relief, only to find that his date was still furious to bring light to Maryville College. They finished their job and hurried away——to avoid the thanks of the grateful students. Being modest men they requested to remain forever anonymous. In fact, they insisted upon it!!! But deep in your hearts you may think of them——when you gaze up at the gleaming lamp on your way to town.

"SURPRISE!!!"

No formal celebration has yet been held in honor of the light, but it has been rumored that some of the boys in Carnegie Hall are planning a "surprise."

Now that the first goal has been won, for the light is really only the beginning, the students of the college will all work even harder on their dream: a streetlight every three feet (to light the way to the movies)!! YOUR help is needed! You, too, can be a martyr, and be the envy of your friends!!

have been many such——who have laid down their lives for the cause. And now, at last, the school has finally acknowledged the need for light. (They realized the enrollment was decreasing alarmingly).

In order to avoid cheering crowds and newspaper reporters, the lamp was put up secretly in the dead of night. Only two men worked fast and lost in the blackness. Many students were lost forever.

MANY MARTYRS

Many may remember the long struggle for light, and the school's heroine, martyr Marjorie McSunshine, who disappeared in the blackness of the Drive in 1902, in protest against the refusal to put up a light. Down through the years there

The young man asked, "Would you marry a sap just for money?" Demanded his girl friend, "Are you gathering statistics or proposing?"

Scots & Soda

By Paula Kronenberg

My name is Rodney, I'm a mouse. You probably haven't seen me around because I try to stay hidden. That way I can see without being seen and I don't bother anyone.

My days are usually pretty uneventful. I arise each morning around 6:30 and don my purple and red checked suit, yellow shirt, green tie with black dots, pink and orange socks, high silk hat, and, of course, my umbrella, and stroll over to the dining hall for my repast of toast, jam, and milk. My private entrance, which I use to be as inconspicuous as possible, is around on the back side of Pearsons.

As I said, my days are usually pretty uneventful, but this past week has nearly finished me. There have been so many activities and so many unusual things happening that I've been in a dither keeping up with it all.

Were You There, Too?

Take Saturday night for instance. Every Saturday night I always have an engagement with the fellows to play "Pin the Tail on the Cat" and "Capture the Cheese" over in that big barn behind Bartlett. Just imagine our consternation to find that a huge monster in a teapot had taken over our recreation center. While we were huddled under the grandstand trying to decide what to do, people started streaming in through the "See Rock City" sign. The monster didn't seem to bother them. We asked ourselves—"What are we? Mice or men?"—and decided to stick around.

After awhile the people started doing what they call dancing. Talk about good music and a good time!—that was perfect rhythm to do the "Rodent Rag" to, and we went to town forgetting all about our weekly games. It was extremely exciting, and the rag is a rather excruciating dance, so when the band played "Take the A Train", I did, right out of there.

Those Seniors!

That isn't all that's happened to me. Monday night, during my weekly visit to Carnegie, I actually got thrown out of the rooms of two seniors who have the reputation of not having opened a book all of their six years in college. Can you imagine their treating me that way?—and after all I've done for them—eating their scraps, shutting their windows when it rained, helping them write their term papers, and warning them when Mac was coming. Talk about ingratitude! They'll be lucky if I ever come back. I didn't understand what they were mad about, but I caught one word before the door slammed. It sounded like "comps".

"Comps"? I don't comprehend the meaning of the word, but the hint that I was unwelcome was anything but subtle.

It Wasn't Chopel!

Tuesday afternoon as I was making my usual journey from Anderson to the Fine Arts Center, I noticed several people scurrying toward the chapel. Not realizing that services were being held in the afternoon, and not wanting to miss anything, I immediately joined in the race. In the process of sidestepping a threatening foot I lost my silk hat. That upset me greatly, for I was extremely fond of that hat.

I was pushed along by the crowd, and once inside the chapel I saw that the people weren't sitting as they usually do. They were two rows apart and two seats apart. Curious, I thought. Someone must have eaten onions.

Right away I knew this wasn't a chapel service. Everyone had a piece of wood, two pieces of paper and a red pencil. Soon everyone began making marks on the paper with the pencil. Concluding that this was a new game, I joined right in only to find that it wasn't a game after all, but some sort of test.

From my vantage point on top of a flat-top I could tell that the girl next to me was having trouble deciding where to put the black marks—as if it mattered! I resolved to help her on a question reading: "Where are the people from Xerenitqzub from? A. Mars. B. Xerenitqzub. C. Maryville College D. none of the above." Before we could mark the answer we were told to stop. I helped collect the papers, booklets, and pencils, and being very tired, I went to my room on the fourth floor of Baldwin.

So you can see from all I've told you that this has been a very trying week. I think I'll call my aunt Esmeralda at East Tennessee State to see if she can't put me up for a week or two. Man—I really need a rest cure from all of this exciting college life! How do you humans stand it?

Davis, Bushing To Read In Last Workshop Meet

Sadie Davis and Mr. Bushing will be the readers in the last regular meeting of Writers Workshop this semester. Dr. Hunter and Miss Heron will serve as critics. New members will also be elected at this meeting.

ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Miss Isabel Mayoral to Mr. Sam Buffat, '57 is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mayoral of Centralia, Illinois. Mr. Buffat is also from Centralia. No definite plans have been made for the wedding.

VACATIONS, VISITORS, AND PARTIES

Alice Blackburn left Thursday afternoon to visit friends in Birmingham, Alabama.

Marion Drotar spent the past weekend with friends on campus.

Visiting with Margaret Connelly and Ruth Wilson during this past week were Mr. Dave Ramsey and Mr. Jim Mosher, both students at the Louisville Theological Seminary.

Jill Smither and Patsy Parks are visiting Patsy's aunt in Bristol, Tennessee this weekend.

Guests of Helena Mason in Madisonville, Tennessee this weekend are Susan Parkinson and Ruth Wagner.

Seen on campus recently have been Junior Davis, Emma Curtis, Mary Ann Thompson, Abbie Crosby, Judy Premo and Mrs. Rick MacNeil.

Guests of Frances Matthews recently were Barbara Bird and Lois Krenshaw of tlanta, Georgia.

Attending the U-T spring semiformal Nahheeyayli this past weekend were Mary Polhemus, Jane Mitchell, Pat Smith, and Lynn Mitchell.

A tremendous time was had by all those attending the houseparty at Laurel Lake following the spring formal last weekend. These lucky people were Joyce Boyd, Jay Kanick, Mary nn Richman, Katrina Wells, Natalie Wells, Carol Morgan, Susan Parkinson, Barbara Godshalk, Hazel Ingle, Susie Shaffer, Ruth Wagner, Marion Drotar, Eleanor Koster, Paula Kronenberg, Joan Neckerman and Pat Dow.

Also Bob Brown, Stan Mont, Perry Fuller, Jerry Waters, John Kinard, Dick Preston, Newton Pike, Jim Barber, Harry Crane, Bob Edris, Ted McDaniel, Wtymie Bowles, Bob Goodlin, Vernon Cooper, Chuck Frissell, and Bruce Lundburg.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Sue Tourtellotte

As the second semester rapidly draws to a close the Fine Arts Center has been alive with activity. If you have neglected looking into some of the goings on down at the FAC, this week would certainly be the time to do so. On Tuesday at 4:30 there will be another student recital in the Music Hall. At 7:30 that same evening the Student Show will open in the Art Gallery. This show is put on by students taking applied art and contains a great deal of variety.

The following week Myrna Ginaven will have her Senior Recital at 8:00 Monday evening.

Those of you who remember the Madrigal Singers at the Christmas Vesper Service will have another opportunity to hear them when they give their concert May 4 at 8:00 p. m.

Spring Fever?
